VOLUME 57. OAKLAND, GARRETT COUNTY, MARYLAND, MAY 25, 1933. NUMBER 15.

TWO GROUPS OF FOREST MEN ARRIVE IN COUNTY

One Detailed to Potomac Forest and One Stationed On Savage River Near New Germany

TO REMAIN ALL SUMMER

Company 304 of the Civilian Conservation Corps, composed of 195 men from Baltimore City, ranging in age from 18 to 25 years, arrived at Mountain Lake Park at 4:20 o'clock Monday morning and were transported from that point by truck to the Potomae Manor forest in the Bethlehem community, eleven miles southeast of Oakland where they are to remain for the summer "sprucing up" the State's 7,000 acres of forest lands. The men brought with them 35 tons of luggage, comprising tents, cots, and other eamp equipment.

The company has been at Fort Humphreys, Va., since April 8, where they were given instruction and the primary principles of army life imparted to them. Their few weeks at Fort Humphreys have made the men already browner, harder, brighter and more ereet, it was noted Monday morning before they were taken to what may be termed "the front."

They were happily leaving behind the depression era with—for them—its idleness and hunger, and were gay and cheerful—for the most part an intelligent, good looking group of young manhood.

They will spend the summer in the woods making fire trails, automobile trails, clearing dead timber from the State's forests and making them the more presentable and attractive as well as improving them.

Another group of forest workers, approximately two hundred in number, arrived at New Germany also on Monday. This group will be placed in the Bond woods along Savage River.

For the present the Swallow Falls and Herrington Manor forests will be worked by contingents from the Potomac Manor camp, but it was stated that later another company will be sent to the Swallow Falls tract.

Besides the 195 enrolled men of the C. C. C. in the Potomae camp, the outfit is officered by the following: First Lieutenant Donald W. Sawtelle, Third Cavalry, regular army, Fort Myer, in charge; Second Lieutenant Alexander G. Stone, Sixteenth Field Artillery, regular army; Second Lieutenant Fandall P. Williams, reserve officer; Captain Snyder, medical officer, recently of Walter Reed Hospital; Wm. F. Hess, 1st sergeant, 16th Field Artillery, Fort Myer; Sergeant Thaddeus J. Clark, Corporal Irvin S. Rider and First Class Private Emmett L. Merat.

5:45, reveille; 6:00, calisthenics; 7:00, hreakfast; 7:30, roll call; 7:45 to 11:15, work; 12 noon, dinner; 1:00 to 4:00, work; 4:00 to 5:00, recreation and athletics; 5:00, supper.

From five o'clock on there is no set schedule, but the men are not allowed to leave camp without a pass. Visitors will be allowed at eamp toward the end of the week, or as soon as it is in shape, and "there will be no bootleggers allowed," stressed First Sergeant Hess, a typical regular army top sergeant, if there ever was one.

Every member of the corps is outfitted with 3 suits of underwear, 6 pairs of socks, 2 pairs of shoes, 2 shirts, 2 fatigue or work suits, 1 fatigue hat, 1 overcoat, 1 raineoat and two blankets. One additional blanket will be furnished caeh man later.

Held For Assault With Intent To Kill His Son

Harmon Bittinger, of the Dry Run section, is being held for action of the grand jury on a charge of assault with intent to kill his son Russell S. Bittinger.

The elder Bittinger is alleged to have chased his son with a gun and axe, threatening his life. Given a hearing yesterday before Justice W. A. Gonder, he was placed in the jail upon failure to give bond for his appearanee in September.

Bittinger was before Justice Gonder on August 4, 1931, for an assault and battery charge on his son, and was fined $5 and costs at that time.

Burned by Gasoline

Eldon Fike, Mt. Lake Park, was painfully burned about his hands and right arm on Monday night when some gasoline ignited. The flames eaught his left hand and when he attempted to extinguish them his right hand and arm also caught fire. The wounds were dressed by Dr. Henry W. McComas.

May Have Community Garden

The Garrett County Welfare board will decide tonight whether or not Oakland will have a community garden. If the board decides favorably work will begin immediately to prepare the ground which is a portion of the old Hotel grounds now supervised by the Civic Club and owned by the B. and O. Railroad.

This ground will be available to all not having a garden. Anyone interested in having a plot may leave his request at the Board office. There will be supervision of the work.

PREPARATIONS COMPLETE FOR MEMORIAL DAY HERE

Parade Will Be at 10:30, Followed By Services at Cemetery

Following the custom of members of the Grand Army of the Republic, in their day, members of Proetor Kildow Post, No. 71, Amerlean Legion, will hold Memorial Day exercises next Tuesday morning at the Oakland cemetery.

There will be a parade at 10:30, followed by the services at the Legion burial plot in the new section of the cemetery at 11:00 o'clock.

The following organizations have been invited to participate in the exercises and the parade: Spanish-American War veterans, soldiers who served in the allied armies in the World War, Civil War veterans, American Legion drum and bugle corps and the Legion auxiliary; Gilbert-Brown Boys' Band, Crellin Band, junior drum and bugle corps, Knights of Pythias. Oakland Fire Department, Oakland Rotary Club, Oakland Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts, the Oakland schools and others.

Rev. Davd C. Trimble, rector of St. Matthew's Episcopal church, will be the speaker and his address will be along patriotic lines, and Rev. Fr. W. J. McVeigh, chaplain of the Legion post, will conduct the religious services.

The parade will form in front of the City Hall on Third street, and after marching to the cemetery the members of the Legion will decorate the graves of all soldiers buried there, carrying on the work which was done for half a century by the G. A. R.

The cooperation of all lot owners in beautifying their lots is being requested by Jos. M. Gonder, post commander of the Legion, and he is also asking all ex-service men throughout the county to participate in the services on May 30. The Legion will send a wreath to Baltimore on May 30 to be placed on the tablet containing the names of the Garrett county men in the War Memorial building in that city.

Scouts Take Second Overnight Hike; Court of Honor Monday

Twenty scouts of Oakland Troop, No. 1, and their scoutmaster spent the week-end at the scout eamp on Deep Creek Lake, nine miles north of Oakland. It was the second overnight hike of the year.

Those in the camp included Robert Browning, Jack Lawton, John Darby, Robert Broadwater, Howard Smouse, William Grant, Jack Hinebaugh, Hopwood Wooddell, Lawrence Dixon, Jr., Wilbur Altstetter, Ralph Kahl, Walter Stevens, J. Bill Yutzy, William Glotfelty, Jr., Edward Lauer, Hal McNemar, Irvin Feld, Charles Mason, Guy Hinebaugh, Robert Lawton.

Meals were cooked individually and the time was spent in playing speed ball games and a track meet. A brief Sunday school session was held at eleven o'clock.

The regular meeting of the court of honor will be held Monday night, May 29, in the Masonic clubroom, at which time those who have passed their examinations before the special examiners for merit badges will be questioned further concerning their work.

MUCH ENTERTAINMENT IS CARDED FOR CELEBRATION

Friendly Shows, Carrying Two Hundred People, to Be Here For Entire Week

LOCAL FEATURES ATTRACT

All the troubles and cares that may be the lot of many persons in Oakland and nearby towns are to be put aside and forgotten next week, according the Oakland Fire Department committee when they bring the Friendly City shows to town for six days and six nights, starting Monday, May 29. The oecasion is the Allegany-Garrett Volunteer Fiermen's Association celebration, May 29 to June 3rd.

Friendly City Shows employ over two hundred people, a veritable tented city in itself, and will arrive by automobiles and trucks on Sunday. The show grounds will be on the Sweeney lot on Third street.

Many new attractions are to be seen with this aggregation. Music, mirth, mystery and thrills are the dominating things this year, besides the ten shows and six rides.

Local features are expected to attract many, especially the prize baby show and the young ladies' popularity contest.

Entrics for the baby show are as follows: Carrol Sue Liller, age 1 year; Sonny Boy Browning, 8 months; Carth McRobie, 1 year; Ticky Hinebaugh, five years; Barbara Ann Winters, 14 months; Mary Jane Stephens, 3 years; Peggy Lou Winters, 3 years; Thelma Louise Winters, 5 years, and Betty Jane Shaffer, 2 years.

Entries for the young ladies' popularity contest are as follows, up to and including Wednesday evening, May 24th: Miss Willavene DeWitt, Miss Helen Shaffer, Miss Kathleen Sirianni, Miss Ardith Hinebaugh, Miss Aliee Marion Whorton, Miss. Anna Pearl Baker and Miss Elizabeth Gibson.

Entries for both the baby show and popularity contest will be accepted up to and including Saturday evening, May 28, instead of May 24, as previously announced.

Certificates Presented to Students in Night Mining Classes

One hundred twenty-one persons attended the tenth annual banquet of the night mining classes of the George's Creek and Upper Potomac coal regions at Frostburg last Thursday evening. One hundred two certificates of attendance at the classes were awarded—seventy-two to the Upper Potomac region and thirty to the George's Creek region.

Included in the musical numbers rendered at the banquet were the Shallmar mining elass stringed orchestra; violin and autoharp selections by Ernest Ashby and Clarence Sanders, of Crellin.

Awards were made at the banquet to C. W. Tasker, of Vindex, and Edward C. Crowe, Frostburg, for highest percentage in this year's class; D. L. Arnold, Barton, received second prize; Elvin Iman, Vindex, third, and William H. Murphy, Crellin, fourth.

The total enrollment of the ten classes for the past year was 520.

AN APPEAL IN BEHALF OF THE MEN IN THE REFORESTATION CAMPS

They Need Magazines and Other Reading Matter For Their Rest Hours, and Sport Article, Etc., For Recreation

The young men in the government reforestation corps in this territory are in need of material to relieve the dullness of the hours when they are not working.

Persons who visited the camps just established at New Germany and at Potomac Manor in Garrett county yesterday have asked that an appeal be made, through The Republican, for magazines, newspapers, books and other good reading matter and such articles as jig saw puzzles to while away the lonely hours when they are not working in the forests.

They need sports goods such as baseballs, bats, gloves, horse shoes and other articles for outdoor play. It seems they stop work in the afternoon at 5 o'clock and have several daylight hours in camp for rest and recreation. The government does not supply any equipment for recreation. Rev. Louis Vaeth, recently appointed by Archbishop Curley as general chaplain to look after the spiritual needs of members of the Catholic faith at reforestation eamps, visited the camp at Potomae Manor yesterday and was impressed with the need of reading matter and play equipment for all the young men in camp, and while in Oakland this morning asked that the appeal of the men be passed on to the publie.

The Chaplain arranged with the Boy Scouts and American Legion to collect material on Saturday, and anyone having sueh material is requested to notify George Hanst, scoutmaster, or Joseph M. Gonder, American Legion, or any members of either organlzation. A camp truck will eome to the eity from time to time and will take anyhing that may be donated to the camp when the young men will be glad to use them. Supplies will be stored at The Republican office until called for by the trucks.

PAIR HELD FOR HAULING LIQUOR AT KITZMILLER

Prohibition Officers Confiscate Truck and Roadster

Adam S. DeCost and Leo Rowan, of Kitzmiller, were arrested early yesterday morning by a group of Federal Prohibition agents, near the West Virginia border adjoining Kitzmiller, charged with transporting liquor.

A truck and roadster were seized with twelve 5-gallon kegs of alleged moonshine liquor aboard, destined to West Virginia dealers.

The two men were taken to Cumberland where they are being held in jail pending a hearing before the U. S. Commissioner.

17TH ANNUAL FIELD MEET TO BE HELD ON THURSDAY

County School Athletes To Compete at Grantsville This Year

The seventeenth annual county-wide field and track meet will be held next Thursday at Grantsville when more than 350 athletes from the various schools of the county will compete.

The meet is being held under the auspices of the Playground Athletic League of Baltimore, and under the authority of F. E. Rathbun, County Superintendent. Foster O. Speicher is chairman of the committee in charge.

A number of schools have already sent in their entries to the chairman and a number are holding daily practice sessions in preparation for the county-wide contest.

There will be various running events, relay races, broad jumps, high jump, shot put, etc., for the 80-lb., 95-lb., 115-lb. junior and senior unlimited classes, and speedball, volleyball and dodgeball contests and other games for all the schools participating.

Oakland high won the meet last year with Kitzmiller high, second, Kempton third, and Oakland grammar fourth. Five new county records were established last year in track and in field events, and two were set and one tied in the games events, and with fair weather prevailing this year, it is expected that more records will fall.

Oakland high holds fourteen records; Kitzmiller high eight; Kitzmiller grammar three, and Oakland grammar two, with several other schools holding one each.

To Construct New Hatcheries; Output to go Into Deep Creek Lake

The Deep Creek Lake Fish and Game Association of Garrett County held its fifth meeting at Lakeside Park on Saturday evening, May 20, when approximately seventy-five members attended.

Mr. Powell, superintendent of the State hatcheries located at Lewistown, gave an interesting talk on the propagation of fish, touching upon both the technical and practieal side.

Within the next three weeks work will begin, with C. M. Railey as foreman, upon the eonstruction of another rearing pond at the Bear Creek hatchery, and as soon as the pond is completed the Federal Government will furnish ten thousand two-inch fingerling brook trout. The Conservation Department of Maryland will furnish the food and care for the fish in this new pond and the entire output will be put into Deep Creek Lake as soon as they grow into five-inch length.

The local association will in the near future construct a rearing pond of its own near McHenry or on Meadow Mountain Run, and the entire output of this pond will also be placed in the lake.

Mr. Powell stated that his department will stock the Youghiogheny River with black bass this year.

The Deep Creek Lake Association now has a membership of one hundred fifty. The next meeting will be held at Lakeside Park on Saturday, June 10.

Brotherhood Meeting

St. Mark's Brotherhood held its May meeting last Tuesday evening with about twenty-five present. Reports were brought from the recent rally and Brotherhood convention at Aurora. A round table discussion on present day problems was held.

The June meeting will be a ladies' night, which will be the last meeting before vacation. The committee for ladies' night is G. J. Altstetter, Ernest Townshend, Floyd Wensell and William Porter.

GARDEN SEEDS GIVEN OUT TO APPROXIMATELY 1,000

Sufficient in Packages to Plant Plot 40x50 Feet—Several New Work Projects Started

PAYROLL INCLUDES 529

Seventeen kinds of garden seeds will have been distributed among approximately one thousand families in Garrett county by the end of the week by the Garrett County Welfare Board. The first package, which has already gone out, contained twelve different kinds of seeds and the latter, which was delayed by slow shipment, will be ready by Saturday. Heads of dependent families who are on work relief projects were given the seed without cost. Other cases of direct relief will be included in the distribution, such as widows and women with ill husbands.

It is estimated that the seed in the individual packages will plant a family garden 40x50 feet in size. The seeds were bought in wholesale lots and a group of women in need of work relief were given the task of packaging the different seed in separate containers.

The Welfare Board wishes to express its appreciation to the Lutheran church board for the use of its basement with its long tables which made the packaging possible, and to the people of the eommunity who gave their assistance in getting the seed distributed.

A community garden is being considered for those families who do not have garden plots. An old gentleman came into the headquarters office recently and offered the board the use of ground, with fertilizer thrown in, to be used for the growing of buckwheat for flour next winter, according to Miss Wileox, relief administrator. The board will consider this project tonight at its regular weekly meeting.

New Projects Started

Several new projects were opened during the week: Sang Run; an additional piece of work near Gorman and Friendsville. There are now 18 projects going ahead in the county. The payroll for the week ended May 20, which will be paid Saturday, contains the names of 529 men. Projects in the central and eastern part of the county will be developed as rapidly as possible. It is estimated that there will be approximately thirty projects undertaken in the county before the board's program of work relief is completed.

The names of fifty experienced woodsmen were sent in to the State Forestry Department yesterday for employment in the reforestation camps, and it is expected that they will be called in the near future.

No quota for the inexperienced men between 18 and 25, who are to be members of the Civilian Conservation Corps, has been received by Miss Wilcox and it is not known when they will be called. More than 100 have registered for this reforestation work, and it is thought that those chosen will be sent to Idaho and Utah, after their usual training period in one of the army eamps.

Child Struck and Injured By Motor Car on National Highway

Theresa McKenzie, aged 10 years, daughter of Joseph McKenzie, of near Long Stretch, a settlement on the National Highway east of Grantsville, is a patient at the Miners Hospital in Frostburg, suffering with severe injuries received about 3:45 o'clock on Saturday afternoon on Long Stretch when she was struck by a car.

The little girl, who makes her home with Samuel McKenzie, was one of a group of children who had taken instruction at St. Anne's Catholic church in Avilton Saturday afternoon in preparation for her first eommunion. She was returning from Avilton with other children in the motor car of Rev. Fr. Michael, of Sts. Peter and Paul's church, Cumberland.

When the ear stopped at the home of Samuel McKenzie the girl stepped from the machine and in some manner was struck by a machine moving westward and driven by D. L. Davenport, of Horseshoe, N. C. Other occupants were Miss Norma L. Davenport, also of Horseshoe; M. L. Gries and Charles Gries, 1134 Kenyon street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

Following the accident the child was taken to Miners Hospital, Frostburg, where she is being attended by Dr. J. C. Cobey.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL

SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

©, 1933, Western Newspaper Union.

Lesson for May 28

JESUS AND HIS FRIENDS

LESSON TEXT—Mark 13:1-14:9.
GOLDEN TEXT—Ye are my friends, if ye do whatsoever I command you. John 15:14.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Some Friends of Jesus.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus an Honored Guest.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Being a Friend of Jesus.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Showing Our Friendship for Jesus.

A better title for this lesson would suggest Jesus as giving a prophetic outline of events in the interval between his crucifixion and his second coming.

I. The Occasion of the Prophecy (vv. 1-4).

As Jesus was passing out of the temple for the last time on his way to the Mount of Olives where he gave this discourse, the disciples reminded him of the splendor of the building, to which he replied that not one stone should be left upon another. When seated upon the Mount, the disciples came privately, according to Matthew 24:3, with a threefold question requesting further information.

1. "When shall these things be?"
2. "What shall be the sign of thy coming?"
3. "The end of the age?"

That which follows is given in answer to these three questions.

II. The Characteristics of the Age Between the Crucifixion and Christ's Second Coming (vv. 5-23).

1. The appearance of many deceivers (vv. 5, 6). Many false Christs have pressed their claims as being the Messiah since Jesus went back to heaven. As this age draws to a close we may expect these claims to increase.

2. Wars and strife among the nations (vv. 7, 8). The history of the centuries since Christ's crucifixion is written in blood.

3. Earthquakes, famines, and troubles (v. 8). Though these calamities grow increasingly severe as the days lengthen, the intelligent disciple is not surprised or alarmed for these are the precursors of a new order, the birth-pangs of a new age when the Kingdom of Christ shall be established on this earth. Let the believer in Christ in this time of darkness look up, for his redemption draweth nigh.

4. Dreadful persecutions (v. 9). God's witnesses shall be delivered up to councils, beaten in the synagogues, and shall be brought before rulers and kings for Christ's sake as a testimony against them.

5. Universal evangelism (v. 10). The gospel of the kingdom, according to Matthew 24:14, shall be preached in all the world for a witness. This is not the gospel of the grace of God which is now being preached, but a new evangelism which shall be proclaimed by elect Israelites immediately preceding the coming of Christ to establish his kingdom. (See Romans 11:13-15; Rev. 7:4-10.)

6. The universal hatred of the believing Israelites (vv. 11-13). They shall be severely persecuted. Civil government shall be against them. Their one duty notwithstanding shall be to preach the gospel of the kingdom, depending upon the Holy Spirit for wisdom and power. For this specific duty they are sealed with the seal of God in their foreheads (Rev. 7:3). This will be the real Pentecost of which the outpouring of the Spirit at the beginning of the church was a type (Joel 2:28-32; Acts 2:16).

7. The great tribulation (vv. 14-23). This is the consummation of the age immediately preceding the glorious appearing of Christ. Out of the missionary efforts of converted Israel shall eventuate the unparalleled horrors so vividly pictured here. Daniel's "abomination of desolation" is the Antichrist—"the man of sin" (Dan. 9:26, 27; Dan. 11:36; II Thess. 3:3, 4), who will direct this reign of terror.

III. The Glorious Return of the Lord (vv. 24-27).

Jesus' return is the superlative event, the one to which all prophecies have pointed and to which all ages are moving with unfailing precision.

IV. Application of the Prophecy (vv. 28-37).

1. As these events multiply in the earth, we know that the coming of the Lord draweth nigh (vv. 28, 29).

2. The Jewish race shall retain its integrity until the end (v. 30). The perpetuity of Israel is the miracle of the ages.

3. Certainty of fulfillment (v. 31). The unfailing guarantee of this is the words of Jesus Christ.

4. The time of Christ's coming is unknown (v. 32). In view of this fact it is folly to set the time.

5. The proper behavior in view of Christ's imminent coming (vv. 33-37) is watchfulness and prayer.

Life's Watch Towers

The watch towers of life are not all atop office buildings; some folks find them on a mountain, beside a quiet brook, or in the quietness of a pine forest where even the carpet of needles is silent to the tread.—Bok.

Christ Is Coming

"We are on the verge of the greatest event in the history of the church—we are on the verge of the coming of Christ; he may come at any moment."—Rev. B. L. Langston.

Henry Ford

May 15, 1933

Time and again I am told——by my own organization and by others——that I penalize myself by quality.

Friendly critics protest our putting into the Ford V-8 what they call "twenty-year steel." They say such quality is not necessary; the public does not expect it; and that the public does not know the difference anyway.

But I know the difference.

I know that the car a man sees is not the car he drives——he drives the car which the engineer sees. The car which is seen, comprises beauty of design, color and attractive accessories,——all desirable, of course. The best evidence that we think so is that they are all found on the Ford V-8.

But these are not the car. The car proper, which is the basis of all the rest, is the type of engine and its reliability; the structure of chassis and body, ruggedly durable; the long thought and experiment given to safety factors; the steady development of comfort, convenience and economy. These make the car.

A car can be built that will last two or three years. But we have never built one. We want the basic material of our car to be as dependable the day it is discarded as the day it is bought. Ford cars built 15 years ago are still on the road. It costs more to build a durable car——but two items we do not skimp are cost and conscience. A great many things could "get by"——the public would never know the difference. But we would know.

The new Ford V-8 is a car that I endorse without any hesitancy. I know what is in it. I trust our whole thirty years' reputation with it. It is even better than our previous V-8. It is larger, more rugged and mechanically a better job all round.

I readily say this in an advertisement because I know the car will back it up.

PRENATAL CARE HELPFUL TO MOTHERS AND BABIES

Safeguards Mother's Health and Gives Child Better Start in Life

"Care of mothers-to-be serves a double purpose. It helps to safeguard the lives and health of the mothers and it also gives their babies a better start in life," Dr. J. H. M. Knox, Jr., Chief of the Bureau of Child Hygiene of the State Department of Health, said, in answer to the question, "Why prenatal care?" "Adequate care of the mother-to-be means not only medical care and supervision during the waiting period, but it also includes provision for care at birth and after the arrival of the baby. Expectant mothers who have such care have an excellent chance to come through the ordeal without complications and with both mother and baby in favorable condition.

"Mothers are realizing more and more, what this care means and they are arranging to secure it either thru their own doctors or thru attendance ot what is called 'prenatal' clinics. Clinics of this kind are held in connection with practically all of the general hospitals in Baltimore City and in all of the larger cities throughout this country. There are not as many of them in the country districts, but I am glad to say that clinics for expectant mothers have been established in connection with the work of the county health departments, with the cooperation of the county medical societies, in six of our Maryland counties —Harford, Cecil, Allegany, Calvert, Anne Arundel and Frederick—and we are looking forward to the time when we will have them wherever they are needed.

"Nearly everybody understands about the need for skilled care of the expectant mother, during the waiting period, but very few realize what such care means for the baby. A glance at the records of the State Department of Health of births and of deaths —especially of deaths in the first year of life, shows why such 'advance' care is necessary. Year after year our records, like those of other states, show that nearly half the babies who die during the first year of life slip away during the first month after birth. In 1930, when there were 2,280 deaths among babies under a year old, in Maryland, 1,128 occurred during the first month of life. In 1931, when 2,324 deaths under one year were reported to the State Department of Health, 1,040 occurred during the first month and last year when there were 1,994 deaths under one year old, 1,049 occurred before the babies were a month old.

"There has been a great saving of infant life through instruction of young mothers as to feeding and general care of their babies after the babies arrive, and through the control or prevention of infectious diseases among babies, but nearly all of this reduction has occurred in the later months of life. It is obvious that we can't depend upon care after birth, to save the little lives that flicker out in the first few days or weeks of life, because of general weakness, prematurity or similar causes. To cut down this loss the care must begin with care of the expectant mother."

Here is a little problem in simple arithmetic for you:

You have two piles of dollars. You have been spending from one of them and it is growing alarmingly small. So you stop spending from it and take the dollars from the other pile instead.

This, you say, is economy, and reduction of expenses.

Absurd as this problem is, it is no more absurd than the antics of our legsilative bodies in the matter of taxes. They shift a tax from one class of property to another—thus taking the money from "different piles" and call it tax reduction. For government, as for an individual, there is but one way to reduce taxes—spend less money.

MAKE TAXES FIT INCOME

Back in the palmy days of the pre-depression era, extravagance in many businesses was responsible for their subsequent failure. They had built up expenses and an overhead that could not be met when sales dropped.

Extravagance on the part of individuals, in buying luxuries they could do nicely without, was likewise the cause of hardships later on. Salaries were cut, jobs were lost—and it was impossible to maintain the old inflated standards of living.

By the same token, government extravaganee now is laying the seeds of even greater trouble. Businesses and individuals have learned their lessons—they have cut their sails to fit their finances. Government has not. It has broadened its functions and raised its operating costs in the face of gigantic drops in the national income. It is maintaining itself in a state of luxury that the private citizens cannot afford.

Unless government retrenches, the capital that provides jobs, opens new opportunities and creates productive enterprise will be stifled. The farmer will be crushed beneath a burden of costs that he cannot pay—in various states. The individual is faced with tax payments out of all proportion to income.

In brief, the work of recovery will he futile if government refuses to trim its costs to fit the nation's pocketbooks.

IN DAYS OF OLD

FORTY YEARS AGO

A hand was organized by citizens of Mountain Lake Park and Lake View (now Loch Lynn Heights).

Prof. R. R. Sanner, remembered as a public school teacher for many years and as an ex-Union soldier, was engaged to deliver the Decoration Day oration at the local cemetery.

During a hail and rain storm, the elements did considerable damage to gardens and growing vegetation. A number of low places in the community were flooded.

Improvements on property, including terraces, fences, painting and additions to homes were being made on the Corrigan property and by A. G. Sturgiss, F. G. Hyde, Mrs. Mary Brady, Robert Porter, D. E. Offutt, Joseph Martin, Sr., Mrs. Leah F. Sincell, William Groves and E. Z. Tower.

The Bayard Coal and Coke Company, believing the construction of the Cumberland and Baltimore railroad would be completed as planned, established its chief office and banking house in Hagerstown.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Automobiles were purchased by J. Gordon Mealy, J. S. Gnegy, Roy Winters, Oakland; Dr. Copeland, Kitzmiller; Josiah Moon, of near Hutton.

Miss Blanche Chance and Mark Moon were married at Mountain Lake Park by Rev. W. D. Reed. Mr. Moon was until just before his marriage a student at Buckhannon, where he had planned to enter the ministry, but failing health caused him to relinquish his studies.

M. M. Ashby, Oakland, was awarded the contract for carrying mails on a star route from Oakland to Accident and return, at $1,000 per year.

A leak of considerable proportions was discovered in the Oakland city reservoir.

James Bell went to Detroit, Mich., expecting to become employed as a conductor on the city street car system.

Oakland Lodge, Order of Owls, had a membership of one hundred. Joseph Flanigan was past president and G. D. White, president of the organization.

At the Deer Park Hotel improvements costing approximately $8,000 were being made. Notables were expected during the summer, including Count and Countess de la Rocca, of the French Embassy; Congressman and Mrs. Mann and Congressman Hobson, hero of the Merrimac.

Bishop McNamara to be Here to Confirm Church Class Sunday

Flag Raising Ceremony To Officially Open Mt. Lake Hotel

Mountain Lake Hotel will be officially opened Saturday, May 27, with a flag raising ceremony has been announced.

A well constructed steel flag staff, 80 feet high, towering above the trees of the hotel grounds, was recently erected by the hotel management, and this will be commemorated in connection with the opening of the hotel. The flag will be raised by members of the Oakland Boy Scout troop.

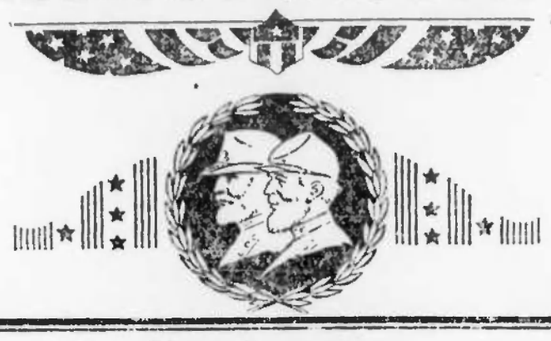
There will be a short parade covering the hotel grounds at 4:00 o'clock led by the Oakland Boys' Band and participated in by the scouts and any others present who may so desire, and this will be followed by the rendition of selections by the band.

The tentative program includes introductory remarks by the Rev. W. B. Brock and a few words from the mayors of the neighboring towns, Mayor F. R. Utterback, Mountain Lake Park; Mayor Grover C. Stemple, Oakland, and Mayor C. E. Hardesty, Loch Lynn Heights. State Senator Henry W. McComas will also speak. This portion of the program will be followed by the singing of "America," flag raising by the scouts, singing of the "Star Spangled Banner," and the benediction by the Rev. I. S. Middaugh. Miss Sara B. Huff will lead the singing.

Appointed Justices of the Peace

Charles F. White and Wm. F. King, Oakland, have been notified by Secretary of State Wirebrenner that they have been commissioned Justices of the Peace for this county.

MEMORIAL DAY



Proclamation

WHEREAS, May 25 to May 30 marks the anniversary of "Buddy Poppy Week" and

WHEREAS, it has been observed as such by Proctor Kildow Post No. 71 American Legion on previous occasions and

WHEREAS, The Ladies' Auxiliary of The American Legion is sponsoring such a movement this year

THEREFORE, I, Grover C. Stemple, Mayor of Oakland, do hereby declare that the week of May 25 to May 30, 1933, inclusive, shall be observed as "Buddy Poppy Week" by the people of Oakland, and I do hereby request that the people respond and purchase a Poppy, in as much as this is an opportunity to show their appreciation to these ex-soldiers and to help the veterans who are in hospitals. (Signed) GROVER C. STEMPLE,
Mayor of Oakland.

Annual Poppy Sale to Begin on Saturday, May 27th

Everybody is being asked to wear a poppy from May 27 to Tuesday, May 30, in memory of the world war soldiers who fell in France. The annual poppy sale is being held by the American Legion Auxiliary, as an aid to the war disabled, the widows, and the fatherless children.

A member of the auxiliary portrays a picture, "His fixed bayonet was pointed toward the enemy. His steel helmet was tilted down over determined eyes. An unseen machine gun sprayed his path with death, but he went forward for America. In a poppy-studded wheat field he fell. They buried him after the wave of battle had swept by, and poppies sprang up around his grave. His victorious comrades, returning to America, brought memories and the poppy.

The poppy is a symbol of the remembrance of the World War dead, and all are being asked to remember.

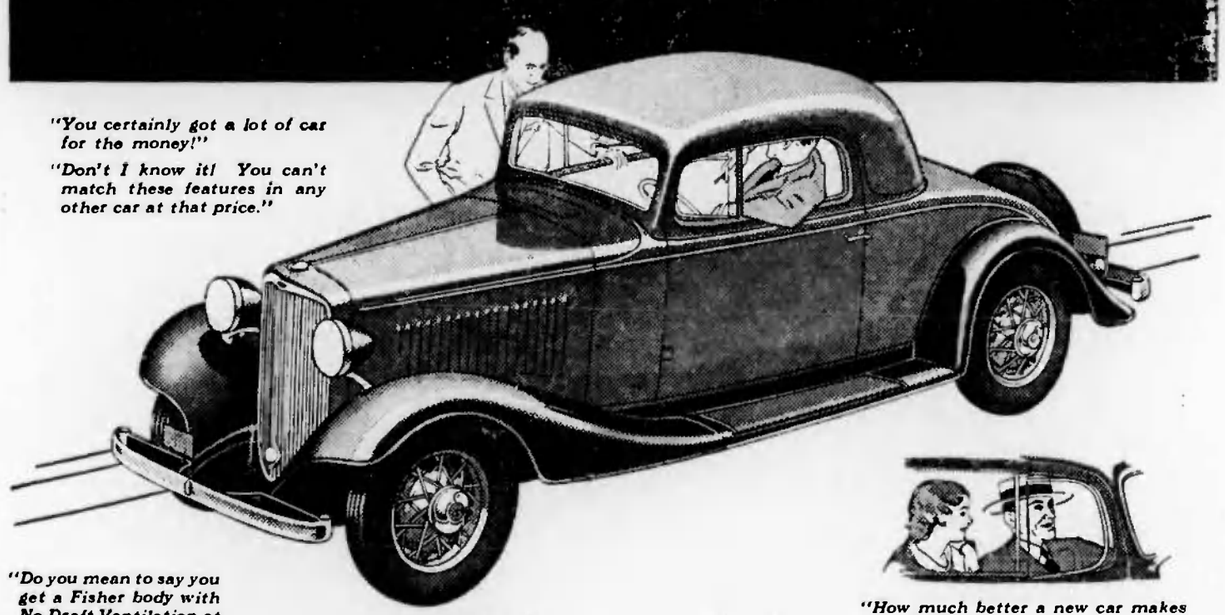
Think how much you save on the purchase price alone!



"You certainly got a lot of car for the money!"

"Don't I know it! You can't match these features in any other car at that price."

"Do you mean to say you get a Fisher body with No Draft Ventilation at that price? No wonder everyone I know is going in for Chevrolets."

"A new Chevrolet! I thought you were going to wait awhile."

"I figured I might as well start saving right away. And say, this Chevrolet is certainly a record-breaker for economy."

Once you start driving a Chevrolet, you're off on a long, non-stop economy-tour that saves you money every thrilling mile. You'll make fewer visits to filling stations—because Chevrolet uses less gas and oil than any other full-size car. You won't have to worry about repair bills, because Chevrolet is built right, and stays right! You won't have to think about trading it in, not for many tens of thousands of miles. . . . Chevrolet stands up so well you won't want to! And all the while Chevrolet is saving you money, you're enjoying the thrill of driving one of the smartest, snappiest, most advanced cars on the road!

Mrs. George W. Keys, of Alexandria, Va., en route to her home from Charleston, W. Va., where she spent the winter with her sister, Mrs. G. A. Bolden, spent a day or two this week in Oakland with her niece, Miss Kate Shirer.

James Fazzalari, who recently purchased the Central Hotel property on Alder street, is adding to the appearance and the surroundings of the house by having an old barn, which stands on the rear of the lot, torn down.

J. W. Jackson & Co., merchants of Lonaconing, have rented the D. M. Dixon & Son store building in Oakland and will occupy it within a short time or as soon as the necessary alterations now being made are completed. The new concern will carry a general line of novelties.

Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Naylor and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Naylor left Oakland Saturday morning for Mount Vernon, O., where they spent Sunday with their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Wareham, returning Monday, accompanied by Mrs. Wareham, who will remain here with her parents for a visit.

Irvin R. Rudy, resident manager of the Coffman-Fisher store, has purchased the Ralph T. Thayer residence property located on Oak street and contemplates occupying it in the near future. Mr. Thayer has rented the residence property recently vacated by Henry W. McComas, Jr., and located on Route 37 just on the edge of town.

Rev. Brock Addresses Members of Oakland Fire Department

Approximately thirty-five members of the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department, a delegation from the Terra Alta fire company and members of the local fire department auxiliary, were present last Sunday morning in the Garrett Memorial Presbyterian church when Rev. Walter B. Brock delivered a sermon to those present at the annual attendance in a body of the firemen's organization.

In part Rev. Brock said:

Someone cautioned me to be careful what I said today. "Praise the firemen all you please, but don't try to put wings on them." My answer to that kindly advice is that it would be futile for me to try to put wings on the firemen, because they already have wings. They must have wings, judging from the way they fly to a conflagration. Even in the wee small hours of the morning, before the fire siren stops screaming, we hear the machine gun staccato of the gigantic LaFrance motor warming up, and off you go with a trail of flame and smoke behind you like a comet streaking thru the stratosphere.

Whether those wings will take you to the pearly portals of the Celestial City with equal alacrity, I do not know; but this I do know, that the citizens of Oakland rest more easily in the knowledge that there is this company of stalwart guardians always ready to rush to any point of peril to save the lives and salvage the property of the people.

Two things Oakland owes to her splendid volunteer fire department: (1) Unstinted praise for the prompt, efficient, courageous service which they render in every hour of critical danger, and (2) more effective cooperation with them in helping rid the community of its greatest physical menace—fire!

The most atrocious felony in the catalogue of crime is arson. The most sinister criminal is the firebug who not only destroys millions of dollars worth of property, but incidentally murders thousands of men, women and children with the most fiendish cruelty.

But the most dangerous firebug is not the masked man who prowls at night. The most dangerous firebug is respectable Mr. John Citizen who carelessly drops a cigarette or lighted match without looking to see where it lands, who negligently allows inflammable waste to accumulate in the cellar or attic of his house or place of business, who thoughtlessly leaves a smouldering camp fire in the woods without thoroughly extinguishing it. Only a small proportion of the appalling and tragic loss of life and property in America through unnecessary fires is due to deliberate criminal malice aforethough; most of it is due to carelessness, negligence, thoughtlessness!

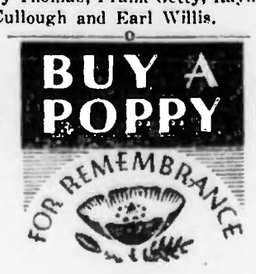
This is the second time we have had the honor and pleasure to welcome the O. V. F. D. as our guests at a special service. We hope it will become an annual custom for you to worship as a body in some Christian church. We hope that your example will be followed in other communities.

We hope it will signalize a more active cooperation between the Church and the fire department. After all, we are in the same business: your job is to save people from fire in this world and the Church's job is to save souls from the fires of the world to come. The churches should loyally support the fire company, and the firemen should loyally support the churches, each individual being faithful to the church of his choice—to the end that our community may become not only a safe place in which to live, but also a wholesome place for girls and boys to grow up into useful, happy Christian womanhood and manhood.

Mr. Floyd Teter and Mr. Ellsworth Wilson, both of Belington, West Va., were here Tuesday morning for a short time. Mr. Teter is the father of Mr. Berne Teter, of the Farmers Bank, while Mr. Wilson is a descendant of the Wilson family who moved from Garrett county along in the year 1849 and settled in the vicinity of what is now Elkins.

Mr. Gordon Mealy, Baltimore, was in Oakland and at the Park a day or two this week. At the latter place where he is interested in property, he found a lilac tree bearing magenta colored blooms, two of which he brought to The Republican office. The blooms were extremely showy and rather larger than the white or purple flowers of the same family.

The junior class of Oakland High school gave a dance in honor of the seniors last Friday evening in the school auditorium. The hall was decorated in the class colors and music was furnished by Don Hartman's orchestra, of Kingwood. Cards and other games were featured for those who did not care to dance. Besides 117 juniors and seniors who attended were Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Loraditch, Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Bittle, Mr. and Mrs. O. T. Graser, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Hanst, Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Emerson Bishoff, Mr. and Mrs. Cheston H. Browning, Misses Alverta Dillon, Catherine Schneidy, Mary Humphreys, Rose Rice, Margaret Stoffle, Margaret Kochenderfer, Mary Thomas; Frank Getty, Raymond McCullough and Earl Willis.



Hugh Teets, who has been operating the Central Garage on Third street for the past two or three years, has sold his interests to Ray Teets, garageman for the past several years operating at the corner of Third and Oak streets, who will continue to operate both places. Mr. Hugh Teets retains the coal business which he operated during the past winter in connection with the Central Garage.

GORTNER

Mr. B. W. Smith closed the revival meeting here on Friday evening. There were four applicants for church membership. These will be baptized at Gortner the afternoon of June 18.

Mr. and Mrs. N. Litwiller, missionaries from South America, conducted services here Saturday evening and Sunday morning.

Mrs. George Hesen and Mr. and Mrs. Cash Hesen, of Keyser, W. Va., were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Schlossnagle on Sunday.

Daniel Moseman, Maurice Landis, Richard Martin, Samuel Strong, Clarence Horst and Ernest Swartzentruber, students at Harrisonburg, Va., spent Thursday night with Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Swartzentruber.

Leroy White and family were Sunday guests at the home of Roy Lee.

Mr. and Mrs. McKinley Imes, of Cumberland, spent Sunday at Clarence Fulk's.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Gortner and daughters, of Grantsville, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Slabach and Miss Anna Virginia Slabach, of Uniontown, were guests of home folks here on Sunday.

Mrs. D. J. Swartzentruber, Mrs. Dan Petersheim, Mrs. Henry Yoder, Mr. and Mrs. Joel Slabach, Lena Slabach, Mr. and Mrs. Simon Swartzentruber and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Sisk spent Sunday afternoon at B. H. Yoder's.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Swartzentruber, Misses Mary Lichty Fannie and Amelia Yoder and D. L. Swartzentruber attended the Mission Board meeting at Springs, Pa., on Sunday and Tuesday.

THE MARYLAND BIBLE SOCIETY'S CORNER

"The Word of Our God Shall Stand Forever"

The Book of Job is regarded by many scholars as the oldest book in the Bible; by others as being contemporary with the exile.

The main subject of this book is the problem of human suffering. It is highly dramatic. Job, represented as a perfect and upright man, God-fearing and shunning evil, is handed over to Satan to be tried, the one stipulation of the Almighty being that his life shall be spared.

The plot is laid in the land of Uz, in the Syrian desert, between Damascus and Edom. The first scene reveals Job in the midst of his happy family, seven sons and three daughters. Job, unspoiled by prosperity, a godly father, ministers as a priest to his large household. It was their custom to visit from home to home, and feast with each other in turn. Job, always careful in religious observances, went and sanctified them after these happy revels, lest inadvertently some of them may have sinned and cursed God in their hearts.

The second scene introduces Satan, who insinuates that Job serves God because of special favors. Satan is permitted to test Job by inflicting upon him the loss of property and children. However, Job retains his integrity.

The third scene represents Satan seeking permission to attack Job's body, alleging that with the loss of health he would curse God. Satan is allowed to smite Job with a loathsome disease. His wife advises him to curse God and die, to which he replies, "Though He slay me, yet will I trust Him."

Then arrives the three comforters, Eliphaz, Bildad and Zophar, and sat for seven days in silent sympathy before they took up their argument to prove that Job deserved just what he was getting.

The wretched man utters his first real complaint at their misplaced and wholly erroneous explanation of the ills he suffers, and urges them to spare him the necessity of listening to rationalizations which mean nothing.

To all of his declarations these friends stoutly maintain that suffering is always the result of personal sin. Job, however, defends himself, and as stoutly asserts his innocence.

Divine counsel is given Job out of the whirlwind, the essential meaning of which is that finite mind ought not to expect to understand all the mysteries of God's government of the Universe.

Job's three friends are finally rebuked for their temerity in challenging his righteousness as well as the divine goodness. They are commanded to offer sacrifices and endeavor by prayer and confession to expiate their own sins.

In the closing chapter of this great drama, Job answers the Lord in this simple, trusting way: "I know that thou canst do everything and that no thought ean be withholden."

He prayed for his friends and they did according as the Lord commanded them. The Lord accepted Job and blessed him, turning his captivity in answer to his prayer and giving him twice as much of material prosperity as he had before.

The suggested lessons of this book are many. Let us emphasize two: (1) The malignant power of Satan in human life. (2) The use of suffering the Divine plan as a means of perfecting character. A choice selection for the interested reader is Job's discourse on wisdom, Chapter 28, of the Book.

NOTICE TO TAXPAYERS

THIS IS TO GIVE NOTICE To the taxpayers of Garrett county that the annual levy for 1933 has been made and published and to call their attention to the following abstract of Section 45, Chapter 56, Acts of 1890, relating to the discount to be allowed and interest to be charged on all tax bills:

"All county taxes shall be due and payable on the first day of September next succeeding the date of the levy thereof, and on all county taxes paid on or before the first day of September a discount of 3 percent will be allowed, and after the first day of January all county taxes shall bear interest at the rate of six percent per annum until paid. The treasurer shall take the discount from and charge the interest on the tax bills for county purposes regularly in the manner aforesaid, and shall note the same upon his hooks and upon the receipts given on the taxes paid. But the discount shall not be allowed unless the whole amount of State and county taxes are paid when the same is made."

Under the provisions of Section 48 of Chapter 630 of the Acts of 1916, all State taxes shall be due and payable on and after the first day of July in the year in which the same are levied, and if not paid on or before the first day of September of said year, shall hear interest from said date at the rate of six percent per annum. No discount is allowed on State taxes.

COMMISSIONERS' MEETING.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN That the Board of County Commissioners of Garrett County, Maryland, will hold its regular bi-monthly meeting at its offices in the Court House, Oakland, Maryland, on for the purpose of transacting all business that may properly be brought before it.

W. M. FRAZEE, Clerk,

FRIENDSVILLE

Baseball Games Played

Friendsville played baseball Sunday with Vindex at Vindex—and what a game! The pitchers were certainly well matched. Welch of Friendsville and Harvey, of Vindex, each allowed three hits, and each were credited with eight strikeouts.

Both teams played big league baseball from start to finish, while the spectators and rooters of both teams milled about, tense and eager each for a lead on the the opposition. This came in the sixth inning when Vindex scored one run—and the game ended that way—a victory for Vindex.

Crellin played here Friday instead of on Wednesday, as scheduled. The score—6-0, in favor of Friendsville.

The next game in which the local team will participate will be with Peerless at Peerless.

Operetta Presented

The pretty operetta, "Sugar and Spice," which was given by the high school students under Miss Conley's direction last Saturday night, was well attended and much enjoyed.

Bank May Be Re-opened

The plan for re-opening the First National Bank of Friendsville has been approved by the Treasury Department in Washington and the directors and stockholders held a meeting in the bank building on Monday evening where the matter was fully discussed.

Opening these closed banks is no easy task, but we believe Friendsville will not shirk and we expect to have a going concern here again before many weeks elapse.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By FRANK P. LITSCHERT

Reports being gathered over the country by news associations during the past few weeks indicate that business is better "in spots." There has been an undeniable pickup in the steel and kindred industries and a slight pickup in car loadings. As is always the case, there are two schools of thought about the significance of this change. The optimists believe that we are now on the high road to recovery, while the pessimists, or perhaps we should call them the more cautious prognosticators, point to the fact that we have had two or more false starts during the past three years and express the fear that this will be another one.

Those who are inclined to be cautious, while admitting the pickup in commodities and certain lines of business, attribute this to two unusual causes—the bank holiday in March and the departure of Uncle Sam from the gold standard. They say that business went to zero while the banks closed and that the present acceleration is merely filling the gap caused by the business standstill in March. They call to our attention the fact that after Great Britain went off the gold standard in 1931 there was a business flurry and a rise in commodity prices but that after this later flattened out, although it is admitted that the move stopped drastic deflation in England. But, they add, when the effect of our going off the gold standard wears off we will be back where we were.

It must be taken into consideration, however, that things are different now than they were in 1931. The time element is important. Then we had been in a state of depression only two years. The stretch has now been extended to four years which is about the life of the worst phases of the average depression. The stage is therefore set for a revival, if revival is at all possible. It is to be remembered also that following the departure of Great Britain from the gold standard there was no talk of inflation over there, either an inflation of credit or money. The farm bill recently passed by Congress gives the President the right to expand credit, and the currency too, if he deems it advisable. The more cautious observers tell us that this is one of the reasons for the business pickup, that the people want to convert their money into equities or commodities before real inflation comes.

But it is to be seriously doubted, other financial experts tell us, whether the recent rise in the price of securities is due primarily to the influence or the fear of inflation. That fear undoubtedly gave the stock market its upward start, they say, but the inflationary fear seems to have died down, and there is still strength in stocks and commodities. That indicates, so these more hopeful experts tell us, that there is a real pickup in business on the way. If the increase in security prices were due entirely to inflationary fears, the value of high grade bonds would decrease, and this has not been the case, they add.

Whatever is the cause of this change in business sentiment, it is to be hoped that it is permanent and will be followed by signs of real revival. Perhaps one fact that many people lose sight of is, that business actually showed signs of revival ten months ago, and the securities markets made their lows in July, 1932. Since that time Wall Street has had its ups and downs but has never descended to the low levels reached last summer. That may indicate we crossed the bottom of the big bear market nearly a year ago.

It is not time, of course, for throwing caution to the winds. As President Roosevelt stated, we cannot ballyhoo ourselves into prosperity. But we can at least keep our belts tight, perform as well as we can, and hope for the best. It is a long lane which has no turning. Maybe the turn is at hand.

There will be special Decoration Day services at the White Church cemetery on Sunday evening at 6:30 o'clock. Following this there will be a special service to be conducted by members of the Epworth League in the church with Miss Dorothy Duckworth as leader.

In Australia, movie films of warlike actions of natives had to be forbidden because the action became so real actual fightings and killing resulted.

Near New Windsor, on Sam's Creek, in Carroll county, Md., the old Strawbridge log meeting house (Methodist) is to be rebuilt, and members of that denomination are to be asked to buy an oak log 25 feet long and one foot in diameter, to be delivered by July 4.

MT. LAKE PARK

Spiker Bros. are putting Hotel Columbia in first-class condition.

About one hundred men are putting in electric lights, water and making sewer connections.

Never before in the history of the Park have we had so many people here as now. Carpenters, painters, plasterers and plumbers are all making extra time.

Eight hundred acres of heavily timbered park; splendid roads; miles of concrete sidewalks; beautiful 20-acre lake, with splendid boating. Something of rare interest and profit from June to October.

Echard's livery and feed stables; stylish outfits, safe horses and careful drivers; satisfaction guaranteed.

No, we haven't gone haywire. We have just been glancing over a program of the Mountain Lake Park Association for the summer of 1899, handed us by Darwin Martin.

Then Rev. L. A. Rudisill was general manager and superintendent of the Park and Dr. W. L. Davidson was superintendent of instruction at the Chautauqua. The location, environment and advantages of the Park were set forth in glowing, if slightly, exaggerated phrases. Attention in the program is called to the low rate of $10 from New York and return.

We note such old-time lecturers as Dr. Russell H. Conwell, with his "Acres of Diamonds"; Col. H. W. Hamm, of Georgia, with his famous "The Snollygoster in Politics," and many others. With Edison's projectiscope animated pictures of the late (Spanish-American) War were shown.

Then Charlie Dawson was doing a lot of painting; Jimmie Smith was hauling the baggage; P. T. Garthright advertised as general merchant and real estate agent, and as "headquarters for everything" and "hundreds of little errands done gratis."

Those, indeed, were the good old days. We only wish we had the space to review the highlights of the whole program.

In the resignation of Dr. Nat T. Frame as director of the West Virginia University Extension service, the Allegheny Tableland Association has lost a valuable and enthusiastic friend and booster. It is really too bad that disappointed aspirants to minor positions and politics should cause the loss of such a competent man as Dr. Frame to progressive agricultural and community projects.

Mountain Lake Park and Loch Lynn Heights are certainly active communities these days. The sound of the concrete mixer, unpleasant but welcome, the fleet of trucks hauling sand and gravel, and the gangs of men improving the roads in the two towns make us wish this industrial activity might continue.

It is now thought that the concrete work will be completed on the Mountain Lake-Deer Park road this coming week. It is unfortunate that the road could not have been completed through to Deer Park this year. Even when this unit is finished it will be of little service to the community at large. It simply ends in the woods.

Miss Helen Grimes, of Pittsburgh, is the guest of Mrs. Rachel Laughlin.

Miss Katherine McLane, of Wheeling, with a friend, were overnight guests at Allenhurst last week.

Mrs. Isobel D. Hill is recovering from an attack of ptomaine poisoning.

Mrs. Arthur Oswell and Mr. Wiley W. Welling are on a business trip to Washington this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Curtis B. Fleming stopped in the Park Monday. They were enroute to Fairmont from a fishing trip of several days' duration in Pendleton county.

Mrs. T. A. Deveney and daughter Miss Mary Fleming, were guests in the Park recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred. C. Fleming, of Fairmont, spent Friday in the Park. They will open their cottage for the season within a short time.

Mr. and Mrs. Warder Cressen, Mrs. Fred Higginbotham and Miss Robey, all of Fairmont, are spending a few days here.

Miss Katherine Hardie and sister, of Washington, are guests of the Shrock cottage for the summer.

GLADES

Elwood Glotfelty and daughter Alberta made a business trip to Grantsville on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ervin Beachy and family were visitors at the home of Simon Beachy on Sunday.

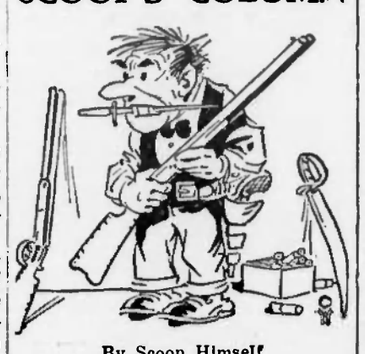
Simon Opel was in Oakland on business Monday.

Lucille Glotfelty was calling at the home of Mrs. R. E. Alexander Monday afternoon.

Carl Stephen and Harvey Knox are busy shearing sheep for the farmers of this community.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Beal and their daughter Ruth, Elmer and Ernest Beachy and John Schrock were calling at the R. E. Alexander home Sunday evening.

SCOOP'S COLUMN



By Scoop Himself

Yep, I'm still armed to the teeth.

Sense of humor! a great gift to mankind. Some have it and some do not. Cheek yourself on these points.

1. Do you ever see anything funny in this column? If yes, give yourself 10 for having a peculiar sense of hoomor.

2. Do you laugh when a big brute of a father kicks his crippled son out of the house and down the steps?

3. Do you get a kick out of stealing pennies from a blind man? or from seeing others do it?

4. Can you see the fun in business being bad and having no money? (If you can, the lens in your glasses is different from mine.)

5. Would you laugh if you knew I was making garden? And how about yourself?

6. Do you laugh every time Chas. Sprague tells you a joke?

7. Is it because of the joke?

8. Could you be a member of the Civilian Conservation Corps, send about all your money home, and like it?

9. If your wife ran away with the chauffeur, if your only cow died, if your barn burned down, if your horse upset your apple cart, and if your old farm was being sold for taxes, could you laugh because it was no worse?

10. Can you shout with glee every time you pull out a two-inch fish from Deep Creek Lake?

Now I'm sure that you're peculiar. But the person having the best sense of humor lately was the man who hanged himself and left a note pinned on his shirt front, which read, "My feet hurt."

He might have had them cut off. It would have been just as effective as a rest cure.

But even though my feet hurt, I'll always leave the hanging up to somebody else. And thank you, it is not only my feet, but every part of the body. For I'm just an amateur gardner.

You know one cannot be a professional until he makes money at his game. Therefore, on second thought all farmers are amateurs and I guess I'm just a greenhorn.

But just wait until my truck comes in. I'll be singing:

Oh, those corn and beany hills,
How majestic and how grand
With their big ears bathed in glory
And the beans buried in the sand.

Is it any wonder then
That my heart with rapture thrills
When I eat of good old rhubarb
And have no need of any pills.

Somebody sent the following to me last Thursday. He was afraid to sign his name but the sediment is good so here it is:

Ain'tcha happy when you're boostin'
Sort of chasin' way the blues?
Kind of paintin' up the darkness
With a touch of rainbow hues,
When you're schemin' to keep goin'
Stead ov mournin' for the dead;
Ain'tcha happy when you're workin'
Fer the goal thet's up ahead?

Ain'tcha happy when you're thinkin'
Life ain't all fer tightened purse,
Thet your home is in America
An' thet things could be lots worse;
Thet you're feelin' well an' hearty,
An' it's only pigs thet squeal?
Ain'tcha happy when you're pushin'
With your shoulder to the wheel?

Although I've always said this column ought to go on the front page, all it will probably get this week is 8-pt. solid, on back page, so I don't intend to waste any more energy. I'm saving it for the hoeing season.

DIED.

Thomas Little, aged 69 years, a native of Oakland, died Thursday, May 18, 1933, at the home of his son Thomas J. C. Little, in Morgantown, West Va.

Mr. Little is remembered by his many friends in Oakland as a merchant a number of years ago. He had been in failing health for five months preceding his death. He was a member of Oakland Lodge, No. 192, A., F. and A. Masons and of Garrett Lodge, No. 113, Knights of Pythias, and also a member of the Woodmen of the World and was also a member of the Presbyterian church.

He was preceded in death by his wives, Mrs. Alice Charles Little, a native of Baltimore, and Mrs. Elizabeth Reitz Little, and is survived by one son, Thomas J. C. Little, Morgantown, and one daughter, Mrs. G. E. Woodside, of Baltimore, from the first union, and by two sons and one daughter by the second union—David and Robert of Baltimore, and Mary Louise Little, of Pittsburgh. He is also survived by one brother, George Little, and one sister, Mrs. Eugene Baumgartner, both of Oakland.

Brief funeral services were held at the home of his son in Morgantown Friday evening, Rev. W. Roy Hashinger, Lutheran pastor, officiating, and on Saturday the body was brought to Oakland where services were conducted in the Presbyterian church at two o'clock by Rev. Walter B. Brock, followed by ritualistic services at the grave by members of the Knights of Pythias lodge. Interment was made in the Oakland cemetery. The pallbearers were E. G. Naylor, Charles F. White, Thomas Gonder, Henry Lauer, Joseph E. Harned and P. L. Mersing.

MRS. MARION GILMORE LAWSON

Mrs. Marion Gilmore Lawson, 80, died at her home at Hopemont, W. Va., west of here on Monday night. She was the mother of Mrs. Nettie Stallings, of Oakland. Mrs. Lawson was born at Lights, Scotland, and lived in her community for forty years. Rev. Walter B. Brock, Oakland, will conduct the last rites in the Presbyterian church at Terra Alta this afternoon and interment will be made in the Terra Alta cemetery.

REV. JACOB W. MILLER, D.D.

Rev. Jacob W. Miller, son of the late Melchoir and Mrs. Miller, Accident, was born in the Cove on September 16, 1860. He received his pre-theological training at Concordia College in Fort Wayne, Indiana, and was graduated from Concordia Theological Seminary at St. Louis, Mo., in 1884. He assumed his first pastorate at Stuttgart, Kansas, and served the congregation there until 1889 when he accepted a call to the Lutheran church at Little Rock, Kansas. In 1893 he went to St. Paul, Minn., as pastor of Zion Lutheran church of that city and remained there until 1896, when he went to St. Paul's church at Fort Wayne, Indiana.

Dr. Miller was an ardent champion of the Christian day school and it was through his energetic leadership that the new St. Paul's Lutheran school and parish hall was built in Fort Wayne. He served as first vice-president of the Synod of Missouri, Ohio, as well as in other states and in this capacity was at all times a leader in the advancement of his church in this country as well as in foreign lands.

The Lutheran church and its program was his whole life. All Lutheran institutions received his wholehearted support. His personal qualifications were such that a deep impression was left with everyone who had the good fortune of meeting and working with him. He believed in the education of young people and was ready at all times to encourage the ambitions and aspiration of youth.

His passing after a long and painful illness on May 11, at the age of 72 years, 7 months and 25 days will mean a loss that is immeasurable to his church and community. It was his good fortune to see his church grow to one of the largest in the entire Synod. Funeral services were conducted Sunday afternoon, May 14, in Fort Wayne, Indiana.

Dr. Miller is survived by his wife, five sons, five daughters and five grandchilrden, also by the following brothers and sisters: Mrs. Henry Mollering and Charles Miller, of Fort Wayne, Indiana; Mrs. Alexander Von Schlichten, Yonkers, N. Y.; Miss Rose Miller and Messrs. Fred. and William Miller, of Accident.

Tire Prices may never be so Low again!

GOODYEAR certainly makes it worth while for you to put money in tires now. Your dollars never bought tires to equal the quality, the safety, the mileage which Goodyear is today building in every tire wearing the Goodyear name—

And because Goodyear now concentrates on two main lines of tires—a real saving in costs is passed on to you.

Look at present prices of the world's most popular tire, the Goodyear All-Weather—and the prices of the thrifty Goodyear Pathfinder — and you'll certainly agree, it's smart to buy Goodyears NOW—while prices are still down close to bottom, and your money buys more than it may ever buy again.

Lesson for June 4

JESUS FACES BETRAYAL AND DENIAL

LESSON TEXT—Mark 14:10-72.
GOLDEN TEXT—He is despised and rejected of men; a man of sorrows, and acquainted with grief: and we hid as it were our faces from him; he was despised, and we esteemed him not. Isaiah 53:3.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus and Peter.
JUNIOR TOPIC—The Lord's Supper.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Loyalty in Times of Testing.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Fellowship of His Sufferings.

I. Judas' Bargain With the Chief Priests (vv. 10, 11).

This black crime was committed immediately following the beautiful act of devotion by Mnry (John 12:1).

II. The Last Passover (vv. 12-25).

1. The preparation (vv. 12-16). In reply to the inquiry of the disciples as to where they should prepare the Passover for him, Jesus told them to go into the city where they would meet a man bearing a pitcher of water, whom they should follow. In the house, to which they would be led, would be a guest chamber, a large upper room, where they should make ready the Passover.

2. The betrayal announced (vv. 17-21). The betrayal was to be by one of the disciples who was eating with Jesus.

3. The sacrament of the bread and cup (vv. 22-25). These were symbols of his broken body and shed blood by which he made atonement for man's sins.

III. Jesus Foretells the Cowardice of the Disciples (vv. 26-31).

In spite of their turning from him, Jesus assured them that after his resurrection he would go before them into Galilee. Peter assured Jesus that he would not forsake him.

IV. The Agony in Gethsemane (vv. 32-42).

1. Jesus Christ's ngony (vv. 32-34).

a. The place (v. 32). The Gnrden of Gethsemane, an enclosure containing olive and fig trees, beyond the brook Kidron, about three-fourths of a mile from Jerusalem. Gethsemane means olive press. Edersheim says it is an emblem of trial, distress, and ngony.

b. His companions (v. 33). He took with him the eleven disciples, that as far as possible they might shnre his sorrow with him.

c. His great sorrow (v. 34). This is the same "cup" as in verse 36. It was not primarily the prospect of physical suffering that was crushing him; it was his suffering as a sin-bearer—his pure soul coming into contact with the awful sin and guilt of the world. God caused the iniquities of the world to strike upon Jesus (II Cor. 5:21; Isa. 53:6).

2. Jesus Christ praying (vv. 35-42).

a. The first prayer (vv. 35-38).

(1) His posture (v. 35). He fell on his face prostrate to the ground.

(2) His petition (v. 36). By the cup is meant his death on the cross. While it was grievous to endure the shame of the cross, he pressed on knowing that for this cause he had come into the world. (John 12:27, 28; cf. Heb. 2:14).

(3) His resignation (v. 36). He knew that his death on the cross was the will of God the Father, for he was the Lamb slain from the foundation of the world.

(4) The disciples rebuked (v. 37). He singled out Peter, since he had been the most conspicuous in proclaiming his loyalty (John 13:38).

(5) Exhortation to the disciples (v. 38). He said, "Watch and pray lest ye enter into temptation."

b. The second prayer (vv. 39, 40). He withdrew the second time and uttered the same words in prayer.

c. The third prayer (vv. 41, 42). He uttered the same words in his third prayer (Matt. 26:44). He now told the disciples to sleep on and take their rest as the hour had come for his betrayal.

V. The Betrayal and Arrest of Jesus (vv. 43-65).

1. The sign to the mob (vv. 43-47). With the basest of hypocrisy Judas designated Jesus to the mob by a kiss, the token of love.

2. Jesus forsaken by all (vv. 48-52). One of the disciples attempted to defend Jesus by resorting to the sword (Matt. 26:51). At Jesus' rebuke for this act the disciples all fled.

VI. Peter Denies the Lord (vv. 66-72).

His failure was due to:

1. Boasting self-confidence (vv. 29-31).
2. Lack of watchfulness (v. 37).
3. Neglect of prayer (v. 38).
4. Service in the energy of the flesh (v. 47).
5. Following Jesus afar off (v. 54).
6. Seeking company among the Lord's enemies (v. 67).

A Song in Your Heart

"If you are in the place where God wants you to be, he will put a song in your heart; Paul and Silas were singing in the prison at Philippi because they were doing God's will.—A. Lindsay Glegg.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, That Sections 404, 418, 420, 425, 426, 433 and 435 of Article 12 of Flack's Code of Public Local Laws of Maryland, title "Garrett County," sub-title "Oakland," be and the same are hereby repealed, and Sections 404, 418 and 420 be re-enacted with amendments and that a new section to be known as Section 425 and to follow immediately after Section 424, be and the same is hereby enacted, said amendments and said new section to read as follows:

404. The officers of said corporation shall consist of a Mayor and a Town Council, which shall be composed of six members, a President of the Town Council, a town clerk, (a tax collector) who, in addition to performing the duties of Clerk, shall also be the tax collector and all references to tax collector hereinafter made shall be construed as relating to said town clerk, a treasurer, a police magistrate, an attorney, a weighmaster, a street commissioner, a police officer and such other special policemen as the public welfare of said town may require in any case of emergency, who shall severally perform such duties and have such owners as may be prescribed by law and the ordinances passed in pursuance to said charter of said town.

The Mayor and members of said Town Council shall be elected for the period of two years from the second Monday in March, 1922, and shall hold office from the first Monday in April following, except those three who were elected in March, 1921, who shall continue in office until the month of April, 1923, or until their successors are elected and qualified.

The Mayor shall have the right to appoint the police magistrate, the attorney to the town and the police officer, by and with the advice and consent of the Town Council, but the town clerk, street commissioner, (and the collector of taxes) and weighmaster shall be elected by the Town Council, and said appointees shall each hold their respective offices and enter upon their duties from the first Monday of April of the year in which they were so appointed or until their successors are appointed and qualified, unless sooner removed for cause in the discretion of the said Town Council.

418. The Mayor and Town Council shall have power to levy and collect taxes not to exceed seventy-five cents on the one hundred dollars' worth of assessable property in any one year, (except for the years 1924 and 1925, when the tax rate may be one dollar) and whenever the said Council shall levy a tax, which levy shall be made out on the first Monday in May in each year, an alphabetical list of the persons chargeable therewith shall be made out and affixed thereto the respective sums to be collected from each person and annexed to said list shall be a warrant to the clerk in his capacity as tax collector to collect the same, and said clerk shall on or before the first day of July next render to each person or corporation named therein an account of his taxes. Said taxes shall be due and payable on the first day of September next following said levy and on all taxes paid in full before said date, the Mayor and Town Council may in their discretion allow a discount, not to exceed five per cent.

420. All taxes levied by said Mayor and Council, for the general purposes of said town shall be lien on the property, from the date of said levy, of the party or parties against whom said tax may be charged, whether such person be a resident or non-resident of the town, whether adult or infant, non compos, feme covert or otherwise, and said tax may be made out of the personal property of such person or corporation, or collected out of the rents of his, her, their or its real estate by due process of law, or the clerk as tax collector may sell such real estate for the payment of taxes by complying with the same requirements as the Treasurer of Garrett County.

425. The Town Clerk, before entering upon his duties, shall execute a bond as required by the ordinances of the town and shall take the same oath as that prescribed for the members of the Council; he shall be present at all meetings of the Mayor and Council; he shall keep a correct record of their proceedings and an account of all their financial transactions; he shall enter all ordinances passed by the Mayor and Council, and signed by the Mayor, in a book kept by him for that purpose, and the books of said corporation shall be open for inspection by any taxpayer at all times and copies of all ordinances shall be put up in the public places of said town; he shall have power to administer oaths or affirmations to any person presenting a claim against the said corporation to the Town Council, and shall have power to take affidavits to all papers to be filed with the said Town Council, and to administer oaths to any persons who is examined as a witness in any matter before the Town Council, for which services for administering the oaths and taking affidavits aforesaid, the said clerk shall not be entitled to make any charge, the same being made a part of his official duties as clerk; he shall collect all taxes and other claims which may be due the corporation and shall pay over and account for the same at such time and in such manner as may be prescribed by law or the ordinances made in pursuance thereof; he shall assess all the improvements or additions to property in the town which may be made after a general assessment, and an appeal shall be from his valuation to the Town Council. Said Town Clerk shall receive for his services as both Clerk and tax collector such salary or other compensation as shall be provided by the ordinances of said town.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That this Act is here-declared to be an emergency law.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, That the County Commissioners of Garrett County be and they are hereby authorized and directed to pay to the Friendsville Volunteer Fire Department the sum of four hundred dollars ($400.00) for maintenance in the years 1933 and 1934, and to levy the aforesaid sum upon the assessable property of said county.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That this Act shall take effect June 1, 1933.

CHAPTER 578.

Relating to Elections in the Town of Mountain Lake Park, Garrett County, Maryland.

AN ACT to repeal and re-enact with amendments Sections 5, 6 and 10 of Chapter 507 of the Acts of 1931, incorporating the town of Mountain Lake Park, in Garrett county, relating to town elections, the qualifications of voters and the right of the Mayor to vote on questions pending before the Council.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, That Sections 5, 6 and 10 of Chapter 507 of the Acts of 1931, be and they are hereby repealed and re-enacted with amendments to read as follows:

5. Said corporation shall be governed by a Mayor and five Councilmen. There shall be an election on the second Tuesday in July each year between the hours of one o'clock P. M. and seven o'clock P. M. and at the election on the second Tuesday of July, 1933, there shall be elected a Mayor to serve two years, three Councilmen to serve for two years and until their successors are elected and qualified; at the expiration of the term of the Mayor and Councilmen, their successors shall be elected to serve for a term of two years and until the qualification of their successors. The Mayor and Councilmen shall be qualified voters and residents of said town and shall be bona fide owners of real estate in the town of Mountain Lake Park, Maryland, in the value of Three Hundred Dollars ($300.00).

6. All elections shall be by ballot, and all persons who are qualified to vote for members of the General Assembly of Maryland and who have resided in said town for six months next preceding any election and all persons, citizens of the United States and bona fide owners of real estate in said town for twelve months preceding any election, shall be entitled to vote at any town election. The Mayor and Council shall appoint at least three judges to hold all town elections and shall give at least ten days' notice by hand bills posted in conspicuous places in said town naming the time and place when said election shall be held and the polls opened and closed. The Mayor and Council shall have power to pass such ordinances for conducting said town elections as may be deemed necessary and proper not in conflict with the provisions of this Act.

10. The Mayor shall preside at all meetings of the Council, unless prevented by sickness or reasonable cause, in which event the said Council may select a president pro tempore; he shall sign all ordinances of said town and shall countersign all orders and drafts drawn by the clerk, on the Treasurer of said town. The Mayor shall have no vote upon any question pending before the Council except in the case of a tie vote, when he shall have the deciding vote.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That this Act shall take effect June 1, 1933.

CHAPTER 333.

Relating to the Town of Oakland, authorizing the Mayor and Town Council of said town to contribute to the maintenance of the Free Public Library and Musical Organization.

AN ACT to repeal and re-enact with amendments Section 427 of Article 12 of the Code of Public Local Laws of Maryland (1930 Edition), title "Garrett County," sub-title "Oakland," and authorizing the Mayor and Town Council to contribute to the maintenance of the free public library and musical organization.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, That Section 427 of Article 12 of the Code of Public Local Laws of Maryland (1930 Edition), title "Garrett County," sub-title "Oakland," be and the same is hereby repealed and re-enacted with amendments to read as follows:

427. That Council shall have power to pass all ordinances not unconstitutional with the existing laws of the State, as they may deem necessary for the good government of the town, for the preservation of peace and good order, and securing persons and property from violence, danger and destruction; for the removal of nuisances, no matter from what source proceeding, and all obstructions from the streets, lanes and alleys, and from any lot adjoining thereto within the limits of the town; for the removal of any dangerous house or buildings; for the paving, grading, repairing, drainage, leveling, surveying, laying out, extending, widening, opening, closing, straightening, re-locating, improving or repairing any street, sidewalk or alley in said town; and may condemn or purchase the right of way of any street or alley which they may determine should be opened for the public good; for the preservation of property rights and privileges; for the regulation of sales of the streets, alleys or public places in said town; for the weighing of hay, coal and other property; for the suppression of vice and immorality; for the suppression of concealed weapons; for the suppression of the practice of discharging firearms, fire-crackers, torpedoes or other explosives; for regulating the handling and storing of all kinds of explosives; for the prevention of gambling; for licensing of theatricals or other public amusements; to suppress tramps; for lighting the streets; for preventing swine, cattle, dogs or other animals from running at large on the streets; for imposing a tax on dogs; for locating of hog pens, privies and stables; and the Mayor and Town Council shall have power and full authority to pass all such ordinances as may be necessary to carry out and give full force and effect to the powers conferred upon said corporation by law; and be it further enacted, that the Mayor and Town Council shall have the right to provide for the organization, equipment and government of fire companies and to permit said fire companies to organize as a body, and to provide within itself all rules and regulation of its members and property appertaining thereto, subject to the general supervision of the said Mayor and Town Council; and be it further enacted that the said Mayor and Town Council of Oakland be and they are hereby empowered, in their discretion to contribute to the support and maintenance of a free public library and the Gilbert-Brown Boys Band, or such other musical organization as may succeed the same, if said library and/or said musical organization be maintained within said town, a sum not to exceed two hundred dollars for each of said organizations in any one year, and to include the same in the annual levy provided for by Section 418 of this Article.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That this Act shall take effect June 1, 1933.

CHAPTER 87.

Relating to the Amount of Money to be Levied by the County Commissioners for the Expenses of the State's Attorney for Garrett County.

AN ACT to repeal and re-enact with amendments Section 501 of Article 12 of the Code of Public Local Laws of Maryland (1930 Edition), title "Garrett County," sub-title "State's Attorney," as said section was amended by Chapter 211 of the Acts of 1931, reducing the amount to be paid to the State's Attorney for Garrett County for expenses.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, That Section 501 of Article 12 of the Code of Public Local Laws of Maryland (1930 Edition), title "Garrett County," sub-title "State's Attorney," as said section was amended by Chapter 211 of the Acts of 1931, be and it is hereby repealed and re-enacted with amendments to read as follows:

501. The State's Attorney for Garrett County shall receive an annual salary of fifteen hundred dollars, which salary shall be paid to him by the County Commissioners of said county, payable quarterly by warrant on the County Treasurer, and the said Commissioners shall likewise pay to him for the year 1933 and each year thereafter the sum of three hundred ($300.00) dollars, said sum to cover all the expenses of his office, including stationery, postage and necessary traveling expenses. It shall be the duty of the Sheriff of said county to collect and pay over to said county any appearance or other fee taxed as part of the costs payable to the State's Attorney in any criminal case.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That this Act shall take effect June 1, 1933.

Henry Ford
Dearborn, Mich.

May 22, 1933

I suppose that I may claim to be the first Ford Dealer. I not only made cars, but sold them and frequently delivered them myself.

The "drive away" is not new; often I have driven cars from Detroit to towns in Ohio or Indiana or Michigan to make delivery.

There were no good roads in those days, and the people where I drove had never seen a motor car before.

My first really enthusiastic customers were Country Doctors. They were the first to realize the value of dependable transportation to a widely scattered practice.

Even today I occasionally hear from some of those first Ford users.

We had to teach local mechanics how to care for the cars. That is how Ford Service began, which is now found everywhere in the world.

We believed from the beginning that a sale does not complete our transaction with our customer — it creates upon us an obligation to see that our customer's car gives him service. Ford Dealers know their duty to the public in this respect.

I can say of Ford Dealers generally that they have been and are men of character and standing in their communities. Most of them have been with us many years, which indicates that we agree on basic business principles. The Company provides that the methods used to sell the Ford car are consistent with the self-respect of the Dealers who handle it.

The present Ford V-8 is the peak of our 30 years experience.

We have never made a better car. Its eight-cylinder engine is powerful and smooth running. The car is admittedly very good looking and has comfortable riding qualities. It is economical in operation because of advanced engine design and low car weight. It is the fastest, roomiest and most powerful car we have ever built.

PUBLIC LOCAL LAWS

CHAPTER 165.

Authorizing the Board of County Commissioners to Remove Its Clerk for Inefficiency and Limiting the Compensation said Clerk shall Receive for his Services.

AN ACT to repeal and re-enact with amendments Section 87 of Article 12 of the Code of Public Local Laws of Maryland (1930 Edition) title "Garrett County," sub-title "County Commissioners," authorizing the Board of County Commissioners of Garrett County to move its Clerk for inefficiency and limiting the compensation of said Clerk.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, That Section 87 of Article 12 of the Code of Public Local Laws of Maryland (1930 Edition) title "Garrett County," sub-title "County Commissioners," be and it is herchy repealed and re-enacted with amendments, to read as follows:

87. At the General Election of County offieers of Garrett County, to be held in said County November, 1917, and every four years thereafter, a Clerk to the Board of County Commissioners shall be elected by the qualified voters of said county who shall hold office of Clerk for the term of four years from the time of his election and qualification or until his successor is elected and qualified and shall be subjected to removal from said office for inefficiency or for any wilful neglect of duty or misbeheavior in office at any time by the County Commissioners of said county, who shall have power to appoint some competent person for the unexpired term of the Clerk so removed, said Clerk shall be paid for his services the sum of twelve hundred dollars per annum, payable in monthly instalments of one hundred dollars at the expiration of each and every month by the treasurer of Garrett County from the funds of said county, and the said clerk shall have full power to administer an oath or affirmation to any and all persons who are to be examined as witnesses in any matter before the County Commissioners, and touching or relating to any account, bill or other matter to be filed in the office of said County Commissioners; the said salary of twelve hundred dollars per annum shall be full compensation for all services required of said clerk, who shall keep the office of County Commissioners open from nine o'clock in the forenoon until four o'clock in the afternoon, and who shall attend therein for the transaction of business on every day of the week except Sundays and legal holidays. No additional compensation shall be paid said Clerk for extra work nor shall the County Commissioners pay any one for assisting said Clerk.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That this Act is hereby declared to be an emergency law and necessary for the immediate preservation of the public health and safety, and having been passed by a yea and nay vote, supported by three-fifths of all of the members elected to each of the two Houses of the General Assembly, the same shall take effect from the date of its passage.

CHAPTER 96.

Fixing the Fees Paid Auctioneers by the County Treasurer for Crying Tax Sales.

AN ACT to repeal and re-enact with amendments Section 112 of Article 12 of the Code of Public Local Laws of Maryland (1930 Edition), title "Garrett County," sub-title "County Treasurer,"fixing the fee which the Treasurer shall be entitled to charge against each piece of property sold for taxes and to be paid by said Treasurer to the auctioneer for his services in conducting such sale.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, That Section 112 of Article 12 of the Code of Puhlic Local Laws of Maryland (1930 Edition), title "Garrett County," sub-title "County Treasurer," be and the same is hereby repealed and re-enacted with amendments, to read as follows:

112. The treasurer shall be entitled to the following fees: For advertising property for sale under the provisions of Section 109 of this sub-title of this Article, to enforce the payment of taxes, if the property be sold the treasurer shall receive one per cent on the gross amount of sales with his expenses as aforesaid, but if the amount due be paid without sale, he shall receive one per cent on the amount collected and his expenses as aforesaid, to be paid by the party paying, who shall be entitled to an itemized bill; and the treasurer shall be entitled to charge against each piece of property sold for the collection of taxes the sum of fifty cents, to be paid by said treasurer to the auctioneer for his services in conducting the sale; and if the treasurer, or any clerk, agent or deputy of such treasurer shall ask, demand or receive any greater costs or fees than are allowed by the provisions of this section, or shall receive any pay or commission for or on account of any advertising, printing or surveying or any contract therefor, or for anything which may be done under the provisions of any of the sections of this sub-title of this Article, or shall for himself, or any other person, discount or buy, or receive for less than its face or real value, any claim against said county, or certificate of indebtedness issued thereby, the person so offending shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon indictment and conviction, shall pay a fine of not less than one hundred, nor more than five hundred dollars, for each and every such offense, one-half to go to the informer and the other half to the school fund of the county.

See. 2. And be it further enacted, That this Act is hereby declared to be an emergency law and necessary for the immediate preservation of the public health and safety, and being passed by a yea and nay vote, supported by three-fifths of all the members elected to each of the two Houses of the General Assembly, the same shall take effect from the date of its passage.

CHAPTER 436.

Relating to the County Commissioners of Garrett County and the expendilure of funds for road purposes.

AN ACT to prohibit the County Commissioners of Garrett County from expending for road purposes the funds about to be received from the present county road levy and to provide that said funds shall go into and become part of the general funds of said county and be used for reducing the tax levy to be made by said County Commissioners in April of 1933.

Whereas, the County Commissioners of Garrett County did in April, 1932, levy a tax upon the assessable property of said county to produce funds for expenditure on the roads of said county; and

Whereas, By an Act of the General Assembly of 1933 funds for said roads will be hereafter provided by and expended by the State Roads Commission; and

Whereas, As a result of said Act of 1933 the funds produced by the said levy of said County Commissioners for road purposes will not be used therefor; now, therefore,

PUBLIC LOCAL LAWS

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, That the County Commissioners of Garrett County be and they are hereby prohibited from expending for road purposes of said county the funds received by said County Commissioners from the county tax levy made in April, 1932, and that said County Commissioners be and they are hereby authorized, directed and empowered to credit said funds to the general funds of said county and to use the same for reducing the tax levy ahout to be made by said County Commissioners in April, 1933.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That this Act is hereby declared to he an emergency law and necessary for the immediate preservation of the public health and safety, and being passed by a yea and nay vote, supported by three-fifths of all the members elected to each of the two Houses of the General Assembly, the same shall take effect from the date of its passage.

CHAPTER 17.

Reducing the cost of Keeping and Boarding Prisoners Committed to the Garrelt County Jail.

AN ACT to repeal and re-enact with amendments, Seetion 491 of Article 12 of the Code of Public Local Laws of Maryland (1930 Edition) title "Garrett County," sub-title "Sheriff," reducing the cost of keeping and boarding prisoners eommitted to the County Jail.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, That Section 494 of Article 12 of the Code of Public Local Laws of Maryland (1930 Edition) title "Garrett County," sub-title "Sheriff," be and it is hereby repealed and reenacted with amendments to read as follows:

494. The County Commissioners of Garrett County shall allow said Sheriff each year, first, the actual railway transportation charges of the Sheriff, his deputies, and the actual cost of railway tickets of the prisoners, necessary in the conveyance of said prisoners to the institution to which they are eommitted; second, the sum of forty cents per day for keeping and boarding each prisoner committed to the County Jail; third, the actual sum expended by him for coal and other necessaries of said jail, including a telephone, and said County Commissioners shall allow or pay the Sheriff for no other or further expenses of the Sheriff or any of his deputies upon any pretext, unless said unenumerated expenditures shall have been previously and specifieally ordered by the board in session; provided, no allowance for expenditures shall be paid or credited to said Sheriff; the same shall be reported under oath by said Sheriff to the said Board of Commissioners once in each month in writing, which oath shall show that the expenditures above enumerated when made are correct and have been honestly and lawfully incurred, and that the Sheriff himself has not derived profit from the purchase thereof, or appropriated to himself any part of such purchase; that each expenditure or purehase was reasonable and necessary, and the price thereof was not in excess of the market price therefor; which report and affidavit shall be accompanied by properly itemized vouchers or certifieates showing from whom and for what purpose the same was made. The said Sheriff shall also include in said monthly report a full statement of all fines and costs by him collected, and shall pay the same over promptly to the County Treasurer. Any violation of the requirements of this Act or failure to comply herewith shall constitute a misdemeanor and shall be punished upon convieition by forfeiture of office or fine or imprisonment, or by all three, in the diseretion of the Court.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That this Act shall take effect June 1, 1933.

CHAPTER 81.

Relating to Reports of Fines and Fees Imposed by Justices of the Peace and a Return of Same to the Board of County Commissioners and the Money Thus Collected to be Paid to the County Treasurer.

AN ACT to repeal and re-enact with amendments Section 244 of Article 12 of the Code of Public Local Laws of Maryland (1930 Edition) title "Garrett County," sub-title "Justices of the Peace and Constables," so as to provide that all Jutices of the Peace of said county shall make to the County Commissioners of said county reports of fines and fees imposed and that said fines and fees shall be paid to the County Treasurer, and to provide penalties for the violation thereof.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, That Section 244 of Article 12 of the Code of Public Local Laws of Maryland (1930 Edition), title "Garrett County," sub-title "Justices of the Peace and Constables," be and the same is hereby repealed and re-enacted with amendments so as to read as follows:

244. The aforesaid fees of said constables and Justices for said counties shall be taxed against and paid by the party against whom judgment shall be rendered, unless he be discharged therefrom by due course of law; if such party against whom judgment is rendered is unable to pay the same, such fees shall be paid by the county wherein said judgment was rendered; and all fines and penalties received by any justice under the provisions of Section 242 shall be accounted for and wholly paid, without abatement or deduction therefrom by such justice to the County Treasurer of Garrett County, for the use of said county; and no part of any fine or penalty enforced or collected under said section shall be paid to any informer. All fines and penalties belonging to the State of Maryland and received by any Justice shall within ten days after the collection and receipt thereof be accounted for and wholly paid over by said Justice to the proper State official, without abatement or deduction therefrom hy said Justice. It shall be the duty of each Justice in said county to make to the County Commissioners of said county once every six months, a report of all fines and penalties imposed and/or collected by said Justice during the six months immediately preceding. Said report shall be itemized and shall show in detail what said fines and penalties were imposed and upon whom, and when and by whom paid.

Any Justice of the Peace who shall fail to comply with the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and, upon eonviction, shall be subject to a fine of not less than ten nor more than twenty-five dollars for the first offense, and upon conviction of a second offense, shall be subject to a fine of not less than twenty-five nor more than one hundred dollars and removal from office.

See. 2 And be it further enacted, That this Act shall take effect June 1, 1933.

LOOK THE HOUSE OVER

Take a walk around your home and property.

If you are the average home owner, you'll find lots of places where repairs, replacements or alterations should be made. The steps are becoming rickety—the electric wiring in the basement and garage is in poor condition—new plumbing fixtures are needed—the roof is beginning to leak—those hardwood floors for the living room you've been thinking about so long have never materialized—the garden and lawn should be rejuvenated—the whole house could do with a new paint job. The addition of a few labor-saving devices in the kitchen would make your home a more pleasant and efficient place to live in.

It's probable that you've been thinking of making such repairs and betterments as these for several years—and haven't had them done because of nervousness as to the future, the thought that you'd better keep your money as intact as possible. That's the kind of reasoning that has prolonged the depression. It's the kind of reasoning that throws men out of work and makes it impossible for them to find new jobs; the kind of reasoning that causes basic industries to run to the lowest production point in decades.

Today you can obtain property-improvement, of what ever kind, for a fraction of what it would have cost you five or ten years ago. You'll probably never be able to buy so cheaply again—it's almost certain that prices will rise sharply in the near future. You'll be getting an amazingly big construction dollar's worth. And you'll be putting men to work, putting money into payrolls and salary checks and purchase orders. Don't forget that jobs are cheaper than charity—and that only jobs make charity possible.

IN DAYS OF OLD

FORTY YEARS AGO

J. M. Falkenstein took charge of the wagon making shop of F. R. Enos on Liberty street.

A council of the Junior Order U. A. M. was organized at Crellin with thirty charter members.

The Republican office was invaded by Mrs. Jerry Sweitzer, Misses Mollie Glass, Effie Shank, Mollie Beckman, May Fitzwater, Emma Murphy and Mollie Friend, of District No. 1, and they were shown the intrleaeies of the printing art.

An encampment composed of Chippewa Indians, vendors of medicines at Grantsville, moved to Addison, Pa.

A willow tree in the yard of Jonas E. Gnagey, Grantsville, was seven feet across the stump and the branches of the tree had a spread of ninety feet.

A cow belonging to C. T. Sweet, at Swanton, was killed by a freight train and the tender of the locomotive and three hoppers were thrown from the rails.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

A normal school for teachers opened in the Grammar school building with thirty enrolled.

A barn and a horse on the Albert Roth farm, near Red House, were struck by lightning during an electric storm.

The cornerstone of the new Lutheran church at Grantsville was laid.

The annual commencement exercises were held in Oakland high school and the first State diplomas awarded in this county were given the graduates, who were Rose Browning, Evelyn Helbig, Frederick Peddicord, Preston DeBerry, Raenell Lee, Frederick Thayer, Jr., Homer Turney, Harold Harned, Harry Turney, Harry Weimer, Frank Ross and Robert White.

A home talent musical comedy, entitled "Mr. Bob," was presented in Oakland.

GORTNER

Mrs. Stewart Rodamer, Mrs. E. B. Durst and Mrs. Nevin J. Miller attended the meeting of the Associated Sewing Circles held at Allentown, Pa., Saturday of last week, when a program of music, devotions, addresses on church work and missions, was carried out.

Baseball Game, Grantsville Winning

The most interesting baseball game that has been played this season locally was the one between Grantsville and Garrett on the Grantsville field Sunday afternoon. Garrett took the lead by scoring a run in the second and fifth innings. In the fifth inning Grantsville tied the score and put an end to the scoring for their opponents, closing the game at the end of the first half of the ninth inning with a score of 6 to 2.

Fazenbaker and Campbell each got four hits from five trips to the plate for Grantsville. Rodamer laid down two beautiful hunts for the home team. Miller, for Grantsville, struck out nine batsmen; Boden, for Garrett, struck out three batsmen.

Minor Mention

WONDROUS WISE MAN IS ONE WHO SWATS THE FLY

State Health Director Advocates War to the Finish With Them

A seasonable version of the old rhyme, used by the State Department of Health in a leaflet listing flies as carriers of disease, pictures the man who was so wondrous wise as covering up his garbage pail to keep away the flies. Incidentally he is cutting off one of their main sources of food.

"Flies have no claim on our mercy," Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the State Depaatment of Health, said in advocating war to the finish against them. "They are more than mere pests. They are carriers of disease and messengers of death. The fly is no respecter of persons. It carries infection to old and young. It spreads typhoid fever, dysentery and other diarrheal diseases. In spreading summer complaint among babies, as it does, it is a particularly dangerous enemy of young children.

"Flies breed in filth and feed on filth, decaying vegetable matter, human excreta and putrefying animal matter. They carry disease germs from infected filth to food and to human beings. Garbage dumps, untreated manure piles, open cess pools, are breeding places of these winged carriers of disease. And the householder who uses a covered garbage pail, who carefully disposes of all garbage and human waste, who protects his food supply from pollution, who screens his living quarters and his sleeping quarters, is in a very real sense 'wondrous wise.'

"Flies breed so rapidly that a single pair may have several million deseendants. To keep down the fly danger—

"Be sure the fly has no place in which to breed. Don't allow manure to accumulate. Flies breed in manure. Manure should be spread thin, or treated at least once a week. Write to the College of Agriculture at College Park for advice in regard to methods of treatment.

"Have sanitary outhouses. The State Department of Health, 2411 N. Charles street, Baltimore City, will send you a plan of one, if you write for it. Flies carry filth from outhouses to food within doors.

"Use a covered garbage pail and either burn or bury the garbage. Flies feed an garbage and filth.

"Don't let flies crawl over your baby's face or hands or nursing bottle. Be very careful to see that your baby's milk and other food are kept in a cool place free from contamination. Flies carry summer complaint to the babies.

"Screen your kitchens, your dining rooms, your sleeping rooms against flies.

"Don't wait until the fly season is here in full force. Swat each fly that comes within your reach."

PUBLIC LOCAL LAWS

CHAPTER 27.

Pertaining to the Powers of the Mayor and Town Council of the Town of Grantsville authorizing them to issue and sell bonds for Constructing, Erecting and Maintaining a System of Water Works in said Town of Grantsville.

AN ACT to authorize the Mayor and Council of Grantsville to issue and sell bonds for constructing, erecting and maintaining water works in said town of Grantsville, to condemn such land as may be necessary for the building of said water works, and to levy taxes on the assessable property of said town to redeem said bonds and to pay the interest thereon, and to repeal Chapter 282 of the Acts of 1931, entitled "An Act providing for the issuing and sale of bonds by the Mayor and Council of Grantsville for constructing, erecting and maintaining water works in said town of Grantsville, eondemn such land as may be necessary for the building of said works, and to levy taxes on the assessable property of said town to redeem said bonds and to pay the interest thereon."

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, That for the purpose of establishing, constructing and maintaining water works capable of furnishing the residents of said town with a good and sufficient supply of water for ordinary purposes and for fire protection, the Mayor and Council of Grantsville be and they are hereby authorized and empowered and directed to issue bonds in the name of the Mayor and Council of Grantsville to an amount not exceeding $25,000.00, or so much thereof as may be necessary for the purpose aforesaid. The said bonds shall be for sums not less than $500.00 each nor more than $1,000.00 each, to be signed by the Mayor and President of the Council and countersigned by the Clerk of the said Mayor and Council with the corporate seal of said town thereto affixed, bearing interest at not more than five per centum per annum, payable semi-annually in each and every year and dated on the first day of their issue. The said bonds shall be numbered serially. Bond No. 1 shall be due and payable three years from date of issue, and thereafter each bond shall mature and be payable each consecutive year from the maturity of Bond No. 1 in the order of their consecutive numbers; provided, however, the Mayor and Council of Grantsville are hereby given the option to redeem any or all bonds outstanding ten years from date of issue; that all of said bonds issued as aforesaid shall be due and payable within twenty-seven years from the date of their issue, and shall forever be exempt from all county and municipal taxation for any purpose, and shall have printed on them a reference to the Act of Assembly authorizing the issue thereof.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That the Mayor and Council of Grantsville are hereby authorized and empowered and directed to construct and erect water works in said town, and to contract for the purchase in fee simple or lease for a term of years renewable at their pleasure, any land, real estate, springs, brooks, water courses, streams, and to use and occupy forever or for a term of years any land, real estate, springs, brooks, water courses or streams which they may deem expedient and necessary for the purposes of furnishing said town with water, and they are hereby invested with all the rights and powers necessary for the induction of water into the said town. If for any cause the said Mayor and Council of Grantsville shall be unable to agree with any owner of real or leasehold property, springs, brooks, water streams or water courses or any other material which partakes of or is a necessary part of realty, or for any right of way which they may find necessary for the conduct of said water system in its entirety into or in said town, or if such owner is under any disability or incapacity to contract or absent out of the county or unknown, the said Mayor and Council of Grantsville is hereby clothed with the power of condemnation under the right of eminent domain as provided in the Public General Laws of Maryland as fully as if the provisions of said laws had been herein incorporated. The said Mayor and Council of Grantsville shall have full power to fix schedules of rates for furnishing water and sewerage to private residences and other buildings, and the said Mayor and Council shall have power to collect the same as other taxes are collected and the income thereof shall be applied first, for expenses and maintenance and afterwards for the payment of the interest on the bonds and a sinking fund to meet the bonds at maturity.

Sec. 3. And be it further enacted, That the title to said water works, and all land, estates and water courses, waterways, conduits, pipes, machinery and all other parts thereto shall, when completed or acquired, vest in the Mayor and Council of Grantsville; and every person who shall knowingly or wilfully pollute any spring, streams, brooks, water course, reservoir or standpipe in connection with the said water works so built or constructed by throwing any impure or deleterious substance or thing into the same, or by swimming, bathing or washing themselves, or hy washing clothes or any other thing therein, or by committing any nuisance in or near the sources of supply of the reservoir or standpipe for said water works, so as to pollute the same shall, upon conviction of such offense, be liable to a fine of not less than twenty-five dollars nor more than three hundred dollars for each offense, to be recovered hy the Mayor and Council of Grantsville before a justice of the peace, as other fines are recovered, or to imprisonment in the County Jail or House of Correction for a term of not less than six months nor more than eighteen months, or both fine and imprisonment, in the discretion of the justice of the peace, one-half of such fine to go to the informer and the balance to the Mayor and Council of Grantsville for the purpose of this Act.

Sec. 4. And be it further enacted, That for the purpose of redeeming said bonds at their maturity and for securing the prompt payment of the interest thereon, the Mayor and Council of Grantsville shall for the year of the issue of said bonds and annually thereafter until the maturity of said bonds, levy a tax on the assessable property of said town, not exceeding twenty-five cents on the one hundred dollars to pay the interest thereon, and the sum of one thousand dollars for the principal of said debt for the payment of the same at maturity. The said sum of one thousand dollars shall be held and invested by the Mayor and Council of Grantsville as a sinking fund for the redemption of said bonds at their maturity; and the said Mayor and Council of Grantsville shall from time to time deposit the money belonging to said sinking fund and the increment thereof in some safe depository which pays interest on deposits, or shall invest the same in State or other bonds satisfactory to the said Mayor and Council of Grantsville as to them may seem best, or in the purchase or redemption of any of said bonds as may be offered for sale and redemption, and upon the purchase of any such bonds by the said Mayor and Council they shall be immediately cancelled by stamping across their face (cancelled by the sinking fund), and no portion of said sinking fund so levied shall ever be diverted to any other purpose than to the purchase and liquidation of said bonds. The money collected each year by the treasurer or tax collector on account of taxes to the extent of said sum of one thousand dollars shall be set apart for said sinking fund, and a separate account shall be kept thereof and be deposited to the credit of said fund, and no part of which shall be chargeable to insolvencies on account of failure of assessments or collections.

Sec. 5. And be it further enacted, That the money arising from the sale of said bonds (which bonds shall be sold either at auction or by sealed bids or at private sale, in the discretion of the Mayor and Council) shall be deposited in banks to the credit of said Mayor and Council of Grantsville and subject to their check, and the clerk of said town of Grantsville shall keep a book to be specially provided for the purpose of recording the names and addresses of the purchasers of the bonds sold and the amount realized on the sales, together with the serial numbers of the bonds.

Sec. 6. And be it further enacted, That in any prosecution before a Justice of the Peace under Section 3 of this Act, the accused and the Mayor and Council shall have the right of appeal to the Circuit Court for Garrett County within thirty days to a jury trial. Any person or persons convicted before a Justice of the Peace under Section 3 of this Act who shall pray an appeal to the said Court, shall be held by recognizance or be committed to the county jail to appear before the next regular jury term of the Circuit Court for Garrett County.

Sec. 7. And be it further enacted, That the Mayor and Council of Grantsville be and they are hereby authorized and empowered to negotiate, sell and dispose of the said bonds as hereinbefore provided in Section 5 of this Act, or so many thereof as to the Mayor and Council may be deemed necessary for the purposes of this Act, and the said Mayor and Council are fully authorized to make all necessary rules and regulations and to pass all necessary ordinances, with penalties for their violation, and to do all other necessary acts for the proper managing, maintaining and repairing the said water works system and for the protection thereof.

Sec. 8. And be it further enacted, That the funds realized from the sale of said bonds shall be applied to the purposes of this Act and shall be paid by check signed by the Mayor and President of the Council, and the said Mayor and Council of Grantsville are hereby authorized and empowered to pass such orders for payment of money due for the construction of said water works or to the contractor or contractors for the construction of the same, as shall, from time to time be due or earned by the contractor or contractors in the prosecution of said works, and also from time to time to pass orders for the payment of property purchased or condemned, and for material furnished in pursuance of the provisions of this Act, and may in its discretion employ a competent hydrographical engineer to superintend the work of constructing such water works.

Sec. 9. And be it further enacted, That all Acts and parts of Acts inconsistent with the provisions of this Act be and the same are hereby repealed to the extent of their inconsistency, providing that nothing herein contained shall be taken as affecting Chapter 810 of the Acts of Assembly of 1914, nor as restricting any control which the State Board of Health of Maryland is empowered to exercise within the corporate limits of said town.

Sec. 10. And be it further enacted, That Chapter 282 of the Acts of 1931, entitled "An Act providing for the issuing and sale of bonds by the Mayor and Council of Grantsville for constructing, erecting and maintaining water works in said Town of Grantsville, condemn such land as may be necessary for the building of said works, and to levy taxes on the assessable property of said town to redeem said bonds and to pay the interest thereon," be and it is hereby repealed.

Sec. 11. And he it further enacted, That this Act is hereby declared to be an emergency law and necessary for the immediate preservation of the public health and safety, and being passed upon a yea and nay vote, supported by three-fifths of all the members elected to each of the two Houses of the General Assembly, the same shall take effect from the date of its passage.

CHAPTER 479.

Providing for the Payment of the Compensation of Members of the Board of Election Supervisors of Garrett County.

AN ACT to add a new section to Article 12 of the Code of Public Local Laws of Maryland (1930 Edition), title "Garrett County," to be under sub-title "Elections," said new section to be known as Section 171A and to follow immediately after Section 171 of said Article, to fix the time when compensation shall be paid to the Board of Supervisors of Elections of Garrett County, their clerk and attorney.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, That a new section be and it is hereby added to Article 12 of the Code of Public Local Laws of Maryland (1930 Edition), title "Garrett County," to be under sub-title "Elections, said new section to be known as Section 171A, to follow immediately after Section 171 of said Article and to read as follows:

ELECTIONS

171A. The Board of Supervisors of Election of Garrett County, their clerk and attorney, shall be paid the salaries provided for in Article 33 of the Code of Public General Laws of Maryland only in those years in which county or general elections are held.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That all laws or parts of laws, whether Public General or Public Local Laws, inconsistent with the provisions of this Act be and they are hereby repealed to the extent of such inconsistency.

Sec. 3. And be it further enacted, That this Act shall take effect June 1, 1933.

CHAPTER 524.

Exempting Garrett County from the Provisions of the Law Making Legal the sale of 3.2% Beer In The State of Maryland.

AN ACT to exempt Garrett County from the provisions of any State law enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland at its 1933 session relating to the manufacture, sale, distribution and transportation of beer, lager beer, porter, wine or fermented malt or vinous liquors containing not more than 3.2% of alcohol by weight, and providing for referendum thereon.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, That Garrett County shall be exempt from the provisions of any State law enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland at its 1933 session relating to the manufacture, sale, distribution and transportation of beer, lager beer, porter, wine or fermented malt or vinous liquors containing not more than 3.2% of alcohol by weight.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That this Act shall be effective until the same shall be adopted or rejected at the next special or general election held in Garrett County by the qualified voters of said county. This Act shall be submitted at the next special or general election held in Garrett county to the qualified voters of said county for their adoption or rejection. There shall be printed on the official ballots to be used at said election the title of this Act and underneath said title on separate lines a square or box to the right of and opposite the words "For Beer Law" and a corresponding square or box to the right of and opposite the words "Against Beer Law," so that the voters shall be able to designate by a cross mark in the proper square or box his or her decision for or against said Beer Law. If a majority of the votes cast on said question shall be "For Beer Law," then the State law relating to the manufacture, sale, distribution and transportation of beer and other beverages containing not more than 3.2% of alcohol by weight shall apply to Garrett County; but if a majority of the votes cast thereon shall be "Against Beer Law," then this Act shall remain effective and the said State law shall not apply to said Garrett County.

Sec. 3. And be it further enacted, That this Act is hereby declared to be an emergency law and necessary for the immediate preservation of the public health and safety and being passed by a yea and nay vote, supported by three-fifths of all the members elected to each of the two houses of the General Assembly, the same shall take effect from the day of its passage.

CHAPTER 85.

Providing for Decreasing the Compensation Paid the County Comsioners of Garrett County and Eliminating the Provisions of the Law as to Allowance For Mileage.

AN ACT to repeal and re-enact with amendmeits Section 84 of Article 12 of the Code of Public Local Laws of Maryland (1930 Edition) title "Garrett County," sub-title County Commissioners," as said section was amended by Chapter 210 of the Acts of 1931, decreasing the compensation of the County Commissioners of Garrett County and eliminating the provisions as to mileage.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, That Section 84 of Article 12 of the Code of Public Local Laws of Maryland (1930 Edition) title "Garrett County," sub-title "County Commissioners," as said section was amended by Chapter 210 of the Acts of 1931, be and it is hereby repealed and re-enacted with amendments to read as follows:

84. The County Commissioners of Carrett County hereafter elected to said office, shall receive for their services as such Commissioners an annual salary of nine hundred ($900.00) dollars each, payable in monthly installments. When it is necessary for said Commissioners to leave the county for the proper transaction of the business of the county, they shall be entitled to receive as a body their actual traveling expenses. The above salary and transportation allowances shall be in lieu of all other compensation and expenses.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That while it is not the intention of this act that the salary reduction shall apply to the Commissioners now in office, it is the intention of this Act that after June 1, 1933, no mileage shall be paid the said Commissioners.

Sec. 3. And be it further enacted, That this Act shall take effect June 1, 1933.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

Franklin T. Fike, plaintiff, vs. Aca A. Thomas, Sidna L. Thomas, Earl H. Thomas, Iva M. Thomas, Sylvia A. Chase, Arthur Chase, and Elvira Thomas, heirs at law of Joseph Thomas, deceased, defendants.

No. 3136 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree for the sale of certain real estate situate in Garrett County, Maryland, for the purpose of paying and satisfying the claims of the creditors of the said Joseph Thomas, deceased.

The Bill states—

That the said Joseph Thomas was, in his lifetime, indebted unto the plaintiff in the sum of Five Hundred Dollars and interest thereon from December 7th, 1931.

That the said Joseph Thomas, being so indebted to the plaintiff and divers other persons, and having real estate of great value, departed this life on December 4th, 1931, intestate, leaving a widow and the following named children surviving him as his heirs at law:

(a) Aca A. Thomas, who has intermarried with Sidna L. Thomas, both of whom are of full age, and who reside in the State of Pennsylvania;

(b) Earl H. Thomas, who has intermarried with Iva M. Thomas, both of whom are of full age and who reside in the State of Pennsylvania;

(c) Sylvia A. Thomas, who has intermarried with Arthur Chase, both of whom are of full age and reside in Garrett County, Maryland;

(d) Elvira Thomas, widow, who resides in Garrett County, Maryland.

That the said Joseph Thomas, deceased, died intestate, and if he left any personal estate, it was not sufficient to pay his debts, and no letters of administration ever were granted by the Orphans' Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

That the said Joseph Thomas, deceased, died scized and nossessed of certain real estate as will appear by reference to certain deeds from Isaac T. Umbel et ux. and from Isaiah Umbel et ux. to the said Joseph Thomas, certified copies of said deeds being filed and made a part of the bill.

The hill prays that the said real estate, or so much thereof as may be necessary, may be sold for the payment of the aforesaid debts, for general relief and an order of publication against the said non-resident defendants.

It is thereupon, this 31st day of May, 1933, ordered by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland, in Equity, that the plaintiff, by causing a copy of this order of publication to be inserted in some newspaper published in Garrett county, Maryland, once in each of four successive weeks before the 30th day of June, 1933, give notice to the said non-resident defendants of the object and substance of this bill, warning them to appear in this Court, in person or by solicitor, on or before the 15th day of July, 1933, to show cause, if any they have, why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.

A. G. ROSS, Clerk.

Notes on Early Maryland Governors: VI

SIR LIONEL COPLEY AND A "NEW DEAL" IN THE PROVINCE

by

FRANCES CRAWFORD

THE Calverts' rule over Maryland being ended as a result of the Revolution of 1688 which seated William and Mary on the British throne, Sir Lionel Copley, first royal Governor of Maryland, stepped ashore in the early part of the year 1692 and set foot for the first time on the soil of the province over which he was to rule for the next eighteen months.

Waiting on the shore to meet him and Lady Copley were some of the newly arisen leaders of the Protestant faction then in control of the government and a knot of the merely curious, both animated by a desire to lay eyes on the new ruler who had come among them and to hazard a shrewd surmise concerning his temper. When the stilted formalities of greeting were over, a little procession formed and followed the new Governor up the steep bank to the plateau and across the plain to the finest house in St. Mary's which had been commandeered for their residence. It previously had been occupied by Governor Philip Calvert and later by his nephew, Charles the third Lord Baltimore, who enlarged and embellished it, so that it formed a fitting residence for the chief executive of the colony.

Under Governor Copley's regime it became known as the Governor's Castle and the name stuck long after St. Mary's City had fallen into desuetude and nothing remained of its own grandeur save only the broken walls, the sturdy chimneys and fragments of the tiled cellar floors.

THE CASTLE stood in Mattapany street, on the east side and near the head of Governor's run. The house faced the west and overlooked a pleasant expanse of land and water, though its site was not as felicitous as some of those upon which lesser lights of the colony had built their homes. Its description is set down by J. P. Kennedy in his "Rob of the Bowl," an amazing yarn of early Maryland, said to have been written in 1838 from descriptions furnished by living witnesses of the time when the castle, if not at the height of its splendor, was still intact. Apparently it was built at a time when the Tudor influence in arcbitecture still was strong and the place seems to have been quite different from the modern Cross Manor, home of Sir Thomas Cornwaleys, the Crœsus of the colony. This is standing today, the oldest brick house in Maryland, but radically altered by late occupants.

Dark red brick, ornamented with black, formed the material of its walls, which were two stories high, "penetrated by narrow windows."... The main body of the mansion was > capped by a wooden balustraded parapet, terminating at each extremity in a scroll and in the middle sustaining an entablature that rose to a summit on which was mounted a weathercock. From the central structure, right and left, a series of arcades and corridors served to bring into line a range of subordinate buildings....

> In the rear a circular sweep of wall and paling reached as far as a group of stables and sheds. Vanward, the same kind of inclosures, more ornate in their fashion, shut in a grassy court. . . . Ancient trees shaded the whole mass of dwelling house, court and stables and gave the place both a lordly and a comfortnble aspect. It was a pleasant group of roof and bower, of spire and tree to look upon from . . . the fair village city, studding the level plain with its scattered dwellings.

LORD BALTIMORE, summarily deposed from the adminjstration of his palatinate by the recent revolution and the recognition of the insurgents by the King, fought tooth and nail to regain his authority and the rights and privileges which were his under the charter issued to his ancestor. With every available resource he opposed the appointment of Sir Lionel as Governor of Maryland and it took all the king's minions and all the king's men to produce a commission which would hold water in the courts.

The Commissioners of the Privy Seal entertained strong doubts of the legality of the warrant issued by King William and refused to confirm the commission until they were ordered peremptorily by the Privy Council to do so. Still apprehensive, the Ministers thought it prudent to obtain the explicit approbation of the Chief Justice and the countersign of the Attorney-General to the document and ordered a writ of quo warranto to be issued so that they might have their act confirmed by verdict of a jury.

The facts alleged against Lord Baltimore were found to be impossible of proof and the Attorney-General refused to proceed without a written order from the Privy Council. Again the council obeyed its master's voice. Lord Baltimore was blocked at every turn, deprived of his rights and the protection of the laws. No judgment was obtained against him, but the way was cleared arbitrarily for the King's appointee.

IN COPLEY'S EYES A COLONY WAS AN ASSET FOR ITS RULER

GOVERNOR COPLEY seems to have been thoroughly imbued with the doctrine of the divine rights of kings and their deputies. In his eyes a colony was an asset fortuitously created for the express benefit of those who did the inhabitants the honor to rule over them. No sooner had he received the government from the committee which had assumed charge upon the consummation of Coode's rebellion than he convened the Assembly and exhorted the members to make liberal provision of money for the support of the government and himself in particular.

"I conceive," he informed them, that "it will be an advantage to the country as well as satisfaction to myself to know that you intend for me to support the honor of the post the King hath placed me in."

Whether or not the Assemblymen appreciated the privilege Governor Copley conferred upon them the records do not disclose, but that they gave their new liege an unctuous lip service at least is evident from a petition they addressed immediately afterward " to their sacred Majesties William and Mary" in gratitude to them for redeeming the colony "from the arbitrary will and pleasure of a tyrannical Popish government" and for sending them "a Protestant Governor of whose loyal candor and integrity your Majesties have had good experience, so that small time he has been amongst us gives us assurance as most humbly and sincerely to bless and praise Almighty God and give your Majesties our cordial thanks therefor."

Just four years previously the last Proprietary Assembly (of which a number of these martyrs to a "tyrannical Popish government" had been members) had signed an address to Lord Baltimore thanking him "with all imaginable gratitude for the happiness, peace and tranquillity" they had enjoyed by virtue of his "lordship's bounty and clemency." In the meantime, however, the revolution of 1688 had been accomplished and what previously had been "signal favors and benefits and immunities" had been transmuted into roguery.

THE FIRST ACT passed by the new Assembly was a formal recognition of William and Mary. Another repealed all laws hitherto in force in the colony and still another endeavored to appropriate a great part of the revenues of the proprietary arising out of certain duties. These confiscatory proceedings, however, were too flagrant to succeed. Lord Baltimore's claim to the coveted payments was fully sustained, and from this time until the day of his death he seems to have had no difficulty in collecting them.

The most drastic proceeding of this 1692 Assembly, however, was the statute making the Church of England the established church of the province. Every county was divided into parishes and taxes were levied at the rate of forty pounds of tobacco per poll for the maintenance of the clergy, the repair of existing churches and the construction of new ones. Protestant dissenters and Quakers were permitted to maintain their separate meeting houses, provided they paid the tax, but the lot of the Catholics was hard and before long was rendered almost unendurable.

ONE of the unforeseen consequences of the new and stringent legislation enacted by the royal government was a complete check on immigration. For ten years or more previously to the arrival of Governor Copley the colony had been the Mecca for settlers who had become dissatisfied with conditions in other colonies and for Englishmen who looked upon Maryland as the land of their dreams.

In 1671 the population of the colony was nearly 20,000. At the close of royal domination, 44 years later, it had grown to only 30,000, and a large proportion of the increase had come in before the Revolution of 1688-9. The same motives which had enticed men here before the establishment of the royal government no longer existed. The Catholics, instead of toleration, found oppression and the dissenter felt he had little to gain by casting his lot within the borders of the colony.

Sir Lionel Copley's career in Maryland ended with his death on or about September 12, 1693. That of his wife followed soon after.

IT SEEMS to have been expected that England would send a man-of-war to carry them back home, but England failed to do so and the council felt called upon to take measures. An order was passed for their burial in a vault, to be built at the expense of the colony at St. Mary's, and for an elaborate funeral ceremony to "be performed by the next Provincial Court, with all the decency and grandeur the Constitution and circumstances of affairs will admit of, and that three brass guns, being all that's to be had, be in readiness, and also the militia of adjoining parts."

The ceremony seems to have taken place with as much impressiveness and decorum as the colony could muster on October 5, 1694. The vault which contains the dust of the first royal Governor and his Lady is believed to be the one which stands about fifteen feet northeast of the old State House site at St. Mary's and which for years was erroneously supposed to be the last rest place of Gov. Leonard Calvert, of Lady Jane Calvert, wife of the third Lord Baltimore, and of Cecilius Calvert, the eldest son of Lady Jane and his lordship. Two investigations, one over a century ago and the other lately, in preparation for the memorial by the Colonial Dames, established to general satisfaction that it is the final abode of Sir Lionel and Lady Copley.

FOR A SHORT TIME following the death of Governor Copley the government of Maryland was administered by Sir Thomas Lawrence pending the arrival from England of Francis Nicholson, who had been commissioned Lieutenant-Governor of the colony in 1691, with the right of succession to the Governorship. But the new Governor was delayed and the doughty Sir Edmond Andros, who at one time had been Governor of all New England-New York and New Jersey and now was Governor of Virginia, decided to pluck it on the strength of a commission which, when examined, was found to be effective only in the event of Nicholson's death.

That consideration, apparently, meant nothing in Andros' life. Being a man of action (he once had been arrested and sent to England for trial for overactivity), he seized the Maryland government, but he was permitted to enjoy his victory a mere ten days when he was ousted without ceremony and returned to Virginia. Col. Nicholas Greenbury, of the Upper House of Assembly, assumed the government as president, turning it over a second time—on May 7, 1694—to Sir Thomas Lawrence, who remained in power until the arrival of Governor Nicholson at the end of the following July.

A GOVERNOR AND A TANKARD

FOLLOWING the imperious Copley and Andros, after a short interim, came Governor Nicholson, as King William's lieutenant in Maryland. Much could be written of him, but next Sunday's article (seventh in this colonial series) deals with one diverting episode of a tankard.

THE VAN BUREN ELM

There is an historic object on the National Highway just west of Indianapolis, Indiana, in the form of a tree that once brought discomfiture and embarrassment to a President-to-be of the United States. The tree is called the Van Buren Elm, after the distinguished statesman whose "downfall" it caused. In writing of the little known incident in the current issue of the National Republic, Mr. Ira J. Pomeroy says, in part:

"America has many historic trees, glorified in history and legend by momentous events which have transpired beneath their boughs—treaties, councils of war, even hangings—but no tree ever became famous through a more bizarre circumstance than did the stately old Van Buren Elm which stands at the curbside of the National Road in the little Quaker town of Plainfield, Indiana. It was at its roots, nearly a century ago, that a dignified ex-President of the United States was purposely and unceremoniously spilled from his stage coach into the thick, clinging mud of the highway. The upsetting of Martin Van Buren at the foot of this famous old tree stands as the only incident in American history of a former chief executive being the butt of a practical joke.

"The episode at Plainfield reflects the seriousness with which the Hoosier pioneer took his politics and is an interesting sidelight upon the grim, stolid humor of the Quakers. The plot which resulted in the spoiling of Mr. Van Buren's clothing and the ruffling of his temper had its inception in a strong political dislike for him throughout the settlements along the National Road west of Indiapolis. Rancor began to develop when Mr. Van Buren vetoed a bill passed by Congress to improve the highway, which had been laid out in 1830 hy the Federal Government. However, lacking funds for maintenance, the government had let it become a veritable bog, marked in places by almost impassable mudholes, the right of way choked with roots of encroaching forest trees, and the road generally of little service to the people, except in dry weather.

"The settlers in central Indiana saw in the new great highway a golden opportunity for developing the country, of enhancing the value of their holdings, and what was more important, the means of rapid, comfortable transportation to and from the growing capital city of Indianapolis.

"When it became assured that Congress would appropriate the money to improve the highway, the people were jubilant. But President Van Buren vetoed the measure and bitter resentment speedily developed and grew, culminating five years later when 'the contrary old Democrat,' as the President was dubbed, was taught a 'lesson' at Plainfield. Local antagonism was reflection in the election in 1840, William Henry Harrison carrying the township by a three-to-one majority.

"Defeated for re-election to the Presidency in 1840, Van Buren began to look to the 1844 campaign and upon advice of his political advisers decided upon a mid-western swing to get his political fences in order. Indianapolis was a key-stop on his itinerary and upon such a mission the former President arrived in the Hoosier capital, Saturday, June 11, 1842. His visit was made the occasion of one of the most elaborate and colorful demonstrations the city had ever witnessed. In the afternoon the ex-President, the first ever to visit Indiana, reviewed the military of the State and many civic organizations in a gigantic parade. That night the elegant old Occidental Hotel, the city's leading hostelry, was the scene of a gorgeous reception and ball, attended by Governor Biggers and his staff of notables from all over the State.

"Mr. Van Buren was well pleased with his reception in the Indiana capital and Democratic published effusive accounts of his growing popularity and glossed over the humorous incident at Plainfield two days later as an 'unfortunate accident.' Whig and other opposition publications failed to see any political gain for Van Buren and made much of the plight he later found himself in at Plainfield.

OUT AT LAST

The government finally is out of the wheat business. With the sale of 1,100,000 bushels in Chicago on Saturday, the Federal Farm Board and its subsidiary, the Grain Stabilization Corporation, cleared their bins and prepared for a final statement of the cost of three years of price-pegging. The initial estimate places the loss at arount $165,000,000.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

BEER AND BOOTLEGGER

And to think anybody was credulous enough to imagine that legal beer would cause the bootlegger and highjacker to resign.—Los Angeles Times.

The average American farmer is not so much interested in just what has caused the present upturn in commodity prices as he is in knowing that it has a sound basis and will be permanent.

A California wife asks for a divorce because her husband swore at her when she scrambled her shots playing tennis. For keeping matrimonial relations sweet there is nothing like the old fashioned game of croquet.

Section 2. And be it further enacted, That this Act shall take effect June 1, 1933.

MT. LAKE PARK

It is strange, isn't it, that the first permanent good roads in the Park, other than State roads, have been started as a result of the disastrous depression. What an object lesson to which the orthordox religionist could point, namely, that back of every sorrow, every disaster and every disappointment lies a divine object.

What we really intended to say, however, is that we belive that we are going to be pulled out of the mud. At least we are making a good start.

Funds made available by the R. F. C. are being used, among other things, to build several sections of roads with a rock base. These will be more or less permanent and will need but little attention for several years. We understand about seven thousand feet of roads, consisting of sections which in wet seasons become dangerously bad, will be stoned this year. Hundreds of carloads of cinder have been used in past years, but to no avail. Each fall finds these sections almost impassabble. The Town Council wisely decided to do work of a permanent character rather than attempt to cover all the roads in the Park in a temporary and slip-shod manner.

If a gang of men is not working on a piece of worn-out road which you use, that does not mean it will not be fixed. Everyone connot be first. It will probably be reached in good time. Just be patient. If work had been started in front of your house, or our house, the fellow further down the street would be kicking just as hard as you are now.

Every writer on civic matters tells us that cooperation is the keynote of municipal progress and improvement. So, now that there is a present opportunity to at least start a plan of permanent benefit, why not lay aside petty jealousies and prejudies, throw our shoulders against the collar and give a long, steady pull together.

Cottages are rapidly filling for the season. Inquiries are being daily received by those having cottages to rent and we are encouraged to believe that there will not be a vacant house in the Park this summer. It is somewhat natural for all of us to think that present conditions will militate against resorts of the character of the Park this year. But we have the advantage of natural environments, such as a delightful climate, pure air, good water and superb scenery, combined with a cheap living overhead. We believe these things will count in our favor when it comes to stretching the old family budget to include an outing this summer.

Notwithstanding a rainy day the flag raising took place in front of the Mountain Lake Hotel last Saturday. Taking into consideration the weather we were surprised and gratified at the number of people who turned out. If more of us would follow the example set by the hotel management we could make the Park more interesting and more attractive.

By the way, every time we see a squad of Boy Scouts exemplifying the tenets of their organization we can not but believe that the coming generations will be more strongly entrenched in patriotism and good citizenship.

A surprise dinner was given at the home of Mrs. Jane Moon in honor of her 73rd birthday. Those attending were her brother Amos, of Morgantown; her sister Kate, of Fairmont; her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Gough, of Morgantown; her sons Allen and Frank, of Loch Lynn; Asa, of Deer Park; Ernest and Ernest, Jr., and Junior Hester, of Parsons, and Miss Eva Shafer, of Loch Lynn.

Wet weather has interfered with the completion of the first unit of the new road to Deer Park. There is quite a contrast between the weather now and when the Loch Lynn-Gormania unit was built. When the latter road was under construction not a drop of rain fell during the whole period.

Dr. and Mrs. L. L. Carr, of Baltimore, have opened their cottage for the summer months.

Mr. James A. Enlow continues seriously ill at his home.

Mrs. Gertrude Camphell, who spent the winter in Richmond, Va., with her daughter, has opened the Braethorn for the season. The hotel, as usual, will be under her personal management.

Miss Myrtle Clark recently spent several days at Monongalia City, Pa.

Ira McKee and his sisters, Misses Myrtle nnd Faith McKee, of Pittsburgh, were here several days recently.

Mrs. Richard Cale, of Terra Alta, was the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Comerford, this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Wildman and son Louis, now of Morgantown, spent the week-end in the Park.

Willard Hayden, the interesting young son of Mr. and Mrs. Gay Hayden, is ill.

Mrs. Daisy B. Hicks, of Moundsville, has opened her cottage here. She will be joined in a few days by her son Robert.

Bushrod Grimes and daughter Miss Joann, of Morgantown, spent the past week-end here as guests of Mrs. Rachel Laughlin.

SCOOP'S COLUMN

By Scoop Himself

When it comes to playing golf, you'll have to let me out at the next corner. And don't forget to hold out your hand. Or a lot of other things for that matter, only golf is my latest fizzle.

When it comes to laying them on the green, I'm no ordinary dub—just extraordinary. Let me get my arms around somebody's neck, somebody who is not too big, and I can lay them on the green, like Zybysko of Savoldi, or if they've got a green infield on the baseball diamond, I can land there occasionally, hut the golf green is different.

I always thought a sand trap was a place where people like Floyd Collins got stuck, until last week at Fairmont when I followed a couple of experts around the course and got stung by the Golf Bug at the fifth hole.

Right then was when I began to learn things. I always thought a driver was one who piloted you around the eourse until the caddie stuck a stick in my hand and told me to tee off. Never having been teed, even by that stuff from Oakland's several beer speakeasies, I fired away for a distant point. They must have given me a dead ball, as it wouldn't roll far.

And let me tell you, the straight and narrow path referred to in the Bible has nothing on a fairway. Just a little hook or slice and the devil's got you in the rough. In bridge you'd be down one, but in golf you're one down. Then you putter around until you're way above par.

That might sound all right on the stock market, but not here. That's one place a banker gets a thrill when things are below par. And as for birdies. A robin erossed my path on one of my few good shots and I was mighty near getting one myself.

But why can't I become a golf player? My brother shot under par many times. There's golf in the blood, and look at me. I'd be discouraged, only I know who the golf bugs are around Oakland, and if they've got the brassie to say they're golfers, then there's hope for all us divot takers.

Insects are said to be the ehlef rival of man for the possession of the globe. Right now they're my chief rival for possession of my kitehen. They evidently read last week about my garden and came to see if there was anything in the rumor.

They are a good sociable bunch and want to get acquainted with a lot of people in town, I hear, but I'd just as soon they'd cut me off their visiting list.

As for my garden, the burdock is already up, and I see a lot of other things peeping through the ground.

It is surprising to see how many people do not know what to do when a flag passes in a parade, or when the Star Spangled Banner is played, or if they do know what to do, they disregard all sense of patriotsm.

When the National colors are passing in parade, or in review, the spectntdrs should if walking, halt, and if sitting arise and stand at attention and uncover. During the playing of the Star Spangled Banner military spectators are required to stand at attention and give the military salute. Civilian spectators should stand at attention and uncover.

And uncover, by the way, means take off your hat. Pass this on to those who do not know, and the next time you stand by anyone who ignores the flag or National anthem, don't be afraid to impress it upon him. If telling him won't do, a kick on the shins sometimes hrings results.

They take Ralph Weber for the weather bureau. Somehody called him up the other night. "How about a shower tonight?" they asked. "It's all right with me," replied Ralph. "Take it if you need it."

How some of the wise birds did get trimmed at the "hig money" eoncessions at the carnival on Tuesday. Hearing that one of our Court House friends had donated to the cause we called him up about it. "I didn't know any Oakland people were around at the time," he sheepishly confessed.

Boy, is money tight and ready cash scarce? The other day a little boy came to the office. "Mother says will you give her change for half a dollar," and just as we were about to hand it out, continued, "she'll send the half-dollar down on Monday."

And just glancing out the window I wonder if any of you have ever seen Tot Matthews run?

They told him he must have absolute quiet, so he gave the sleeping powders to his wife.

An editor does the right thing by an officer he had ealled "a defective on the police force," when a correction calls him "a detective on the police farce."

And thus ends the farce for this week.

VOLUME 57. OAKLAND, GARRETT COUNTY, MARYLAND, JUNE 8, 1933. NUMBER 17.

129 LEAVE FOR TRAINING IN ARMY FORESTRY CORPS

County Has Its Quota Raised to 134 But Six Fail to Pass Examination at Cumberland

31 ARE FROM OAKLAND

One hundred twenty-nine youths of Garrett county left Saturday and Tuesday for Cumberland, and following a physical examination there left for Camp Holabird, Baltimore, for training and conditioning preliminary to entering the Forestry Corps.

Garrett county had its quota raised from 50 to 134, through Charles W. Ream, chairman of the county Welfare Board, who was in Baltimore last week-end, but six of those sent to Cumberland failed to pass the examination and were returned to the county.

The deadline for receiving men was set at June 7. Figures show that there are 18,000 now in reforestation camps and it was stated that the entire quota for the Third Corps Area, 28,750, would be in the field by June 15. There are now 250,000 youths in training or already working in the forests.

The largest group was from Oakland, with Deer Park, Crellin, Friendsville and Mt. Lake Park falling next in line. The entire list of those from Garrett county follows:

Herbert Adams, Maurice Butler, Fred Collins, Robert Glaze, Thomas Goss, Kenneth Graves, L. James Johnson, Glenn Miller, David Paul, Donald Schaeffer, Clarence Wiley, Grantsville.

Howard Lewis, Swallow Falls.

Fred A. Thomas, Fearer.

John Turek, Kempton.

Joe Cerne, Steyer.

At the conclusion of their training period at Camp Holabird, it is supposed they will be sent, either to Maryland, or a neighboring state.

Is Best All-Round Student

Miss Hazel Speicher, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Spelcher, of Accident, and Kenneth Strite, of Hagerstown, were awarded medals at the commencement exercises of Blue Ridge college, New Windsor, for being the best all-round students.

REFORESTATION COMPANY SENT TO SWALLOW FALLS

Another Company Arrives This Morning—Is Third for County

Another company of reforestation workers, making three in the county, arrived in Oakland early this morning and were transported by truck to Swallow Falls.

The company consisted of 202 men, four enlisted men including Lieut. Benz, Lieut. Stearns, Medical Officer Lieut. Lang, of the Navy, and Sedgt. Avery, of the Army.

All are from Camp Holabird, and the reforestation workers had been gathered from Baltimore, Frederick and some Eastern shore counties.

At Swallow Falls they will set up a camp similar to those in the New Germany and Potomac Manor forests, and will carry on a work program set out by the State forestry department.

The first work to be done, according to the officers in charge, will be the construction of a road from the main road through to the Muddy Creek Falls.

PLANS FOR JULY FOURTH CELEBRATION UNDER WAY

Legion Plans Fourth Annual Homecoming Event July 3 to 8

Plans are under way for the holding of the fourth annual homecoming celebration, under the auspices of Proctor Kildow Post No. 71, American Legion, from July 3 to 8. The celebration will be staged at Sweeney's lot, Third street, and the Keystone Park Attractions Company has been secured to assist the Post in supplying amusements.

This will make the fourth consecutive year in which this company under the management of C. A. Hartzburg, has been engaged.

Members of the Post will operate stands and a bingo game and they are privileged to sell stands to interested local people.

There will be a fireworks display on the evening of July 4, and also Saturday, July 8. The executive committee, consisting of F. R. Shaffer, Berne Teter, H. M. Dawson, and J. M. Gonder, requests that Oakland people write letters to their friends and members of the family who are away, requesting them to arrange to return home during the celebration.

Heavy Rains and High Wind Visit County

Heavy thunder storms and high winds visited Oakland and Garrett county on Saturday, Sunday and Wednesday evenings, William Pendergast's store, Hutton, being struck by lightning Sunday evening, causing damage to the hall upstairs.

The crash carried plaster from the front of the hall through the window in the rear of the building, but Fr. W. J. McVeigh and Mr. Pendergast, in the storeroom underneath, felt no shock. A robin, who had built her nest above the second story window, was on its nest the next morning as usual.

A large tree falling across route 50, west of Table Rock Inn, delayed traffic for more than an hour on Sunday evening.

No damage was reported beyond the heavy pounding of early garden products by the driving rains. The rains of Saturday and Sunday were followed by hot weather on Tuesday and Wednesday, the thermometer reading 82 and 87, respectively, for the two days.

Aphids Found in Pea Fields of Forty-Eight Farmers Visited

Examination of 48 fields of farmers growing peas for the Mt. Airy Canning company, by C. Graham, assistant entomologist, University of Maryland, and John H. Carter, county agent showed aphids present in every field, Mr. Carter announced.

In most cases the infestation was greater on the early variety. Letters have been sent to many of the farmers suggesting that since the investigation indicated that aphids could be found in any pea field in the county, that they make frequent inspection of their pea field, making any report they think necessary to the parties in charge of pea aphid control.

The infestation at present is not enough to cause destruction to the crop but the aphids are numerous enough to become destructive in three or four days should they have favorable conditions, Mr. Carter stated.

ADDITIONAL PROJECTS ARE STARTED BY R. F. C. BOARD

Twenty-two Communities Now Busy on Thirty-three Different Plans of Work

WEEKLY PAYROLL, $2,915

Additional work projects are being opened each week by the Garrett County Welfare Board. Since the last issue of the Republican, heads of relief families have been put to work in Swanton, Avilton and Bittinger. Work projects are now going ahead in 22 communities of the county totalling 33 different projects in order to bring the work as near as possible to the relief families.

The relief pay roll for he week ending June 3 amounted to $2,915 with 957 men given relief employment. Further projects will be opened in other sections of the county within the coming weeks. The Welfare Board estimates that the total number of men who will be given work because of relief needs within their home will probably reach 1,200 men.

The Garrett County Welfare Board assisted by the district and local foresters, gathered together 150 men in the town hall, Oakland, for the quota of county forest recruits. They met for roll call and instructions and 129 were sent to Cumberland and thence to Baltimore at Government expense, where they will be conditioned, preparatory to being sent to their permanent camp where they will remain for the next 6 months in forest service.

In addition to the 129 men sent from this county there will be approximately 80 experienced woodsmen selected for the camps.

The total allotment of men will draw a minimum of $30 each month. This will put into circulation many thousands of dollars in this county as most of the wages will be returned to their families at home. Each man in Conservation Civilian Camps will be provided with food, shelter and work clothing and will be trained in the conservation of forests.

The Maryland State forester in a recent talk before the Rotary Club in Baltimore stated that the work which will be done by these men all over the state will advance the welfare of Maryland's forests by twenty years.

Program Planned for Girl Scouts During June

A full program for the Oakland Girl Scouts during June was outlined last Friday evening at a meeting of the troop committee.

On June 6 the younger girls met at the home of Mrs. C. Milton Sincell for a demonstration in table setting and bed making. On June 8 the older girls will be in charge of Mrs. W. W. Grant and Adeline Sincell, when patrol corners will be fixed in the scout room.

On June 15 all patrols will meet together and Mr. Joseph E. Harned will give a talk on wild flowers.

On June 20 the young patrols will fix patrol corners, and on June 22 the older girls will have a swimming party with Mrs. S. H. Jackson and Mrs. S. T. Naylor in charge.

On June 29 all patrols will meet for a musical games night in charge of Mrs. James Treacy. Elizabeth Browning and Mary Sue Bell will be in charge of recreation for each meeting.

The name of Louise Shaw was inadvertently omitted from last week's girl scout list, which makes 29 in the troop for this year.

Forest Workers Will Rebuild Dam at New Germany

The Civilian Conservation Camp, No. 326, designated by the U. S. Government as Camp Savage, which was established at New Germany two weeks ago on a site opposite Swallow Gulch Dam, is now occupied by 190 volunteer foresters, 11 regular army men, including commissioned and non-commissioned officers, five experienced forest workers. The camp occupies an elevated position and is conducted on a modern saintary system.

The campers are planning to build a baseball ground, a golf course and an outdoor arena in which boxing matches will be held.

The first work to be done by the workers will be the rebuilding of Swallow Gulch Dam and the clearing of the entire State forest of which the dam is a part. Camp officials have stated visitors are welcome and as a result the camp has been visited by hundreds of persons since the camp was established two weeks ago.

OAKLAND IS EASY WINNER IN 17TH ANNUAL TOURNEY

Scores 175 Points to Take Track and Field Meet at Grantsville Kitzmiller High is Second

THREE RECORDS SMASHED

Oakland High School, with 175 points, easily outdistanced all opponents to win the seventeenth annual track and field meet, held last Thursday at Grantsville, the nearest competitor, Kitzmiller High School, garnering 81 points. Oakland was especially strong in the relays and field events, while Kitzmiller had the edge in the dashes.

RED HOUSE CHURCH WILL CELEBRATE ANNIVERSARY

Was Dedicated June 14, 1908—Rev. Hauser Will Be Speaker

The twenty-fifth anniversary of the dedication of St. John's church will be celebrated at Red House on Sunday, June 18. Dedication services were held on June 14, 1908. The members of St. Luke's will unite in this observance.

The Sunday schools will meet together at 9:30; the Children's Day program at 10:30, with the chief anniversary service beginning at 2 o'clock.

Rev. Ernest Roy Hauser, of Clearfield, Pa., who went out from the Red House congregation into the ministry, will be the principal speaker. Other pastors and lay workers who have been associated with the parish in former days will bring greetings.

The parsonage, "Ben's Camp," and the lawns will provide space for family gatherings and a picnic dinner between the services. Rev. A. K. Jones, present pastor, is expecting a large number for the celebration.

CITY COUNCIL DONATES TO BOYS' BAND AND LIBRARY

Each Organization to Get $200—Street Names to be Erected

After years of arguments about the constitutionality of the Mayor and council of Oakland donating funds for support of the Free Public Library and the Boys' Band, this difficulty was cleared up at the last session of the Legislature, and at the regular meeting of the council on Monday night, it was voted to donate $200 each to the two organizations, $100 payable immediately and $100 payable later in the year.

The question caused many arguments in council, and was an issue in platforms of candidates, running for office.

Street Names to be Erected

Names of all streets of Oakland will be placed on a metal nameplate and erected at the various intersections, it was decided by the council on Monday. The letters will be white with a blue background. They will be erected as soon as prices can be obtained for the work and the articles delivered.

Part Cash For Work

In order to induce a few more who are delinquent in their taxes to work out their debts on the streets, the council decided to pay 30 percent in cash and apply 70 percent on taxes. Thus far only a few have offered their services to the town in payment of their past due water accounts, etc.

The question of turning off the traffic lights was again brought before the council, although the original order to turn them off had been rescinded at a special meeting of the governing body, but the motion, which was introduced by W. R. Browning, was voted down 4 to 2.

Bills amounting to approximately $1,800 were ordered paid. Routine business occupied the remainder of the session. The next regular meeting will be held on July 3.

Milton A. Reckard to Meet With Legionaires Monday

Milton A. Reckard, Baltimore, department commander of the American Legion of Maryland; and John R. Tenney, vice-commander, of Hagerstown, will meet with the local Legion post on Monday evening.

The regular session will be held at Cabin Lodge at 7:30 o'clock. A Dutch" dinner has been arranged and legionaires and ex-service men who expect to attend are requested to notify a member of the committee, Clarence Spear, A. G. Hesen, or Joseph M. Gonder. Arrangements will be made for a bus from Oakland to the lodge.

A letter to Mr. Gonder this morning states that C. F. Sargent, director of the Veterans' Bureau, Baltimore, and L. McGee, department adjutant, will also be present at the meeting.

To Open 5 and 10 Cent Store on Saturday Morning

The J. W. Jackson and Company, a 5 and 10 cent store, will be open for business in the building formerly occupied by the L. K. Dixon store, on Saturday morning, it is being announced this morning.

Mr. Jackson, who is from Lonaconing, and a staff of workers, are getting the stock in shape for the grand opening and he is offering a large number of bargains to the public.

SENIOR WEEK ACTIVITIES TO COMMENCE ON FRIDAY

Eighty-two Graduates of Oakland High to Participate in Commencement Week Program

GRADUATION ON JUNE 14

Eighty-two seniors of Oakland High school will participate in the Commencement week program which will begin tomorrow evening, June 9, with the class night and class play.

The play, "Penrod," is under the direction of Miss Margaret Kochenderfer, and the cast includes Walter Shreve, Glenna Paugh, Helen Schlossnagle, Charles Bowman, Joe Rice, Delbert Bittinger, Marguerite Junkins, Loring Steiding, Janice Graham, George Browning, Hagan Frazee, William Naylor, Margaret Tillett, Schell Hoye, Floyd Shaffer. There will be added features. The play will be presented in the school auditorium.

Sermon on Sunday

The sermon to the graduates will be preached on Sunday evening, June 11, in the school auditorium, beginning at 8 o'clock, Rev. W. S. Patterson, pastor of St. Paul's M. E. church, will be the speaker, and Rev. I. S. Middaugh, Mt. Lake Park, will conduct the scripture reading and prayer.

Graduation on June 14

Graduation exercises will be held in the school auditorium on Wednesday evening, June 14, at 8 o'clock, when diplomas will be presented and other awards made. Dr. Richard Aspinall, field secretary, West Virginia university, Morgantown, will be the speaker. The following will receive diplomas:

Academic

Boys—Walter Dawson, William Wonderly, Stuart Hamlll, Schell Hoye, Loring Steiding, George Stuck.

General Course

Boys—Charles Davis, Willard Gibson, Charles Hardesty, Harold Hinebaugh, Ward Hinebaugh, Kenneth Lawton, Robert Lohr, Otto Menear, William Naylor, Lambert Ramsey, Joseph Rice.

Girls—Oma Ellen DeBerry, Elizabeth Mosser, Maxine Paulie, Martha Scott, Catherine White.

Vocational Course

Boys—Cletis Beckman, Harold Bittinger, Charles Bowman, Boyd Hardesty, Willard Hauser, Frederick Helbig, Hagan Frazee, Ivan Miller, Carl Ridder, Paul Riley, James Sebold, Earle Spocrlein, Clyde Taylor.

Commercial Course

Boys—Morgan Adams, Lee Ashby, Delbert Bittinger, George Browning Jacob Holtschneider, Austin McRobie, Floyd Shaffer, Walter S. Shreve, LeRoy Stewart.

Girls—Vera Adams, Florence Butler, Josephine Friend, Mary Ethel Gates, Miriam Hoye, Margaret Hoye, Marguerite Junkins, Mary E. Merrill, Mary E. Murphy, Dorothy Paugh, Hazel Reall.

Final Assembly Friday Morning

The final assembly of the year will be held Friday morning, June 16, when reports will be given out and other medals presented. The new acorn staff will be introduced to the school.

The elementary closing exercises for Oakland supervisory unit will be held at the high school auditorium on Thursday evening, June 15, when 170 will get certificates.

Alumni Dance June 16

The annual alumni dance will be held in the school auditorium on Friday evening, June 16, according to Carl McIntire, president. "Al and His Rythm Pounders," of Cumberland, will furnish the music, and admission will be $1 per couple. Invitations are being mailed by Miss Betty Gonder, secretary. Seniors will be guests of the alumni association.

Child Is Attacked by Rooster

Herbert Groves, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Groves, of Green Glade, was attacked by a rooster at his home last Friday and painfully injured. The child's lip was lacerated quite painfully, the wound requiring the services of Dr. McComas. Several stitches were required to close the cut.

Lesson for June 11

JESUS ON THE CROSS

LESSON TEXT—Mark 15:1-47.

GOLDEN TEXT—But God commendeth his love toward us, in that, while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us. Romans 5:8.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Dying for Us.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Giving His Life.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Jesus Accepting the Cross.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Meaning of the Cross.

This is the grand climax of the year's lessons. Without apprehending the significance of the crucifixion of Christ, all the other lessons are meaningless. It is not a matter of learning lessons taught by a great teacher or imitating the example of a great and good man, but apprehending the vicarious atonement made by the world's Redeemer. Christ saves, not by his ethical teaching, but by his shed blood.

I. Jesus Arraigned Before Pilate (vv. 1-15).

They bound Jesus and delivered him to Pilate in the early morning before the mock trial of the high priest. The Jews would gladly have killed him but they lacked the authority to do so. They delivered him to the Gentile governor, thus involving the Jews and Gentiles in this crowning act of human sin. Pilate questioned him without delay. He was accused of pretending to be a king. To this slanderous accusation of the chief priests and elders he made no reply, to the utter astonishment of Pilate, who sought to release him because convinced of his innocence. After several unsuccessful efforts to escape responsibility, he resorted to the expedient of letting the people choose between Barabbas and Jesus.

II. Jesus Crowned With Thorns (vv. 16-20).

After Pilate had scourged Jesus, he delivered him to be crucified.

1. Crown of thorns (vv. 16, 17). Knowing that Jesus had been condemned for claiming to be Israel's King, they clothed him with purple and crowned him with a wreath of thorns. The crown of thorns typified the cross which he bore for man's sins (Genesis 3:17, 18).

2. Their salutation (v. 18). In derision they said, "Hail, King of the Jews!"

3. Their mock worship (vv. 19, 20). They smote him on the head with a reed, taunted him, and went through a process of mock worship.

III. Jesus Crucified (vv. 21-41).

1. They led him away to the place of crucifixion (vv. 21-23). At first they compelled him to bear his own cross, but when physical weakness made this impossible they forced Simon, the Cyrenian, to bear it. Christ's face was so marked by the thorns and cruel blows that there was no form nor comeliness (Isa. 53:2).

2. Gambling for the clothing of the Lord (vv. 24, 25). They gambled for his seamless robe under the very cross upon which Jesus was dying.

3. The superscription (v. 26). It was customary to place over the victim on the cross, his name and a statement of his crime. He was indeed the king of the Jews.

4. Between two thieves (vv. 27, 28). His indentification with the two robbers was in fulfillment of the Scripture (Isa. 53:12).

5. The dying Savior reviled (vv. 29-32). They taunted him by bidding him come down from the cross, and said derisively, "He saved others, himself he cannot save." He could not save himself and others, so he chose to die to save others.

6. Darkness upon the land (v. 33). Nature threw around the Son of God a shroud to hide him from the gaze of a godless company.

7. The cry from the cross (vv. 34-36). When God laid upon his beloved Son the world's sin and turned his face from him, there went out the awful cry of anguish, "My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?"

8. He dismissed his spirit (v. 37). When the price of redemption was fully paid, Jesus as sovereign dismissed his spirit.

9. The rent vail (v. 38). This symbolized the giving up of his life (Heb. 10:20).

10. The centurion's confession (v. 20). He said, "Truly this man was the Son of God."

11. The lingering group of women (vv. 40, 41). Having lovingly ministered to him in life they were now waiting to care for his precious body.

IV. Jesus' Burial (vv. 42-47).

Loving hands now took the body and laid it in Joseph's new tomb. This man who did not consent to the foul treatment of the Lord now risks his reputation, and by his action made a bold confession of the Lord.

The Solid Bible

Few books can stand three readings. But the Word of God is solid; it will stand a thousand readings, and the man who has gone over it the most frequently and the most carefully is the surest of finding new wonders there.—Hamilton.

"The Word of Our God Shall Stand Forever"

BOOK OF PSALMS

This book has been most appropriately called the National Hymn Book of Israel. It contains 150 devotional poems to be set to music for worship. These poems contain expressions of the most varied feelings, covering a range from the depths of despair to the highest spiritual exaltation.

Praise, devotion to God, trust, confidence, thanksgiving, triumph, sorrow for sin, humiliation, dejection, discouragement, encouragement, Providence, vistory over death, are some of the manifold themes that find expression in this sublime liturgy.

Among the authors of the Psalms, David is eredited with the largest number—seventy-three being assigned to him in the titles, while twelve are assigned to Asoph; eleven to the sons of Korah, two to Solomon, one to Moses.

Each Psalm is arranged under some topic which appears prominently in it. About a dozen of the Psalms are believed to be Messianic and hence prophetic in character, referring to Christ as King, also to His sufferings, resurrection and ascension.

There are others, like the eighth, which refer to man's exaltation, or the tenth, which describes his sinfulness. The worldly and wieked are dealt with, their estate of relative peace and happiness contracted with the trials of the godly; their seeming prosperity portrayed; their ultimate destiny pointed out.

The Psalms deals with the great theme of religious experience such as penitence, pardon, conversion, consecration, trust, teachableness, aspiration, prayer, praise, worship, affliction, old age, vanity, home, homesickness.

They also tell of the safety, the glory, the love, and unity of the church militant.

The Divine attributes are described in this marvelous liturgy, not only of Israel, but of the human race. God's wisdom, majesty, power, mercy, and love are set forth in immortal phrases never equalled in the language of man. The heart of man will always respond to the chords struck by these majestic hymns, running as they do the gamut of human sorrow and joy, and revealing in divine symphony the love, grace and merey of our Heavenly Father, accompanying us from the cradle to beyond the grave.

The following Psalms will richly repay the earnest reader who will take the time to acquire their message. It is timely and imperative: The first Psalm—the righteous and wicked contrasted; the eighth Psalm—God's glory manifested in his works, man's dominion; the nineteenth Psalm—God's law, its excellence and power; the twenty-third Psalm—the Good Shepherd; the twenty-seventh Psalm—faith sustained by the power of God.

To make an adequate list, one must include all of the Psalms, as each one fills its own peculiar place in this glorious collection of hymns, old but ever new.

In these days of testing our hearts respond to the thrill of David's heart when he lifted his eyes to the hills and exclaimed: "Whence cometh my help?" The answer for the poet King of Israel and for us is the same: "My help cometh from the Lord, who made Heaven and earth!"

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By FRANK P. LITSCHERT

The pronouncement of Norman H. Davis, at Geneva, to the effect that the United States will assume new responsibilities to help maintain the peace of the world, will abandon the principle of neutrality in case of trouble, and consult with other nations as to what is to be done about it, has brought forth varied comment in the press of the United States. Generally those papers which have favored United States entrance into the League of Nations and the League Court are favorable to the new developments, while those which have opposed foreign entanglements are not so enthusiastic. The same line of cleavage is said to be faintly visible in the Senate.

Although the new policy is generally admitted to be a step in the direction of departure from the time honored foreign policy of the American government, there has been less excitement about it than might be expected—especially in the newspapers. The reason perhaps is that the so-called Morgan investigation by a United States Senate committee turned out of a real nine-days wonder which drew journalistic attention away from everything else on Capitol Hill.

Although many Americans believe that consultative pacts and peace guarantees will prove a source of future trouble for Uncle Sam, French diplomats are said to be dissatisfied with what our administration has promised and to be getting ready to demand promise of more security from the United States. And while German newspapers generally hail the Davis pronouncement as evidence that President Roosevelt intends to involve the United States in European problems, Lord Beaverbrook, the noted British publicist, is quoted as stating that European statesmen are counting on too much. He expresses the belief that our Congress will never permit the United States to become involved in any more European wars. Certainly it will not be the intent of the administration or Congress either, to involve us in any more military ventures in Europe. The trouble is, however, that an arms embargo coupled with a cosultative pact is apt to bring on war unintentionally, before Congress would have a chanee to take any action, no matter how pure the motives of our government may be.

One of the chief arguments of those opposed to consultative pacts to punish "aggressive nations" has been that it is always difficult to determine the real aggressor in any argument. Mr. Davis, speaking for the administration, seeks to answer this by proposing: "In the long run we may come to the conclusion that the simplest and most accurate definition of an aggressor is one whose armed forces are found on alien soil in violation of treaties."

But it is not as simple as all this, in the opinion of the eminently practical New York Sun, which says editorially:

"Let us put this to the test of practice. Assume that the government of a foreign country seizes all the American citizens within its borders, throws them in jail, kills them or puts them to torture, confiscates their property and refuses to heed the protests of the American government. Under the circumstances, according to old-fashioned folk, a declaration of war against the offending government would be justifiable, and that declaration would naturally be followed by an American invasion by land or an attack by sea.

"What then, under the Norman Davis concept of aggression? Why, the United States would be the aggressor, for there was no invasion of this country by the other government's armed forces. It is unfortunate that Mr. Davis seems to think in terms of France and Germany and not in terms of his own country. But he has been abroad a great deal of his life and cannot be expeeted to look at things as narrowly as those Americans who, not being internntional-minded, subject all new proposals concerning war and peace to a scrutiny essentially domestic in its nature."

Every Week the Browns Enjoy ONE meal FREE—

"It's on the Electric Refrigerator"

The Browns have learned that an electric refrigerator is a pleasant aid to thrifty living. After every meal, the food left over is put away in a spacious compartment of the refrigerator. Some "rainy day" these left-overs become the ingredients of tempting new dishes. Tasty meat loaves and souffles . . . savory soups . . . sparkling jellies are, more often than not, left-overs glorified by the clever cook. In the Brown's home one meal every week costs nothing . . . It's made from food saved by the electric refrigerator.

WOMEN'S CONTRIBUTION TO THE MOTOR CAR

There is some doubt that people care to hear very much about what goes on under the hoods of their cars.

The driver knows that "driving qualities" are not accidental; they are put there. How the manufacturer creates or evolves those results may not interest him. He judges entirely by the results he gets in driving.

Well, it is not essential to talk "shop"; let us talk Results.

Smoothness. Drive the Ford V-8 and you will find that the engine runs with surpassing smoothness, due to its design and the extra precise methods of its manufacture.

Power. There it is, 75 horsepower (we could say 80) at the driveshaft for the driver's use. With less weight to pull around, the mettle of this car—its life-like response—is rather remarkable.

Economy. Our V-8 develops more power on a gallon of gasoline than any car we have made. Mileage is partly a matter of individual driving, but under average conditions the Ford V-8 does 17 to 20 miles a gallon.

Of course, car economy is not only a matter of fuel. Ford V-8 has that too, but it is also economical in the complete sense—initial cost, operation, maintenance.

Appearance. This is woman's contribution. The motor car must not only be useful, but also good-looking. View the Ford V-8 and you will not need our comment on its fine appearance.

Comfort. This also is woman's concern. In 30 years she changed the motor car from a wagon to a coach. Comfort is a quality made up of numerous ingredients. There is no comfort without a quiet, smooth-running engine. We have all the other ingredients too,—color, good taste, quality, ease, safety, roominess and convenience.

Useful Herbs for Window Box and Door Yard

According to the Bureau of Home Economics of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, these so-called "frills" are a highly useful and practical feature of the family food supply, especially if the family is short of cash. Such "frills" cost next to nothing if you grow them yourself. Now, comes the suggestion, then, since this is gardening time, that the housewife grow her favorite herbs and provide her own seasonings for the summer and next winter, too.

Some of the herbs grow beautifully and abundantly in flower pots or window boxes, according to Mr. W. R. Beattie, one of the Department's garden specialists. This is true of basil, parsley, sweet marjoram, mint, watercress, rose geranium, nasturtium, and lemon verbena. Savory, sesame (or hene), tarragon, chervil, sage, chives, and dill are best put out in the ground. But they take very little space. In this country we use sage, thyme, and savory chiefly in stuffings for poultry, in sausage, and in cheeses. Tarragon leaves and dill are used in vinegar and pickles, also in sauce, especially for fish. Chives give a delicate flavor to sauces, salads, and omelets. Mint is used for many purposes—stuffings, jellies, sauces, vegetables, fruits, salads, beverages. Some like the finely chopped leaves with green peas, or sprinkled on glazed carrots. Basil is a favorite seasoning for soups and stews, and for tomato dishes, especially macaroni with tomatoes and cheese. Italian cooks use it also in bean soup.

Among the common place dishes that gain new zest if seasoned with herbs are tomato soup, vegetable soup, eggs and omelets, rice, fish, meat balls, veal or lamb stew, cottage cheese. Which herbs to use, and the proportions of each, are largely a matter of individual taste, but one secret is never to use too much. The flavor should be delicate. Chervil, chives, sweet basil and parsley in equal quantities with mushrooms and eggs, are used in a fine-herbs sandwich described by one authority; in another, tarragon, chervil, basil and chives, with eggs and lettuce; in still another sandwich the mixture is mint, chervil, and cress. White sauce for broiled fish or omelet may use chervil, summer savory, and chives, or a more varied mixture including chives, paraley, sweet marjoram, and thyme. The following recipes suggest further uses of these herbs.

Sauce With Green Herbs

One cup milk, 2 tablespoons butter or other fat, 2 tablespoons flour, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon butter or other fat, 2 teaspoons finely cut marjoram, 2 teaspoons finely cut parsley, 2 teaspoons finely cut chives, 2 teaspoons finely cut thyme.

Make a sauce of the first four ingredients. Melt the teaspoon of fat, add the herbs, and cook for a few minutes. Stir this into the sauce, and cook in a double boiler for about 10 minutes. Stir hot over fish, omelet, or cooked vegetables.

Fluffy Omelet With Green Herbs

For five or six people use 6 eggs. Beat the yolks thoroughly and add ½ cup of hot white sauce made with herbs. Fold the yolk mixture gradually into the stiffly beaten whites. Have ready and hot a smooth heavy omelet pan containing 1 tablespoon melted butter or other fat, and pour the egg mixture into the pan. The omelet may be cooked in different ways, but in any case start it on top of the stove at moderate heat. If a small-sized gas or oil burner is used, move the pan about so that the omelet will cook around the edge at the same rate as in the center. As soon as the omelet has browned slightly on the bottom, place it in a moderate oven and bake for 10 minutes. When the omelet is done, crease it through the center, fold it over with a spatula, and roll it onto a hot platter without attempting to lift it from the pan. Serve at once with garnish of parsley or other green herb.

Ants

Ants frequently transport plant lice and scale insects, besides disfiguring lawns by their mounds of earth deposited at the entrance of their burrows. Control is a matter of systematic and continuous use of poison sweet bait. This must be properly made so that the foraging ants will carry the poison to their young and the queens, which are fed by regurgitation. In this way the colony gradually becomes decimated and eventually exterminated. Sometimes carbon bisulphide emulsion may be used effectively.

An easily prepared and inexpensive ant poison may be prepared as follows: Water, 1 quart; sugar, 1 lb.; arsenite of soda, 125 grains; tartaric acid, 25 grains.

Boil these materials together until the arsenite of soda has dissolved. One tablespoon of honey added to the mixture will attract the ants more readily. Place the poison syrup in shallow containers easily accessible to the ants. Pill boxes, water-proofed inside with hot paraffin, make good containers. This is a weak poison and will be taken by most house-frequenting kinds of ants. The poison must be weak so that the worker ants will carry it back to the nest and feed the queen and young ants, thereby eradicating the whole colony. Keep plenty of poison in the container. It usually requires from two weeks to a month to eradicate a colony of ants.

Often the little red ants will not take the above poison. In that case use the following poison:

Water, 1 pint; sugar, 1 pound; honey, 3 ounces; thallium sulphate, 27 grains; tartaric acid, 15 grains.

CAUTION—The above insecticides are poisonous and should be handled carefully. Have the exact amount of poison weighed out by a druggist.

Maryland Poultry Field Day

More than 500 poultrymen from this and nearby States are expected to attend the sixth annual Maryland Poultry Feed Day, which will be held June 15 on the campus of the University of Maryland, it is announced by Wade H. Rice, poultry specialist for the Extension Service. The day is sponsored by State and county poultry associations, the Maryland Extension Service and the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Administration of New Farm Act

Plans for putting into operation the provisions of the new Farm Act are being formulated as rapidly as the magnitude of the task permits, according to those who are charged with its administration. More than half a dozen administrators have been appointed and the organization is rapidly taking shape. Hearings are being held and it is anticipated that announcements will be made in the near future regarding the immediate policies to be pursued with respect to some of the basic commodities specified in the law. When such policies are determined, it will be possible, according to agricultural authorities in Maryland, to gain a clearer idea of the benefits which the people of this State may derive from the new legislation.

It has been stated that the Extension Service of the University of Maryland will be called upon for important service in carrying out the provisions of the new Act. The county agents in the respective counties will be kept informed as to developments and provided with information as rapidly as it is available.

Monday night at the City Council meeting it was moved that the traffic lights be suspended. They've been hanging in mid-air ever since they were put up, so it's my opininon the motion was entirely out of order.

They closed the carnivaal concessions last Friday, which was not soon enough, according to Danny Spiker, Mike Maroney and many others.

Some stories also get greatly exaggerated, according to Mr. Rathhun. Let it go! Let it go!

Makin' 'Em Tell

By special arrangement with Col. Bell the past week a pressure tank was secured, and this was used to make people tell the truth. The hot weather and pressure were too much for some of them, and all they could answer was "humph," which means a sort of disgusting growl.

Various ones were put under pressure on pressing questions.

Bill Browning—Don't you just love traffic lights?

Mike Maroney—You always get what you pay for, especially on concession wheels at the carnival, don't you?

The Boss Editor—Hot weather in Baltimore is so invigorating.

Mr. Harned—Wouldn't it be nice to be ahle to put up a foot rail and sell good 3.2 over your counter? A couple of "humphs" on this one.

And now, graduates of 1933, that you have the world by the tail, etc. But Lohr was put in the sweat box for this test.

Continuing my jaunt as an inquiring reporter, I wondered how soon the depression would end. I really should ask some big business executive, but Neil Fraley couldn't get his legs down from the window sill in his office; Bet Dawson wouldn't stick to one subject long enough to follow him; Delbert Davis said he knew, but wasn't telling; Harry Mickey was too busy fishing; H. C. Sincell was too busy milling around; Grover Stemple was too busy being busy.

So I decided to interview myself. However, I seemed lost in thought. Pressing a forefinger to the forehead didn't seem to help. The eyelids were woozy. The body seemed to waver there in front of the typewriter. The keys wouldn't move.

In fact there didn't seem to be much life there. It's in the blood, I guess. Just a belated spring fever.

A Surprise Party

A surprise party was given at the home of Mrs. Dorcas Warnick, near Barton, in honor of her son Parker, Saturday, May 27. "It's an OLDSMOBILE"

There's this about it when you drive a new Oldsmobile—you have a car at once so smart, so different, and so outstanding that it is instantly recognized . . . and acclaimed. Indeed, it is doubtful whether any car has ever stood so definitely ahead of current design as these handsome style leaders—the new Oldsmobile "6" and "8". Wherever they go, they are the centers of attraction—unquestionably the most admired cars of the year. . . . And, among those who know them, they are admired no less for their performance than for their style leadership. Fast, smooth, comfortable—and almost unbelievably easy to handle—they are as delightful to drive as any car you could possibly imagine. . . . Come in today for a demonstration. Oldsmobile prices are the lowest in ten years.

THE SIX $745 and up ★ THE EIGHT $845 and up

WORK

No honorable substitute for work has yet been discovered. Every successful man owes his success to work. The early history of any successful enterprise begins with the word "work." Were everybody to stop working, the world would no longer produce and the people would die of hunger and exposure. Work is just as important as sunlight.

It would be fair to say that 80 per cent of all the people are workers. This 80 per cent represents the law-abiding, honest and thrifty element. These people are busily employed working out their own destinies, and being busy they become loyal citizens in the communities in which they dwell.

Among the remaining 20 percent we find those who occupy their time in search of a substitute for work, such as political trickery, thieving, forging, blackmailing, counterfeiting, robbery, white slavery, smuggling, gambling and other illegal substitutes for work. To restrain this 20 per cent of the people from becoming greater in numbers or too successful in their endeavors, the 80 per cent are obliged to pay out millions for police protection, courts, prosecuting attorneys, detectives, judges, jails, prisons, orphan asylums and retreats. The desire of one-fifth of the people to live without working makes criminals of many who might have become good citizens had they been willing to work for their living. When a man strives to get his living in this way, he becomes a moth on civilization—only the law forbids the extermination of the human moth.

Once in a while one of the 20 per cent makes good for a short period and his success is alluring to others. Jesse James made good for some time and then stopped with a bullet in his heart. Ponzi succeeded for a while and then went to prison. Pirates made good hauls until overhauled by revenue cutters. Political grafters live well until exposed. And so it goes with all those who endeavor to find a substitute for work.

John D. Rockefeller, Henry Ford and many other successful men started in at two dollars a day, and not one of them would be where they are today had he not worked. A small hunchback lad, who had a difficult task getting into this country, worked his way up until he became the highest salaried mechanical engineer in the entire United States.

Looking for a substitute that will pay as well as work has been the ruination of many. It will never win any more than a slow horse wins the race. Work wins lasting victories, makes real men, builds homes, erects factories, and makes peaceful communities. Looking for a successful substitute is like prospecting for Captain Kidd's treasures—so many have tried it and failed that work still looks like the best bet for all of us.

IN DAYS OF OLD

FORTY YEARS AGO

Dr. Mahlon C. Hinebaugh opened an office in Hutton for the practice of his profession and at the same time maintained an office for the same purpose in Oakland.

FRIENDSVILLE—BAYARD IN TIE FOR FIRST PLACE

Oakland Betters Percentage in Winning Three Straight Games

Bayard's baseball team fell into a tie with Friendsville for first place honors during the past week, losing games to Oakland 9-6, and Friendsville 4-3. Bayard had Friendsville shut out until the ninth inning, with two men out, and two strikes on the last batter. The next pitch was hit to Blocher on second base who fumbled. The next man hit to Frost at shortstop who also muffled the ball. Breaking down Bayard's defense the Friendsville team came through with four runs to win the game after it was apparently lost. Welch, Friendsville pitcher, struck out twenty-two men.

Oakland with three consecutive wins has taken fourth place, while Sunnyside, with three losses, goes to the cellar position. The Oakland team suffers the loss of several players due to a call issued by the reforestation camps and Manager Brown is endeavoring to rebuild.

Standing of the League
(Including Games of June 4)

Team	W	L	Pct
Bayard	5	2	.714

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

Franklin T. Fike, plaintiff, vs. Aca A. Thomas, Sidna L. Thomas, Earl H. Thomas, Iva M. Thomas, Sylvia A. Chase, Arthur Chase, and Elvira Thomas, heirs at law of Joseph Thomas, deceased, defendants.

No. 3136 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree for the sale of certain real estate situate in Garrett County, Maryland, for the purpose of paying and satisfying the claims of the creditors of the said Joseph Thomas, deceased.

The Bill states—

That the said Joseph Thomas was, in his lifetime, indebted unto the plaintiff in the sum of Five Hundred Dollars and interest thereon from December 7th, 1931.

That the said Joseph Thomas, being so indebted to the plaintiff and divers other persons, and having real estate of great value, departed this life on December 4th, 1931, intestate, leaving a widow and the following named children surviving him as his heirs at law:

(a) Aca A. Thomas, who has intermarried with Sidna L. Thomas, both of whom are of full age, and who reside in the State of Pennsylvania;

(b) Earl H. Thomas, who has intermarried with Iva M. Thomas, both of whom are of full age and who reside in the State of Pennsylvania;

(c) Sylvia A. Thomas, who has intermarried with Arthur Chase, both of whom are of full age and reside in Garrett County, Maryland;

(d) Elvira Thomas, widow, who resides in Garrett County, Maryland.

That the said Joseph Thomas, deceased, died intestate, and if he left any personal estate, it was not sufficient to pay his debts, and no letters of administration ever were granted by the Orphans' Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

That the said Joseph Thomas, deceased, died seized and possessed of certain real estate as will appear by reference to certain deeds from Isaac T. Umbel et ux. and from Isaiah Umbel et ux. to the said Joseph Thomas, certified copies of said deeds being filed and made a part of the bill.

The bill prays that the said real estate, or so much thereof as may be necessary, may be sold for the payment of the aforesaid debts, for general relief and an order of publication against the said non-resident defendants.

It is thereupon, this 31st day of May, 1933, ordered by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland, in Equity, that the plaintiff, by causing a copy of this order of publication to be inserted in some newspaper published in Garrett county, Maryland, once in each of four successive weeks before the 30th day of June, 1933, give notice to the said non-resident defendants of the object and substance of this bill, warning them to appear in this Court, in person or by solicitor, on or before the 15th day of July, 1933, to show cause, if any they have, why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.

A. G. ROSS, Clerk.

VISITING DENTIST HABIT SHOULD BE FORMED EARLY

Regular Visits Later in Life Will Then Be Matter of Course

Most parents will be surprised to know that there is any necessity for taking a child as young as three years old to a dentist, Dr. R. C. Leonard, Chief of the Division of Oral Hygiene of the Maryland State Department of Health, said recently in discussing the importance of establishing the habit, at a very early age, of having regular, periodical dental supervsion, as a means of keeping the mouth healthy. "One of the most important factors in keeping the mouth healthy," he continued, "is through the early detection and correction of potential defects. And very young children—even those not more than two or three years old—are as likely as grown-ups to have such defects.

"As a matter of fact, youngsters from three to six years old usually make very good dental patients. And, if they learn, at this age, to accept the regular visit to the dentist as a matter of course, and not as an ordeal to be dreaded, they are likely to be good patients all the rest of their lives.

"The defects found in a young child's teeth are usually of such a nature that they can be corrected with little or no pain. If the child has not been threatened or terrified, or worked into a 'nervous stew' before he starts out, he is likely to look upon the regular visit to the dentist's office as a more or less interesting adventure, and the dentist comes to be regarded as a friend, not a terrible ogre.

"The children who develop an attitude of fear in regard to dental care, are usually those who have either retained the memory of some unpleasant experience in a dentist's office or who have been influenced by the attitudes of their parents and by discussions overheard between grown-ups. As a rule children can be counted on to fear the same things their parents dread.

"Care of the first or 'baby' teeth is quite as important as care of the second set. Neglect of any of the teeth, first or second, may result in destruction of function—the proper mastication of food—in abscess formation—a source of systematic infection—or in 'crooked' teeth, which may affect the contour of the child's face. Parents who wish to save their children from having tooth troubles in later life will see that the children get aceustomed very early in life to regular supervision by the family dentist."

Do you know how many people there are at the other end of the line who are at this moment reading your advertisements?

Do you keep your telephone door always open? Do you invite your customers to enter by this door?

You can do this by keeping your telephone number constantly before them in your advertising. On your stationery. On your bills.

Tell your customers how welcome they are to come to your store by telephone. Tell them again and again. It will bring results that may surprise you.

In this way your telephone will be worth more to you, for it is one of those things whose value grows with use.

MT. LAKE PARK

A number of names, sugested for mayor and councilmen, will now have to go in the discard. All because of a little two line amendment to the charter of the Park, which like Topsy "was never borned—just growed." At least we can't find its daddy. It certainly didn't originate in the council. In fact the amendment, we are informed, was never discussed in that body. We refer to the amendment requiring a property qualification for mayor and council. In addition to being qualified voters and residents of the Park, they must be bona fide owners of Park real estate to the value of at least $300. Many towns have a similar qualification and there is possibly no valid objection against it. But the mystery is, who sponsored it? At least some of the municipal officers were surprised when they saw it in the certified amendment. But that's that. The charter is amended in that respect and must be followed.

This amendment limits the field of candidates. Especially as far as the male portion is concerned, for the tax list shows that those assessed with real estate of the valuc of $300 or more is, briefly summarized, as follows:

Women, residents of the Park.....49
Men, residents of the Park.....37
Women, non-residents 61
Men, non-residents 38

Personally, we believe two or three women should be members of the council. But the trouble is to get them to run. They usually know what they want—and just as usually get it.

When we consider the taxable property of the Park is assessed as something like a half million dollars (about half its actual value) it is apparent that all of us, whether we are in sympathy with the corporation idea or not, should take some interest in the selection of candidates for municipal offices, who have to do with the management of nearly a million dollars worth of property. Not to take such an interest simply means that we don't give a hang whether property valucs at the Park come back or not.

Election day has been moved to the second Tuesday in July, which happens to be the 11th. There is a mayor and three councilmen to be elected. If more than two file for mayor and 6 for councilmen, then a primary election will be held June 26. Otherwise none will be held.

But in order to get on the ticket candidates must file an application, signed by 5 free-holders, on or before midnight of June 15th. Blanks for such filing will be furnished by Clerk Martin, who will give you any other information you may desire.

We are more than glad that the State road is being repaired from the bridge to the post office. Possibly a new bridge over the Yough may be built. However, it does seem as tho the complaints of our citizens are justified because of the great inconvenience caused by the blocking of the only direct road to the postoffice. Loch Lynn, and the depot. This inconvenience can be somewhat lessened at a small cost, we understand. As it is now, those living on the Loch Lynn side desiring to come to the Park or go to Oakland by automobile must travel out the Pleasant Valley road. A much shorter detour can be provided.

We are advised the road will be closed to traffic for at least a month. From now on is the only busy season the Park enjoys during the entire year. Camp meeting crowds will soon arrive. Baggage must be delivered from the trains to residences, boarding houses and hotels. Cottages are heing opened every day. In addition, those living on the Loch Lynn side have much business in Oakland. Of course, they can go the long way around, but is it necessary and is it good business?

We certainly hope that W. D. Grimes and others interested may be able to outfit and put into the field a league ball club. It will be a splendid advertisement and furnish entertainment to a large class of people who enjoy the sport of base ball.

Major and Mrs. Skyles motored here Tuesday from Winchester, their winter home, and are preparing to open the Allegheny House for the season.

Mr. and Mrs. John A Clark and sons, John and Frank, have opened their cottage for the summer.

Gertrude Gibson has received a commission as Notary Public.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred C. Fleming have returned to Fairmont after several days at their cottage. They will open their cottage for the summer later this month.

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Grimes spent several days in Pittshurgh this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilson Gardener, of Washington, D. C., spent the week-end with Mrs. W. Thompson Burch.

Mrs. Julia Ruhl, of Clarksburg, is here for the season.

Mr. and Mrs. William Wallace, of Clarksburg, former summer residents, spent several days in the Park guests of friends.

Plans Completed For Eleventh Rural Women's Short Course

Plans for the eleventh annual Rural Women's Short Course, which is sponsored by the University of Maryland Extension Service, have about been completed, according to Venia M. Kellar, State Home Demonstration Agent, who will be in charge. Approximatcly 500 women from all counties in the State are expected to attend the course, which will begin on June 19, and extend through the entire week. Mrs. W. M. Frazee, Oakland, and Miss Christina Winterberg, Grantsville, will attend from Garrett county.

Mr. Walter Steinbeck, of Weston, W. Va., is here today as a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Feld.

New Hunting License Blanks Received By Clerk

Hunting license blanks for 1933 have been received by A. G. Ross, Circuit court clerk, and Mr. and Mrs. Lester Yutzy, of Crellin, have obtained licenses numbers one and two, the same as last year.

A short term, five-day non-resident license will be issued this year for $5.50, according to Mr. Ross. Costs of the others will remain the same; state-wide, $5.25; non-resident statewide, $15.50; and resident, $1.25.

Each year approximately 2,000 licenses are issued by the clerk.

FIREMEN'S ASSOCIATION HOLDS BUSINESS MEETING

Fred C. Peddicord, of Oakland, Elected Vice-President

Joseph Shuhart, of Barton, was elected president of the Allegany and Garrett County Volunteer Firemen's Association at the annual meeting held here last Friday afternoon..

Fred C. Peddicord, Oakland, was elected vice-president; Edward Stevenson, of Lonaconing, secretary, and James O. Small, of Barton, treasurer.

Midland was chosen as the 1934 convention city.

Firemen's Parade

Nine fire companies and various organizations from Oakland and community participated in the Firemen's parade on Friday evening, the largest parade of the week.

Fire companies from Romney, Terra Alta, Rowlesburg, W. Va.; Grantsville, Barton, Frostburg, Lonaconing, Friendsville, and Oakland; the Crellin Band, Gilbert-Brown Boys' Band, Friendsville Band, and the Terra Alta Band, the legion drum and bugle corps, the junior drum and bugle corps, and the Oakland Boy Scouts participated in the procession.

More than 600 visiting firemen were present during the day and evening.

Kathleen Siriana won the popularity contest staged by the Friendly City Shows, on Friday evening, with Elizabeth Gibson, second; and Willavene DeWitt, third. They were presented with a diamond ring, wrist watch and a bracelet, respectively.

Joyce Cross, 4 years, daughter of Mrs. Amy Cross, was awarded a loving cup for first place in the baby show; while Peggy Lou Winters was awarded second place and Barbara Ann Winters, third.

The Mayor and Council shall have power to pass such ordinances for conducting said town elections as may be deemed necessary and proper not in conflict with the provisions of this Act.

10. The Mayor shall preside at all meetings of the Council, unless prevented by sickness or reasonable cause, in which event the said Council may select a president pro tempore; he shall sign all ordinances of said town and shall countersign all orders and drafts drawn by the clerk, on the Treasurer of said town. The Mayor shall have no vote upon any question pending before the Council except in the case of a tie vote, when he shall have the deciding vote.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That this Act shall take effect June 1, 1933.

CHAPTER 168.

Relative to the Publication of Notices of Property Advertised and Sold for Taxes by the County Treasurer of Garrett County.

AN ACT to repeal and re-enact with amendments Section 109 of Article 12 of the Code of Public Local Laws of Maryland (1930 Edition) title "Garrett County," sub-title "County Treasurer," so as to reduce the cost of advertising tax sales.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, That Section 109 of Article 12 of the Code of Public Local Laws of Maryland (1930 Edition), title "Garrett County," sub-title "County Treasurer," be and it is hereby repealed and re-enacted with amendments to read as follows:

109. Whenever it becomes necessary for said Treasurer to enforce the payment of taxes by a sale of realty he shall advertise such real estate or so much thereof as may be necessary, once a week for three successive weeks in one newspaper puhlished in Garrett county, and by hand bills posted at the court house door, and at least five places in the district where the land is located, any advertised notice of a sale under the provisions of this sub-title of this article, shall be deemed sufficient if it contains the time, terms and place of such sale, the year or years for which the taxes are due and the amount of same, to whom the property is assessed, the district where located, the quantity of land offered for sale, the name or number of the tract or lot of land, if it bear a name or number, and is so assessed, and the street number if located in a town or city; and in no case shall a description by metes and bounds courses and distances be required, unless it shall be necessary for the identification and location of such part or parts of real estate as may be sold under a sub-division thereof as provided in the next preceding section; no levy upon land shall be required where the same is sold by the treasurer by virtue of the provisions of this sub-title of this Article, and no notice or notices other than those provided for in this section shall be necessary or required to make valid any sale authorized to be made. No fee for the examination of the title of land to be sold or sold for taxes shall be allowed as part of the costs of said sale or shall be paid by the County Treasurer or County Commissioners. In order to reduce the expense of advertising the said Treasurer shall include the notices of tax sales in one advertisement whenever he shall be proceeding with the sale of more than one lot or parcel of land or with the sale of land assessed to more than one delinquent. The advertisement when prepared by the County Treasurer shall be submitted to all newspapers published in Garrett County in order to obtain bids for the publishing of the same and said publication shall be awarded to the paper making the lowest bid. The costs of publishing such advertisement, as herein required, shall be equally distributed among the several tracts or lots of land herein named, and the amount thereby apportioned to each tract of land shall he added to the sum for which such tract or lot is sold, and the same shall be paid from the proceeds thereof by the County Treasurer, except that, when any tract or lot sold at such sale is purchased by the County Commissioners the sum due for such publication shall he paid out of the general county funds.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That this Act is hereby declared to be an emergency law and necessary for the immediate preservation of the puhlic health and safety, and being passed by a yea and nay vote, supported by three-fifths of all the members elected to each of the two Houses of the General Assembly, the same shall take effect from the date of its passage.

EUGENE GILSON, AGED 15, DROWNS IN THE POTOMAC

Makes No Alarm As He Sinks Beneath the Water—Edward Wiley Found Dead in Yough

BURIED AT GRANTSVILLE

Eugene Gilson, 15 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Gilson, of near Schell, was drowned in the Potomac River near his home on Sunday afternoon. Unable to swim, he was being supported by an inflated inner automobile tube as he moved about in the water. At the point where he was last seen by others in the river the water is said to be eighteen to twenty feet deep. It is thought by his companions that he became frightened and throwing his arms upward the inflated tube floated over his head and he sunk beneath the surface.

His body was not recovered until more than an hour after the disappearance. State's Attorney Dawson and W. A. Gonder, coroner, investigated the affair and declared the drowning to be accidental.

Gene, as he was known, was a quiet and peaceable young man. He is survived by his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Gilson, five sisters, Nellie, Ethel, Mary, Grace, and Daisy; and one brother, Theodore.

Drowns Near Somerfield

The body of Edward Wiley, 59-year-old photographer, of Somerfield, Pa., was found Sunday morning in the Youghiogheny River near the National Highway bridge at Somerfield. It is believed that he fell into the river from the bridge during the night preceding.

Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the Grantsville M. E. church, with interment in the family lot in the cemetery there. Rev. A. C. Bell, pastor of the church, officiated.

The deceased was never married. He was the son of the late James and Martha Wiley and was born on Negro Mountain. He is survived by the following brothers and sisters: Ralph Wiley, of New Germany; Milton and Harvey Wiley, of Negro Mountain; Grant Wiley, of Grantsville; Mrs. Joseph Keefe, Mrs. Levi Resh, Mrs. Simon Resh, of Jennings; Mrs. Chad Hager, of Somerfield; and Mrs. A. H. Grove, of Frostburg.

Interest Shown In Coming Legion Celebration, July 3 to 8

Considerable interest has been shown in securing concessions for the carnival and home coming week from July 3 to 8, inclusive, sponsored by Proctor Kildow Post, No. 71, of the American Legion.

The following drum and bugle corps are expected to attend: V. F. W., of Cumberland, past national champions; Piedmont, Keyser, Fort Cumberland Post, No. 3; Windber, Central City, Somerset, Somerset High School band, Salisbury, Frostburg, Grafton, Uniontown and Fairmont.

The local post of the American Legion asks that the home folk write their friends and relatives to endeavor to be in Oakland for the events of the week.

The amusements are furnished by the Keystone Attractions Co., favorable and well known show people.

Boys 'Band To Present Concert On Saturday Evening

The first of a series of concerts, after being postponed for the past several weeks, will be presented by the Gilbert-Brown Boys' Band on Saturday evening in front of the Court House on Third street. The concert will begin at 7:30 o'clock when the following program will be rendered:

El Capitan, march, Sousa; The Bridal Rose, overture, C. Lavallee; Dear Little Boy of Mine, Ernest R. Ball, cornet solo, Elvin Iman, soloist; National Emblem March, E. E. Bagley; Persian Moonlight, waltz, K. L. King; Men of Ohio March, H. Filmore; Pilgrims' Song of Hope, E. Batiste; Brooke's Triumphal March, Seitz; Star Spangled Banner, J. Smith.

Anniversary Celebrated

June Grove, No. 38, Woodmen of the World auxiliary, observed its fourth anniversary on June 8. Betty Clatterbuck, five-year-old daughter of Mrs. E. C. Clatterbuck, guardian, sang "Happy Birthday" as she placed four candles on the birthday cake and lit them. Winifred Lohr, little daughter of Mrs. Carlton Lohr, played a short piano solo. Following the program Misses Mary Sollars and Pleasant Reis, hostesses, served dainty refreshments.

RED HOUSE ANNIVERSARY PROGRAM IS ANNOUNCED

To Celebrate Twenty-fifth Birthday of Dedication on Sunday

The program for the twenty-fifth anniversary of the dedication of St. John's Evangelical Lutheran church at Red House, on Sunday, June 18, has been announced by Rev. Alvah K. Jones, pastor of the church.

Following immediately after the regular session of the Sunday school at 9:30 in the morning there will be a children's day service at 10:30; a reunion and picnic dinner at 12:00 noon and the anniversary festival at 2:00 oo'clock in the afternoon.

The anniversary sermon will be delivered by Rev. Ernest Roy Hauser, of Clearfield, Pa., and greetings will be brought by former pastors, officers of the Synod and others who have been associated with St. John's congregation. David Gnegy and David O. Roth will speak on St. John's church from the layman's viewpoint and Rev. Charles A. Shilke, pastor of the Oakland Lutheran church, will speak on St. John's future.

The children's day program at 10:30 o'clock will be presented by members of all departments of the Sunday school.

WEST VIRGINIA FOREST CAMPS ARE UNDER FIRE

Youths Are Called Rowdies—Charges to be Probed

Complaints that youths in some West Virginia reforestation camps are "fast developing into a set of rowdies," were transmitted to the director of the conservation corps, R. A. Fechner. An investigation and steps to curb the alleged rowdyism, if the complaints are found to be true, were urged.

A complainant of Parsons, W. Va., writes: "The boys here in our local camp are fast developing into a set of rowdies who seem to feel that they are amenable to neither civil nor military authority and who, having very little to do, appear to think that nothing is expected of them save to have a big time at the expense of their good Uncle Samuel, whom they appear to regard as a sort of good natured yet unimportant Santa Claus.

Another citizen of Hendricks characterized the conservation workers as a "bunch of hoodlums" and asked that they be "moved farther back into the forest, as we are tired of having our women insulted in the streets and our homes invaded." Another letter from Hendricks said that if steps were not taken to curb the "wooden soldiers," West Virginians will rise up against them."

No Complaints Here

As far as is known, there have been no complaints made here about any of the members of the three camps. Some few spent last Friday and Saturday nights sleeping on the doorsteps of Oakland business houses, but in no instances have disorderly conduct or insulting remarks resulted.

Parochial School Holds Closing Exercises for Six Pupils

Saint Peter's Parochial school held its closing exercises on Sunday evening in St. Peter's church when six pupils who completed the eighth grade received certificates to the high school as follows: Paul John Jordan, John Curran O'Donnell, Charles Thomas Riley, Leo Daniel Wolf, Dorothy Elizabeth Shaffer, Ellen Virginia Whitmer.

An address was made to the graduates, followed by benediction of the Blessed Sacrament.

The music pupils of the school will entertain their parents and friends at the annual recital on Monday evening, June 19, at eight o'clock.

Camp Minnetoska, With Boys' Camp Added, to Open Next Week

Camp Minnetoska, an exclusive camp for girls since its opening a number of years ago, and located several miles west of Oakland, will open for the summer some time early after June 21, it has been announced. The management expects to have the same number of girls as last year. The camp, as in former years, will be under the personal direction of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hansen, of Baltimore.

This year a camp for boys has been added, which will be called after the camp site, "Whitethorn." Approximately fifteen boys are expected to be in camp.

R. F. C. DISTRIBUTION IS EXPLAINED BY DIRECTOR

Money Is Not for Unemployment Relief, Except in Cases Where Families are Destitute

RETRENCHING NECESSARY

The Garrett County Welfare Board has been anticipating for the past two weeks that the peak of relief need in the county would shortly be reached. At the end of the seventh week since work relief for heads of destitute families was put in operation, there are 37 work projects going ahead, but there still remain certain sections of the county where relief work has not yet been opened up.

The following communities comprise the relief centers to date: Oakland, Crellin, Hutton, Sunnyside, Kempton, Gorman, Loch Lynn, Mountain Lake Park, Deer Park, King's Run, Shallmar, Vindex, Kitzmiller, Swanton, Bloomington, Avilton, Bittinger, Jennings, Grantsville, Oakton, Friendsville, Accident, Sang Run and Swallow Falls.

In some of the communities from two to five different groups are at work. In the majority of cases the relief work is made up of road building and road repairs, but in some sections of the county work has been done on school grounds, baseball parks, cemeteries.

There has been some confusion in the minds of the public regarding R. F. C. funds available for relief purposes in the county. No specified sums of money has been granted by the State to the county. The Welfare Board was empowered at the time of organization to proceed through work and direct relief to attempt to care for needy families. This effort has been misconstrued in some sections as or an attempt to care for the unemployed. This misconception of the Board's program has brought about an unprecedented and overwhelming demand for work. Some heads of families have applied who could in no wise qualiffy as destitute or even needy and many have had to be refused in order to conserve funds.

During the last week some retrenchment has been necessary. All single men will be removed from work relief projects except where they are the heads of families, and all families where the father or a son has been sent to Civilian Conservation camps will be removed from the work lists in order to permit of the opening of additional projects in some of the centers where relief work has not yet started.

The Board urgently asks that the public attempt to understand the policy and program which is under way in the county to relieve distress among the destitute. Only through such understanding would it be possible for available funds to cover existing need.

To Hold Examination for Deer Park Postmastership

The U. S. Civil Service commission has announced an examination to fill a contemplated vacancy in the position of fourth class postmaster at Deer Park. The examination will be held at Oakland, and receipt of applications will close June 30. The compensation is $1,100.

Blanks may be secured from the Deer Park postoffice or from the U. S. Civil Service commission, Washington.

Menke Not Hurt, Warden Brady of State Pen Reports

Warden Patrick J. Brady of the Maryland penitentiary has denied in a letter to Henry Menke's wife, that Menke, a prisoner on an attempted arson conviction from Garrett county, injured himself about a month ago in an unsuccessful dash for freedom over the prison wall.

The original report was made by one of Menke's friends to a physician at Morgantown.

Menke is confined in the prison infirmary suffering, the warden said, from an old back injury.

Lake At Highest Point in Its History

Deep Creek Lake was within six inches of the crest on Monday, setting a new high mark, approached several years ago when it was within seven inches of the top.

The water in the lake has risen steadily this spring, despite the fact that the turbines at the power house have been in operation eighteen hours each day.

DIPLOMAS ARE AWARDED TO EIGHTY-TWO SENIORS

Oakland High School Has Largest Graduation Class in History Alumni Dance Tomorrow

DR. ASPINALL IS SPEAKER

Eighty-two seniors of Oakland High School were awarded diplomas last evening in the school auditorium, at the twenty-sixth annual commencement exercises, the largest class in the history of the school.

Dr. Richard Aspinall, field secretary for West Virginia University at Morgantown, gave the principal address and diplomas were presented by H. A. Loraditch, a member of the County Board of Education. Members of the high school orchestra and glee club rendered selections.

Class officers are Rebecca Browning, president; Schell Hoye, vice-president; Lois Ross, secretary; George Browning, treasurer.

The sermon to the graduates was preached last Sunday evening by Rev. W. S. Patterson, pastor of St. Paul's M. E. church of Oakland, and a play, "Penrod," under the direction of Miss Margaret Kochenderfer, was presented on class night, last Friday.

Alumni Dance Tomorrow

The senior activities will come to a close tomorrow evening when the annual alumni dance will be held in the school auditorium. An imported orchestra will furnish the music and admission will be $1 per couple. Seniors will be guests of the alumni association.

Fresh New Stock of Goods Put on Market in Dixon Building

The J. W. Jackson Company 5 and 10 cent store, with selected merchandise selling up to $1.00, was opened in the Dixon building, corner Second and Green streets, Saturday morning at nine o'clock with a corps of clerks in waiting for the expected rush of business, and in this no disappointment was experienced, for the store was pretty well crowded from the hour of opening until the close of business late Saturday night.

The store is well arranged and the goods placed on sale are easy of access, hence no tiresome waiting on the part of customers results. The goods on sale are all fresh from the manufacturers and in selecting the wares for the trade of the community an experienced mind was used, for the goods are all seasonable and attractive.

Mr. Jackson was assisted in the operation of his new venture Saturday by Miss Eichorn, head saleswoman from his Lonaconing store, and by Miss Margaret Hamilton and Miss Margaret Hohing also of Lonaconing. Local people in the employ of the store are Misses Kathleen Lawton, Margaret Fraley and Ruth Fike.

Playford Ramsey Elected Head of Knights of Pythias

Playford M. Ramsey, Oakland, was elected chancellor commander of Garrett Lodge, No. 113, Knights of Pythias, at the regular meeting of that organization last Friday evening. Other officers elected included Gladstone Morris, vice-chancellor; Chas. F. White, prelate; Wilson White, master at arms; Lee R. Mason, master of work; Walter Hardesty, keeper of records and seal; D. W. Walter, master of finance; A. G. Gortner, master of exchequer; Scott Shreve, inner guard; Jesse J. Ashby, Jr., outer guard.

Closing Exercises to be Held at Deer Park and Oakland

Central closing exercises will be held this evening at Oakland High school for the Oakland supervisory unit, and at Deer Park for the elementary schools of that community.

Rev. I. S. Middaugh will speak at Deer Park and John D. Fitzwater will present diplomas to 24. A program will be rendered by the schools.

One hundred thirty-five will receive diplomas at the High school auditorium tonight. The diplomas will be presented by Prof. F. D. Bittle. A song program has been arranged by the various elementary schools. Central closing exercises for the other supervisory units were held earlier in the week.

SIX-WEEKS' MINING CLASS BEGINS MONDAY, JUNE 19

Tenth Annual Short Course to be Held This Year at Kitzmiller

The tenth annual short course in coal mining, sponsored by the University of Maryland, College of Engineering, in cooperation with the County Boards of Education of Garrett and Allegany counties, and under the direction and supervision of the Maryland Bureau of Mines, will begin Monday morning, June 19, in the high school building at Kitzmiller, Garrett county.

This is an intensive training course of six weeks, 8 a. m. to 4 p.m., and designed to improve the general education of mine employes, as well as to prepare the students to accept the more responsible positions associated with coal mining.

The subjects to be taught are mining arithmetic, methods of mining, explosives, coal mine ventilation, coal mine gases, electricity, drainage and pumping, hauling, geology of coal, first aid, mine rescue, mining law, safety lamps, map reading and mine fires and explosions.

Dr. J. J. Rutledge, chief engineer, Maryland Bureau of Mines, Baltimore; L. C. Hutson, director of the short course, Kitzmiller, and R. D. Ewing, assistant vocational mining instructor, Frostburg, will be the instructors, assisted by C. J. Rowe, of Westernport, Md., district mine inspector.

WILL BRING BROOK TROUT TO BEAR CREEK HATCHERY

Fish Association Also Told Bass Would be Placed in Yough River

The sixth meeting of the Deep Creek Lake Fish and Game Association was held at Lakeside Park on June 10. In the absence of C. W. Fraker, president, Fred. Dreyer, a member of the body, presided.

A. B. Kelly, of Masontown, Pa., gave a talk on the protection of game when he stressed the importance of paying bounties on vermin.

Franklin Delano Roosevelt, President of the United States, became a member of this association at the meeting.

The Bureau of Fisheries, Department of Commerce, informed the association that the first of July 10,000 two-inch fingerling brook trout will be available for the association's use, hence trucks will be sent to the hatchery in Jeffeson county, W. Va., to bring these fish to one of the rearing ponds at the Bear Creek hatchery in Garrett county where they will be fed until large enough to be put into the lake. The bureau also advised that 5,000 small mouth black bass will be shipped to Oakland some time during July to be placed in the Youghiogheny River.

The association now has a membership of 165. The next meeting will be held at Lakeside Park on Tuesday, June 27, to which meeting everyone interested in the propagation and protection of fish and game in Garrett county is cordially invited.

Misses Bolgiano to Continue Summer Dancing School

Misses Mary and Charlotte Bolgiano will continue their summer course of instruction in toe dancing, Spanish dancing, Dennishawn, Oriental, Mexican and ballroom dancing. These classes will be conducted in Oakland during the latter part of June and through July and August.

The Misses Bolgiano have been active in the dance world for the past nine years and gave performances this past season in Hancock, Philadelphia and Baltimore. At the end of each summer in Oakland the Misses Bolgiano and their dancing class give a benefit performance for the Oakland Library.

Yough Community Boosters Hold Meeting

The regular monthly meeting of the Yough Community Boosters was held in the Selbysport school house on June 7 with a large attendance.

Music was furnished by Melvin Kesner, Murrel Nedrow and Winchell Eisentrout. A milk testing demonstration was presented by members of the agriculture department of the Friendsville high school.

A discussion was participated in on the growing of peas. The next meeting will be held Wednesday evening, July 5, when there will be special entertainment by young people of the community.

AUTHORITIES INVESTIGATE DEATH OF MAN NEAR SHAW

Richard Harvey Found Dead Sunday Afternoon Following an Alleged Drinking Party

HAD BEEN BADLY SCALDED

Investigation all day Monday into the cause of the tragic death of Richard Harvey, 65, of near Shaw, in the Potomac Valley of Garrett county, has failed to reveal anything except that death was due to acute alcoholism although murder was suspected at the outset of the investigation instituted by the officers of the State following information received at the State's Attorney's office.

The man was found Sunday afternoon lying upon the porch at his home by his son Sheridan Harvey, 21, who had been sleeping following the breaking up of an alleged all-night drinking party in which two other men, Frank Holler and Adam Rhodes, are said to have participated.

Upon an examination of Harvey's body being made it was found that he had been severely scalded on his left side and shoulder and this led to the belief that there had been foul play Another theory is that a mixture of home brew in the still found near the home had boiled over upon him and caused the injuries from which he later succumbed.

George J. Poole, magistrate at Kitzmiller, and Roy Sowers, constable of that district, were called Sunday afternoon, and after a preliminary investigation State's Attorney Walter W. Dawson and Deputy Sheriff Clarence Spear, were summoned to the house where the death had occurred.

A coroner's jury was summoned and evidence was submitted, but no verdict as to the probable cause of death has been rendered, further evidence being sought that may throw light on the tragedy. An examination of the body by Dr. A. K. Fidler, of Kitzmiller, failed to show that death was due to an outward injury.

A daughter of Harvey's, Martha, who had been at home on Saturday night, left early Sunday morning and declared she knew nothing of her parent's death. A son, Charles, about 25 years old, and an imbecile, unable to walk, was not qualified owing to his affliction, to answer questions intelligently. Another son of Harvey, Edward, is in the county jail at present where he is being held on a forgery charge.

Funeral services for the dead man were held Tuesday afternoon.

Killing Frost Ruinous to Crops of Many Farmers

Crops were injured seriously by a killing frost this morning, the thermometer at Weber's dropping to 28 degrees, as the white covering nipped plants in all sections.

The lowlands were the worst hit, nipping some of the crops in those sections that were covered with paper, burlap and even buckets. Last night's frost came after a previous one the night before which was not thought to have hurt any plants.

Wheat fields in some sections were said to be completely ruined, while it is thought the corn and potatoes will survive. Truck gardens were hit heavily, tomato plants being the hardest hit. Flowers were not spared as dahlias and others turned black this morning after being hit by the sun rays.

The latest killing frost on record up to this morning was on June 12, several years ago.

While crops were being damaged in the lowlands, the frost failed to touch the high spots.

Poultry School Attended by Approximately One Hundred

Approximately one hundred persons attended the Kasco poultry school and banquet at the Knights of Pythias hall last Wednesday evening under the direction of Samuel Aronhalt, local manager, and sponsored by the Kasco Mills of Toledo, Ohio, and other organizations.

George W. Overmyer presided. Talks were made by Mr. Aronhalt, Thomas Grosh, Hagerstown; Delbert Davis, Oakland; E. H. Kieser, Toledo; Henry Moltie, Newark, N. J.; Prof. Robert Quait, Newton, N. J. The dinner was served by members of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Methodist church of Oakland. The menu was excellent.

JESUS RISES FROM THE DEAD

LESSON TEXT—Mark 16:1-20.

GOLDEN TEXT—And he saith unto them, Be not affrighted: Ye seek Jesus of Nazareth, which was crucified: he is risen; he is not here: behold the place where they laid him. Mark 16:6.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Living Again.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Conquers Death.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Our Living Lord.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Power of the Resurrection.

I. The Visit to the Sepulchre (vv. 1-4).

1. By whom (v.1). Mary Magdalene, the mother of James, and Salome. They brought sweet spices with which to anoint him. This was a ministry of love, yet had they believed what he had said concerning his resurrection, they would have known that his body would not be there.

Mary of Bethany understood this. She therefore expressed intelligent affection for the Lord, and against the day of his burying poured out her box of precious ointment upon him (John 12:3, 7).

2. The time of (v. 2). It was very early in the morning of the first day of the week, before the rising of the sun.

3. Their perplexity (vv. 3, 4). They questioned as to who should roll away the large stone from the mouth of the tomb. To their surprise they found the stone removed.

II. The Angel in the Tomb (vv. 5-8).

Jesus knew that these women would come to the sepulchre with perplexed and unbelieving hearts, so he had an angel waiting there to announce to them the fact of his resurrection. Note the message of the angel:

1. "Be not affrighted" (v. 6). How sorely they needed this kind word.

2. "Ye seek Jesus of Nazareth which was crucified" (v. 6). This threefold designation shows with marvelous clearness—

a. His humanity—"Jesus."

b. His lowly residence—"Nazareth."

c. His ignominious death—"crucified."

3. "He is risen; he is not here. Behold where they laid him" (v. 6). He was born in lowly circumstances and suffered the shameful death on the cross, but now is the conqueror of death. His resurrection gives meaning to his death (I. Cor. 15:17).

4. "Go your way, tell his disciples and Peter" (v. 7). All the disciples needed this blessed news, but Peter especially, since he had so emphatically denied his Lord.

5. "He goeth before you into Galilee, there shall ye see him" (v. 7). Christ had told the disciples that he would rise from the dead and meet them in Galilee (Matt. 26:32).

III. The Appearances of the Risen Christ (vv. 9-14).

Since Christ's resurrection was to be the central theme of apostolic preaching, it was necessary that they have a certainty of knowledge as to it (Acts 1:3). Without the resurrection of Christ, his death would be meaningless. Out of the ten or more appearances, Mark refers to three.

1. To Mary Magdalene (vv. 9-11). Her devotion was amply rewarded by being the first to meet the risen Lord. She went at once and told the story to the disciples, but they refused to believe her.

2. To two disciples on the way to Emmaus (vv. 12, 13). Luke gives full particulars concerning this appearance (Luke 24:13-27). Jesus walked, talked, and ate with them, convincing them that he had indeed risen from the dead.

3. The eleven disciples (v. 14). Jesus appeared to them while sitting at meat, and reproved them for their unbelief. The fact that they steadfastly resisted the testimony that Christ had risen, but afterwards were willing to risk their lives in the proclamation of this truth, proves the genuineness of their faith and should strengthen ours.

IV. The Commission of the Risen Lord (vv. 15-18).

After the disciples were convinced of the truth of his resurrection, Jesus sent them forth to preach the gospel to every creature. What a blessed issue to those who believe, and how awful to those who believe not. "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall be damned" (v. 16).

V. The Activity of the Risen and Ascended Christ (vv. 19, 20).

After giving the disciples their commission, he ascended on high, and from the unseen sphere directed their activities. Whenever they went he confirmed their word with signs.

Christianity

"Christianity is unique; Christianity is something most lovable; for Christianity is a person, and the person is Jesus; and this Christianity has accomplished more wonderful things than any other religion in the world."

More Effective

Christianity in books may have done much to influence men, but Christianity in boots has done more along this line, and is still as effective as ever.—Isaac Page.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By FRANK P. LITSCHERT

There has been undoubtedly a pick-up in business in some parts of the United States. At the time this is written there is a more hopeful feeling so far as the immediate economic future is concerned than in many months. There has been a rapid increase in the price of common and preferred stocks on the New York and other stock exchanges. The average price of stocks recently "went through the September high" as the chart students put it, which means that the average of common stocks is now higher than it was in September last year, the high point of the rise which started shortly after July 4, 1932. According to the "experts" who believe in the charts, this means that the tendency of the stock market is still upward, subject to temporary reactions.

Fortunately, however, there are indications of business improvement aside from the stock market. Steel mills are more active at this writing than they have been since 1931, and car loadings and electric power production are higher than they were a year ago. Farmers are encouraged by the rise in the price of agricultural commodities. There have been slight wage increases here and there, and although the business improvement is undeniably spotty, many students of economics now believe that we are on the upgrade at last.

It is of course devoutly to be hoped that this is true. There was a pickup in the late summer and early fall last year, but it finally flattened out, although values on the stock exchange did not go so low as they were in the previous summer. The element of time is now working in favor of recovery. We have had nearly four years of depression, and certainly must have passed the low point of the valley. Depressions, even those following great wars, do not last much longer than four years, so that some improvement is due, if we are to maintain our economic society as it is now constituted.

While we are all hopeful, and it is right and proper to be hopeful, it is to be remembered that there is yet no time for undue rejoicing. As President Roosevelt remarked: "We cannot ballyhoon ourselves back to prosperity." Many weary miles yet remain to be retraced. Hundreds of banks closed during the general banking holiday remain yet to be reopened or liquidated. Many cities of the country must have their finances reorganized and there must be consolidation and refinancing of railroads. The farm problem is not yet solved, in spite of the increase in the price of commodities. Many adjustments yet remain to be made.

The Alexander Hamilton Business Institute recently well summed up the business situation when it said:

"There are several reasons for this burst of business activity. In the first place, business is experiencing the usual seasonal expansion. In the second place, the demand postponed by the bank holiday is now making itself felt. In the third place, buying is being stimulated by the fear of inflation. In the fourth place, depreciation of the dollar in terms of foreign exchange is tending to enlarge the foreign market. In the fifth place, and most important of all, the downward movement of the business cycle has apparently been halted and business is now free from the severe pressure of this factor.

"It is questionable, however, whether the cyclical movement is yet upward in view of the maladjustments still prevailing. This suggests that the current expansion of business will be followed sooner or later by some reaction when the influence of the temporarily stimulating factors has worn off. Moreover, there is still danger that fallacious governmental measures may have to be overcome before business is in a position to stage a prolonged revival."

Yet it is encouraging to know that many business charts now indicate that in some lines there is more activity than a year ago. Let us hope that nobody rocks the boat.

LOW PRICE CARS VS. CHEAP CARS

We do not build a low-price car: the cost to us of building our car is pretty high.

But we do sell a high quality car at a low price.

Almost every new Ford V-8 car we have built so far this year, has cost more to manufacture than its selling price was. As you buy them at only $490 to $610, we have to depend on increasing volume to make up the difference.

The reason for this is simple: — a manufacturer who gives good value must expect to lose money on the first cars he sells because he cannot charge all his costs to the people who are first to buy.

But with the purchaser it is different — he cannot afford to lose anything on a car. It must give him full value from the first, and keep on giving him full value for years.

Two things make possible our combination of low prices and high cost quality:

1. Volume Production
2. Taking only one profit

First, we set our price at what would be fair to the public on the basis of economies we enjoy in volume production. Then, in order to justify and maintain our low price we must get volume sales.

Thus it comes that a car which is really high-cost to make, is also low-cost to buy.

There is a difference between a cheap car and a low-priced high quality car.

Ford prices are always fixed at a point which makes it profitable for a customer to buy.

Good and lasting business must produce profit to the buyer as well as to the seller. And of the two, the buyer's profit must be, comparatively, the larger one.

It pays us to sell the Ford V-8 because it pays you to buy it.

Henry Ford

ATTENTION NOW TURNS TO THE PRE-SCHOOL PUPILS

Mothers are Urged to Have Children Examined by Their Doctor

As their older brothers and sisters are closing their desks and finishing their work for the year, the youngsters who will enter school in the fall are coming in for their share of attention. In order that these prospective first-graders may start to school free from avoidable handicaps, the mothers of the five and six-year olds, are urged to take the children to their own doctors, or if that is not possible, to the nearest child health conference, for a complete going over, so that conditions that need correction may be attended to during the summer, and the youngsters may have a chance to be put in the best possible shape to withstand the strain that comes with school life.

One or more child health conferences for the examination of babies and young children are held, monthly, under the direction of the Bureau of Child Hygiene of the State Department of Health and the County Health Officer, at some conveniently accessible place in each county. Thru the cooperation of the county departments of education and the local parent-teacher associations, special conferences for the examination of children in preparation for their admission to school in the fall, have been under way, as usual, since the early spring, and will be continued throughout the summer. In addition, there will be a series of child health conferences "on wheels" during July, August and part of September, in Southern Maryland and in some of the counties on the Eastern Shore, in connection with the visit of the Healthmobile of the Bureau of Child Hygiene to these parts of the State.

Through its former visits, the Healthmobile has become a familiar sight along the less frequented roads as well as along the main highways and at the crossroads where it is parked. The interior of the big truck is fitted up like a hospital clinic room with everything needed for the examination of babies and young children, including a dental chair—children's size—and the appliances needed for the examination of children's teeth. It also carries a movie outfit and a supply of health films. The staff includes a doctor, a dentist—both with special training in the care of children—and the public health nurse of the county visited.

The aim of all the child health conferences is to show mothers how to keep their children well. No medical treatments are given. Children in need of medical care are referred to their own doctors.

SCOOP'S COLUMN

By Scoop Himself

I decided after looking at last week's column after it was in print never to write another one as late as Thursday morning. With the press of weighty matter about my ears, at a time like that, I'm liable to say anything or nothing, emphasis on the latter, if you please.

Anyway here it is Wednesday afternoon, late, and it's just about as bad.

Had thought maybe I might write an essay about hatching at my home and how easy it is to get an appetizing meal, but yesterday all I had was cereal and milk. The broiled steak caught fire and it spread to the potatoes, so I had to take the soup to put it out. Applications for an experienced cook who just wants more experience will be received at my office most any time. But don't call while I'm busy writing this column. Even a good cook isn't welcome then. Nothing but suggestions.

Also had thoughts of writing about that wonderful garden of mine, but the frost came along last night and I have been afraid to look at the fruit of my labors. And before the frost the bugs had arrived anyway. Seems like there's a bug for everything these days. When the weeds popped up in the first garden I ever half-worked, years ago, the only thing necessary was to cut the weeds. Now a bug gets the cucumbers, a beetle gets the beans, a bug gets after the potatoes, a black speck gets after the tomato plants, and what they don't ruin, the cutworms finish. If there's anything left after that the dog chews off, so what have I? Nothing but spinach, and who loves spinach except old King Popeye.

I'm still sticking to my white pants in hopes summer will yet return, even if the Boss Editor did turn his in for a warmer pair. Others are undecided, appearing on the streets with overcoats and straw hats, and even in shirt sleeves.

There, it is snowing now. No, somebody just stirred up some ashes. Anyway, will the person who hooked my red flannels from the line two weeks ago please return.

Then there's the subject of reforestation armies. They are arousing citizens in West Virginia by their conduct in towns. Maryland isn't quite so bad and no loud complaints have come in yet from Grantsville, Kitzmiller or Oakland. We hope they don't. Perhaps if the members of the C. C. C. came and got some of these magazines that the Scouts gathered and blocked up the pressroom with, they could spend more time in camp. Some of the material gathered would make good reading: A Mother Goose Rhyme; Rover Boys on Land and Sea; Camp Fire Girls on an Outing; the Business Executive; Better Homes and gardens; the House Beautiful; Good Housekeeping and Vogue. A 1928 edition of a magazine tells how prosperous business is.

Well, anyway, if they don't come and get them soon the Scouts will sell them for junk and pocket the proceeds. There's about a ton of it.

And while the R. F. C. is still available why can't the town get its swimming pool which was talked about last summer—or the skating pond in the Park—or Washington Spring Park and surroundings beautified. Westernport is building a swimming pool.

The reforestation problem is certainly an economical one. Those being trained from West Virginia are to be sent to plant trees in California.

Another choice prize fight has been missed. It wasn't all humbug, either. He was standing in the road and is now wondering if a big bus didn't back into him.

What a wild and woolly town this would be if it meant a burglar every time the burglar alarm on the bank sounded today. The mechanism was being serviced—that's all.

To the graduates, may we say that one of man's most important jobs in life is finding out what's not true.

A man who is suing for divoree complains that his wife kissed him only when she wanted money, but the drug store habitues wonder who could put up with so much kissing as that.

And speaking of drug stores, a story is told of one which existed in the depression and the outgoing owner left this sign in his forlorn window: "Sorry—Customers: You can get stamps at the opposite drug store, change in the corner bank, use phone in quick lunch, hear radio in florist's shop, read headlines at corner newsstand, eat oyster crackers instead of sample candy and weigh yourselves in the feed warehouse. Goodbye." He could have added a lot of other suggestions.

BUILD NOW

A great many economists and a multitude of newspapers over the country are now wisely pointing to the fact that the summer of 1933 presents one of the most favorable times we have had in a generation for a building program. Building materials are cheap and labor is plentiful. The chances are that in the not distant future materials will be higher and that labor will be less available than it is today.

It is common to hear the expression that we are "over built" as a nation. That may be true in some sections and with certain types of buildings. But the country is certainly not overbuilt on comfortable homes. There has been little building of this sort for the past two or three years. The process of forming new American families, each of which is entitled to a good home, has gone on just the same. The depression with its consequent loss of employment has induced many families to "double up," that is, two or more families in one house, each renting a portion of it to reduce expenses. In many more instances the young married people have gone home to live with the old folks. This has made the apparent surplus of houses greater than is really the case. Vacant houses have "gone down" until many of them will be scarcely habitable when there is a demand for their occupancy. The restoration of normal conditions will inspire families to move into larger quarters, each with a home to itself wherever possible. The youngsters will want to establish a home for themselves, away from the old folks, when they can afford it.

This will mean a lot of building and a great deal more repair work. When we get this condition, cost of materials and labor will go up rapidly and we will be in the throes of another building boom. Those who have capital, and can afford it, ought to take time by the forelock and commence building as soon as possible. There is no greater security for the future than the ownership of a cozy home.

IN DAYS OF OLD

FORTY YEARS AGO

The Accident cornet band purchased a new band wagon and were going to travel in style.

A new eight-foot boardwalk at Mt. Lake Park was completed.

Preparations were being made for the 4th of July celebration to be held in Kilbourn's Grove, East Oakland. The Fifer Band, Keyser; the Gilbert Band of Piedmont, and the Accident Band were engaged for the parade and concert music. There was to be a fireworks display from the Court House hill.

Citizens of Oakland, spending a few days with ex-Senator Browning at his lake on Deep Creek, declared that Lake Brown was one of the most delightful places in the State.

A great number of cattle in the Swanton community died from the effects of a disease believed to be infectious murrain.

Arrangements were being made to extend the Aurora, Oakland and Terra Alta telephone line to Kingwood.

A local letter was printed in The Republican from Brew-Marr, a village near Accident where the industries were shingle manufacturing and mining.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

The marriages of Miss Margaret Murphy to George Kerins, and Miss Ada Wilson, of Friendsville, and Lloyd Lee, of Accident, were solemnized.

M. R. Hamill and H. A. Loraditch purchased the Naylor garage in Oakland.

Hot and dry weather had been prevailing for ten days prior to which there had been killing frosts.

Three hundred building lots in Mt. Lake Park were to be sold at public auction during August, favorable action on the project having heen taken by the Park board of directors.

Garrett county received $10,250 for its schools from the state fund in the quarterly distribution, which was to be segregated in the general fund, for free books and accredited high schools of the county.

Members of the Oakland normal literary society elected officers as follows: Earl Lowdermilk, presildent; Mildred Welch, vice-president; Virnie M. Rush, secretary; Carrie Walker, Lucy Markwood, Marguerite Hart, program committee.

FRIENDSVILLE LEADS IN LOCAL BASEBALL LEAGUE

Vindex Holds Second Place—Oakland Tied for Third Position

With the Bayard team in a slump, Friendsville is now leading the Mt. State baseball league with seven wins and two defeats, while its nearest rival is Vindex, with six wins and two losses. Oakland and Bayard are tied for third place.

Next Sunday's game include Vindex at Oakland. Sunnyside at Bloomington. Bayard at Crellin, and Peerless at Friendsville. Oakland is planning to erect a grandstand in the near future for the comfort of spectators and to avoid interferance of spectators while the ball is in play.

Two games previously scheduled have not been played thus far in the first half of the league, Sunnyside versus Peerless, and Sunnyside versus Vindex.

Standing of the League

Team	W.	L.	Pct.
Friendsville	7	2	778
Vindex	6	2	750
Oakland	5	4	555
Bayard	5	4	555
Peerless	4	4	500
Crellin	4	5	444
Bloomington	2	7	222
Sunnyside	1	6	143

County Athletes Score no Points at State Meet but Compete well

Although no pomts were won by Garrett county school athletes in the State field and track meet held last Friday in Baltimore, several won fifth places.

Approximately 40 boys who had won first place in the track meet at Grantsville on June 1, were taken to Baltimore by Foster O Speicher, teacher in Friendsville High school, last Thursday morning. The trip was made in a school bus operated by Gorman Thayer. They were met in Baltimore by State officials and lodged and entertained in the Y. M. C. A. building.

The boys' dodgeball team of Oakland Grammar won its first game 15 to 14 defeating Howard county, but were defeated 16 to 15 in the second game hy St. Mary's county.

Guy Hinebaugh, Oakland Grammar, won 5th place in the 80-lb. dodgeball throw for distance. He was in first place until the last trial round when four boys placed ahead of him.

Ted. Wilson, Kitzmiller, placed fifth in the 95-lb. hop, step and jump. Wilson set a new county record in this event at the county meet.

John Morgan, Oakland High, placed fifth in the 95-lb. baseball throw for distance.

W. Holman, Friendsville, placed fifth in the baseball throw for accuracy in the 115-lb. class.

The boys visited Washington, D. C., on the return journey, coming home by way of Winchester on Saturday.

How To Control the Mexican Bean Beetle

County Agent John Carter sent the following to The Republican this morning:

Begin spraying or dusting operations as soon as the adult beetles appear on the beans in considerable numbers and repeat the applications at intervals of seven to ten days until the pods have formed. DO NOT APPLY ARSENICAL SPRAYS OR DUSTS TO SNAP BEANS AFTER THE PODS HAVE FORMED. Where it is necessary to apply control measures to snap beans after the pods have formed Pyrethrum sprays (Red Arrow, Evergreen, etc.) are advised.

In general, liquid sprays have given better control than dusts, due largely to their better sticking qualities and the ease with which the poison can be placed on the under surface of the leaves.

For spraying—Two tablespoons calcium arsenate, 5 tablespoons hydrated lime, 1 gallon water. Apply in the late afternoon.

For dusting—Copper-arsnical-lime dust 20-20-60 or 15-15-70 formula (Monohydrated copper sulfate, calcium arsenate and hydrated lime). This dust should be purchased ready mixed and applied in the dry form to the under surfaces of the leaves with a hand duster. Insist on the proper dust, and freshly mixed.

It is important that beans be sprayed or dusted on the under surface of the leaves if any control is expected.

Fined For Violations

Herbert Wood, better known as "Roscoe" was fined $2 and costs on Monday on a charge of being drunk and disorderly. The arrest was made hy Policeman B. B. Nethkln and he was given a hearing before Justice W. A. Gonder.

Charles A. Dunithan, Bayard, W. Va., was fined $10 and costs on June 8 for operating an automobile without a license.

J. B. King, Mt. Lake Park, is in the county jail on charges of assault and battery on his wife, Mrs. Susan King. This is the second time within a few months that King has been arrested on the same charge.

BITTINGER

An electrical and wind storm of unusual intensity, passed over this village and community one evening last week and the next morning it was discovered that a number of sugar maple trees in different sugar camps had been uprooted by the wind.

County Agent John Carter, of Oakland, was a caller in this village one morning recently.

A cow owned by Miss Edna Wiley and two cows, the property of Jacob Beitzell, were reported killed by lightning during the storms of last week.

Edwin Beitzell lost a valuable cow recently from a cause unknown.

Hayward Broadwater and family, of Grantsville, were Sunday afternoon callers in this village.

It is reported that a number of men in this section will be employed on road work in this district under the relief plan now being carried out in the county. The work will begin this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Buckle, Mrs. W. E. Buckle, Miss Ruth Emory, Mr. and Mrs. Melchoir Hetrick and Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Hetrick attended the funeral of the late Mrs. Bessie Harriman Baker at Frostburg last week. Mrs. Baker successfully taught the Bittinger school the past two years and was greatly liked and respected by the people of the entire community.

Thomas Brenneman and Oscar Hetrick motored to Grantsville and Meyersdale last Saturday.

A number of persons from this community attended the funeral of the late George W. Moon at Meadow Mountain last Sunday.

Tomatoes, canned or fresh, or oranges have a special health value and found to the same extent in other fruits. The health values of these are much the same, but canned tomatoes are usually cheaper.

Some raw fruit or vegetable should be served every day. Canned tomatoes may be considered nutritionally as a raw fruit or vegetable. They are practically as high in vitamin content as the fresh ones, but if they are taken from the can and heated slowly and stewed often, considerable vitamin may be destroyed. Tomatoes somewhat green are less rich in vitamins than when taken ripe from the vine. Tomato juice may be used for breakfast in place of orange juice. It is usually cheaper if home grown and home canned. On the days when tomatoes or oranges are not served to the adults, have apples, bananas or some other low-cost fresh fruit. If you can afford it give your family a second fruit every day. This may be fresh, cooked, canned or dried. Dried fruits are usually less expensive than fresh and canned fruits. The five major dried fruits are raisins, apples, prunes, peaches and apricots. Other important dried fruits are currants, dates and figs.

Any type of fruit which can be served raw should be given a chance in the dessert list because of the health value. Often a bright red apple should have been chosen to balance the meal instead of pie or expensive pudding. Combinations of sweetened fruits, either dried or canned, may be used to good advantage. Fruit juice from fresh fruits with a wafer makes a good dessert. Encourage the children to buy fruit with their spending money in place of candy.

The following are a few recipes which will help in the preparation and serving of fruit:

Tomato Juice Cocktail

One pint tomatoes, strained; 1 t. salt, 2 t. sugar, 1½ T. lemon juice. A little celery or onion salt may be added if liked.

Pruola

One c. chopped cooked prunes, 1 c. cooked rice or whole wheat, 2 eggs, 4 T. sugar for egg whites, 2 T. peanut butter, ½ c. milk, 1-3 c. sugar for prune mixture, 1 t. vanilla. Mix the chopped prunes with peanut butter, rice or whole wheat, milk, sugar and egg yolks, beat egg whites stiff, add sugar, vanilla and continue beating. Combine the two mixtures carefully. Pour into a buttered pudding dish and bake 30 minutes in a slow oven. Serve while warm, plain or with milk.

Norwegian Prune Pudding

One-half pound prunes, 2 c. cold water, 1 c. sugar, 1 T. lemon juice, 1 in. thick cinnamon, 1½ c. boiling water, ½ c. cornstarch. Wash prunes, soak 1 hour in cold water and boil in same water until soft. Remove stones, add sugar, cinnamon, boiling water and simmer 10 minutes. Dilute cornstarch with enough cold water to pour easily, add to prune mixture and cook 5 minutes. Remove cinnamon, add lemon juice, mould, chill and serve with cream.

Prune Pie

Soak prunes. Cook until tender, but not soft (steaming is best). Remove stones and cut prunes in quarters. Sweeten if desired. Pile into a baked pastry shell and cover with whipped cream sweetened to taste.

THE MARYLAND BIBLE SOCIETY'S CORNER

"The Word of Our God Shall Stand Forever"

The Book of Proverbs is a collection of moral and religious maxims containing instructions concerning right living. This book abounds in pithy sayings and sharp contrasts between wisdom and folly, righteousness and sin. In the very first chapter a keynote is sounded, out of which grows the harmony of the book. The fourth verse of this chapter defines its purpose: "To give subtilty to the simple, to the young man knowledge and discretion." Its appeal is primarily to the young, though its admontions are timeless. Its object is to implant in human hearts "the fear of the Lord," a phrase which is repeated fourteen times.

The call of Wisdom occupies a large place in the Proverbs. This is the wisdom otherwise denominated Prudence, the third cardinal virtue of Greek philosophy, which teaches us to regulate our lives and actions agreeably to the dictates of reason, and is that habit by which we wisely judge and prudently determine on all things relative to our present as well as to our future happiness.

The range of subjects treated covers anger, benevolence, correction of children, enticers, fear of God, fools, friendship, indolence, knowledge, temperance, the tongue, unjust gain, wealth, evil women, good women.

Many of the lesson of this great book appear as direct appeals from a father to his son for whom the father is deeply concerned. "My son, when sinners entice thee, consent thou not. Keep thy heart with all diligence; for out of it are the issues of life. Ponder the path of thy feet, and let all thy ways be established. Turn not to the right hand nor to the left; remove thy feet from evil. The lips of a strange woman drop as an honeycomb and her mouth is smoother than oil, but her end is bitter as wormwood, sharp as a two-edged sword. Her feet go down to death; her steps take hold on hell. Can a man take fire into his bosom, and his clothes not be burned? Can one go upon hot coals and his feet not be burned? A wise son heareth instruction, but a scorner heareth not rebuke."

While the thought of our country is centered upon the legalizing of light wines and beer, always having in mind a percentage of alcohol capable of producing the much desired "kick", we may as well listen once more to the message of Proverbs:

"Wine is a mocker, strong drink is raging, and whosoever is deceived thereby is not wise. It is not for rulers to drink wine, nor for princes strong drink, lest they drink and forget the law and pervert the judgment of any of the afflicted. Who hath woe? Who hath sorrow? Who hath contentions? Who hath babblings? Who hath wounds without cause? Who hath redness of eyes? They that tarry long at the wine; they that go to seek mixed wine. Look not thou upon the wine when it is red, when it giveth its color in the cup, when it moveth itself aright. At the last it biteth like a serpent, and stingeth like an adder."

Solomon is the accepted author of the Proverbs. Like many he preached more than he practiced. He pointed the way to wisdom, but in the latter part of his life he did not walk in it. After all, middle age and old age have their perils, as well as youth.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

Franklin T. Fike, plaintiff, vs. Aca A. Thomas, Sidna L. Thomas, Earl H. Thomas, Iva M. Thomas, Sylvia A. Chase, Arthur Chase, and Elvira Thomas, heirs at law of Joseph Thomas, deceased, defendants.

No. 3136 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree for the sale of certain real estate situate in Garrett County, Maryland, for the purpose of paying and satisfying the claims of the creditors of the said Joseph Thomas, deceased.

The Bill states—

That the said Joseph Thomas was, in his lifetime, indebted unto the plaintiff in the sum of Five Hundred Dollars and interest thereon from December 7th, 1931.

That the said Joseph Thomas, being so indebted to the plaintiff and divers other persons, and having real estate of great value, departed this life on December 4th, 1931, intestate, leaving a widow and the following named children surviving him as his heirs at law:

(a) Aea A. Thomas, who has intermarried with Sidna L. Thomas, both of whom are of full age, and who reside in the State of Pennsylvania;

(b) Earl H. Thomas, who has intermarried with Iva M. Thomas, both of whom are of full age and who reside in the State of Pennsylvania;

(c) Sylvia A. Thomas, who has intermarried with Arthur Chase, both of whom are of full age and reside in Garrett County, Maryland;

(d) Elvira Thomas, widow, who resides in Garrett County, Maryland.

That the said Joseph Thomas, deceased, died intestate, and if he left any personal estate, it was not sufficient to pay his debts, and no letters of administration ever were granted by the Orphans' Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

That the said Joseph Thomas, deceased, died seized and possessed of certain real estate as will appear by reference to certain deeds from Isaac T. Umbel et ux. and from Isaiah Umbel et ux. to the said Joseph Thomas, certified copies of said deeds being filed and made a part of the bill.

The bill prays that the said real estate, or so much thereof as may be necessary, may be sold for the payment of the aforesaid debts, for general relief and an order of publication against the said non-resident defendants.

It is thereupon, this 31st day of May, 1933, ordered by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland, in Equity, that the plaintiff, by causing a copy of this order of publication to be inserted in some newspaper published in Garrett county, Maryland, once in each of four successive weeks before the 30th day of June, 1933, give notice to the said non-resident defendants of the object and substance of this hill, warning them to appear in this Court, in person or by solicitor, en or before the 15th day of July, 1933, to show cause, if any they have, why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.

A. G. ROSS, Clerk.

CHAPTER 34.

Providing for the payment by the County Commissioners of Garrett County the sum of $100 Annually to the Friendsville Volunteer Fire Department.

AN ACT to authorize and direct the County Commissioners of Garrett County to pay four hundred dollars ($400.00) to the Friendsville Volunteer Fire Department in the years 1933 and 1934, and to levy the aforesaid sum upon the assessable property of said county.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, That the County Commissioners of Garrett County be and they are hereby authorized and directed to pay to the Friendsville Volunteer Fire Department the sum of four hundred dollars ($400.00) for maintenance in the years 1933 and 1934, and to levy the aforesaid sum upon the assessable property of said county.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That this Act shall take effect June 1, 1933.

CHAPTER 578.

Relating to Elections in the Town of Mountain Lake Park, Garrett County, Maryland.

AN ACT to repeal and re-enact with amendments Sections 5, 6 and 10 of Chapter 507 of the Acts of 1931, incorporating the town of Mountain Lake Park, in Garrett county, relating to town elections, the qualifications of voters and the right of the Mayor to vote on questions pending before the Council.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, That Sections 5, 6 and 10 of Chapter 507 of the Acts of 1931, he and they are hereby repealed and re-enacted with amendments to read as follows:

5. Said corporation shall be governed by a Mayor and five Councilmen. There shall be an election on the second Tuesday in July each year between the hours of one o'clock P. M. and seven o'clock P. M. and at the election on the second Tuesday of July, 1933, there shall be elected a Mayor to serve two years, three Councilmen to serve for two years and until their successors are elected and qualified; at the expiration of the term of the Mayor and Councilmen, their successors shall be elected to serve for a term of two years and until the qualification of their successors. The Mayor and Councilmen shall be qualified voters and residents of said town and shall be bona fide owners of real estate in the town of Mountain Lake Park, Maryland, in the value of Three Hundred Dollars ($300.00).

6. All elections shall be by ballot, and all persons who are qualified to vote for members of the General Assembly of Maryland and who have resided in said town for six months next preceding any election and all persons, citizens of the United States and bona fide owners of real estate in said town for twelve months preceding any election, shall be entitled to vote at any town election. The Mayor and Council shall appoint at least three judges to hold all town elections and shall give at least ten days' notice by hand bills posted in conspicuous places in said town naming the time and place when said election shall be held and the polls opened and closed. The Mayor and Council shall have power to pass such ordinances for conducting said town elections as may be deemed necessary and proper not in conflict with the provisions of this Act.

10. The Mayor shall preside at all meetings of the Council, unless prevented by sickness or reasonable cause, in which event the said Council may select a president pro tempore; he shall sign all ordinances of said town and shall countersign all orders and drafts drawn by the clerk, on the Treasurer of said town. The Mayor shall have no vote upon any question pending before the Council except in the case of a tie vote, when he shall have the deciding vote.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That this Act shall take effect June 1, 1933.

CHAPTER 168.

Relative to the Publication of Notices of Property Advertised and Sold for Taxes by the County Treasurer of Garrett County.

AN ACT to repeal and re-enact with amendments Section 109 of Article 12 of the Code of Public Local Laws of Maryland (1930 Edition) title "Garrett County," sub-title "County Treasurer," so as to reduce the cost of advertising tax sales.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, That Section 109 of Article 12 of the Code of Public Local Laws of Maryland (1930 Edition), title "Garrett County," sub-title "County Treasurer," be and it is hereby repealed and re-enacted with amendments to read as follows:

109. Whenever it becomes necessary for said Treasurer to enforce the payment of taxes by a sale of realty he shall advertise such real estate or so much thereof as may be necessary, once a week for three successive weeks in one newspaper published in Garrett county, and by hand bills posted at the court house door, and at least five places in the district where the land is located, any advertised notice of a sale under the provisions of this sub-title of this article, shall be deemed sufficient if it contains the time, terms and place of such sale, the year or years for which the taxes are due and the amount of same, to whom the property is assessed, the district where located, the quantity of land offered for sale, the name or number of the tract or lot of land, if it bear a name or number, and is so assessed, and the street number if located in a town or city; and in no case shall a description by metes and bounds courses and distances be required, unless it shall be necessary for the identification and location of such part or parts of real estate as may be sold under a sub-division thereof as provided in the next preceding section; no levy upon land shall be required where the same is sold by the treasurer by virtue of the provisions of this sub-title of this Article, and no notice or notices other than those provided for in this section shall be necessary or required to make valid any sale authorized to be made. No fee for the examination of the title of land to be sold or sold for taxes shall be allowed as part of the costs of said sale or shall be paid by the County Treasurer or County Commissioners. In order to reduce the expense of advertising the said Treasurer shall include the notices of tax sales in one advertisement whenever he shall be proceeding with the sale of more than one lot or parcel of land or with the sale of land assessed to more than one delinquent. The advertisement when prepared by the County Treasurer shall be submitted to all newspapers published in Garrett County in order to obtain bids for the publishing of the same and said publication shall be awarded to the paper making the lowest bid. The costs of publishing such advertisement, as herein required, shall be equally distributed among the several tracts or lots of land herein named, and the amount thereby apportioned to each tract of land shall be added to the sum for which such tract or lot is sold, and the same shall be paid from the proceeds thereof by the County Treasurer, except that, when any tract or lot sold at such sale is purchased by the County Commissioners the sum due for such publication shall be paid out of the general county funds.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That this Act is hereby declared to be an emergency law and necessary for the immediate preservation of the public health and safety, and being passed by a yea and nay vote, supported by three-fifths of all the members elected to each of the two Houses of the General Assembly, the same shall take effect from the date of its passage.

CHAPTER 333.

Relating to the Town of Oakland, authorizing the Mayor and Town Council of said town to contribute to the maintenance of the Free Public Library and Musical Organization.

AN ACT to repeal and re-enact with amendments Section 427 of Article 12 of the Code of Public Local Laws of Maryland (1930 Edition), title "Garrett County," sub-title "Oakland," and authorizing the Mayor and Town Council to contribute to the maintenance of the free public library and musical organization.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, That Section 427 of Article 12 of the Code of Public Local Laws of Maryland (1930 Edition), title "Garrett County," sub-title "Oakland," be and the same is hereby repealed and re-enacted with amendments to read as follows:

427. That Council shall have power to pass all ordinances not unconstitutional with the existing laws of the State, as they may deem necessary for the good government of the town, for the preservation of peace and good order, and securing persons and property from violence, danger and destruction; for the removal of nuisances, no matter from what source proceeding, and all obstructions from the streets, lanes and alleys, and from any lot adjoining thereto within the limits of the town; for the removal of any dangerous house or buildings; for the paving, grading, repairing, drainage, leveling, surveying, laying out, extending, widening, opening, closing, straightening, re-locating, improving or repairing any street, sidewalk or alley in said town; and may condemn or purchase the right of way of any street or alley which they may determine should be opened for the public good; for the preservation of property rights and privileges; for the regulation of sales of the streets, alleys or public places in said town; for the weighing of hay, coal and other property; for the suppression of vice and immorality; for the suppression of concealed weapons; for the suppression of the practice of discharging firearms, fire-crackers, torpedoes or other explosives; for regulating the handling and storing of all kinds of explosives; for the prevention of gambling; for licensing of theatricals or other public amusements; to suppress tramps; for lighting the streets; for preventing swine, cattle, dogs or other animals from running at large on the streets; for imposing a tax on dogs; for locating of hog pens, privies and stables; and the Mayor and Town Council shall have power and full authority to pass all such ordinances as may be necessary to carry out and give full force and effect to the powers conferred upon said corporation by law; and be it further enacted, that the Mayor and Town Council shall have the right to provide for the organization, equipment and government of fire companies and to permit said fire companies to organize as a body, and to provide within itself all rules and regulation of its members and property appertaining thereto, subject to the general supervision of the said Mayor and Town Council; and be it further enacted that the said Mayor and Town Council of Oakland be and they are hereby empowered, in their discretion to contribute to the support and maintenance of a free public library and the Gilbert-Brown Boys Band, or such other musical organization as may succeed the same, if said library and/or said musical organization be maintained within said town, a sum not to exceed two hundred dollars for each of said organizations in any one year, and to include the same in the annual levy provided for by Section 418 of this Article.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That this Act shall take effect June 1, 1933.

CHAPTER 87.

Relating to the Amount of Money to be Levied by the County Commissioners for the Expenses of the State's Attorney for Garrett County.

AN ACT to repeal and re-enact with amendments Section 501 of Article 12 of the Code of Public Local Laws of Maryland (1930 Edition), title "Garrett County," sub-title "State's Attorney," as said section was amended by Chapter 211 of the Acts of 1931, reducing the amount to be paid to the State's Attorney for Garrett County for expenses.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, That Section 501 of Article 12 of the Code of Public Local Laws of Maryland (1930 Edition), title "Garrett County," sub-title "State's Attorney," as said section was amended by Chapter 211 of the Acts of 1931, be and it is hereby repealed and re-enacted with amendments to read as follows:

591. The State's Attorney for Garrett County shall receive an annual salary of fifteen hundred dollars, which salary shall be paid to him by the County Commissioners of said county, payable quarterly by warrant on the County Treasurer, and the said Commissioners shall likewise pay to him for the year 1933 and each year thereafter the sum of three hundred ($300.00) dollars, said sum to cover all the expenses of his office, including stationery, postage and necessary traveling expenses. It shall be the duty of the Sheriff of said county to collect and pay over to said county any appearance or other fee taxed a part of the costs payable to the State's Attorney in any criminal case.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That this Act shall take effect June 1, 1933.

CHAPTER 465.

Authorizing the Board of County Commissioners to Remove Its Clerk for Inefficiency and Limiting the Compensation said Clerk shall Receive for his Services.

AN ACT to repeal and re-enact with amendments Section 87 of Article 12 of the Code of Public Local Laws of Maryland (1930 Edition) title "Garrett County," sub-title "County Commissioners," authorizing the Board of County Commissioners of Garrett County to move its Clerk for inefficiency and limiting the compensation of said Clerk.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, That Section 87 of Article 12 of the Code of Public Local Laws of Maryland (1930 Edition) title "Garrett County," sub-title "County Commissioners," be and it is hereby repealed and re-enacted with amendments, to read as follows:

87. At the General Election of County officers of Garrett County, to be held in said County November, 1917, and every four years thereafter, a Clerk to the Board of County Commissioners shall be elected by the qualified voters of said county who shall hold office of Clerk for the term of four years from the time of his election and qualification or until his successor is elected and qualified and shall be subjected to removal from said office for inefficiency or for any wilful neglect of duty or misbehavior in office at any time by the County Commissioners of said county, who shall have power to appoint some competent person for the unexpired term of the Clerk so removed, said Clerk shall be paid for his services the sum of twelve hundred dollars per annum, payable in monthly instalments of one hundred dollars at the expiration of each and every month by the treasurer of Garrett County from the funds of said county, and the said clerk shall have full power to administer an oath or affirmation to any and all persons who are to be examined as witnesses in any matter before the County Commissioners, and touching or relating to any account, bill or other matter to be filed in the office of said County Commissioners; the said salary of twelve hundred dollars per annum shall be full compensation for all services required of said clerk, who shall keep the office of County Commissioners open from nine o'clock in the forenoon until four o'clock in the afternoon, and who shall attend therein for the transaction of business on every day of the week except Sundays and legal holidays. No additional compensation shall be paid said Clerk for extra work nor shall the County Commissioners pay any one for assisting said Clerk.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That this Act is hereby declared to be an emergency law and necessary for the immediate preservation of the public health and safety, and having been passed by a yea and nay vote, supported by three-fifths of all of the members elected to each of the two Houses of the General Assembly, the same shall take effect from the date of its passage.

CHAPTER 96.

Fixing the Fees Paid Auctioneers by the County Treasurer for Crying Tax Sales.

AN ACT to repeal and re-enact with amendments Section 112 of Article 12 of the Code of Public Local Laws of Maryland (1930 Edition), title "Garrett County," sub-title "County Treasurer," fixing the fee which the Treasurer shall be entitled to charge against each piece of property sold for taxes and to be paid by said Treasurer to the auctioneer for his services in conducting such sale.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, That Section 112 of Article 12 of the Code of Public Local Laws of Maryland (1930 Edition), title "Garrett County," sub-title "County Treasurer," be and the same is hereby repealed and re-enacted with amendments, to read as follows:

112. The treasurer shall be entitled to the following fees: For advertising property for sale under the provisions of Section 109 of this sub-title of this Article, to enforce the payment of taxes, if the property he sold the treasurer shall receive one per cent on the gross amount of sales with his expenses as aforesaid, but if the amount due be paid without sale, he shall receive one per cent on the amount collected and his expenses as aforesaid, to be paid by the party paying, who shall be entitled to an itemized bill; and the treasurer shall be entitled to charge against each piece of property sold for the collection of taxes the sum of fifty cents, to be paid by said treasurer to the auctioneer for his services in conducting the sale; and if the treasurer, or any clerk, agent or deputy of such treasurer shall ask, demand or receive any greater costs or fees than are allowed by the provisions of this section, or shall receive any pay or commission for or on account of any advertising, printing or surveying or any contract therefor, or for anything which may be done under the provisions of any of the sections of this sub-title of this Article, or shall for himself, or any other person, discount or buy, or receive for less than its face or real value, any claim against said county, or certificate of indebtedness issued thereby, the person so offending shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon indictment and conviction, shall pay a fine of not less than one hundred, nor more than five hundred dollars, for each and every such offense, one-half to go to the informer and the other half to the school fund of the county.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That this Act is hereby declared to be an emergency law and necessary for the immediate preservation of the public health and safety, and being passed by a yea and nay vote, supported by three-fifths of all the members elected to each of the two Houses of the General Assembly, the same shall take effect from the date of its passage.

CHAPTER 436.

Relating to the County Commissioners of Garrett County and the expenditure of funds for road purposes.

AN ACT to prohibit the County Commissioners of Garrett County from expending for road purposes the funds about to be received from the present county road levy and to provide that said funds shall go into and become part of the general funds of said county and be used for reducing the tax levy to be made by said County Commissioners in April of 1933.

Whereas, the County Commissioners of Garrett County did in April, 1932, levy a tax upon the assessable property of said county to produce funds for expenditure on the roads of said county; and

Whereas, By an Act of the General Assembly of 1933 funds for said roads will be hereafter provided by and expended by the State Roads Commission; and

Whereas, As a result of said Act of 1933 the funds produced by the said levy of said County Commissioners for road purposes will not be used therefor; now, therefore,

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, That the County Commissioners of Garrett County be and they are hereby prohibited from expending for road purposes of said county the funds received by said County Commissioners from the county tax levy made in April, 1932, and that said County Commissioners be and they are hereby authorized, directed and empowered to credit said funds to the general funds of said county and to use the same for reducing the tax levy about to be made by said County Commissioners in April, 1933.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That this Act is hereby declared to be an emergency law and necessary for the immediate preservation of the public health and safety, and being passed by a yea and nay vote, supported by three-fifths of all the members elected to each of the two Houses of the General Assembly, the same shall take effect from the date of its passage.

CHAPTER 59.

Exempting Garrett County from the Provisions of Section 4 of Article 38 of the Code of Maryland providing for the payment of certain fines and forfeitures to the Bar Library of Garrett County.

AN ACT to repeal and re-enact with amendments Section 4 of Article 38 of the Annotated Code of Maryland (1924 Edition), title "Fines and Forfeitures," as said section was amended by Chapter 225 of the Acts of 1931, exempting Garrett County from the provisions of said section which provides that one-half of the fines and forfeitures shall be paid for the libraries of the several courts.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, That Section 4 of Article 38 of the Annotated Code of Maryland (1924 Edition), title "Fines and Forfeitures," as said section was amended by Chapter 225 of the Acts of 1931, be and it is hereby repealed and re-enacted to read as follows:

4. One-half of the fines imposed and recognizances forfeited to the Circuit Court for the several counties of the State, shall be paid to the clerks of the respective courts, to be expended under the direction of the judge or judges of said courts for the augmentation of libraries of said courts, and all fines and recognizances received by the City Register of Baltimore City from the justices of the peace in Baltimore City and the Sheriff of Baltimore City, as adjudged by and accruing in the Criminal Courts of Baltimore City, and collected and received by or through the said Sheriff, shall be paid by said City Register to the Library Company of the Baltimore Bar for its use and benefit. Said sum, not to exceed, however, in any year the sum of seven thousand and five hundred dollars ($7,500.00). The Boards of County Commissioners of the several counties of this State, and the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore are hereby authorized to provide ample accommodations and facilities for law libraries located in their respective Court Houses. This section not to apply to Montgomery, Queen Anne's, Caroline, Cecil, Anne Arundel and Talbot Counties, provided, that the Bar Library of Garrett County shall only be entitled to receive the sum of Five Hundred Dollars ($500).

Section 2. And be it further enacted, That this Act shall take effect June 1, 1933.

MT. LAKE PARK

There is nothing as wholesome as the knowledge that citizens have faith in their communities. We note that in a nearby city, which has been especially hard hit by the depression, its citizens saw the need of a new bank and on Monday, at a victory dinner, it was announced that 400 citizens of the county had subscribed more than $250,000 to the capital stock of the institution. In other words, a need arose, the citizens sensed their obligations to their community and to each other, and the thing was done. What can be done other places can be done here. The Park needs building up. Its one-time glory needs to be revived. How? We do not pretend to know. But the first prerequisite is faith in the community and each other; the elimination of petty jealosies and animosities, and then mass cooperation. Church, political, fraternity and class distinctions must give way to the community spirit. Sell ourselves the idea that the Park has a future as well as a past—then sell that idea to some one else. It ean be done. If a thing will help your community, it will help you. You can only build up your personal business by building up the business of the community at large. In community success, the rich and well-to-do are not the only ones to profit. Remember, that if you have ordinary ability, you have a chance of getting a part of every dollar spent in your town and county.

The first unit of the new road to Deer Park is completed, except for the shoulders. And there is some talk of building another mile or so yet this year. And wouldn't that be something!

What is known at the Jamison detour has now been made safe and secure for autos going to or coming from Loch Lynn. Under the circumstances, that is the best that can be done to relieve the inconvenience caused by rebuilding the road from the Yough bridge to the postoffice. Until the newly poured cement hardens sufficiently we will simply have to grin and bear it. But when the road is open to traffic, we will forget the inconvenience in the pride of the new construction.

We wonder if the collecting of old neckties has been started around here? If it has, well, just consider this item a space filler. But that might be said of many of our items. Any way, some bird conceived the idea of gathering up all the old, worn neckties in a given community and turning them over to the welfare workers for the making of quilts to be sold. The idea has spread. For instance, in Fairmont the Boy Scouts collected nearly 4,000 ties, and in Huntington, W. Va., nearly 16,000. Now they will be made into beautiful quilts, sold, and the money received used to relieve distress. We imagine the merchants could well afford to give some suitable prize or reward to the Boy Scouts for their efforts, for the men will cling to frazzled ties. And the wives—how they would dearly love to get rid of some old, faded, although favorite, tie of friend husband. A good idea, don't you think?

We have come to the conclusion that the activities of the town authorities are only limited by their resources. Just now, taking advantage of the present situation, they have selected certain outstanding spots in the Park for beautification. The first is the triangle facing Braethorn, on the Stae road, opposite the auditorium grounds. Old stumps have been dynamited and piled for burning. The town and Mrs. Campbell, who owns and operates Braethorn, will join in making and planting flower beds and keeping the surrounding lawn in trim shape. Other projects of this character are contemplated. The banks along roadways have been straightened and sloped, giving a neat and tidy effect. All this helps a lot.

It is pleasing and encouraging to note the painting of the Allegheny House, the Searle cottage, Braethorn, and the Gibson store building in Loch Lynn.

Mrs. R. L. Cunningham and son, Lawrence M., of Fairmont, spent Sunday in the Park the guest of friends.

Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Stockslager, of Pittsburgh, are spending a few days at their cottage—the Yoder cottage.

Mrs. Louis Walters, of Fairmont, has opened her cottage for the summer months.

Mrs. Elizabeth Talson, of Wheeling, is here for the season. Mrs. Talson has her voting residence at the Park.

Mr. and Mrs. William Booth, of Sewickley, Pa., are guests at the Mt. Lake Hotel.

Mr. Frank Murphy spent the week-end with his family.

Mrs. Rebecca Crane and daughter, Mary Louise, are guests of Mrs. Crane's mother, Mrs. Julia Ruhl.

Mrs. Tevey Nutter and daughter, of Fairmont, spent a few days at their cottage.

Mr. and Mrs. John Colecamp and son spent Sunday in Piedmont, W. Va.

Levi B. Harr, of New York City, is in the Park for a short stay.

Jack Craig suffered a severe heat prostration last Thursday. He is recovering.

For several years past one evil upon the people has been quickly followed by another and greater evil. Now the whole world is in a state of distress and perplexity. Human remedies have failed to relieve that world distress. In the language of Jehovah's prophet, now "all the foundations of the earth are out of course". (Psalms 82:5). The final evil will be reached at Armageddon. When will it come?

Concerning that time God by his prophet has said: "My determination is to gather the nations, that I may pour upon them my fierce anger." (Zephaniah 3:8). In his last prophetic utterance when on earth, Jesus foretold Armageddon, describing it as a time of "tribulation, such as was not since the beginning of the world to this time, no, nor ever shall be." That will be the final trouble. (Matthew 24:21). Is that great cataclysm rapidly approaching?

VACATIONS CAN BE SPENT HERE IN GARRETT COUNTY

Reduced Budgets Bring Fear of Not Being Able to Afford Trip To Distant Points

COUNTY CAN MEET NEEDS

Vacations and holidays are magic words that conjure up in our minds all the pleasures of travel and change, all the excitements of new places and strange faces, and all the rest and relaxation that come from the temporary release from the drudgery and cares that are the lot of all of us in one way or another.

However, with the reduced budget this year, many Garrett countians are fearing they will have to forego the pleasures of a vacation to distant and noted points. With such the case there is still plenty of opportunity for a vacation, spent right here in our own county, with new places to visit, new roads to travel, and new faces to see.

Very few citizens of the county have traveled over every section of this territory and short trips over Garrett's four hundred miles of roads would afford an agreeable substitute for a vacation in other climes.

For those who love the water, there is Deep Creek Lake, with its boating, fishing and swimming, Swallow Falls and the Youghiogheny River, and numerous small streams.

For those who love mountain scenery, there are trips along good dirt roads that take one to nature in her wildest state, and for those who love nature and who have no love for dirt roads there are still miles of improved highways that will carry one to the very door of their heart's desire.

Vacationing need not be done at one time. Each week-end or holiday offers an opportunity to see and visit some new place in the county.

Places to visit might include Washington Spring, near Oakland; Deer Park Hotel and grounds; Crystal Spring, Mountain Lake Park, and other beauties of Mountain Lake Park; Eagle Rock, Table Rock, Altamont Springs, Boiling Spring, Swallow Falls, Muddy Creek Falls, the Power House at Sines, the fish hatchery at Bear Creek, St. John's Rock, Deep Creek Lake, Thayerville tower, the Cove, Kaese's Mill, the site of Wolf Den, Sang Run, Allegheny Heights, Weber's Greenhouses, Rock Lodge, Meshack Browning's cabin, the site of Conneway's Tower and many other places of beauty and of historic interest.

For the tourist who is looking for pleasant Sunday drives he might choose one of the following: Oakland to Red House, Fellowsville, Tunnelton, Kingwood, Terra Alta to Oakland; Oakland to Sand Flat, Deer Park, Kitzmiller, Backbone Mountain, Gormania, Red House to Oakland; Oakland, Terra Alta, Kingwood, Morgantown, Uniontown, Keyser's Ridge, Accident to Oakland; Oakland, Red House, Gormania, Keyser, Piedmont, Frostburg, Grantsville, Keyser Ridge to Oakland.

Other drives might include Route 37 to Davis, West Va., and return, visiting the famous Black Water Falls; Oakland, Deep Creek, Bittinger, Jennings, Grantsville and Oakland; Oakland, Terra Alta, Kingwood, Albright, Bruceton, Friendsville, to Oakland; Oakland, Friendsville, Markleyshurg, Pennsylvania State line, Keyser Ridge to Oakland.

Garrett county also has interesting towns and interesting communities. A visit to them will add to one's education and bring about a better understanding of conditions in the different sections.

A vacation away from home is good. If it is not possible to go far, a short distance may suffice. Or if one is unable to get away at all remember that many people can get more good from spending their vacations at home than those who tire themselves out going away from home.

Missionary to Speak

Miss Margaret H. Duke, a Presbyterian missionary to India, now home on furlough, will be the speaker at the Garrett Memorial church, Sunday morning. During the absence of the pastor, Dr. T. D. Richards and Dr. E. T. Mowhray will take charge of the devotional service. Miss Duke, whose home is in Cumberland, is a member of the staff of the Presbyterian Mission at Kodoli, India. She brings an interesting message from that mysterious land that holds the key of the future, a land of fabulous wealth and incredible poverty.

VACATION BIBLE SCHOOL TO BEGIN ON JULY THIRD

Sessions to be Continued for 2 Weeks; Teachers Named

The daily vacation Bible school for Oakland and the surrounding communities will open for a two weeks' session on Monday morning, July 3, in the Oakland Grammar school building.

The faculty includes Miss Elizabeth West, assisted by Miss Helen Sollars, in charge of beginners, which includes children who will enter school in the fall; Miss Lucille Mitchell, second grade; Miss Coral McRobie, third grade; Miss Mabel Sollars, fourth grade; Rev. W. S. Patterson, fifth grade; Rev. D. C. Trimble and Miss Marion B. Leary, sixth, seventh grades and high school; Miss Mildred Stemple, handicraft for girls in basketry and international friendship projects; Miss Adeline Sincell, art in the fifth to seventh grades; Rev. C. A. Shilke, manual training, and Rev. W. B. Brock, the school chaplain, in charge of all devotional periods.

Miss Marion Leary will be general superintendent. School sessions will begin at nine o'clock and close at 11:30 each morning. The school is open and free to all children as funds from the union Lenten and Holy Week services, amounting to $47.26, are devoted to this cause.

A picnic will be held some afternoon of the second week of the school. An increased enrollment is expected by those in charge.

TOPOGRAPHY CHANGES AS CONSERVATION MEN WORK

Projects Are Moving Forward at Potomac Forest Encampment

The Civilian Conservation Corps camp, S-51, in Potomac Forest, near Bethlehem, Garrett county, was opened on May 22 with the advent of the 304th company. Two hundred young men from Baltimore found themselves transplanted from the paved streets of a teeming city to their conditioning camp at Fort Humphreys, Va., and thence after three weeks to the Potomac Forest.

Street cars, skyscrapers, the corner drug store and the smoking factory chimneys have been replaced for them by big trees, rutted mountain roads, kerosene lanterns and the great open spaces.

Under the guidance of the resident forest warden, Carlton Lohr, these youths from the city have found much to do. Mr. Lohr, who is familiar with his territory, has been of valuc to the acting superintendent, H. B. Long.

Already in less than four weeks surprising changes have been made in the local topography. Projects designed to make the camp itself permanently livable have been carried forward along with the general development of the area into a beautiful forest park.

A bath house with its accompanying water supply system, consisting of a reservoid, fed by a natural spring of clear water and a thousand foot pipe line, has occupied the attention of one group.

The mess hall is beginning to take shape under the direction of another group. The entrance roadway to the camp is well started. The men have toiled diligently, the morale is excellent and the willingness of the men gratifying, according to those in charge.

Holy Cross Students Arrive

The first group of Holy Cross students, of Washington, D. C., arrived in Oakland Monday to prepare the camp site on Deep Creek Lake for the rest of the group, arriving the latter part of this week.

There will be approximately the same number attending camp this year as last, those who have graduated from college being replaced by first-year men. The students will spend the summer at their permanent camp on the lake, which is located south of the Boy Seout camp. All of them are preparing for the priesthood.

Death of James A. Enlow Occurred This Morning.

Following an illness of six weeks, due to advancing years, the death of James A. Enlow, of Mountain Lake Park, occurred at his home there this morning at 6:40 o'clock.

The funeral will take plaee from his late residence in the Park on Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Mr. Enlow was identified with the Park for upwards of fifty years.

COUNCIL ADJUSTS WATER RATES AT SPECIAL MEETING

Will Mean Saving of $1,100 to Citizens of Oakland

An adjustment in the water ordinance, bringing a savings to the citizens of Oakland of about $1,100 each year, was passed at a special meeting of the Mayor and Town Council held Monday night in the City hall.

The rate was formerly 60 cents per thousand gallons, or a minimum of $4.50.

The new ordinance classified consumers into three divisions. For all consumers using 3,000 gallons or less there will be a minimum charge of $3.00 per quarter. Consumers between 3,000 and 8,000 will he charged at the rate of 55 cents per thousand, or a minimum of $4.00. Consumers using more than 25,000 gallons will be billed at the rate of 40 cents per thousand. At least seven consumers exceed this amount each month, according to Mayor Grover C. Stemple.

The rate for consumers outside the corporation limits of town will remain the same, it was stated. There are 27 consumers in this category, it was stated.

The new ordinance will take effect with the next bill, which will be mailed out in July and will cover the period, April, May and June.

Extension Service to Hold Canning Meetings

Each summer brings its canning season and its queries about home canning problems. To meet the needs of those women interested in canning the Garrett County Extension Service will hold three District meetings in which methods and problems will be considered.

Miss Margaret McPheters, State Nutrition Specialist from the University of Maryland Extension Service, will give demonstrations on successful canning methods and take up any individual problems desired. All county women interested in food preservation are urged to attend one of the following meetings:

Thursday, June 29, Grantsville Home Economics room. High school, 10:00 a. m; Friday, June 30, Hoyes school house, 10:00 a. m; Saturday, July 1, Oakland Lutheran church basement, 10:00 a. m.

Each woman is asked to bring or make plans for her own lunch. Other information may be received from the Extension office, Oakland; or from Miss Margaret K. Burtis, home demonstration agent.

Local Scout Camp Site to be Occupied by Several Troops This Summer

The local boy scout camp site is to be occupied by several scout troops this summer and other organized bodies, according to W. W. Dawson, chairman of the troop committee.

Rev. A. J. Torrey, formerly of Oakland, will bring his troop from Elkins, W. Va., on Sunday, June 25, and will remain for two weeks. John H. Carter, county agent, and his 4-H club boys will occupy the camp from July 24 to 29.

Oakland troop will camp from July 30 to August 14. Dates have been requested from J. M. Southard, scoutmaster, Connellsville, Pa.; and J. A. Waln, scoutmaster, Frostburg. The Oakland Girl Scouts also contemplate using the camp, it was learned.

At a meeting of camp owners and members of the troop committee on Monday evening, it was decided that hereafter only organized troops would be allowed to camp on the scout site. Local boy or girl scout troops would be allowed to use the grounds free of charge, but others must pay $15.00 for one week, or $25.00 for two weeks. It was decided to allow no week-end camping parties of any group other than scouts.

Members of the troop committee are H. L. Jones, W. W. Dawson, D. R. Sincell, and F. E. Rathbun, while owners of the camp site include H. L. Jones, W. W. Dawson, E. R. Jones, Paul B. Naylor, Cecil Smith, and T. A. Gonder. Mr. Naylor and Mr. Rathbun were not present at the meeting.

Summer Made Official Bow Yesterday Afternoon

Summer made its official bow at 4-12 p. m. yesterday, the longest day of the year.

The mercury staged a comeback during the past few days to again make people realize that it was June instead of December. Continued warm weather is forecast.

TEACHERS' APPOINTMENTS UNCERTAIN FOR 1933-34

Staff Will Be Reduced Wherever Possible—Oakland Will Have One Less Instructor

A reduction in the teaching staff of the various high schools and elementary schools of the county wherever possible will be noted this year, according to an unofficial announcement this morning. It is also understood several replacements of teachers will also be made, although nothing definite could be learned in this respect.

Reports from county correspondents and authentic rumors about Oakland point to the fact that many appointments have already been made for teaching positions next year.

The teaching staff of Oakland High school will be reduced by at least one, the music teacher, Miss Ruth Conley, also teaching English subjects. Others who have received their appointments include F. D. Bittle, principal; Rose Rice, Earl T. Willis, John M. Thayer, Catherine Schnebly, Alverta Dillon, Frank Getty, Raymond O. McCullough, Ervin S. Smith, Oren T. Graser, Mrs. Eva Bishoff. There will be at least three more appointed.

Eight teachers have been appointed for Oakland Grammar school: Morris L. Stier, principal, Edwin Elias, Jr., Margaret S. Liller, Beulah Loughridge, Lucille Mitchell, Mrs. Mabel P. Sollars, Marion L. Bloss, Marion B. Leary. A ninth teacher will not be appointed until it is found that there are too many pupils for the teachers already selected.

Friendsville High school teachers will remain the same including W. J. Glenn, principal; F. O. Speicher, C. B. Miller, Martha Engle, Eula I. Guthrie.

B. O. Aiken will remain principal of Accident High, and H. W. Beggs and Arthur Scrogum have also received appointments.

Nothing has been learned of the appointments of Kitzmiller, Grantsville and Kempton high schools.

The selection of elementary school teachers is still unsettled and F. E. Rathbun, county superintendent, would make no comment on appointments in this division.

One Garrett Countian Named on Convention Ballot

The complete slate of candidates for delegates to Maryland's convention to vote on the Eighteenth amendment was nominated at Annapolis yesterday. The 72 candidates are divided as follows: 18 at large—six for repeal, six against and six unpledged, and nine from each congressional district, three for repeal, three against, and three unpledged.

The voters will choose the delegates at a special election September 12. Each voter will east a ballot for six delegates-at-large and three delegates from his congressional district, so that 24 votes will be cast at the convention.

Herbert V. Leighton, Mt. Lake Park, was the only candidate named for Garrett county, being placed in the group against ratification of the bill which would repeal the 18th amendment for the 6th Congressional District.

Brotherhood To Have Ladies' Night On Friday

St. Mark's Lutheran Brotherhood will have a Ladies' Night on Friday evening, at 7:45, when the wives and children of the church will be guests of the organization.

Mr. Joseph E. Harned will give his illustrated lecture on native wild flowers and a number of other features will be presented.

Home grown strawberries with cream will be served following the meeting. This will be the last meeting of the Brotherhood until September.

Young People's Leagues to Hold Union Services During Summer

The Young People's Leagues of the various churches of Oakland will hold union services during the summer, with the first meeting in the Lutheran church on Sunday evening, July 2, with Rev. W. S. Patterson as the speaker.

Representatives of the leagues met at the home of Miss Helen Sollars on Monday evening and planned topics, selected leaders and mapped out the activities of the organization for the vacation months.

MT. LAKE CAMP MEETING BEGINS FRIDAY, JUNE 30

Will be Fifty-First Meeting of Association at the Park

The fifty-first meeting of the Mountain Lake Park Camp Meeting association will be held from June 30 to July 9, the first assembly being called for Friday evening.

The organization was established in 1882 and last year celebrated its fiftieth anniversary.

The list of speakers for the coming meeting will include Dr. Joseph Owens, University Park, Iowa; Rev. Paul Reece, Kansas City, Kansas; Prof, E. C. Milby, Greensburg, Ky.; Rev. A. J. Dolbow, with Miss Minnie Shay in charge of children's work, and Mrs. G. S. Pollock at the piano.

Services will be held each day from 9 a. m., until 9 p. m., with intermissions for lunch and dinner, according to C. M. Hood, president.

The camp meeting was first organized into an association in 1917, and has a membership of approximately eight hundred.

FIRES BOX CAR TO KEEP WARM; IS UNDER ARREST

Oakland Fire Department Called At 4:30 Yesterday Morning

The Oakland Volunteer Fire Department was called about 4:30 Wednesday morning to extinguish a blaze in a box car standing on the siding of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad in the rear of the local station.

It was presumed that it was occupied by a tramp who got rather chilly toward morning and built a fire from waste paper and other material found in the car.

This proved to be the case as Deputy Sheriff Sam Cole arrested a man who gave his name as Coleman, but later stated that his name was Walter Brock, giving Clarendon, Va., as his home town. Baltimore and Ohio Detective Athey also investigated the case later in the day and to this officer Brock made a confession that he was guilty of the act and that he had set fire to other public utilities property in Virginia. He is being held in the Garrett County Jail.

The fire was discovered at a time when westbound passenger train No. 3 was pulling into the local station. The car burned was a New York Central car. It was badly damaged by the flames. Another unfortunate was in an adjoining car and when Brock left he failed to awaken him.

Brock was burned recently at High Point, Va., when he is alleged to have set fire to another box car to keep warm.

Two-Cent Postage Rate Effective July 1 on Local Destinations

Effective July 1, a two-cent rate on first class mail for local destinations has been declared by James A. Farley, postmaster general of the United States.

This means, according to L. M. Fraley, postmaster, any letters addressed to people of Oakland, or for delivery on the two rural routes from the local postoffice, or on the star route where the carrier makes a delivery, will come under the two-cent rate.

A letter to Deer Park, Friendsville, or Grantsville will cost three cents. A letter to Oakland, route 1, will go for two cents. Any letter mailed from rural or star routes to an Oakland destination will go for two cents, it was stated. Letters addressed to Cumberland, Terra Alta, or other points, will remain at the three-cent rate.

Trucks Are Shipped Here For Use of Forestry Crews

Thirty-six trucks and automobiles for use of the Civilian Conservation Corps workers in camps in Garrett county and Green Ridge, Allegany county, were unloaded at Cumberland from freight cars on Saturady and driven from the freight yard to the various camps.

The machines were shipped in 13 cars over the Western Maryland and the Baltimore and Ohio Railroads.

To Hold Memorial Service

Oak Lodge No. 8, I. O. O. F., will hold its annual memorial service on Sunday afternoon, June 25, at 2:30 p. m., in the Baptist church at Loch Lynn.

A. T. White, past grand master, will deliver the address.

R. F. C. FUNDS A BENEFIT TO 6,000 WITHIN COUNTY

Total of Forty-two Projects Employing 1,134 Heads of Families Worked on Last Week

PEAK HAS BEEN REACHED

Although R. F. C. relief funds have been available in Garrett county for less than sixty days, approximately 6,800 persons have been directly and indirectly aided through work projects in twenty-six communities of the county. A total of forty-two different pieces of work employed 1,134 heads of families last week. A distribution of $3,460 when paid the workers was taken back into their families and gave relief to at least one-third of the county's total population.

The peak of developing work projects for needy heads of families has probably been reached, according to George D. Browning, County Commissioner and member of the Garrett County Welfare Board. Mr. Browning is recognized as one of the best informed road men of the county, and while road building and the giving of employment have been secondary to providing aid to destitute families, the medium through which most of the R. F. C. aid has been granted has been road building and repairs.

More than 1,700 applicants have registered with the Welfare Board. Many have thought of the funds as a means of providing much-needed employment and approximately twenty per cent of the applicants have had to be refused because they did not qualify as heads of destitute families. "There are still about 100 persons who have not been rated at this time," Miss Wilcox stated today. "We have had a great many more people applying than we anticipated," Miss Wilcox continued, "and I believe much of it is due to the fact that many men, both young and old, have been without employment so long they are grasping at our relief projects as a means of providing them money for many very necessary things, such as clothing, unpaid bills including mortgages, taxes, doctors and countless other obligations. I have had to say to sueh applicants that the limited R. F. C. funds placed at the disposal of the Welfare Board of this county must be conserved for those who would otherwise suffer for actual food. It has been hard to make some understand the distinction we have had to make," Miss Wilcox stated, "but most people realize it would require hundreds of thousands of dollars to provide every willing worker in the county with the means for providing for all his needs."

Because of the unusual number of families in actual need of maintenance the Board of Welfare has had to make some retrenchment and single men in large families who were permitted to work along with their fathers in helping to provide necessary funds in the home have had to be cut off and in some cases the hours of work allowed in familics have been reduced. The Board has noted with gratification that employment in some sections of the county seems to be on the increase. In other sections, however, mines which have been operating two and three days each week are now either closed down entirely or are giving but one day's employment a week to their men.

Places Bibles In Homes

Rev. F. F. Leonard, Baltimore, a representative of the Maryland Bible Society, spoke at a union vesper service held last Sunday evening in the local Lutheran church. He spoke on salient truths in the Bible, using a chart to illustrate his points.

Dr. Leonard spent several weeks in Garrett and Allegany counties visiting homes in various sections in the interest of church membership, church attendance and Bible study. Where he did not find a copy of the Bible in the home he supplied one as a gift from the Maryland Bible Society. Dr. Leonard will return here the latter part of July to complete his work.

Mothers' Circle Meets

The Mothers' Circle met last night at the home of Mrs. James Treacy when pictures of Garrett county were shown and members of the group spoke on interesting places to visit within the county. Mrs. Treacy, Mrs. Samuel Cole, Mrs. Delbert Davis, Mrs. Ray Teets, and Mrs. Ralph Weber, gave talks on various sections.

REVIEW: JESUS OUR LORD AND SAVIOUR

GOLDEN TEXT—Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost: Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you. Matt. 28:19, 20.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Our Friend.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Our Saviour and Lord.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Trusting and Obeying Jesus.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Giving Ourselves Unreservedly to Christ.

Two methods are suggested which may be used for the senior and adult classes.

I. A Perplexities Review.

This is suggested by Dr. Amos R. Wells. A perplexity arising from each lesson of the quarter should be assigned to a member of the class a week ahead of time. Suggestions:

April 2. Why is sickness allowed in the world?

April 9. Why is the Christian life often so difficult?

April 16. Why does our Christianity sometimes lack splendor?

April 23. Why do some men grow hard as they grow older?

April 30. How can we give without pauperizing the needy?

May 7. Why must some be masters and others servants?

May 14. What degree of ambition is wise?

May 21. How can we conduct controversy without bitterness?

May 28. What proportion of our income should go to the church?

June 4. How can we make sure of a complete loyalty to Christ?

June 11. How is it possible for us to get rid of sin?

June 18. How can we be certain of living again?

II. The Summary Method.

The aim in the use of this method is to cast up to view the leading facts and deduce from them the leading lesson. The following is suggested:

Lesson for April 2.

Jesus responded to the fervent appeal of the Syrophenician woman to help her demon-possessed daughter. His sympathy is as wide as the race, and his power unlimited.

Lesson for April 9.

Before going to the cross, Jesus retired with his disciples to prepare them for the severe trial through which they were to pass. He instructed them concerning his atoning death, resurrection, and second coming.

Lesson for April 16.

Jesus transfigured. Two men from the upper world were sent to converse with Jesus about his approaching death at Jerussiem, the thing about which the disciples refused to talk.

Lesson for April 23.

The disciples were so steeped in selfishness that they were wrangling over official position while the Lord was facing the cross.

Lesson for April 30.

Jesus as a son was faithful to his parents. In this lesson he sets forth the truth concerning marriage, which is the foundation of the home.

Lesson for May 7.

The supreme purpose of Christ's coming into the world was to die for the salvation of sinners. Through the cross, judgment was passed upon the world, and Satan was cast out.

Lesson for May 14.

Jesus entered Jerusalem and officially presented himself as King to the Jewish nation, according to prophecy. He exercised kingly authority in cursing the fig tree and driving out the money changers.

Lesson for May 21.

The Pharisees, scribes, and Sadducees sought to entrap Jesus so as to hinder his work. The very ones who should have welcomed him sought to destroy him.

Lesson for May 28.

This lesson affords a study of a prophetic outline of events in the interval between Christ's crucifixion and his second coming. According to this outline the present age shows increasing evidence of the near coming of the Lord.

Lesson for June 4.

The black crime of Jesus' betrayal was committed immediately following the beautiful act of Mary's devotion to the Lord (John 12:1).

Lesson for June 11.

The crucifixion of Christ is the grand climax of the lessons for the last six months, and without apprehending its significance, all other lessons are meaningless. Christ saves, not by his ethical teaching, but by his shed blood.

Lesson for June 18.

The resurrection of Christ was announced by an angel, and he was afterward seen by many. Conviction touching the reality of Christ's resurrection is absolutely necessary in order to be an effective witness for him.

The Other Road

"A life of self effort will never reach the place where we shall glorify God; the other road is a road of faith; if you wouldest believe, thou shalt see the glory of God: let him do the thing for us."—Rev. Guy H. King.

St. John's Gospel

"St. John's gospel begins with the son in the bosom of the father (1, 18), and it ends with the sinner in the bosom of the son" (13, 23).—Mr. H. B. Stewart.

THIRTY-EIGHT MARRIAGES PERFORMED DURING WEEK

Is Largest Number for Week's Period During Past Year

Thirty-eight marriage licenses were issued during the week ending Monday at noon from the office of the Clerk of the Circuit Court, bringing the total for June thus far to 84. This is the largest number of licenses on record for any one week during the past year.

Six of the licenses were issued on Monday, while fourteen were granted on Saturday. Six of those issued were marked "don't publish."

FRIENDSVILLE

Baseball Games

Last Thursday Grantsville baseball team played here with the local team. Ten innings were played with a tied score—3-3—and the lateness of the hour brought the game to a close.

Sunday's game with Peerless here ended in a victory for Friendsville—5-3.

Teachers Appointed

There has been but one change announced in the grammar school faculty here. Mr. Kessner, of Jennings, will teach the McCabe school this year and Merril Frantz, a local young man, will take Mr. Kessner's place in the faculty. The high school faculty remains the same for the coming year.

Fourth of July Celebration

The Fourth of July will be celebrated in Friendsville with an all-day picnic and plenty of amusement will be afforded. Baseball games, etc., will be featured. The affair is being sponsored by the local fire company and the support of the people of the town and community is requested.

A COMPANY THIRTY YEARS OLD

Last Friday the Ford Motor Company completed 30 years of automobile making.

It is also my fortieth year at the same job. I made my first engine in 1893, and it still runs. This is the engine that won the Selden Patent Suit—which took the motor car out of the exclusive class, and opened the automobile industry to hundreds of manufacturers who started during the last 30 years.

Some of the men who began with me that June day in 1903, are working here yet. All of the principles we laid down then, are still operative; we find that they have great survival value for the future. To date they have produced and sold over 21,000,000 Ford cars.

Although we created the automobile market we have never thought it was good for anyone to monopolize it. We have always believed that before business could be good for one, it must be good for all. Our discoveries and improvements have always been open to other manufacturers without patent restrictions.

Of course, there is one thing we cannot share—everyone must get it for himself—and that is experience. Money could duplicate our buildings and machines, but it cannot duplicate 40 years of experience. And it is experience that makes a motor car.

But the past does not especially concern me; it has all been a preparation for the future. For myself, I feel that I have just been gathering the tools to do something worth while, and that my real task is still ahead.

Great changes are upon the world. False ideas of every kind are vanishing in the general upheaval. Those who built truly on principle will survive—their service will carry over. Business integrity and commodity honor will be fully justified. And newer and better ways of living will appear.

That is the outlook for this young thirty-year old Company of ours.

OWNERS ARE URGED NOT TO LET DOGS RUN LOOSE

Increase Noted In Injuries to Children by Bites of Animals

A baby eight months old, who was bitten by a neighbor's dog, was referred to the Pasteur Division of the State Department of Health recently for treatment to prevent rabies from developing. Fortunately, prompt investigation showed that the dog was not mad. so the baby was spared the ordeal of the fourteen treatments required to give protection against the disease and the parents were relieved of the anxiety and dread that accompany an experience of that sort. Of the remaining 119 persons for whom the Pasteur treatment was requested during May, because they had either been bitten or otherwise injured by animals believed to be rabid, or had been in contact with such animale, 44 were young children under ten years old, 28 were between ten and fifteen, and the rest were older. Treatments were started for 31 and were completed for 15. They were discontinued or not started, for the rest, when it was found that the animals by which the injuries were inflicted, were normal.

"Rabies, or hydrophobia, as it used to be called. is the terrible disease that is caused by the bite of an animal," Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the State Department of Health, said, calling attention to the increase in injuries to children and warning against the danger from homeless dogs or from other dogs running at large. "The disease spreads," he continued, "from dogs to other animals by the bite of a rabid animal. Human beings contract it either through being bitten or otherwise injured by rabid animals. They can also acquire it through the saliva from animals coming in contact with broken or scratched places in the skin.

"The disease is fatal, if allowed to develop. The only way to prevent its development in human beings is by the prompt cauterization of the injury and the prompt administration of the Pasteur treatment. No time should be lost getting it started.

"Care should be taken not to kill animals unnecessarily. All dogs that are snapping or biting or otherwise acting suspiciously, should be tied up, humanely cared for, but kept where they can't endanger lives, and under the observation of a veterinarian. If the dog is mad, symptoms of rabies will soon develop, and the animal will die within seven days.

"When a dog is mad or is believed to be mad is killed, the head should be carefully packed in ice in a tight container and shipped to the laboratory of the State Department of Health for examination. Certain changes that appear in the brain will show whether or not the dog was mad.

"Over 1500 persons in Maryland have been given the protective treatment against rabies through the Pasteur Division of the State Department of Health since 1915, when the Pasteur treatments were taken over by the Department. Dr. C. W. G. Rohrer, who has been in charge of the Division since its establishment calls attention to the increase in rabies in animals in different parts of the State, and to the increase in injuries inflicted by homeless or stray dogs. For the protection of human beings, and also of the animals themselves, he urges dog owners not to let their dogs run at large."

BITTINGER

Three frosts, one of them decidedly severe, did eonsiderable damage to small vegetables in this community during the past week.

Dr. and Mrs N. R. Davis, Grantsville, visited this village last Sunday.

Hazel Broadwater, aged about six years, is suffering as the result of an attack of pneumonia at the home of her aunt, Mrs. John Bcitzell.

Asa J. Orendorf motored to Oakland on a business mission last Friday.

Robert MacLaughlin, who has bcen at the nome of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Beachy for the past two years, left here last Sunday to take up his home with an aunt.

A daily vacation Bible school, with a large enrollment, is being conducted at the Glades Mennonite church this week, with regular church services each evening.

Mrs. E. Z. Tower, of Oakland, was a caller in this village last Saturday morning.

Loring Green and Mr. Wilt, of the Dry Run settlement, were business callers in Bittinger one dav last week.

The Bittinger baseball team will hold a social on the ball grounds, near Broadwater's Grove, next Saturday evening, June 24th, to which all are invited.

Lewis Broadwater, of near New Germany, was among the callers here last week.

Thomas Wiley, who has been spending the past few weeks with relatives here, was called back to work in Canton, Ohio, last Thursday.

William Swauger, of Grantsville, was here on business last Saturday.

George Houck, of Grantsville, was a recent Bittinger visitor.

Victor McQuigan, of McKeesport, Pa., visited relatives here last week.

Revives Following Collapse

J. W. Calhoun, an aged resident of Loch Lynn Heights, collapsed on the pavement in front of the Garrett National Bank building Monday afternoon, but was revived within a few moments after being carried to the office of Dr. McComas by Harland L. Jones and Harold Dawson.

HOYES

The two severe frosts of last week did considerable damage in this community. Garden vegetables in many instances were frozen and some wheat fields were greatly damaged. However, replanting and replacing plants is being done.

Paul DeWitt and family, of Oakland, spent Sunday evening with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. O. DeWitt.

Mrs. Hamilton Friend, who has been quite ill for the past few weeks, is slightly improved at this writing. Miss Nell Browning, of Oakland, is her nurse.

Members of the local Sunday school are preparing a Children's Day program to be given Saturday evening, June 24, at the M. E. church. Mrs. Webb DeWitt and Mrs. J. A. DeWitt have charge of the training of those to have part in the program.

James Rush and family, of Accident, and Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Paugh and little daughter, of Deer Park, spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Asa Friend.

Mr. and Mrs. D. O. DeWitt had as dinner guests last Sunday Mr. and Mrs. McNeil Casteel and little son, Mrs. Hamill Casteel and daughter Mary and Mrs. Kermit Glotfelty and two children.

The people of our community are donating their time and services in painting and repairing our church; also in cleaning and beautifying the cemetery and grounds surrounding the church.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Smith, of Oakland, spent a few hours with Mr. and Mrs. W. Z. Hendrickson in Cumberland last Sunday, after which they visited Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Smith at this place for a few hours Sunday evening.

NEW GERMANY

Among the pupils of the New Germany school who had perfect attendance for 1932-1933 were Bernice, Billy and Olive Otto, Mabel Broadwater and Mahlon Warnick.

Those who had not missed more than five days were Grace Otto, Anna Dieling and Robert Warnick.

The following were not tardy during the year: Darlene, Mahlon and Robert Warnick and George Dieling.

At the elementary closing exercises held in Grantsville last week some of the pupils participated in a play entitled, "The Tree that Saved Connecticut." The following pupils took part: Bernice, Billy and Olive Otto, Cecil Raley, Robert Warnick, Anna Dieling, Ruth Stephen and Mabel Broadwater.

DIED.

MRS. ELIZA FOYE

Mrs. Eliza Foye, 73 years old, widow of Frank Foye, died Monday morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Harry W. Seaber, Westernport, after an illness of seven weeks. She was a native of Barton. Besides Mrs. Seaber, Mrs. Foye is survived by other children, among them being Mrs. John Michael, of Oakland.

EDWARD JAMES

Edward James, 39, who conducted a drug store at Kitzmiller, died Friday morning at Potomac Valley Hospital, Keyser, W. Va., after an illness of three weeks. He was a native of Thomas, W. Va., where his father, Grant James, resides. Surviving also are his widow, who was Miss Mary Mullen, of Piedmont, W. Va., and three children, Colleen, Glenn and William.

The funeral was held Monday afternoon from the home with burial at Westernport.

MARRIED

Miller—Townshend—Miss Eleanor Townshend, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Townshend, of Oakland, and Mr. Stanley Frederick Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Miller, of Silver Spring, Md., were married shortly after noon on Sunday in St. Mark's Lutheran church. Rev. C. A. Shilke, pastor of the church, performed the ceremony which was witnessed by a few close friends and relatives.

The bride was attended hy her sister, Miss Martha Townshend, while Ernest Townshend, Jr., acted as best man. Mrs. Miller is a graduate of Oakland High School, class of 1924, and has been employed for several years in the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. The groom is employed by the Martin Aircraft Company, Baltimore, as a mechanic.

Out of town guests at the wedding were Miss Frances Snyder, Ralph Neff and John Jordan, of Washington.

Following the ceremony the couple left by motor for Washington and Baltimore.

Amick—Bingell—Miss Anna Jeannette Bingell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Bingell, of Warwood, Wheeling, W, Va., and Rev. Howard Amick, son of Mrs. G. W. W. Amick and the late Rev. Amick, were married on June 1 in Warwood Lutheran church. The ceremony was read by Rev. E. P. Windman, Everett, Pa., brother-in-law of the bridegroom. The bride's sister, Miss Bessie Bingell, was the maid of honor. Rev. Amick had as his best man Rev. Geo. Kunkel, New Haven, W. Va., a classmate.

Immediately after the service a wedding breakfast was served, after which the couple left for a motor trip through the south. The bride is a Girl Scout leader and has been teacher in North Warwood school since her graduation from West Liberty Teachers' College.

Rev. Amick received his education at Thiel College, his seminary work at Wittenburg, Springfield, Ohio, and has been pastor of Warwood Lutheran church for the past four years. He was formerly of Accident, Garrett county.

Roberts—Caldwell—In Washington, D. C., on Saturday, June 17th, Miss Corinthia Caldwell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Frederick Caldwell, of Baltimore, and Dr. Eldred Roberts, formerly of Westernport, now of Baltimore, were married, and will be at home after July 1 at 6010 York Road, Baltimore. Mrs. Roberts is a teacher in one of the Baltimore City schools, while Dr. Roberts, completing his medical education at the U. of M., has hecn superintendent of the Franklin Square Hospital for the past two years, which position he has resigned to enter private practice. Dr. and Mrs. Roberts spent yesterday in Oakland with Mr. and Mrs. Benj. H. Sincell and family.

Poling-Radaker—The home of Rev. L. I. McDougle, in Washington, D. C., was the scene of a wedding of simplicity Wednesday night, June 7, when Mrs. Thelma O. Gnegy Radaker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Noah Gnegy, of near Oakland, became the bride of Herbert Maurice Poling, son of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Poling, of Bloomington, Indiana.

The bride wore an ensemble of white sheer crepe with a close fitting turban of the same material and white accessories, and wore a corsage bouquet of bride's roses. Her only attendant was Mrs. William RuSel Cockrill, of Fairfax, Virginia, and Washington, D. C., who wore an ensemble of blue crepe with a white turban and accessories. Mr. William RuSel Cockrill was best man.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held at the Madrillion Restaurant.

After June 15th Mr. and Mrs. Poling will be at home at 3518 Thirteenth Street, N. W., Washington, D. C., until August, when they will move to Bloommgton, Ind.

Deer Park Postoffice Rating Is Reduced

Ten Maryland postoffices were reduced in status today in the Postoffice Department's annual readjustment.

The changes will go into effect on July 1 and will be accomplished by reductions in salaries of the postmasters at the respective offices.

Easton was reduced from first class to second; Lonaconing, Ocean City, Upper Marlboro were reduced from second to third class; seven third class offices were reduced to fourth class offices. In the case of these the postmasterships will no longer he Presidential appointments. They are Barton, Deer Park, Fort Washington, Midland, Sharpsburg, Sharptown and Westover.

Only twenty-two postoffices were raised in status throughout the country this year and none of these were in Maryland.

Thirty-seven West Virginia postoffices were reduced and include Kingwood, Piedmont, Terra Alta, from second to third class, and Bayard and Gormania from third to fourth class.

Style is worth money!..and that makes the STYLE LEADER worth more

Do you know that you can actually save money—sometimes a considerable amount—by choosing the Style Leader when you buy a new car? For the more advanced in style your new car is, the longer it holds its own in appearance—and the more it is worth at re-sale.... And there is no doubt that the STYLE LEADERS of 1933 are the new Oldsmobiles. Just a look at them, and you know that other cars will be a long time catching up. Next year and the year after, you'll be driving with pride the Oldsmobile you buy today.... And, of course, style is not the only thing about these new Oldsmobiles you'll enjoy for a long time—for their engineering and performance are just as far ahead of the conventional as is their appearance. In fact, your whole car will be strictly modern for a long time to come if you buy an Oldsmobile.... Prices are the lowest in ten years—$745 for the new Six—and $845 for the new Straight Eight—f. o. b. Lansing.... Come in today and drive the Style Leader.

Commencement Exercises

A large number of patrons and friends attended the commencement exercises of the elementary schools of Grantsville Supervisory Unit held in W. O. W. Hall last Wednesday afternoon. One hundred fifty seventh grade graduates were awarded diplomas. Thirty-five of these were from Grantsville school. An interesting program was rendered under the supervision of Miss Kate Bannatyne, district supervisor, as follows:

Musical selections, Grade 2, Grantsville school; musical selections, primary grades, Jennings school; historical play, "Ethan Allen and His Green Mountain Men," grade VII, of Grantsville school; musical selections, Grade III, Grantsville school; musical selections, McKenzie school; musical selections, Grade IV, Grantsville school; historical play, "The Charter Oak," New Germany school; musical selections, upper grades, Jennings school; musical selections, McKenzie school; musical selections, Grades V and VI, Grantsville school, followed by the awarding of certificates to seventh grade graduates by Prof. Mullinix.

The High School commencement exercises were held in the Lutheran church on Thursday evening. The building was filled to overflowing with patrons of the school and friends of the graduates. Miss Rachel Holmes played a march as the graduates and speakers marched to their seats. The invocation was pronounced by Rev. S. D. Sigler; the address was by Dr. Richard Aspinall, of the University of West Virginia; two musical selections by the senior class and a duet by Harlene and Pauline Patton, were rendered; Rosella Younkin read a paper, her own composition, on "Education"; diplomas were presented by County Superintendent F. E. Rathbun.

The following medals were presented by Miss Elizabeth Houck: For outstanding scholarship, loyalty and achievement, Miss Rosella Younkin, the gift of the L. G. Balfour Co., with honorable mention to Margaret Mary Blocher and Rhoda McKenzie; a medal donated by the Sons of the American Revolution, for citizenship and loyalty, to Raymond Loechel, with honorable mention to Clarence Murphy.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By FRANK P. LITSCHERT

One of the soundest contributions to American economics, published in many years is the address "National Ideals and International Idols" delivered to the Wharton Alumni Institute, at Philadelphia, recently by Wallace B. Donham, Dean of the graduate school of Business Administration, Harvard University, and printed in the Harvard Business Review of April, 1933. Some copies of the speech in printed form have been issued by the Chemical Foundation Inc., in New York City, of which has been called to the attention of the writer of this column. The address is comprehensive and convincing and should be read by every serious student of American and international affairs. It destroys many of the fond international illusions which have been built up in this country during the past few dozen years and points the way to solid recovery on a national foundation.

We have had so much bunk about restoring our prosperity through international agreements, the lowering of tariffs and the settling of troubles by a solemn power of delegates that the words of Dean Donham come like the blessed relief of a summer shower, settling the dust of error and clarifying the atmosphere of doubt. To review them would be impossibble in one brief column. They form one of those documents that "must be read to be appreciated."

For example, in dealing with the popular fallacy of restoring our prosperity through foreign trade Dean Donham says in part:

"The burst of foreign trade during and after the war was an exotic growth. Until we realize this, our nation policies will be confused and our international policies inconsistent.

"There are bad times ahead in the international markets, and we shall do Europe a disservice if we secure competitors to secure an increasing share of these markets. We shall not succeed, for Europe must win such a competitive race or be lost.

"No international trade plan that involves our active efforts to expand foreign trade can be sound for Europe, nor can any such plan even if sound for Europe, be a safe basis on which to rebuild our industry.

"We should look afresh at our relations to foreign trade. How important has it been?

"Our per capita exports in 1931 were only four per cent of our per capita income and six per cent of our per capita production. Shall we allow such small percentages to control our future?

"We have lost less than 4 per cent of our volume in agriculture, mineral and manufactured production thru the collapse of foreign trade, but we have lost 45 per cent to 55 per cent of volume of manufaceured goods right in the home market.

"Shall we seek to restore the four per cent in the international field and to increase the volume of manufactured goods several fold, or shall we try to regain a far larger volume at home? We cannot do both.

"The fetish of internationalism is indeed worshiped as an idol."

Dean Donham has done his country, and the whole world for that matter, a distinct service in this address, and other intellectual accomplishments adong the same line. It is to be hoped that his voice and pen will not falter in the effort to instill economic truth in the minds of his countrymen.

THE MARYLAND BIBLE SOCIETY'S CORNER

"The Word of Our God Shall Stand Forever"

The Book of Ecclesiastes, or the Preacher, as our English version terms it, doubtless received its title from its didactic character. Its authorship is doubtful, but is commonly ascribed to Solomon. Many of the experiences recorded in Ecclesiastes correspond to those likely to have happened in his life, judging from the slender outline of his history found in the Bible.

A pessimistic tone runs through the book. Pondering the problem of human existence, the author exclaims again and again, "All is vanity." "Is life worth living" might well be taken as the subject of the book. However, we may question the worth of the struggle to live, as based upon the carlier arguments presented, the ultimate conclusion justifies the effort: "Fear God and keep His commandments; for this is the whole duty of man. For God shall bring every work into judgment, with every secret sin, whether it be good or whether it be evil."

Solomon saw life at its best; had everything that heart could wish; used his vast powers for his own pleasure. Ecclesiastes is the cry of a soul disappointed by the emptiness of selfish living. Lord Byron expressed it thus:

I have had my will, tasted every pleasure,
I have drunk my fill of the purple measure,
Life has lost its zest,
Sorrow is my guest,
And oh, the lees are bitter, bitter,
Let me rest.

The book represents the search of the natural man for satisfaction and happiness. This search traverses the fields of philosophy, or the seeking of wisdom; worldly pleasure; the cultivation of the earth; the accumulation of great possessions. All of these fail to bring the ultimate satisfaction. Two general conclusions are reached: (a) The wise man is superior to the fool. (b) Epicureanism becomes the philosophy of the materialist, that is, that there is nothing better than to eat and drink and enjoy life.

However, while the pleasures of the natural man are given away for a season, Truth bears away the victory. Wisdom is pre-eminent, though often unappreciated. "Wisdom is better than strength," declares the preacher, "nevertheless the poor man's wisdom is despised, and his words are not heard."

The best known chapter of this book is the twelfth, which is a practical description of old age, the closing words of which point out the highest duty of man. This chapter, like many of the Proverbs, is a challenge to youth, a call to the spiritual interpretation of life ere the calamities and ills of old age overtake us: "Remember now thy Creator in the days of thy youth, while the evil days come not, nor the years draw nigh when thou shalt say, I have no pleasure in them."

Canning Fruits and Vegetables

For any family that must economize, now is the time to think about food for next winter. Most housewives are interested in methods of canning which will result in a good product and which insures against spoilage. The old-time method was to cook the food, pack it boiling hot into hot containers, and seal it quickly to shut out air. This is the "open-kettle" method and it works with fruits and tomatoes, provided there is no contamination at the moment between packing and sealing the containers. A later method is the "cold-pack," by which the food is packed cold and the filled container is "processed," or sterilized, in a water-bath or pressure canner. The Bureau of Home Economics recommends the "hot-pack" method, however, in preference to either of these. For the "hot-pack" the food is heated in a minimum quantity of liquid, in order to reduce the bulk and drive out air. Then the containers are packed with the boiling hot food and processed in a water-bath.

Detailed demonstrations and discussions of canning methods will be given at the District Canning meetings held by the Garrett County Extension Service. Women interested in better and safer methods should plan to attend.

The following method for canning strawberries will insure a product which will not float.

Canned Strawberries

For 1 quart of herries use ¼ to ½ c. sugar (according to tartness of berries). Place in kettle in alternate layers—the fruit and sugar—having last layer sugar. Cover kettle and let stand 10 to 12 hours. Heat slowly to boiling, pack, fill jar with hot syrup of fruit juice and process 15 to 20 minutes in water-bath.

Strawberry Preserves

One quart berries, 1½ cups sugar, none to ¼ cup juice.

Hull and clean berries. Make syrup of sugar and juice. Add berries to partly cooled syrup and bring gently to boil. Boil rapidly until berries are tender, clear and bright (2-3 minutes). Cool rapidly, stand in syrup to plump. Pack, add reheated syrup, seal and store. (Berries may be sugared down alternate layers of sugar and herries for 12 to 24 hours, then brought gently to boil and boiled rapidly until done—2-3 minutes.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

Franklin T. Fike, plaintiff, vs. Aca A. Thomas, Sidna L. Thomas, Earl H. Thomas, Iva M. Thomas, Sylvia A. Chase, Arthur Chase, and Elvira Thomas, heirs at law of Joseph Thomas, deceased, defendants.

No. 3136 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree for the sale of certain real estate situate in Garrett County, Maryland, for the purpose of paying and satisfying the claims of the creditors of the said Joseph Thomas, deceased.

The Bill states—

That the said Joseph Thomas was, in his lifetime, indebted unto the plaintiff in the sum of Five Hundred Dollars and interest thereon from December 7th, 1931.

That the said Joseph Thomas, being so indebted to the plaintiff and divers other persons, and having real estate of great value, departed this life on December 4th, 1931, intestate, leaving a widow and the following named children surviving him as his heirs at law:

(a) Aca A. Thomas, who has intermarried with Sidna L. Thomas, both of whom are of full age, and who reside in the State of Pennsylvania;

(b) Earl H. Thomas, who has intermarried with Iva M. Thomas, both of whom are of full age and who reside in the State of Pennsylvania;

(c) Sylvia A. Thomas, who has intermarried with Arthur Chase, both of whom are of full age and reside in Garrett County, Maryland;

(d) Elvira Thomas, widow, who resides in Garrett County, Maryland.

That the said Joseph Thomas, deceased, died Intestate, and if he left any personal estate, it was not sufficient to pay his debts, and no letters of administration ever were granted by the Orphans' Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

That the said Joseph Thomas, deceased, died seized and possessed of certain real estate as will appear by reference to certain deeds from Isaac T. Umhel et ux. and from Isaiah Umbel et ux. to the said Joseph Thomas, certified copies of said deeds being filed and made a part of the bill.

The bill prays that the said real estate, or so much thereof as may be necessary, may be sold for the payment of the aforesaid debts, for general relief and an order of publication against the said non-resident defendants.

It is thereupon, this 31st day of May, 1933, ordered by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland, in Equity, that the plaintiff, by causing a copy of this order of publication to be inserted in some newspaper published in Garrett county, Maryland, once in each of four successive weeks before the 30th day of June, 1933, give notice to the said non-resident defendants of the object and substance of this bill, warning them to appear in this Court, in person or by solicitor, on or before the 15th day of July, 1933, to show cause, if any they have, why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.

ALBERT L. LEE,
Late Treasurer of Garrett County, Maryland.

CHAPTER 168.

Relative to the Publication of Notices of Property Advertised and Sold for Taxes by the County Treasurer of Garrett County.

AN ACT to repeal and re-enact with amendments Section 109 of Article 12 of the Code of Public Local Laws of Maryland (1930 Edition) title "Garrett County," sub-title "County Treasurer," so as to reduce the cost of advertising tax sales.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, That Section 109 of Article 12 of the Code of Public Local Laws of Maryland (1930 Edition), title "Garrett County," sub-title "County Treasurer," be and it is hereby repealed and re-enacted with amendments to read as follows:

109. Whenever it becomes necessary for said Treasurer to enforce the payment of taxes by a sale of realty he shall advertise such real estate or so much thereof as may be necessary, once a week for three successive weeks in one newspaper published in Garrett county, and by hand bills posted at the court house door, and at least five places in the district where the land is located, any advertised notice of a sale under the provisions of this sub-title of this article, shall be deemed sufficient if it contains the time, terms and place of such sale, the year or years for which the taxes are due and the amount of same, to whom the property is assessed, the district where located, the quantity of land offered for sale, the name or number of the tract or lot of land, if it bear a name or number, and is so assessed, and the street number if located in a town or city; and in no ease shall a description by metes and bounds courses and distances be required, unless it shall be necessary for the identification and location of such part or parts of real estate as may be sold under a sub-division thereof as provided in the next preceding section; no levy upon land shall be required where the same is sold by the treasurer by virtue of the provisions of this sub-title of this Article, and no notice or notices other than those provided for in this section shall be necessary or required to make valid any sale authorized to be made. No fee for the examination of the title of land to be sold or sold for taxes shall be allowed as part of the costs of said sale or shall be paid by the County Treasurer or County Commissioners. In order to reduce the expense of advertising the said Treasurer shall include the notices of tax sales in one advertisement whenever he shall be proceeding with the sale of more than one lot or parcel of land or with the sale of land assessed to more than one delinquent. The advertisement when prepared by the County Treasurer shall be submitted to all newspapers published in Garrett County in order to obtain bids for the publishing of the same and said publication shall be awarded to the paper making the lowest bid. The costs of publishing such advertisement, as herein required, shall be equally distributed among the several tracts or lots of land herein named, and the amount thereby apportioned to each tract of land shall be added to the sum for which such tract or lot is sold, and the same shall be paid from the proceeds thereof by the County Treasurer, except that, when any tract or lot sold at such sale is purchased by the County Commissioners the sum due for such publication shall be paid out of the general county funds.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That this Act is hereby declared to be an emergency law and necessary for the immediate preservation of the public health and safety, and being passed by a yea and nay vote, supported by three-fifths of all the members elected to each of the two Houses of the General Assembly, the same shall take effect from the date of its passage.

CHAPTER 333.

Relating to the Town of Oakland, authorizing the Mayor and Town Council of said town to contribute to the maintenance of the Free Public Library and Musical Organization.

AN ACT to repeal and re-enact with amendments Section 427 of Article 12 of the Code of Public Local Laws of Maryland (1930 Edition), title "Garrett County," sub-title "Oakland," and authorizing the Mayor and Town Council to contribute to the maintenance of the free public library and musical organization.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, That Section 427 of Article 12 of the Code of Public Local Laws of Maryland (1930 Edition), title "Garrett County," sub-title "Oakland," be and the same is hereby repealed and re-enacted with amendments to read as follows:

427. That Council shall have power to pass all ordinances not unconstitutional with the existing laws of the State, as they may deem necessary for the good government of the town, for the preservation of peace and good order, and securing persons and property from violence, danger and destruction; for the removal of nuisances, no matter from what source proceeding, and all obstructions from the streets, lanes and alleys, and from any lot adjoining thereto within the limits of the town; for the removal of any dangerous house or buildings; for the paving, grading, repairing, drainage, leveling, surveying, laying out, extending, widening, opening, closing, straightening, re-locating, improving or repairing any street, sidewalk or alley in said town; and may condemn or purchase the right of way of any street or alley which they may determine should be opened for the public good; for the preservation of property rights and privileges; for the regulation of sales of the streets, alleys or public places in said town; for the weighing of hay, coal and other property; for the suppression of vice and immorality; for the suppression of concealed weapons; for the suppression of the practice of discharging firearms, fire-crackers, torpedoes or other explosives; for regulating the handling and storing of all kinds of explosives; for the prevention of gambling; for licensing of theatricals or other public amusements; to suppress tramps; for lighting the streets; for preventing swine, cattle, dogs or other animals from running at large on the streets; for imposing a tax on dogs; for locating of hog pens, privies and stables; and the Mayor and Town Council shall have power and full authority to pass all such ordinances as may be necessary to carry out and give full force and effect to the powers conferred upon said corporation by law; and be it further enacted, that the Mayor and Town Council shall have the right to provide for the organization, equipment and government of fire companies and to permit said fire companies to organize as a body, and to provide within itself all rules and regulation of its members and property appertaining thereto, subject to the general supervision of the said Mayor and Town Council; and be it further enacted that the said Mayor and Town Council of Oakland be and they are hereby empowered, in their discretion to contribute to the support and maintenance of a free public library and the Gilbert-Brown Boys Band, or such other musical organization as may succeed the same, if said library and/or said musical organization be maintained within said town, a sum not to exceed two hundred dollars for each of said organizations in any one year, and to include the same in the annual levy provided for by Section 418 of this Article.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That this Act shall take effect June 1, 1933.

CHAPTER 87.

Relating to the Amount of Money to be Levied by the County Commissioners for the Expenses of the State's Attorney for Garrett County.

AN ACT to repeal and re-enact with amendments Section 501 of Article 12 of the Code of Public Local Laws of Maryland (1930 Edition), title "Garrett County," sub-title "State's Attorney," as said section was amended by Chapter 211 of the Acts of 1931, reducing the amount to be paid to the State's Attorney for Garrett County for expenses.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, That Section 501 of Article 12 of the Code of Public Local Laws of Maryland (1930 Edition), title "Garrett County," sub-title "State's Attorney," as said section was amended by Chapter 211 of the Acts of 1931, be and it is hereby repealed and re-enacted with amendments to read as follows:

501. The State's Attorney for Garrett County shall receive an annual salary of fifteen hundred dollars, which salary shall be paid to him by the County Commissioners of said county, payable quarterly by warrant on the County Treasurer, and the said Commissioners shall likewise pay to him for the year 1933 and each year thereafter the sum of three hundred ($300.00) dollars, said sum to cover all the expenses of his office, including stationery, postage and necessary traveling expenses. It shall be the duty of the Sheriff of said county to collect and pay over to said county any appearance or other fee taxed as part of the costs payable to the State's Attorney in any eriminal case.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That this Act shall take effect June 1, 1933.

CHAPTER 465.

Authorizing the Board of County Commissioners to Remove Its Clerk for Inefficiency and Limiting the Compensation said Clerk shall Receive for his Services.

AN ACT to repeal and re-enact with amendments Section 87 of Article 12 of the Code of Public Local Laws of Maryland (1930 Edition) title "Garrett County," sub-title "County Commissioners," authorizing the Board of County Commissioners of Garrett County to move its Clerk for inefficiency and limiting the compensation of said Clerk.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, That Section 87 of Article 12 of the Code of Public Local Laws of Maryland (1930 Edition) title "Garrett County," sub-title "County Commissioners," be and it is hereby repealed and re-enacted with amendments, to read as follows:

87. At the General Election of County officers of Garrett County, to be held in said County November, 1917, and every four years thereafter, a Clerk to the Board of County Commissioners shall be elected by the qualified voters of said county who shall hold office of Clerk for the term of four years from the time of his election and qualification or until his successor is elected and qualified and shall be subjected to removal from said office for inefficiency or for any wilful neglect of duty or misbeheavior in office at any time by the County Commissioners of said county, who shall have power to appoint some competent person for the unexpired term of the Clerk so removed, said Clerk shall he paid for his services the sum of twelve hundred dollars per annum, payable in monthly instalments of one hundred dollars at the expiration of each and every month by the treasurer of Garrett County from the funds of said county, and the said clerk shall have full power to administer an oath or affirmation to any and all persons who are to be examined as witnesses in any matter before the County Commissioners, and touching or relating to any account, bill or other matter to be filed in the office of said County Commissioners; the said salary of twelve hundred dollars per annum shall be full compensation for all services required of said clerk, who shall keep the office of County Commissioners open from nine o'clock in the forenoon until four o'clock in the afternoon, and who shall attend therein for the transaction of business on every day of the week except Sundays and legal holidays. No additional compensation shall be paid said Clerk for extra work nor shall the County Commissioners pay any one for assisting said Clerk.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That this Act is hereby declared to be an emergency law and necessary for the immediate preservation of the public health and safety, and having been passed by a yea and nay vote, supported by three-fifths of all of the members elected to each of the two Houses of the General Assembly, the same shall take effect from the date of its passage.

CHAPTER 96.

Fixing the Fees Paid Auctioneers by the County Treasurer for Crying Tax Sales.

AN ACT to repeal and re-enact with amendments Section 112 of Article 12 of the Code of Public Local Laws of Maryland (1930 Edition), title "Garrett County," sub-title "County Treasurer,"fixing the fee which the Treasurer shall be entitled to charge against each piece of property sold for taxes and to be paid by said Treasurer to the auctioneer for his services in conducting such sale.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, That Section 112 of Article 12 of the Code of Public Local Laws of Maryland (1930 Edition), title "Garrett County," sub-title "County Treasurer," be and the same is hereby repealed and re-enacted with amendments, to read as follows:

112. The treasurer shall be entitled to the following fees: For advertising property for sale under the provisions of Section 109 of this sub-title of this Article, to enforce the payment of taxes, if the property be sold the treasurer shall receive one per cent on the gross amount of sales with his expenses as aforesaid, but if the amount due be paid without sale, he shall receive one per cent on the amount collected and his expenses as aforesaid, to be paid by the party paying, who shall be entitled to an itemized bill; and the treasurer shall be entitled to charge against each piece of property sold for the collection of taxes the sum of fifty cents, to be paid by said treasurer to the auctioneer for his services in conducting the sale; and if the treasurer, or any clerk, agent or deputy of such treasurer shall ask, demand or receive any greater costs or fees than are allowed by the provisions of this section, or shall receive any pay or commission for or on account of any advertising, printing or surveying or any contract therefor, or for anything which may be done under the provisions of any of the sections of this sub-title of this Article, or shall for himself, or any other person, discount or buy, or receive for less than its face or real value, any claim against said county, or certificate of indebtedness issued thereby, the person so offending shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon indictment and conviction, shall pay a fine of not less than one hundred, nor more than five hundred dollars, for each and every such offense, one-half to go to the informer and the other half to the school fund of the county.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That this Act is hereby declared to be an emergency law and necessary for the immediate preservation of the public health and safety, and being passed by a yea and nay vote, supported by three-fifths of all the members elected to each of the two Houses of the General Assembly, the same shall take effect from the date of its passage.

CHAPTER 436.

Relating to the County Commissioners of Garrett County and the expenditure of funds for road purposes.

AN ACT to prohibit the County Commissioners of Garrett County from expending for road purposes the funds about to be received from the present county road levy and to provide that said funds shall go into and become part of the general funds of said county and be used for reducing the tax levy to be made by said County Commissioners in April of 1933.

Whereas, the County Commissioners of Garrett County did in April, 1932, levy a tax upon the assessable property of said county to produce funds for expenditure on the roads of said county; and

Whereas, By an Act of the General Assembly of 1933 funds for said roads will be hereafter provided by and expended by the State Roads Commission; and

Whereas, As a result of said Act of 1933 the funds produced by the said levy of said County Commissioners for road purposes will not be used therefor; now, therefore,

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, That the County Commissioners of Garrett County be and they are hereby prohibited from expending for road purposes of said county the funds received by said County Commissioners from the county tax levy made in April, 1932, and that said County Commissioners be and they are hereby authorized, directed and empowered to credit said funds to the general funds of said county and to use the same for reducing the tax levy about to be made by said County Commissioners in April, 1933.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That this Act is hereby declared to be an emergency law and necessary for the immediate preservation of the public health and safety, and being passed by a yea and nay vote, supported by three-fifths of all the members elected to each of the two Houses of the General Assembly, the same shall take effect from the date of its passage.

CHAPTER 59.

Exempting Garrett County from the Provisions of Section 4 of Article 38 of the Code of Maryland providing for the payment of certain fines and forfeitures to the Bar Library of Garrett County.

AN ACT to repeal and re-enact with amendments Section 4 of Article 38 of the Annotated Code of Maryland (1924 Edition), title "Fines and Forfeitures," as said section was amended by Chapter 225 of the Acts of 1931, exempting Garrett County from the provisions of said section which provides that one-half of the fines and forfeitures shall be paid for the libraries of the several courts.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, That Section 4 of Article 38 of the Annotated Code of Maryland (1924 Edition), title "Fines and Forfeitures," as said section was amended by Chapter 225 of the Acts of 1931, be and it is hereby repealed and re-enacted to read as follows:

4. One-half of the fines imposed and recognizances forfeited to the Circuit Court for the several counties of the State, shall be paid to the clerks of the respective courts, to be expended under the direction of the judge or judges of said courts for the augmentation of libraries of said courts, and all fines and recognizances received by the City Register of Baltimore City from the justices of the peace in Baltimore City and the Sheriff of Baltimore City, as adjudged by and accruing in the Criminal Courts of Baltimore City, and collected and received by or through the said Sheriff, shall be paid by said City Register to the Library Company of the Baltimore Bar for its use and benefit. Said sum, not to exceed, however, in any year the sum of seven thousand and five hundred dollars ($7,500.00). The Boards of County Commissioners of the several counties of this State, and the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore are hereby authorized to provide ample accommodations and facilities for law libraries located in their respective Court Houses. This section not to apply to Montgomery, Queen Anne's, Caroline, Cecil, Anne Arundel and Talbot Counties, provided, that the Bar Library of Garrett County shall only be entitled to receive the sum of Five Hundred Dollars ($500).

Section 2. And be it further enacted, That this Act shall take effect June 1, 1933.

CHAPTER 27.

Pertaining to the Powers of the Mayor and Town Council of the Town of Grantsville authorizing them to issue and sell bonds for Constructing, Erecting and Maintaining a System of Water Works in said Town of Grantsville.

AN ACT to authorize the Mayor and Council of Grantsville to issue and sell bonds for constructing, erecting and maintaining water works in said town of Grantsville, to condemn such land as may be necessary for the building of said water works, and to levy taxes on the assessable property of said town to redeem said bonds and to pay the interest thereon, and to repeal Chapter 282 of the Acts of 1931, entitled "An Act providing for the issuing and sale of bonds by the Mayor and Council of Grantsville for constructing, erecting and maintaining water works in said town of Grantsville, condemn such land as may be necessary for the building of said works, and to levy taxes on the assessable property of said town to redeem said bonds and to pay the interest thereon."

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, That for the purpose of establishing, constructing and maintaining water works capable of furnishing the residents of said town with a good and sufficient supply of water for ordinary purposes and for fire protection, the Mayor and Council of Grantsville be and they are hereby authorized and empowered and directed to issue bonds in the name of the Mayor and Council of Grantsville to an amount not exceeding $25,000.00, or so much thereof as may be necessary for the purpose aforesaid. The said bonds shall be for sums not less than $500.00 each nor more than $1,000.00 each, to be signed by the Mayor and President of the Council and countersigned by the Clerk of the said Mayor and Council with the corporate seal of said town thereto affixed, bearing interest at not more than five per centum per annum, payable semi-annually in each and every year and dated on the first day of their issue. The said bonds shall be numbered serially. Bond No. 1 shall be due and payable three years from date of issue, and thereafter each bond shall mature and he payable each consecutive year from the maturity of Bond No. 1 in the order of their consecutive numbers; provided, however, the Mayor and Council of Grantsville are hereby given the option to redeem any or all bonds outstanding ten years from date of issue; that all of said bonds issued as aforesaid shall be due and payable within twenty-seven years from the date of their issue, and shall forever be exempt from all county and municipal taxation for any purpose, and shall have printed on them a reference to the Act of Assembly authorizing the issue thereof.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That the Mayor and Council of Grantsville are hereby authorized and empowered and directed to construct and erect water works in said town, and to contract for the purchase in fee simple or lease for a term of years renewable at their pleasure, any land, real estate, springs, brooks, water courses, streams, and to use and occupy forever or for a term of years any land, real estate, springs, brooks, water courses or streams which they may deem expedient and necessary for the purposes of furnishing said town with water, and they are hereby invested with all the rights and powers necessary for the induction of water into the said town. If for any cause the said Mayor and Council of Grantsville shall be unable to agree with any owner of real or leasehold property, springs, brooks, water streams or water courses or any other material which partakes of or is a necessary part of realty, or for any right of way which they may find necessary for the conduct of said water system in its entirety into or in said town, or if such owner is under any disability or incapacity to contract or absent out of the county or unknown, the said Mayor and Council of Grantsville is hereby clothed with the power of condemnation under the right of eminent domain as provided in the Public General Laws of Maryland as fully as if the provisions of said laws had been herein incorporated. The said Mayor and Council of Grantsville shall have full power to fix schedules of rates for furnishing water and sewerage to private residences and other buildings, and the said Mayor and Council shall have power to collect the same as other taxes are collected and the income thereof shall be applied first, for expenses and maintenance and afterwards for the payment of the interest on the bonds and a sinking fund to meet the bonds at maturity.

Sec. 3. And be it further enacted, That the title to said water works, and all land, estates and water courses, waterways, conduits, pipes, machinery and all other parts thereto shall, when completed or acquired, vest in the Mayor and Council of Grantsville; and every person who shall knowingly or wilfully pollute any spring, streams, brooks, water course, reservoir or standpipe in connection with the said water works so built or constructed by throwing any impure or delcterious substance or thing into the same, or by swimming, bathing or washing themselves, or by washing clothes or any other thing therein, or by committing any nuisance in or near the sources of supply of the reservoir or standpipe for said water works, so as to pollute the same shall, upon conviction of such offense, be liable to a fine of not less than twenty-five dollars nor more than three hundred dollars for each offense, to be recovered by the Mayor and Council of Grantsville before a justice of the peace, as other fines are recovered, or to imprisonment in the County Jail or House of Correction for a term of not less than six months nor more than eighteen months, or both fine and imprisonment, in the discretion of the justice of the peace, one-half of such fine to go to the informer and the balance to the Mayor and Council of Grantsville for the purpose of this Act.

Sec. 4. And be it further enacted, That for the purpose of redeeming said bonds at their maturity and for securing the prompt payment of the interest thereon, the Mayor and Council of Grantsville shall for the year of the issue of said bonds and annually thereafter until the maturity of said bonds, levy a tax on the assessable property of said town, not exceeding twenty-five cents on the one hundred dollars to pay the interest thereon, and the sum of one thousand dollars for the principal of said debt for the payment of the same at maturity. The said sum of one thousand dollars shall be held and invested by the Mayor and Council of Grantsville as a sinking fund for the redemption of said bonds at their maturity; and the said Mayor and Council of Grantsville shall from time to time deposit the money belonging to said sinking fund and the increment thereof in some safe depository which pays interest on deposits, or shall invest the same in State or other bonds satisfactory to the said Mayor and Council of Grantsville as to them may seem best, or in the purchase or redemption of any of said bonds as may be offered for sale and redemption, and upon the purchase of any such bonds by the said Mayor and Council they shall be immediately cancelled by stamping across their face (cancelled by the sinking fund), and no portion of said sinking fund so levied shall ever be diverted to any other purpose than to the purchase and liquidation of said bonds. The money collected each year by the treasurer or tax collector on account of taxes to the extent of said sum of one thousand dollars shall be set apart for said sinking fund, and a separate account shall be kept thereof and be deposited to the credit of said fund, and no part of which shall be chargeable to insolvencies on account of failure of assessments or collections.

Sec. 5. And be it further enacted, That the money arising from the sale of said bonds (which bonds shall be sold either at auction or by sealed bids or at private sale, in the discretion of the Mayor and Council) shall be deposited in banks to the credit of said Mayor and Council of Grantsville and subject to their check, and the clerk of said town of Grantsville shall keep a book to be specially provided for the purpose of recording the names and addresses of the purchasers of the bonds sold and the amount realized on the sales, together with the serial numbers of the bonds.

Sec. 6. And be it further enacted, That in any prosecution before a Justice of the Peace under Section 3 of this Act, the accused and the Mayor and Council shall have the right of appeal to the Circuit Court for Garrett County within thirty days to a jury trial. Any person or persons convicted before a Justice of the Peace under Section 3 of this Act who shall pray an appeal to the said Court, shall be held by recognizance or be committed to the county jail to appear before the next regular jury term of the Circuit Court for Garrett County.

Sec. 7. And be it further enacted, That the Mayor and Council of Grantsville be and they are hereby authorized and empowered to negotiate, sell and dispose of the said bonds as hereinbefore provided in Section 5 of this Act, or so many thereof as to the Mayor and Council may be deemed necessary for the purposes of this Act, and the said Mayor and Council are fully authorized to make all necessary rules and regulations and to pass all necessary ordinances, with penalties for their violation, and to do all other necessary acts for the proper managing, maintaining and repairing the said water works system and for the protection thereof.

Sec. 8. And be it further enacted, That the funds realized from the sale of said bonds shall he applied to the purposes of this Act and shall be paid by check signed hy the Mayor and President of the Council, and the said Mayor and Council of Grantsville are hereby authorized and empowered to pass such orders for payment of money due for the construction of said water works or to the contractor or contractors for the construction of the same, as shall, from time to time be due or earned by the contractor or contractors in the prosecution of said works, and also from time to time to pass orders for the payment of property purchased or condemned, and for material furnished in pursuance of the provisions of this Act, and may in its discretion employ a competent hydrographical engineer to superintend the work of constructing such water works.

Sec. 9. And be it further enacted, That all Acts and parts of Acts inconsistent with the provisions of this Act be and the same are hereby repealed to the extent of their inconsistency, providing that nothing herein contained shall be taken as affecting Chapter 810 of the Acts of Assembly of 1914, nor as restricting any control which the State Board of Health of Maryland is empowered to exercise within the corporate limits of said town.

Sec. 10. And be it further enacted, That Chapter 282 of the Acts of 1931, entitled "An Act providing for the issuing and sale of bonds by the Mayor and Council of Grantsville for constructing, erecting and maintaining water works in said Town of Grantsville, condemn such land as may be necessary for the building of said works, and to levy taxes on the assessable property of said town to redeem said bonds and to pay the interest thereon," be and it is hereby repealed.

Sec. 11. And be it further enacted, That this Act is hereby declared to be an emergency law and necessary for the immediate preservation of the public health and safety, and being passed upon a yea and nay vote, supported by three-fifths of all the members elected to each of the two Houses of the General Assembly, the same shall take effect from the date of its passage.

CHAPTER 86.

Relating to the Amount of Money to be levied by the County Commissioners for the Expenses of the Sheriff of Garrett County.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, That Section 499 of Article 12 of the Code of Public Local Laws of Maryland (1930 Edition), title "Garrett County," sub-title "Sheriff," be and it is hereby repealed and re-enacted with amendments to read as follows:

499. The County Commissioners of Garrett County are hereby authorized and directed to levy Three Hundred ($300) Dollars annually for the expenses of the Sheriff of said County.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That this Act shall take effect June 1, 1933.

CHAPTER 84.

Relating to Reports of Fines and Fees Imposed by Justices of the Peace and a Return of Same to the Board of County Commissioners and the Money Thus Collected to be Paid to the County Treasurer.

AN ACT to repeal and re-enact with amendments Section 244 of Article 12 of the Code of Public Local Laws of Maryland (1930 Edition) title "Garrett County," sub-title "Justices of the Peace and Constables," so as to provide that all Jutices of the Peace of said county shall make to the County Commissioners of said county reports of fines and fees imposed and that said fines and fees shall be paid to the County Treasurer, and to provide penaltics for the violation thereof.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, That Section 244 of Article 12 of the Code of Public Local Laws of Maryland (1930 Edition), title "Garrett County," sub-title "Justices of the Peace and Constables," be and the same is hereby repealed and re-enacted with amendments so as to read as follows:

244. The aforesaid fees of said constables and Justices for said counties shall be taxed against and paid hy the party against whom judgment shall be rendered, unless he be discharged therefrom by due course of law; if such party against whom judgment is rendered is unable to pay the same, such fees shall be paid by the county wherein said judgment was rendered; and all fines and penalties received by any justice under the provisions of Section 242 shall be accounted for and wholly paid, without Abatement or deduction therefrom by such justice to the County Treasurer of Garrett County, for the use of said county; and no part of any fine or penalty enforced or collected under said section shall be paid to any informer. All fines and penalties belonging to the State of Maryland and received by any Justice shall within ten days after the collection and receipt thereof be accounted for and wholly paid over by said Justice to the proper State official, without abatement or deduction therefrom by said Justice. It shall be the duty of each Justice in said county to make to the County Commissioners of said county once every six months, a report of all fines and penalties imposed and or collected by said Justice during the six months immediately preceding. Said report shall be itemized and shall show in detail what said fines and penalties were imposed and upon whom, and when and by whom paid.

Any Justice of the Peace who shall fail to comply with the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and, upon conviction, shall be subject to a fine of not less than ten nor more than twenty-five dollars for the first offense, and upon conviction of a second offense, shall be subject to a fine of not less than twenty-five nor more than one hundred dollars and removal from office.

Sec. 2 And be it further enacted, That this Act shall take effect June 1, 1933.

MT. LAKE PARK

Municipal Election

A sufficient number of candidates not having filed, there will be no necessity of holding a primary election for the nomination of Mayor and of three Councilmen. The retiring councilmen, Camden, Hipsley, and Schooley, did "not choose to run" for re-election and H. L. Bittner, Louis Killins, and I. E. Hardesty did choose to run. Mr. Utterback at the last minute stepped into the breach and filed to succeed himself. As a matter of course they will be elected, for the election, under the circumstances, will simply mean a ratification meeting. So, your new Mayor will be Utterback and your Council will he made up of Hayden and Elliott, holdovers, and Killius, Hardesty and Bittner.

A snake under the most favorable circumstances is not the most desirable companion. But when you behold a glistening, twisting, coiling body, with redish eyes and forked tongue, weaving in and out on your porch, stalking with deadly quietness birds of which you are very fond, then stark tragedy adds to the note of inborn fear. Such was the disturbing scene which met the eyes of Miss Rachel Weems the other day, as she came out on her porch. She immediately got busy and called Bob Moomaw who soon sent the reptile to snake heaven. It was a black racer which measuerd 58 inches from tip to tip.

Summer School of Missions

You know every once in so often something happens which renews your belief that faith will remove mountains. For awhile it looked as though the Mission School would not be held at the Park this year, owing to the lack of funds. But that little obstacle didn't seem to deter them from trying. An appeal was broadcast and even before any response was received, plans went forward just as though the war bag was bursting with shekels. That's all there is to this story, except the school will be held as usual with a full program.

Mrs. Isobel Hill is disappointed, and her faith in the honesty of some person unknown has been shaken. With much care she selected some healthy and hardy rose bushes this spring to add to her collection. Last week there were nine beautiful blooms, which were greatly admired. On retiring she planned to give a sick friend some pleasure the next morning. But the next morning there were no roses in bloom. During the night some one had entered her yard and plucked every one. She has the right to be disappointed and angry. Certainly ones flowers should be safe from the nimble fingers of prowlers.

Park Improvements

We do not know just what improvements of the Park are planned, or what, indeed, can be done under the circumstances. We do know however, that those in charge will do as much as they can. There is a glorious opportunity in the beautification of Crystal Springs. Whether the cost would be prohibitive or not is another question. But we believe the returns would amply justify the expenditure of a reasonable amount of money and effort. If a good road could be made to the springs and on around the Lake, it would become the most popular drive in the Park. With the water reflecting the lights and shadows of the scrub oak and taller trees, with the soothing note of the song birds, a glimpse of an occasional rabbit and the bullfrog chorus, it makes an ideal twilight drive. We only voice the many hopes we have heard expressed, namely, that something can be done yet this season.

Broadcast Program

Aside from giving a pleasing radio skit over WMMN last Monday afternoon, the Four Fair Fans broadcast some clever and we believe compelling advertisement of Garrett county, as well as of the Mt. Lake Hotel. Just at this time we are firmly of the opinion that with proper advertisement peoply can be induced to come to this mountain top. we have "it" but if we take the veil of silence "it" will profit us nothing.

Female Hoboes

Yesterday we saw for the first time a bunch of girl "B. & O. hitchhikers." Seated under the projection of a steel hopper, two or three girls and as many men seemed to be having a good time viewing the country. A friend who has ridden the rods in years past said that it was a familiar sight in the west. Well, the world do move.

Mayor and Council to Meet

If you have any complaints to make or suggestions to offer you are requested to meet the Mayor and Council in the council room Monday evening, the 26th inst. While quite a program of work has been mapped out, the town authorities are anxious to get the views and suggestions of the property owners of the Park. Cooperation between citizens and the authorities now will be valuable and result in much good. This invitation is general and the Mayor and Conncil hope a large number will be present.

A lot of nothing and something—mostly nothing, as if I really had to tell you.

Today in the tomarrow we worried about yesterday. Nothing happened; why worry? Oh, yeah!

Shooting one another again in the European peace conferences may yet turn out. Should the war clouds begin to gather in this country we hope Congress will pass an act to conscript the money as well as the men, and when they do that you will hear the millionaires go to yelling their heads off for peace. There is no argument for peace like reaching for the bank rolls of the millionaires. The government would have to have a mighty long arm to find anything to conscript on us.

VINDEX-FRIENDSVILLE TIED FOR LEAGUE LEAD

Oakland Loses Tight 11-Inning Contest to Vindex 8 to 7

Vindex, hy winning an eleven-inning contest from Oakland and defeating Peerless 3 to 2 during the past week, is now tied for first place honors with Friendsville in the Mountain State Baseball League.

Friendsville also defeated Peerless 5 to 3 to remain at the top of the division. Sunnyside won its second game of the season by defeating Bayard 5 to 2. Crellin also defeated Bayard 8 to 7. Postponed games on account of weather conditions were Oakland-Friendsville, and Crellin-Bloomington.

Next Sunday's games include Crellin at Vindex; Friendsville at Sunnyside; Oakland at Bayard; Bloomington at Peerless.

Standing of the teams:

Mt. State Baseball League

Team	Won	Lost	Petg.
Friendsville	8	2	800
Vindex	8	2	800
Oakland	5	5	500
Crellin	5	5	500
Bayard	5	6	455
Peerless	4	6	400
Bloomington	3	7	300
Sunnyside	2	7	222

The Oakland-Vindex game Sunday was the first game to go in into eleven innings. Oakland led 7 to 1, but Vindex reduced the lead and finally tied the score in the ninth inning. A run in the eleventh inning decided the contest.

Urged to Vote Against Repeal

At a meeting of the executive board of the West Virginia conference of the Women's Home Missionary society of the M. E. church, held at Clarksburg, W. Va., on June 16, a resolution was adopted protesting against the repeal of the 18th amendment and urged all members to vote accordingly.

Preaches Convention Sermon

Rev. A. B. Harper, of Accident, preached the opening sermon Tuesday evening at the convention of the Women's Missionary Society of the Lutheran Synod of West Virginia, in session at Clarksburg. The conference will end this evening.

Those in attendance from Oakland include Mrs. Benj. H. Sincell, Mrs. T. C. Bittinger, Women's Missionary Society; Mrs. Karl Kahl, Miss Geneva Winters, Young Women's Misssionary Society; Mrs. Foster Bittle, Mary Lyle Glotfelty and Catherine Butt, Light Brigade representatives, and Mrs. C. A. Shilke, as treasurer of the general body.

NEED TIRES?

Get in on these PRICES while they last!

SAFETY you can SEE

Look at this tread, you can see it has big, husky, sure-gripping, quick-stopping blocks of rubber in the center of the tread. That's where you want them for safety, because that's where the tire contacts the road.

Blow-out Protection in every PLY!

Every ply in every Goodyear Tire is built with patented Supertwist—the ply material that stands up longer under the heat and strains of driving, because it is built to stretch and come-back long after ordinary cord breaks down.

• All you need to do is look at these prices to know they're low . . . And take a good look while you're at it—because you may never see such prices again! . . . But the biggest news is—these prices buy GOODYEARS. The best tires Goodyear ever built. Higher in quality—better in mileage—greater in safety than any tires you ever bought before, regardless of price . . . Better hurry and get all the tires you need for a whole summer's driving—because anyone who watches newspapers knows that prices are headed up . . . Don't miss this opportunity to save money on the world's first-choice tires!

ANNUAL CELEBRATION TO CONTINUE ENTIRE WEEK

Fourth Yearly Jubilee Under Auspices of American Legion To Get Under Way July 3

PARADES JULY 4, 6 AND 7

The fourth annual Fourth of July celebration under the auspices of the local post of the American Legion will get under way on Monday, July 3, and will continue throughout the entire week, with parades on three days of prominent drum eorps and local organizations.

The Keystone Attractions company will furnish the entertainment during the week and will arrive in Oakland on Sunday, July 2. They will set up on the Sweeney lot on Third street.

Three Big Days

Three big days have been arranged this year by the Legion committee, beginning with Tuesday, July 4. A parade is to be held on that day at 4:30 p. m., marshaled by A. R. Martin, of Oakland, and a famous Marine sergeant of Cumberland, and headed by Henry Hart Post drum eorps of Cumberland, past national champions and present State champions of the V. F. W., who will arrive here on a special bus. The Piedmont band, junior drum and bugle corps of Oakland, the Crellin and Oakland bands and the local Legion drum corps will also participate.

There will also be a baseball game here on July 4 between the Holy Cross students and Oakland, and other attractions, including a fireworks display.

The parade on July 6 will probably be headed by Uniontown drum corps, Pennsylvania State champions and runners-up for national honors for the past several years. Corps from Meyersdale, Windber, Somerset, Central City, Ligonier, Salisbury and Cumberland are expected, besides local organizations.

The parade on July 7 will include corps from Keyser, Piedmont, Elkins and possibly the 40 and 8 organization from Morgantown, a band from Elkins, Legion posts from Parsons and Davis and local organizations.

Invitations have been sent to officers of the conservation camps in this connty to be present and the local fire department has been requested to stage a water battle with another fire company of a nearby community.

There will be fireworks on the evenings of hoth July 4 and July 7 and a dance is being scheduled for Thursday, July 6. Stands for local concessions will be erected the latter part of the week, it was stated. The Gilbert-Brown Boys' band will have charge of the bingo stand, and other amusements will be provided.

The Keystone Attractions will have a merry-go-round, Ferris wheel, a swing and a number of shows and concessions. Citizens have been requested to write to relatives and their friends urging them to make the week of July 3 a homecoming. Everything possihle is being done by members of the committee to make this celebration a success and a large crowd is expected to attend the various entertainments that are being provided.

The only other local celebrations being held are those at Friendsville and Terra Alta.

Drop Prohibition Agents On Saturday

Willis B. Lightbourne, Ralph S. Tagg, and John B. Bell, who have been operating in this section of Marylnnd, are among the 31 Federal prohibition investigators and other employes in Maryland who will be furloughed or dismissed July 1, in keeping with plans to reduce the personnel of the Prohibition Bureau throughout the United States.

About half of the Federal prohibition employes in Maryland will be dismissed. A total of 1,200 agents in the United States will be dropped. The appropriation for the bureau was cut from $8,400,000 to $4,300,000 for the ensuing fiscal year.

Civic Club Meets

The regular meeting of the Oakland Civic Club was held Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Arthur Naylor. Miss Rebecca Thayer spoke on a number of new novels and reviewed them briefly.

Further beautification of Washington Spring Park was discussed by the members present.

SHUMAKER WILL ADDRESS ROTARY CLUB ON FRIDAY

Spencer Educational Man to Speak; Committees Appointed

R. Worth Shumaker, Spencer, West Va., former governor of the 24th district of Rotary International, will be guest speaker at the weekly meeting of the Oakland Rotary club tomorrow evening. Mr. Shumaker is connected with the educational system of West Virginia. While in Oakland he will be the guest of Rev. W. S. Patterson.

H. C. Sincell will be installed as president of the Rotary clnb on Friday, July 7, the election having been held during April. Other officers include Walter W. Dawson, vice-president; and W. O. Davis, secretary.

At a meeting of the Board of directors including H. C. Sincell, W. W. Dawson, Charles A. Fleegle, Cecil Smith, Charles W. Ream, A. T. Shaw, Jesse J. Ashby, Jr., and Floyd C. Stahl, the following committees were appointed to serve for the ensuing term: Club service, W. W. Dawson, C. W. Ream, Cecil Smith; vocational service, O. T. Graser, Floyd C. Stahl, C. A. Fleegle; community service, C. A. Shilke, D. Emroy Bolden, A. T. Shaw; crippled children, S. H. Jackson, H. W. McComas; Boys' Work, Ralph Weber, W. W. Grant, F. D. Classification, Paul B. Naylor, B. F. Selby; publicity, B. H. Sincell, W. O. Davis; program, E. Ray Jones, W. O. Davis; attendance, C. E. Sharps, Lester Yutzy; fellowship, J. L. Towler, J. J. Ashby, Jr.; music, William Gibson, J. J. Ashby, Jr., W. W. Dawson. The Rotary club now numbers 28.

Merit Badges Passed at Scout Court of Honor; Overnight Hike Taken By Scouts

Eight merit badges were awarded at the regular monthly meeting of the Scout Court of Honor held Monday evening, according to H. L. Jones, the chairman. Badges were awarded as follows: Charles Mason, machinery, woodwork, leathercraft, personal health; Jack Lawton, personal health; Robert Broadwater, swimming.

The second overnight hike of the year was taken to the scout camp on Deep Creek Lake Saturday evening. Those in the group were Robert Browning, Jack Lawton, John Darby, Howard Smouse, Robert Broadwater, Lawrence Dixon, Jr., Hopwood Wooddell, Guy Hinebaugh, Howard Naylor, Robert Tibbetts.

Hinebaugh, Smouse, Darby, Dixon and Broadwater passed their requirements for the swimming merit badge.

Wellington Smouse, of Loch Lynn, attended the regular troop meeting last Friday night and will be enrolled as a member as soon as his Tenderfoot tests are passed.

Flowers and Shrubbery Being Stolen From Local Premises

For the second time within two weeks persons have reported having shrubbery stolen from their premises, the latest complaint coming from the residence of Mr. and Mrs. William R. Offutt, Second street, yesterday.

Some of the shrubbery has been dug up and taken away, evidently at night, and Mr. Offutt is offering a reward of $10 for information leading to the arrest of the person guilty of the crime.

Last week some large blooms on a rose bush at the home of Mrs. Isobel Hill, Mountain Lake Park, were stolen. Recently flowers and shrubbery were stolen from the premises of Mr. nnd Mrs. Robert Hazlett on Crook Crest.

Union Leagues to Meet

The Union Leagues of the Oakland churches will hold their first of a series of meetings Sunday evening in St. Mark's Lutheran church, beginning at 7:00 o'clock. Rev. W. S. Patterson will be the leader.

All young folk of Oakland and the surrounding community are invited to attend the services. The meetings will alternate between the Lutheran and the M. E. churches with a planned program each Sunday evening.

Fatally Hurt By Train

Peter Nash, 25, was fatally injured last Saturday when he fell under the wheels of a Baltimore and Ohio train which he attempted to board at Rowlesburg, his home, twenty-three miles west of Oakland.

Mr. Wellington Yutzy spent the week-end in Cumberland.

MARYLAND PUBLIC WORKS COMMITTEE IS APPOINTED

Group For Sixth Congressional District Will Meet on July 10 at Cumberland

WILL DISCUSS PROJECTS

The Maryland public works committee for the Sixth Congressional District will hold three meetings soon to hear proposals for projects under the recently enacted Federal public works act, according to announcement this morning by Congressman David J. Lewis, chairman of the committee.

Thomas B. Finan, of Cumberland, and Holmes D. Baker, of Frederick, are the other members of the committee.

The committee will hold its first meeting at Frederick on July 7 to hear proposals for Montgomery and Frederick counties, its second meeting on July 8 at Hagerstown to hear proposals for Washington county, and its third meeting at Cumberland on July 10 to hear proposals for Garrett and Allegany counties.

Each of the meetings will open at 9 a. m. in the City Council chamber of the City Hall at the designated cities unless there is public announcement to the contrary.

Congressman Lewis said that officials of county and municipal governments have been advised of the meetings by letter, but that because no complete list was available of other interested bodies he was making public announcement of the meetings so that all the parties would be advised.

"All interested parties in the sixth district," Mr. Lewis stated, "are cordially invited to be in attendance at the proper meeting and advance whatever eligible projects they may have."

Representative Lewis said that presentation of a project before the committee should be made in two ways, namely, by a thorough and detailed typewritten statement in triplicate, and then by a short oral statement before the committee by an official, or a designated representative, of the political sub-division, semi-official or interested body which is advancing the project.

Projects which are eligible under the law, Mr. Lewis stated, are any of a public nature involving construction or improvement of highways, parkways, and buildings. In addition, he said, projects for the utilization and purification of waters, for river and flood control, and for prevention of soil erosion, etc., are eligible.

The meetings, Mr. Lewis said, will have no relation to the highway program under the public works law. This, he said, is being handled as a separate program by the Maryland State Roads Commission, and highway projects should be presented to the Commission, not advanced at any of the three meetings in this district.

As to the financing of eligible projects, the Congressman said the law specifies that the government will make a grant outright of not to exceed "30 percentum of the cost of the labor and material employed." This means, he said, that 70 per centum of the cost is to be borne by the local community.

However, Mr. Lewis said, the law provides that the government may finance the other 70 per cent of the cost of the project by loans to the local community, provided such loans are "reasonably" secured, and the local community is able to satisfy the President that its budget is such as to "bring the ordinary current expenditures within the prudently estimated revenues."

The sixth district committee is one of six committees appointed by Governor Ritchie to survey public works projects in each of the six Congressional districts of the state.

After the district committees have made their surveys, their projects will be submitted to the Maryland Administrator of Public Works, who, in turn, will submit them to the Federal Administrator.

New Furniture Store to Open

Harman and Company, a firm dealing in new and used furniture, will open its store for business next Wednesday, July 5, it has been announced by Howard Harman, of Petersburg, West Va., manager of the concern.

The store will be located on Alder street and in the room until recently occupied by the F. W. Weber Company.

Mrs. Amanda Burgess and sons Silas F. and Alvin V. Burgess, of Selbysport are here today on business.

COST OF ADMINISTERING RELIEF UNDER 5 PERCENT

Ninety-five Cents of Every Dollar Spent Goes to Aid of Destitute, Figures Show

1,131 NOW ON PAYROLL

The Garrett County Welfare Board today gave out the information that costs of administering relief funds in the county during May and June have been kept below 5 percent. "This means that more than 95 cents out of each dollar expended in giving aid to the destitute through work projects and direct relief, have gone to the needy of the county," according to Delbert Davis, treasurer of the board. "This low cost of administration includes the family visitors who have been calling in the homes of heads of families on relief work, and the results of our effort to function as reasonably as possible are very gratifying to the Board."

To date 1,763 applications have been registered at the central office of the Welfare Board in Oakland, of which 1,131 were included on the pay rolls for the week ended June 17th. From that time the Welfare Board has been in a retrenchment movement due to diminishing funds.

Charles W. Ream, chairman of the board, advised that a meeting in Baltimore City had been called by R. F. Cleveland, chairman of the Governor's Emergency Relief Committee. All of the counties of the State have been asked to send the chairmen of the local welfare board, one of the County Commissioners and the relief administrator. Mr. Ream, George D. Browning and Miss Charlotte Wilcox will attend the meeting called for June 30th. According to Mr. Cleveland's invitation to the county's representatives, this meeting is called for the purpose of considering present relief needs throughout the State and possible continuation of the present relief program.

During the past week it has been necessary to discontinue registration of new applicants for the remainder of the month and work assignments for heads of relief families have had to be materially reduced in order that the expense can be brought within the alloted budget for June. This reduction in income has brought real distress in many homes where work relief projects, under the direction of the Welfare Board, represents the only incomes in such homes.

Is Graduated From Princeton

Julius C. Renninger, son of Mrs. Gertrude Renninger and the late Julius C. Renninger, of Oakland, returned home Friday following the graduation exercises at Princeton university. Mr. Renninger was a member of the graduating class and ranked high in scholarship. Mrs. Renninger was present at the exercises and returned to Oakland with him.

During his senior year Mr. Renninger was awarded a trip to Europe in recognition of his work in the Travel Bureau there and will likely begin his journey within the next few weeks. He was manager of the Princeton championship Lacross team and a member of the Cannon club.

Operations Begin at Loch Lynn Cannery

Canning operations began at the Mount Ailr Canning Company's plant at Loch Lynn Heights on last Thursday and will continue for about four weeks.

Although some of the early peas were hit by the frost two weeks ago, it appears that the crop will be about the average. In about two weeks the later peas and those that were replanted will be ready to be harvested.

Approximately 65 men are being employed at present. Nelson H. Fooks, Mt. Airy, is in charge this year.

Frostburger Held as Reckless Driver

William Flynn, of Frostburg, was arrested yesterday hy Corporal H. H. Haines, of the State Police, and was lodged in the Garrett County Jail in Oakland pending a hearing on a charge of reckless driving. A car operated by Flynn collided with that of George Sanderhopp, of Chicago, Ill., on the National Highway at a point midway between Grantsville and Frostburg at five o'clock yesterday morning. Gladys Sloan, of La Vale, owner of the car, was with Flynn, police say. Occupants of both cars escaped injury.

JUSTICE'S OFFICE KEPT BUSY DURING PAST WEEK

Several Cases Disposed of by Magistrate—Others to Come up

Sam Nightingale is being held for action of the grand jury on a charge of larceny of $17. The charge was preferred by Charles Hawkins, who alleges that he gave Nightingale a $20 bill in payment for a $3 carburetor and that Nightingale didn't return any change. Nightingale states that other automobile accessories were purchased which amounted to the full $20. The bond set was $300 which was furnished at the office of W. A. Gonder, justice, on last Thursday.

Resists Arrest

Floyd Bittinger, of Bear Hill section, is in the county jail awaiting the passing of sentence as a result of being drunk and disorderly and resisting arrest of an officer last Saturday. He pleaded guilty when given a hearing before Justice Gonder. He was first arrested by M. S. Martin, of Grantsville and later by Corp. Spioch, of the State police.

J. E. Gank, Hutton, was fined on charges of operating an automobile without a license and registration card, an the 26th, and was committed to jail in default of payment. Okey Prunty, Huntington, owner of the car, was given four days in jail for being drunk and disorderly.

Hearings were held on the 26th on two assault charges. Ross Gank charged John Hershman with assault and Mrs. Ross Gank, daughter of Hershman, charged her husband with assault. Justice Gonder rendered a decision of not guilty in the case of Hershman and guilty in the case of Gank. Gank was fined $25 and costs and sentence was suspended.

Warrants are out for the arrest of Glen Gank and Gerald Gank for disturbing the peace.

W. H. Kisner, Friendsville, charges Guy Holmes and Mary Holmes with fencing a public highway near Elder Hill and a hearing will be held this evening.

Paul Lucas, Clarksburg, was fined $10 and costs for driving an automohile on licenses issued for another car.

DEFINITE REORGANIZATION PLAN ANNOUNCED BY BANK

Garrett National Bank Will Be Capitalized at $50,000 With Surplus of $25,000

PLAN ALREADY APPROVED

Definite plans for the re-organization of the Garrett National Bank of Oakland were completed early this week, according to an official announcement today. The proposed plan for re-organization provides for the formation of a new bank to be known as the Garrett National Bank, which will be capitalized at $50,000 and have a surplus of $25,000.

Under the plan as approved by the Treasury Department at Washington, the newly formed bank will take over a portion of the assets of the old Garrett National Bank and will assume the same proportion of the old bank's liabilities to its depositors.

The organization committee that has worked out the details of the plan has made arrangements for the offering of the stock in the new institution to the public and the depositors of the old Garrett National Bank.

The new stock will have a par value of $10 a share and will be sold at $15 per share, which will provide the $50,000 capitalization and the surplus of $25,000. It is felt by the committee that within a short time all of the stock will be subscribed for and that in the near future a percentage of the deposits now in the Garrett National Bank will be available to the depositors.

Under the provisions of Section 22 of the Glass-Steagall Banking Act recently passed by Congress, the additional liability imposed upon shareholders in national banking associations does not apply with respect to shares in any such association issued after the date of the enactment of that Act. This provision will therefore apply to the new stock of the Garrett National Bank.

At the time of the closing of the bank under the President's proclamation, the total deposits amounted to about $800,000. The re-opening of the bank and the releasing of a substantial part of the deposits will have a very stimulating effect on the community.

Subscriptions for the new stock are coming in rapidly and it is believed that the entire amount necessary will be subscribed very shortly.

Vacation Bible School to Open on Monday Morning

The Daily Vacation Bible School will open its doors for a two weeks' session on Monday morning at 9:30 o'clock in the Oakland Grammar school building.

Eight trained teachers under the direction of Miss Marion B. Leary will conduct the school. All children of grammar and high school age are urged to attend, as there are classes for every grade and in addition art, handicraft and manual training.

No entrance fee will be charged as the offerings of the Holy Week services are to be used to defray expenses. A picnic is planned for an afternoon of the last week of the school.

More than 100 pupils are expected to enroll.

Lesson for July 2

JOSHUA

LESSON TEXT—Joshua 1:1-9; 23:3, 4, 16.

GOLDEN TEXT—Have not I commanded thee? Be strong and of a good courage; be not afraid, neither be thou dismayed: for the Lord thy God is with thee whithersoever thou goest, Joshua 1:9.

PRIMARY TOPIC—God Helping Joshua.

JUNIOR TOPIC—A Captain Courageous.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How Joshua Succeeded.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Source of Joshua's Strength.

The book of Joshua, from which our lesson is taken, is a history of the conquest of the promised land and its division among the tribes of Israel. It takes its name from its principal character, Joshua.

I. Joshua, the New Leader of Israel (1:1).

1. His appointment (Num. 27:18-23). The people were not to be left in doubt as to a leader when Moses was gone. The leader was to be appointed and to be given recognition before the people.

During the wilderness journey Joshua was Moses' minister and the captain of his army. When Moses was denied the privilege of going over the Jordan, Joshua was appointed to the leadership of Israel.

2. Joshua's fitness for the leadership of Israel (Deut. 34:9).

a. He was full of the spirit of wisdom. Although not dependent upon human wisdom, God selects as his representatives men whom he has endowed with the proper wisdom.

b. He was divinely ordained for the work at the hand of Moses, for "Moses had laid his hands upon him." This he had done at the commandment of God (Num. 27:18).

c. The people owned him as their leader. For successful leadership, a ruler must have the individual affection and allegiance of the people.

II. Joshua Commanded to Take Charge (vv. 1, 2).

Moses was dead, but God's work must go on; therefore, God issued the command for the new leader to assume his duty.

III. God Renews His Promise to Israel Concerning the Land (vv. 3, 4).

This promise had been given to Abraham and renewed to Isaac, Jacob, and Moses. It is now renewed to Israel as they were about to enter upon its possession. The rest of this territory was ever possessed was during the reign of David and Solomon. This land still belongs to the Jews, and in God's own time they will possess it. The world will not be at peace nor the fullness of divine blessing come upon the world until Israel is in this land. The present distressful condition in Germany and other parts of Europe may hasten the movement of Israel to their own land. As these notes are written, Great Britain is being advised to open Palestine to the Jews.

IV. The Promise of the Divine Presence (v. 5).

Joshua was entering upon a perilous and difficult enterprise. The difficulties before Joshua were:

1. The Jordan river (v. 2). This river was now at its flood (Josh. 3:15), making it impossible for armies to cross.

2. People were living in walled cities (Num. 13:28). Notwithstanding this, God was ready to insure success.

a. "I will not fail thee, nor forsake thee" (v. 5).

b. "There shall not any man be able to stand before thee" (v. 5).

c. "As I was with Moses, so I will be with thee" (v. 5). Because of his conviction that God had been with his master he was willing and ready to cross the Jordan at its flood tide and courageously meet his enemies.

V. Conditions of Blessing in the Land (vv. 6-9).

1. "Be strong and of good courage" (v. 6). His mission was to go in and conquer the land and then to divide it among the tribes for an inheritance. To do this required courage.

2. Unwavering obedience to the Word of God (v. 7). In all his work he must conform his life to the law of God. In order to accomplish this the law of the Lord must be in his mouth continually. Joshua rendered prompt obedience.

VI. Joshua's Retrospection (Josh. 23:3, 4, 14).

As his life was now drawing to a close, he summoned the people and rulers and gave farewell counsel.

1. Rehearses God's goodness (v. 14). God had given rest to Israel from all their enemies and had brought them into the land of plenty.

2. All that had been done for them was by the hand of the Lord (vv. 3, 4). God had fought for them. No one was able to stand against them.

The Vision of Life

This vision of life in the cross is not a vision of despair but of confidence and hope, because behind it there is the empty tomb, and the figure with wounded hands outstretched to bless, ascending into glory.—G. A. Studdert Kennedy.

He Never Fails

SCOOP'S COLUMN

By Scoop Himself

About the meanest trick of the week is the poisoning of Doc Broady's dog, "Bill.". Bill paid attention to no one except the Doc and his family and spent all of his time in, under or near Doc's automobile, except for an occasional trip "abroad."

The Quality Hill rascal who does all this poisoning will get caught yet. When he is caught, it would give me pleasure to put just enough strychnine in his meat or ground glass in his food to let him know what it feels like.

Two years ago, June 27, at 7:27 p. m., I was pronouncing "I Will" with meaning. After two years of the double harness, I can still recommend it strongly.

"Wait until you have celebrated the 27th one," said one of the drug store regulars, and it sounded just a bit sarcastic. All I have to say is that 27 years is a long wait. A lot of people are just waiting for my recommendation to swerve their judgment. One fellow I talked with yesterday wants to get "that way" but likes to start out on more than just nerve. Another who now has his second announces that he is ready for the third to-morrow. Another guest will be present and delicious refreshments were served. The evening was spent playing gold diggers and the prizes were won by Mary Guard and Willard Fox, while Ethel McCullough and Carol Rush received consolation prizes.

Mrs. Earl Hinebaugh gave the tots in her Sunday school class a picnic last Tuesday afternoon. Twenty-five children enjoyed the outing.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By FRANK P. LITSCHERT

The progress of the London conference during the first week brought out one salient fact—that while the French, the British and the Italian delegations probably knew exactly what they wanted, there was no such unanimity of opinion among the members of the American delegation. As Senator Couzens very pertinently pointed out, the first thing that would have to be done by the members of the American official family would be to decide on a policy, either of nationalism or internationalism. It was evident, as he pointed out, that little could be accomplished by a delegation that was neither one nor the other, only a mixture of both.

All of which strengthens the belief in many quarters that there has been no unanimity of opinion in the President's official family on international affairs. For example, there are leading supporters of the administration including Secretary of State Cordell Hull, who are internationalists, especially where questions of tariff are concerned. They want tariffs reduced under the mistaken belief that the way to restore prosperity is to throw the American market open to the competition of the poorly paid labor of Europe and Asia in the hope of benefiting abroad.

On the other hand, there are prominent supporters of the administration who disagree with Mr. Hull and the proponents of the free trade school of thought. Among these are no less personages than Professor Moley, one of the President's chief advisers, who reported not to think so much of [illegible] can be accomplished at London, [illegible] Bernard Baruch, who is said [illegible] that it will be impossible to [illegible] further the standard of living [illegible] to restore prosperity in America, [illegible] standards to [illegible] subject to the [illegible] flood of cheap imports from Europe.

Evidently the President intends to the [illegible] which [illegible] it comes [illegible] nationalism versus [illegible] internationalism. We were informed, unofficially, of course, that measures [illegible] international stabilization of currency and the eventual return to the gold standard. Securities and commodity markets took a short but sharp nose dive. Then came the announcement from Washington that no such step was contemplated. Then followed a recovery in the markets but an increase in the temperament of the London conference.

Next we got the news that the American delegation was to propose a ten per cent horizontal slash in tariffs. Hardly had the acclaim from the lips of the internationalists faded to an echo, before we were informed that once again the public had been misled by idle rumor. In fact Mr. Hull has been compelled to raise the complaint that the rumor factory has been so zealous in its overtime activities that the peace and good will of the conference is endangered. Mr. Hull is still sure that the boys will get together and accomplish a lot for humanity before the conference is over.

Back in the United States, however, where we are influenced more by the shadow of the Washington Monument and the whirr of the pheasant, than the shades and mellow tones of internationalist diplomacy, there is a growing feeling that perhaps the country would have continued its march back to normalcy at a more rapid pace if the economic conference had been postponed for a year or two. There are some iconoclastic enough to express the opinion that even now it is not too late to recall the American delegation and call it a draw.

LOCKJAW FREQUENTLY IS RESULT OF POWDER BURN

One Hundred Persons Have Succumbed to Disease Since 1928

When you see that there have been one hundred deaths from tetanus in Maryland in the last five years, you are not nearly as startled as you are when you find out that tetanus is another name for lockjaw and that one hundred persons have died from lockjaw in Maryland since 1928. The records of the State Department of Health show that 156 cases of tetanus were reported to the Bureau of Communicable Diseases during the five years ending in December, 1932, 76 in the counties and 80 in Baltimore City. One hundred did not recover, 43 of the deaths occurring in the counties and 57 in Baltimore City. All of the deaths were due to injuries in which germ-laden, teatnus-producing dirt, or other solid matter, was crushed deeply into the flesh and sealed in the wounds.

"Injuries of this sort are so frequently the result of Fourth of July accidents in handling fireworks, shooting off blank cartridges, playing with toy pistols, fire crackers, torpedoes, or other explosives, that doctors, health officers and the accident departments of hospitals have come to associate this particularly agonizing disease with the national holiday," Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the State Department of Health, said in urging that safer and saner ways of celebrating the holiday be used.

"The germ that causes lockjaw—tetanus, to give it its scientific name, —is found," he continued, "in the dust that floats in the air, in dirt from streets and roads and particularly in dirt around stables. It happens to be one of the germs that flourishes best when the air is excluded. The germs are inactive only until they are crushed into a wound with the air shut off, and then the toxin of poison that causes the agonizing suffering characteristic of lockjaw, begins to develop.

"The size of the wound has nothing to do with the disastrous effect of the germ. A mere puncture by a dirty nail, or by a splinter, may force the infectious material into the flesh. Injuries from fireworks and blank cartridges are so dangerous because the lockjaw-producing material is crushed into the flesh by the force of the explosion.

"Fortunately, we have an anti-toxin that helps to prevent lockjaw from developing. But it must be administered promptly. Sometimes, even when it is done, lockjaw may develop. A person who has an injury of this sort—no matter how is occurs—should get to a doctor, or a hospital, as quickly as possible, to have the wound treated and to be given the tetanus anti-toxin. Don't wait until the symptoms or lockjaw develop. By that time, it may be too late. The treatment of the injury includes the opening and thorough, surgical, cleansing of the wound. It is of the utmost importance that a wound of this character be kept open.

"Tetanus anti-toxin for the prevention of lockjaw—whether from Fourth of July accidents, or from injuries caused in other ways—is supplied free of charge to physicians in the counties, by the State Department of Health, through the county health officers. The larger quantities necessary for the treatment of advanced cases are supplied at cost."

BITTINGER

Federal Officer Harvey, of Cumberland, in company with several deputies, visited the Bear Hill section of this community one day last week in quest of some alleged lawbreakers, but the natives of that region know how to run, where to run and when to run, and the visit was fruitless.

Constable Andrew Shartzer, in company with Deputy Sheriff Spear, of Oakland, visited Jennings on official business Friday of last week and stopped for a brief call in this village on their return to Oakland.

The daily vacation Bible school, being conducted at the Glades Mennonite church in this community, is being well attended, the enrollment now being one hundred and twenty-five.

Rev. A. B. Harper, of Accident, was in this village for a brief time last Sunday afternoon.

B. H. Wiley, of the Customs Service in Baltimore, with his family, motored to Bittinger last Saturday. Mrs. Wiley and her children will remain a month with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Josephus Glotfelty, but Mr. Wiley was obliged to return to Baltimore on Sunday.

The baseball team report a very pleasant and successful social last Saturday evening and wish to thank the public for their liberal patronage.

Misses June and Fern Buckle spent part of last week with relatives in Cumberland.

A community picnic will be held in the Jacob Brenneman grove on Tuesday, July 4. All are most cordially invited to come and bring lunch and spend the day at the picnic grounds.

A SHATTERED PROMISE

One is almost tempted to suggest that the American delegation at the London economic conference pack up and come home. It has been insulted and humiliated, and is being made the butt of malicious and unwarranted attacks by groups of other delegates.

The conference is not of America's making. It was devised by the nations of Europe for the removing of the awful burden of post war depression from their own shoulders. The United States consented to attend only after repeated requests—pleadings, in fact—and representations that her presence was necessary if the world were to be saved.

Our delegation sailed in the hope of being able to contribute something to the allevation of suffering in other parts of the world. It was recognized and admitted there was little that it could do for the advantage of the United States.

Knowing the usual tenor of international conferences and the jealousies of European nations for America's near self-sufficiency we sought protection only upon one point before we consented to attend the meeting, namely, the debt question. It was agreed without audible reservation by all the nations participating that this subject would not be discussed. With that promise in hand Uncle Sam went to the conference willing to do all in his power to help his neighbors in distress, despite the fact that he had an enormous job of his own at home upon his hands.

But before he was fairly seated at the conference table, England demanded that the debts be reduced by so great an amount as to equal cancellation. France objected to giving the chairmanship of the important monetary committee to Delegate J. M. Cox, insisting that she, or some nation friendly to herself, have it. And throughout the assembly the harassment of the United States is being plotted.

The United States, great and independent nation that it is, does not need to stand for this kind of treatment. America is sitting atop the economic world such as it is. It has the upper hand of every nation represented. Its delegates should not be asked to take European insults or permit themselves to be made the targets of European cabals.

If Europe is not sincere in its desire for a straightforward conference nor has any real intention of finding a solution to the economic problems of the world by which all concerned may profit, there is no use of the United States remaining there longer.

If this is to be a poker game, the object of which is for every nation represented to out-wit every other for its own distinct advantage and for the distinct loss of the rest, we might as well withdraw now as later. We can get along without Europe better than Europe can get along without us, and especially without Europe's deceitful, faith-breaking tactics.

HAIL TO A SAFE FOURTH!

Independence Day of old was celebrated with reckless abandon. Hundreds of persons of all ages lost their lives playing with fireworks, guns and explosives. Others were drowned or killed in motor accidents. Now, the Fourth divides catastrophe "honors" with almost any week-end; except by virtue of the ceaseless efforts of safety organizations and accident and fire prevention workers, it is apt to be a shade safer. This is because people are keyed to its imminent hazards. They are safely conscious.

Last year, on the "morning after," the Associated Press reported 118 motor vehicle deaths, 90 drownings, 10 fireworks fatalities and 26 deaths from other causes—a total of 245. This is disgraceful enough, but superior to the 1931 toll of 354. No one knows the extent of serious or minor injuries, because only a fraction of them is reported. The National Society for the Prevention of Blindness estimates that 50 persons lose completely the sight of one or both eyes and that 500 more suffer minor eye injuries every year. This record is made by fireworks alone.

In recognition of the chief holiday hazards, fireworks, automobiles and swimming, the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters offers the following advice:

"If you go off on a motor trip, make sure your car is in safe operating condition; drive safely; keep to the right; drive at a reasonable speed; have 500 feet of clear distance ahead before you attempt to pass other cars. Watch out for pedestrians.

"If you go swimming—swim in safe places. Things to examine are tides, currents, depths, sunken debris and impurities. Be sure to stay within your own limits. Wait at least two hours after eating and then take along a friend for safety's sake.

"If you must use fireworks—be on the alert every minute. Give yourself plenty of space. Keep them away from inflammable materials. Keep away from smaller children and animals. Cauterize all small cuts and bruises immediately—tetanus poisoning is swift and deadly."

Remember all safety rules: and "All hail to a safe Fourth!"

A LESSON FROM CAMP KITS

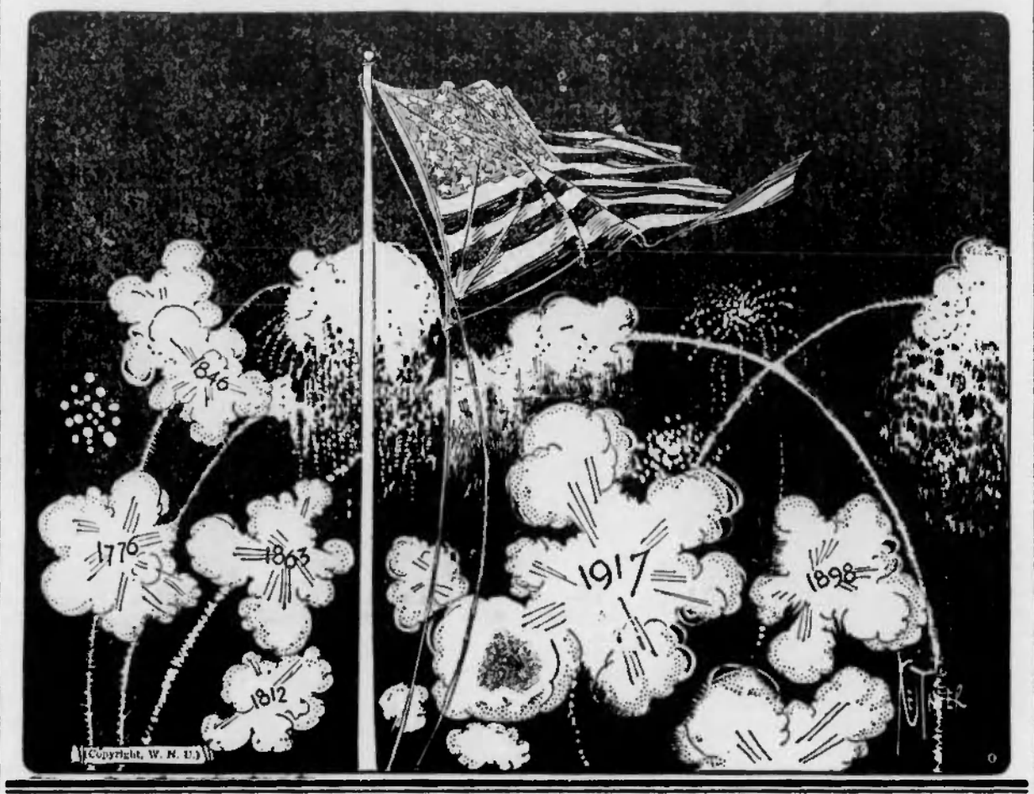
Latest investigation in the Senate paralleling the Morgan inquiry is that conducted by the Senate committee on military affairs into the cost of the camp kits provided for the workers of the forests. The amount involved is of course "pin money" when compared to the sums which roll glibly from the tongues of the investigators and the witnesses in the Wall Street investigation.

But although it develops that the 200,000 camp kits cost Uncle Sam only a mere $100,000 more than they should, there is a lesson to be learned from this unpleasant incident. Somebody was to blame for buying the outfits at a price higher than was necessary even after warnings had apparently been given by the War Department that the price was too steep. Just why the deal was consummated and who was to blame remains to be developed. Everybody connected with the incident has his own story. There has been a general application of the rules of the good old game of passing the buck.

The lesson to be learned is that governmental bureaucracy remains expensive and inefficient in any and all national administrations, regardless of their personal or political composition. Bureaucracy just cannot be efficient, and the more bureaus involved or to be consulted the greater the inefficiency and the less chance for assessing the blame properly when there is loss.

The remedy lies not in changing the faces in the bureaus but in abolishing the bureaucratic system itself. No matter whether the bureaucrats act in good faith or not, no doubt they generally do, the fact remains that they are generally wasteful and inefficient. Government operation of business and industry just will not work in a democratic government like ours. Yet there are some people foolish enough to belive that prosperity will only return if we have the government managing everything. What an economic calamity this would be can only be gathered from the results we have of bureaucratic operation today. What we need is not government operation of private business but a return to the old ideals of American freedom and the proper realization on the part of business itself, of its duties and responsibilities to the nation.

"Our Flag Was Still There"



IN DAYS OF OLD

FORTY YEARS AGO

The Oakland Independent Band reorganized with the election of Samuel Lawton, president; E. M. Spedden, treasurer, and D. G. Smith, secretary. Prof. S. C. Smith was secured as the instructor of the organization.

Harry West caught a German carp in the dead pond alongside the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad tracks which measured 23 inches long and weighed 4½ pounds.

The Enterprise Tanning Company of Garrett county, with principal office and works at Hutton was incorporated by H. L. Clark, U. G. Palmer and E. H. Sincell, of Garrett county, and W. V. Bacon and Robert W. Brooks, of Pennsylvania.. The capacity of the tannery was to be 60 hides per day.

The roads were dusty and the weather hot.

It was the fashion to address and stamp envelopes on the back. With the direction across the folds, the letter could not be opened by an unauthorized person without the fact being detected.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

The barn on the farm of S. J. Thomas, Sang Run, was struck by lightning and burned.

John H. Sanders marketed the first home grown peas of the season.

Jacob L. Ours, Mountain Lake Park, while at work in his field, became suddenly ill and was later taken to Sykesville for treatment.

William Jennings Bryan accepted an invitation to speak at Mountain Lake Park on July 17.

A colt show for stimulating desire for the rearing of better horses in the county was proposed for October 11.

Maryland troops were preparing to return to Gettysburg to participate in the 50th anniversary of the Battle of Gettysburg.

Dimeling & Bloom, operating a large saw mill at Bond, Garrett county, day and night, were employing a large number of men and were erecting a big boarding house to house the men.

DIED.

BERNARD GARRETT

Funeral services for Bernard Garrett, aged 40 years, son of the late George and Mary Jane Garrett, of Needmore, West Va., who died at the home of his sister, Mrs. Wesley Lowman, Bloomington, on Wednesday, were held from the Methodist church at Asbury, with interment in the church cemetery, Friday afternoon.

Rev. Hunter, pastor, conducted the services. The pallbearers were members of the Masonic lodge of Moorefield, West Va.

D. C. FEATHER

D. C. Feather, formerly of Oakland and Mountain Lake Park, died at the home of his mother, Mrs. J. Wesley Feather, Bruceton Mills, West Va., on Monday, of heart disease, after an illness of several months. A brief funeral service was held in Bruceton on Tuesday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock after which the remains were taken to Pitcairn, Pa., where final rites were conducted Wednesday afternoon.

The deceased was born at Cranesville and was employed in Oakland and Mountain Lake Park for a number of years. He was engaged in the mercantile business in Pitcairn and was also connected with one of the banks of that town. He is survived by his wife, mother, one sister and a brother, the mother and sister residing in Bruceton.

JAMES A. ENLOW

James A. Enlow, aged 83 years, died at his home in Mountain Lake Park, Thursday morning, June 22. Thus a gentle spirit quietly, peacefully and serenely was summoned to the bar of Divine Justice to receive the reward of his labors and virtue and "to acquire that immortal inheritance where joy flows in one continued stream and no mound can check its course."

Mr. Enlow was born February 14, 1850, near Hoyes (then Johnstown), in Garrett county, the son of the late John and Priscilla Enlow. On January 1, 1874, he married Miss Alice Brooke, who is still living at Mountain Lake Park. To this union was born six children, four of whom are living: Earl, who resides in New Jersey; Mrs. Lois E. Graef, of Chicago; Mrs. Gertrude B. Utterback and Miss Helen V. Enlow, the two latter of Mountain Lake Park. The daughters were present at the funeral. The son having visited his father shortly before his death, was not present, circumstances making it impossible for him to return to the funeral.

After their marriage Mr. and Mrs. Enlow went to housekeeping on Pennington street in Oakland in the fall of 1876 where they resided until in October, 1882, when they moved to the Park, the site of which Mr. Enlow helped to select, and where they have lived ever since.

Early in life Mr. Enlow united with the Methodist Episcopal church and for more than 65 years lived the active and consistent life of a Christian gentleman. As early as 1877 he was a teacher of a church class in Oakland, and his talent for illustrating the lessons with chalk drawings on a blackboard is well remembered by members of that class still living in Oakland.

Mr. Enlow's funeral was held from his late residence and was in charge of Rev. Middaugh, assisted by Rev. Gregory Bleakly. Following the request of Mr. Enlow that no sad or depressing hymns be rendered at the service, Mrs. Bartholomew, accompanied by Mr. Bartholomew, sang "Sweeter as the Years Go By," which was followed by "More Like the Master," by the church choir.

Ever cheerful, ever courteous, ever kindly, "Jimmie" Enlow will be missed—not alone by his wife and children, but by a great circle of friends whose lives he touched in his long residence in Garrett county.

Interment of the remains was made in the family plot in Oakland cemetery.

GEORGE WASHINGTON MOON

George Washington Moon died June 9, 1933, after an illness of several months. He was born February 1, 1857, at Webster (now a part of Grafton), Taylor county, West Va., the youngest son of Jacob and Eleanor Powell Moon, both of whom died while he was yet in his early teens.

He joined the Methodist church at Troy, W. Va., when 17 years of age, remaining a faithful member until his death, most of the time holding official positions in the church. He was superintendent of Sunday schools for more than forty years and conducted young people's and other religious meetings.

He was married to Miss Lou A. Savage, of Sang Run, then a teacher in the public schools of the county. To this union six children were born, two dying in infancy. A son, Gilbert B. Moon, died about fifteen months ago. Surviving Mr. Moon are his widow and three sons, Harold E., of Washington, D. C., where he holds a position in the city postoffice; Russell, of Cumberland, employed by the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company, and Maynard, who resides on the home farm and is a rural mail carrier.

Mr. Moon was one of the oldest public school teachers of Garrett county, having taught for thirty-four years. He had been on the retired list for seven years. He taught his home school at North Glade for ten years.

Politically Mr. Moon was a Republican and his first office as such was that of postmaster at Gormania, W. Va. He was elected to the House of Delegates of the Maryland General Assembly and served a term, after which he was on the clerical force of the 1900 census for two years at Washington, D. C. He held other less important political positions during his lifetime.

Mr. Moon was a consistent Christian during his lifetime, exemplifying his faith upon every occasion. Sometime before his death he declared he had experienced much peace and joy and had the assurance of eternal life and by faith could look beyond the grave.

His funeral occurred on Sunday, June 11th, the services being held in North Glade M. E. church, and conducted by Rev. Dr. Archibald Moore, of Oakland, assisted by Rev. J. H. Rupert, pastor of the Deer Park M. E. church. Interment was made in the Fitzwater cemetery, adjacent to the church.

GLADES

The Bible school is progressing under the direction of Rev. S. G. Shetler of Johnstown, Pa., with the following teachers: Misses Annie Bender and Orpha Stevanus, of Springs; Nellie Beachy, of Casselman, and Carl Stephens, of Glades. The enrollment is 140 students.

Mr. and Mrs. Jonas Ash, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Ash and daughters Helen, Virginia and Fern, of Springs, Pa., spent Saturday night at the home of R. E. Alexander.

Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Wiley and children, of Baltimore, are visiting relatives here this week.

H. J. Bender and family and Lena and Clara Orendorf, of Canton, O., are here visiting relatives.

Mrs. C. C. Stephens was shopping in Oakland one day last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Sisk, Jacob Swartzentruber and children, Melda Butler, Samuel and Lena Slabach and Peter P. Gortner, of Gortner, attended church here last Sunday afternoon.

E. Beachy and family, Fort Hill, are visiting Mr. Beachy's relatives here.

Mrs. Samuel Bowman and son Oliver were calling at the home of Mahlon Bender on Monday afternoon.

Margaret Stephens and Harvey Knox were shopping in Oakland on Saturday.

Helen Stark is spending this week with Mrs. Ben Schrock.

Card of Thanks

Members of the family of the late James A. Enlow, Mountain Lake Park resident, who died Thursday morning, wish to thank those of the community who rendered any service whatsoever during their bereavement.

CHAPTER 85.

Providing for Decreasing the Compensation Paid the County Comsioners of Garrett County and Eliminating the Provisions of the Law as to Allowance For Mileage.

AN ACT to repeal and re-enact with amendmeits Section 84 of Article 12 of the Code of Public Local Laws of Maryland (1930 Edition) title "Garrett County," sub-title County Commissioners," as said section was amended by Chapter 210 of the Acts of 1931, decreasing the compensation of the County Commissioners of Garrett County and eliminating the provisions as to mileage.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, That Section 84 of Article 12 of the Code of Public Local Laws of Maryland (1930 Edition) title "Garrett County," sub-title "County Commissioners," as said section was amended by Chapter 210 of the Acts of 1931, be and it is hereby repealed and re-enacted with amendments to read as follows:

84. The County Commissioners of Garrett County hereafter elected to said office, shall receive for their services as such Commissioners an annual salary of nine hundred ($900.00) dollars each, payable in monthly installments. When it is necessary for said Commissioners to leave the county for the proper transaction of the business of the county, they shall be entitled to receive as a body their actual traveling expenses. The above salary and transportation allowances shall be in lieu of all other compensation and expenses.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That while it is not the intention of this act that the salary reduction shall apply to the Commissioners now in office, it is the intention of this Act that after June 1, 1933, no mileage shall be paid the said Commissioners.

Sec. 3. And be it further enacted, That this Act shall take effect June 1, 1933.

CHAPTER 102.

Relating to the payment of Bounties by the County Commissioners of Garrett County for the Killing of Certain Wild Animals Within the Limits of Said County.

AN ACT to repeal Sections 526 and 527 of Article 12 of the Code of Public Local Laws of Maryland (1930 Edition), title "Garrett County," sub-title "Wild Animals," said sections relating to the payment of bounties for killing weasels, wildcats and foxes.

Section 1. Be it enacted hy the General Assembly of Maryland, That Sections 526 and 527 of Article 12 of the Code of Publie Local Laws of Maryland (1930 Edition), title "Garrett County," sub-title Wild Animals," be and they are hereby repealed.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That this Act shall take effect June 1, 1933.

CHAPTER 331.

The aforesaid fees of said constables and Justices for said counties shall be taxed against and paid by the party against whom judgment shall be rendered, unless he be discharged therefrom by due course of law; if such party against whom judgment is rendered is unable to pay the same, such fees shall be paid by the county wherein said judgment was rendered; and all fines and penalties received by any justice under the provisions of Section 242 shall be accounted for and wholly paid, without abatement or deduction therefrom by such justice to the County Treasurer of Garrett County, for the use of said county; and no part of any fine or penalty enforced or collected under said section shall be paid to any informer. All fines and penalties belonging to the State of Maryland and received by any Justice shall within ten days after the collection and receipt thereof be accounted for and wholly paid over by said Justice to the proper State official, without abatement or deduction therefrom by said Justice. It shall be the duty of each Justice in said county to make to the County Commissioners of said county once every six months, a report of all fines and penalties imposed and/or collected by said Justice during the six months immediately preceding. Said report shall be itemized and shall show in detail what said fines and penalties were imposed and upon whom, and when and by whom paid.

Any Justice of the Peace who shall fail to comply with the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and, upon conviction, shall be subject to a fine of not less than ten nor more than twenty-five dollars for the first offense, and upon conviction of a second offense, shall be subject to a fine of not less than twenty-five nor more than one hundred dollars and removal from office.

Sec. 2 And be it further enacted, That this Act shall take effect June 1, 1933.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

Franklin T. Fike, plaintiff, vs. Aca A. Thomas, Sidna L. Thomas, Earl H. Thomas, Iva M. Thomas, Sylvia A. Chase, Arthur Chase, and Elvira Thomas, heirs at law of Joseph Thomas, deceased, defendants.

No. 3136 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree for the sale of certain real estate situate in Garrett County, Maryland, for the purpose of paying and satisfying the claims of the creditors of the said Joseph Thomas, deceased.

The Bill states—

That the said Joseph Thomas was, in his lifetime, indebted unto the plaintiff in the sum of Five Hundred Dollars and interest thereon from December 7th, 1931.

That the said Joseph Thomas, being so indebted to the plaintiff and divers other persons, and having real estate of great value, departed this life on December 4th, 1931, intestate, leaving a widow and the following named children surviving him as his heirs at law:

(a) Aca A. Thomas, who has intermarried with Sidna L. Thomas, both of whom are of full age, and who reside in the State of Pennsylvania;

(b) Earl H. Thomas, who has intermarried with Iva M. Thomas, both of whom are of full age and who reside in the State of Pennsylvania;

(c) Sylvia A. Thomas, who has intermarried with Arthur Chase, both of whom are of full age and reside in Garrett County, Maryland;

(d) Elvira Thomas, widow, who resides in Garrett County, Maryland.

That the said Joseph Thomas, deceased, died intestate, and if he left any personal estate, it was not sufficient to pay his debts, and no letters of administration ever were granted hy the Orphans' Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

That the said Joseph Thomas, deceased, died seized and possessed of certain real estate as will appear by reference to certnin deeds from Isaac T. Umbel et ux. and from Isaiah Umbel et ux. to the said Joseph Thomas, certified copies of said deeds being filed and made a part of the hill.

The bill prays that the said real estate, or so much thereof as may be necessary, may be sold for the payment of the aforesaid debts, for general relief and an order of publication against the said non-resident defendants.

It is thereupon, this 31st day of May, 1933, ordered by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland, in Equity, that the plaintiff, hy causing a copy of this order of publication to be inserted in some newspaper published in Garrett county, Maryland, once in ench of four successive weeks before the 30th day of June, 1933, give notice to the said non-resident defendants of the objeet nnd substance of this bill, warning them to appear in this Court, in person or by solicitor, on or before the 15th day of July, 1933, to show cause, if any they have, why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.

Potato Spray

In order to control vine disease and insect pests, all potatoe fields entered for certification should be sprayed with Bordeaux mixture, 4-5-50, beginning when plants are about four inches high and spraying four or five times at intervals of 10 days or two weeks. Add three pounds dry arsenate of lead or 1½ pounds calcium arsenate to every 50 gallons of the mixture when chewing insects are present. In ease of bad outbreaks of aphids, it may be desirable to add nicotine sulphate at the rate of ¾ pint to 50 gallons of Bordeaux mixture.

Prepared Bordeaux, either dry or paste, made according to directions of the manufacturer may be substituted for the home-made Bordeaux.

Copper sulphate (bluestone)....4 lbs.
Stone lime of good quality.....5 lbs.
Water .....50 gal.

Dissolve the bluestone by suspending it in a bag near the surface of a few gallons of water contained in a wooden or earthen vessel. Slack the lime and add several gallons of water so as to make milk of lime. Pour the bluestone into the spray tank and add enough water to make 20 to 30 gallons; then strain the milk of lime into the tank, agitating the mixture vigorously. Add water to make 50 gallons. Use immediately. It is important that wood or earthenware containers be used in dissolving the bluestone.

Pulverized bluestone will dissolve more readily in water and may be substituted for the chrystals.

Stock Solutions: Dissolve the bluestone at a rate of one pound to one gallon of water. Slack lime and dilute at rate of one pound to one gallon. Keep in separate covered container until ready to make Bordeaux according to above formula.

Anyone desiring to have potatoes certified should make application to the County Agent's office immediately.

STEYER

The R. F. C. workers have been doing some good work on the roads near here recently.

Mr. and Mrs. George Grim, of Terra Alta, W. Va., are visiting their daughter, Mrs. V. T. Steyer.

Those visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Tucker last Sunday were Mrs. Lulu Welch, Ida Mae Burton, Robert Burton and Joe Sullivan, of Kitzmiller.

Mrs. Allie Wilson and granddaughter, Maryland Propst, spent Saturday with Mrs. Arthur White.

Miss Rosie Cerne has returned to her home after an extended visit with relatives in Morgantown.

Mr. and Mrs. Ervin Steyer called on Mrs. Thomas Rice of Bayard, one evening last week.

Lawrence Selak, of Morgantown, spent last week here with his aunt, Mrs. Joseph Cerne.

Mr. and Mrs. George Steyer, of California, are spending the summer here with relatives.

Thomas Iman and Chester Moon were callers here on Saturday.

Mrs. J. W. White is visiting her son in Clarksburg, W. Va.

Frank Cerne spent Tuesday in Thomas.

Misses Virginia Welch, Elizabeth Tinker and Eleanor Tasker called on Mrs. Frank Propst one evening last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Nordeck spent last Sunday in Thomas.

A Children's Day program will be rendered by the Steyer Sunday school on July 2 at 10:30 in the morning. Everybody will be welcome.

RYAN'S GLADE

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Sanders, Mrs. Alma Menke, Leona and Charles Menke, Dorothea Harvey and Wayne Harvey motored to Cassville on Friday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Harvey were in Buckhannon one day recently. They returned the following day, accompanied by Mrs. I. L. Neville.

Goldy and Mary Shockey spent last Sunday with Wilma and Lottie Steyer.

Lester Steyer and Henry Arnold spent the week-end in Loch Lynn and Mountain Lake Park.

Arthur and Ernest Fitzwater, of Swanton, were visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Riley and Mr. and Mrs. Audley Riley Monday evening.

Ross Stup, of Oakland, was visiting over the week-end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. I. N. Shillingberg.

Paul Martin was calling at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Ney Harvey Sunday night.

A large number of people of this community attended the Children's Day exercises at Oak Grove church Sunday morning.

Preparations are being completed for the picnic to be held at Ryan's Glade Grange Hall on July Fourth. The affair is being sponsored by the local Grangers.

THE MARYLAND BIBLE SOCIETY'S CORNER

"The Word of Our God Shall Stand Forever"

THE SONG OF SOLOMON

The right of a place in the sacred Canon for this book has been defended in every age by saintly souls who have discerned in its impassioned portrayel of the spontaneous love of a great king and humble maid, the exemplification of the mutual love of Jehovah and his people.

It exhibits a love of nature, clothed in her garments of spring, and also breathes the fragrance of flowers and sweet scent of vineyards, with their emple clusters of purple grapes. We see the flocks in quiet pastures and can almost hear the shepherd's pipes as he watches the sheep grazing or resting beside the still waters.

The authorship of this book is plainly stated in its title: The Song of Solomon. It is an Oriental poem, whose ardent imagery ean only be properly interpreted by a mature spiritual mind. Its key though, "My Beloved," expresses the believer's relation to Christ.

Some of the immortal passages of this book are incomparable for their poetie beauty. The declaration of the first verse of Chapter 2, commonly accepted as Christ's description of Himself, "I am the rose of Sharon and the lily of the valley," will live while language lives. Then there is that bit of philosophy that has become a part of our Anglo-Saxon folklore: "Take us the foxes, the little foxes, that spoil the vines; for our vines have tender grapes." Scareely a child in any Bible loving home who has not been warned against the little foxes of disobedience, falsehood, tardiness, ill-temper or sloth, which may spoil the tender grapes of character, unless caught and expelled from the vineyard.

Henry David Thoreau must have loved this passage, Chapter 2:11-13—"The winter is past, the rain is over and gone; the flowers appear on the earth; the time of the singing of birds is come, and the voice of the turtle dove is heard in our land; the fig tree putteth forth her green figs and the vines with the tender grapes give a good smell." Spring is here, with its note of music from the winged choirs of heaven, the delicious smell of growing things in God's out-of-doors and its promise of rich harvests.

There is a yearning in this poem for the comfort and strength that only a divine heart can give; a longing for the support of everlasting arms when clouds and darkness are about us, "until the day break and the shadows flee away."

Syrups Used in Canning

In canning fruits it is advisable to prepare in advance the syrup needed. The proportion of sugar and water recommended for different fruits varies and is designated as thin, medium and thick.

Thin—One cup sugar, 3 cups water. This is used for medium sweet fruits such as apples, pineapples and quince.

Medium—Oue cup sugar, 2 cups water. This is used for slighaly acid fruits, including berries, sweet cherries, currants, figs, peaches, pears, sweet plums, apricots and grapes.

Thick—One cup sugar, 1 cup water. Suitable for quite acid fruits as sour cherries, sour plums, gooseberries and rhubarb.

Method Making Syrup

Bring sugar and liquid to boil. The amount of syrup for eaeh jar will vary somewhat, according to the size of fruit and tightness of pack. An estimate of three-fourths to one cup for each quart jar of fruit and one-half cup for each pint.

Cannned Cherries

Method I—May or may not be pitted. Wash, stem and pack. Fill jar with hot syrup, adjust lid and process 20 minutes in hot water bath. Use medium syrup for sweet cherries—thick syrup for sour.

Method II—Prepare, preheat in steam or dip in hot water for one minute, boil gently in syrup 5 minutes. Pack, fill jar with hot syrup (syrup of cherry juice) and process five minutes in water bath. Jars may be processed in the oven if a constant temperature of 275 degrees can be kept. Allow 35 minutes.

MT. LAKE PARK

Cats and Dogs—Take Notice

We have been asked to notify owners of dogs and cats that such animals must be kept locked up at night especially as many complaints are being received by the game wardens that young squirrels and many song birds are belng destroyed by them. If the animals are not kept on the owners' property they will be shot.

No Complaints Filed

The Mayor and Council have a·right to assume that no one has any complaints to file or suggestions to make—that everything is all right and just right. Otherwise there would have heen more people at the meeting Monday night whieh was held in the council chambers.

When the announcement was made in this column last week that an invitation had been extended to the citizens generally to meet with the town authorities in an open forum to discuss the betterment of the Park, it was confidently expected that many would take advantage of it. In fact, some said they intended to attend and complain about this or that and suggest this or that plan. Well, what happened? There were just four persons present, including a child. If things are not going just right don't blame anyone but yourself. You had your chance and muffed it.

Campmeeting Begins Tomorrow

The annual Interdenominational Campmeeting begins tomorrow (Friday) night.

The Interdenominational Summer School of Missions holds its annual sessions July 24 to 31. This school will gather together representatives of the Baptist, Christian, Congregational, Episcopal, Lutheran, Methodist Episcopal, Methodist Episcopal South, Methodist Protestant, Presbyterian and United Brethren and other churches of the nation.

Road Opened

The obstruction closing the new road leading from the Park toward Deer Park, was removed on Thursday evening of last week and the road thrown open to traffic. A little work is still required in dressing up the shoulders and in erecting the guard rails at given points, otherwise the road is completed for a distance of slightly more than a mile.

Personal Mention

Mrs. Wilson L. Camden, Miss Ursule Guard, Mrs. Harry May and Miss Rachel Weems motored to Uniontown Monday.

Miss Oxlee, of New York City, director of the R. F. C. in West Virginia, spent Sunday at the Mountain Lake Hotel. She was accompanied by Miss Cummings, of Wellsburg, W. Va. They made reservations for later in the season.

Also registered at the Mountain Lake Hotel were Mrs. Charles Arbuthnot and Miss Mary Arbuthnot, of Pittsburgh; John Jacobson, Newark, N. J.; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mackey, Baltimore; Mrs. Roy Flahnsein, Easton, Md.; H. E. Ward, Pittsburg, and Mrs. John Newlin, Newark.

Mrs. Robert Chamberlain, of Baltimore, is a guest of Mrs. Guard and Miss Guard.

Mrs. C. E. Hutchinson and nephew, Jack, of Fairmont, have opened their cottage here.

Ira McKee and sisters, of Pittsburgh, were here last week. Senator Fooks and family will occupy one of their cottages this season.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred C. Fleming, of Fairmont, are at their cottage for the summer months.

Mrs. Richard Cale, of Terra Alta, spent Saturday here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Comerford.

Mrs. Rolph, Huntington, W. Va., is a guest of her sister, Mrs. Branch.

Postmaster Herbert Leighton returned from Fairmont yesterday. He accompanied Mrs. Leighton to that city about two weeks ago where she is now a patient in a hospital, having recently undergone a major operation. Mrs. Leighton is reported as doing as well as could be expected.

Resolutions of Respect

WHEREAS, It has pleased Almighty God to remove from our midst our brother, friend and co-worker, James Allen Enlow, whose faithful, steadfast life in the service of the Master has been a help and inspiration to all of us, we the adult Bible class of Mountain Lake Park are moved to these resolutions:

I. In respect to the memory of his leadership and influence in the first camp meeting at Mountain Lake Park, as well as his devoted interest in all sueceeding ones; in appreciation of his work as class leader and founder of the Sunday school and later the church of which we are now a part, and in recognition of his life of devoted service and loyalty to the highest interests of the Master in his home and community.

II. We shall deeply miss his presence and influence in our midst and truly feel that we have indeed lost a true friend and brother.

III. That our heartfelt sympathy and regret be extended to the hereaved family, commending them to the Heavenly Father's love and care.

IV. That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of the Sunday school records, published in each of the county papers and a copy be sent to the bereaved family.

CHAPTER 27.

Pertaining to the Powers of the Mayor and Town Council of the Town of Grantsville authorizing them to issue and sell bonds for Constructing. Erecting and Maintaining a System of Water Works in said Town of Grantsville.

AN ACT to authorize the Mayor and Council of Grantsville to issue and sell bonds for constructing, erecting and maintaining water works in said town of Grantsville, to condemn such land as may be necessary for the building of said water works, and to levy taxes on the assessable property of said town to redeem said bonds and to pay the interest thereon, and to repeal Chapter 282 of the Acts of 1931, entitled "An Act providing for the issuing and sale of honds by the Mayor and Council of Grantsville for eonstructing, erecting and maintaining water works in said town of Grantsville, condemn such land as may be necessary for the building of said works, and to levy taxes on the assessable property of said town to redeem said bonds and to pay the interest thereon."

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, That for the purpose of establishing, constructing and maintaining water works capable of furnishing the residents of said town with a good and sufficient supply of water for ordinary purposes and for fire protection, the Mayor and Council of Grantsville be and they are hereby authorized and empowered and directed to issue bonds in the name of the Mayor and Council of Grantsville to an amount not exeeeding $25,000.00, or so much thereof as may be necessary for the purpose aforesaid. The said bonds shall be for sums not less than $500.00 each nor more than $1,000.00 each, to be signed by the Mayor and President of the Council and countersigned by the Clerk of the said Mayor and Council with the eorporate seal of said town thereto affixed, bearing interest at not more than five per centum per annum, payable semi-annually in each and every year and dated on the first day of their issue. The said bonds shall be numbered serially. Bond No. 1 shall be due and payable three years from date of issue, and thereafter each bond shall mature and be payable each consecutive year from the maturity of Bond No. 1 in the order of their consecutive numbers; provided, however, the Mayor and Council of Grantsville are hereby given the option to redeem any or all bonds outstanding ten years from date of issue; that all of said bonds issued as aforesaid shall be due and payable within twenty-seven years from the date of their issue, and shall forever be exempt from all county and municipal taxation for any purpose, and shall have printed on them a reference to the Act of Assembly authorizing the issue thereof.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That the Mayor and Council of Grantsville are hereby authorized and empowered and directed to construct and erect water works in said town, and to contract for the purchase in fee simple or lease for a term of years renewable at their pleasure, any land, real estate, springs, brooks, water courses, streams, and to use and occupy forever or for a term of years any land, real estate, springs, brooks, water courses or streams which they may deem expedient and neeessary for the purposes of furnishing said town with water, and they are hereby invested with all the rights and powers necessary for the induction of water into the said town. If for any cause the said Mayor and Council of Grantsville shall be unable to agree with any owner of real or leasehold property, springs, brooks, water streams or water courses or any other material which partakes of or is a necessary part of realty, or for any right of way which they may find necessary for the conduct of said water system in its entirety into or in said town, or if such owner is under any disability or incapacity to contract or absent out of the county or unknown, the said Mayor and Council of Grantsville is hereby elothed with the power of condemnation under the right of eminent domain as provided in the Public General Laws of Maryland as fully as if the provisions of said laws had been herein incorporated. The said Mayor and Council of Grantsville shall have full power to fix schedules of rates for furnishing water and sewerage to private residences and other buildings, and the said Mayor and Council shall have power to collect the same as other taxes are collected and the income thereof shall be applied first, for expenses and maintenance and afterwards for the payment of the interest on the bonds and a sinking fund to meet the bonds at maturity.

Sec. 3. And be it further enacted, That the title to said water works, and all land, estates and water courses, waterways, conduits, pipes, machinery and all other parts thereto shall, when completed or aequired, vest in the Mayor and Council of Grantsville; and every person who shall knowingly or wilfully pollute any spring, streams, brooks, water course, reservolr or standpipe in connection with the said water works so built or constructed by throwing any Impure or deleterious substanee or thing into the same, or by swimming, bathing or washing themselves, or by washing clothes or any other thing therein, or by committing any nuisance in or near the sources of supply of the reservoir or standpipe for said water works, so as to pollute the same shall, upon conviction of sueh offense, be liable to a fine of not less than twenty-five dollars nor more than three hundred dollars for each offense, to he recovered by the Mayor and Council of Grantsville before a justice of the peace, as other fines are recovered, or to imprisonment in the County Jail or House of Correction for a term of not less than six months nor more than eighteen months, or both fine and imprisonment, in the discretion of the justice of the peace, one-half of such fine to go to the informer and the balance to the Mayor and Council of Grantsville for the purpose of this Act.

Sec. 4. And he it further enacted, That for the purpose of redeeming said bonds at their maturity and for securing the prompt payment of the interest thereon, the Mayor and Council of Grantsville shall for the year of the issue of said bonds and annually thereafter until the maturity of said bonds, levy a tax on the assessable property of said town, not exceeding twenty-five cents on the one hundred dollars to pay the interest thereon, and the sum of one thousand dollars for the principal of said debt for the payment of the same at maturity. The said sum of one thousand dollars shall be held and invested by the Mayor and Council of Grantsville as a sinking fund for the redemption of said bonds at their maturity; and the said Mnyor nnd Council of Grantsville shall from time to time deposit the money belonging to said sinking fund and the increment thereof in some safe depository which pays interest on deposits, or shall invest the same In State or other bonds satisfactory to the said Mayor and Couacil of Grantsville as to them mny seem best, or in the purchase or redemption of any of said bonds as may be offered for sale and redemption, and upon the purchase of any such bonds by the said Mayor and Council they shall be immediately cancelled by stamping across their face (cancelled by the sinking fund), and no portion of said sinking fund so levied shall ever be diverted to any other purpose than to the purchase and liquidation of said bonds. The money collected each year by the treasurer or tax collector on account of taxes to the extent of said sum of one thousand dollars shall be set apart for said sinking fund, and a separate account shall be kept thereof and be deposited to the credit of said fund, and no part of which shall be chargeable to insolvencies on account of failure of assessments or collections.

Sec. 5. And be it further enacted, That the money arising from the sale of said bonds (which bonds shall be sold either at auction or by sealed bids or at private sale, in the discretion of the Mayor and Council) shall be deposited in banks to the credit of said Mayor and Council of Grantsville and subject to their check, and the clerk of said town of Grantsville shall keep a book to be specially provided for the purpose of recording the names and addresses of the purchasers of the bonds sold and the amounts realized on the sales, together with the serial numbers of the bonds.

Sec. 6. And be it further enacted, That in any prosecution before a Justice of the Peace under Section 3 of this Act, the accused and the Mayor and Council shall have the right of appeal to the Circuit Court for Garrett County within thirty days to a jury trial. Any person or persons convicted before a Justice of the Peace under Section 3 of this Act who shall pray an appeal to the said Court, shall be held by recognizance or be committed to the county jail to appear before the next regular jury term of the Circuit Court for Garrett County.

Sec. 7. And be it further enacted, That the Mayor and Council of Grantsville be and they are hereby authorized and empowered to negotiate, sell and dispose of the said bonds as hereinbefore provided in Section 1 of this Act, or so many thereof as to the Mayor and Council may be deemed necessary for the purposes of this Act, and the said Mayor and Council are fully authorized to make all necessary rules and regulations and to pass all neeessary ordinances, with penalties for their violation, and to do all other necessary acts for the proper managing, maintaining and repairing the said water works system and for the protection thereof.

Sec. 8. And be it further enacted, That the funds realized from the sale of said bonds shall be applied to the purposes of this Act and shall be paid by check signed by the Mayor and President of the Council, and the said Mayor and Council of Grantsville are hereby authorized and empowered to pass such orders for payment of money due for the construction of said water works or to the contractor or contractors for the construction of the same, as shall, from time to time be due or earned by the contractor or contractors in the prosecution of said works, and also from time to time to pass orders for the payment of property purchased or condemned, and for material furnished in pursuance of the provisions of this Act, and may in its discretion employ a competent hydrographical engineer to superintend the work of constructing such water works.

Sec. 9. And be it further enacted, That all Acts and parts of Acts inconsistent with the provisions of this Act be and the same are hereby repealed to the extent of their inconsistency, providing that nothing herein contained shall be taken as affecting Chapter 810 of the Acts of Assembly of 1914, nor as restricting any control which the State Board of Health of Maryland is empowered to exercise within the corporate limits of said town.

Sec. 10. And be it further enacted, That Chapter 282 of the Acts of 1931, entitled "An Act providing for the issuing and sale of bonds by the Mayor and Council of Grantsville for constructing, erecting and maintaining water works in said Town of Grantsville, condemn such land as may be necessary for the building of said works, and to levy taxes on the assessable property of said town to redeem said bonds and to pay the interest thereon," be and it is hereby repealed.

Sec. 11. And be it further enacted, That this Act is hereby declared to be an emergency law and necessary for the immediate preservation of the public health and safety, and being passed upon a yea and nay vote, supported by three-fifths of all the members elected to each of the two Houses of the General Assembly, the same shall take effect from the date of its passage.

CHAPTER 86.

Relating to the Amount of Money to be levied hy the County Commissioners for the Expenses of the Sheriff of Garrett County.

AN ACT to repeal and re-enact with amendments Section 499 of Article 12 of the Code of Public Local Laws of Maryland (1930 Edition), title "Garrett County," sub-title "Sheriff", reducing the amount to be levied for the expenses of the Sheriff of Garrett County.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, That Section 499 of Article 12 of the Code of Public Local Laws of Maryland (1930 Edition), title "Garrett County," sub-title "Sheriff," be and it is hereby repealed and re-enacted with amendments to read as follows:

499. The County Commissioners of Garrett County are hereby authorized and directed to levy Three Hundred ($300) Dollars annually for the expenses of the Sheriff of said County.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That this Act shall take effect June 1, 1933.

FATHER ICE IS COLD TO SON'S IDEA OF MARRIAGE

Telephone Messages Here and at Cumberland Bring Grief

The June roses and school-day romance of Blaine Ice and Gladys Scott, both sixteen, of Shinnston, W. Va., which culminated in an elopement Saturday night to Cumberland was broken up temporarily when Homer J. Ice, the father of the intended groom, had a wedding license denied them followed them to Cumberland and took the couple home.

The couple drove to Oakland but failed to stop here, continuing on to Cumberland. Before they had arrived at the court house in the Queen City the father had telephoned Sheriff Walter Haenftling at Oakland and the Cumberland authorities forbidding the issuance of the license because of his son's youth and giving the car license number.

The youthful Ice, with scattered beard on his face of several days' growth to increase his mature appearance, insisted that he was 21, but the clerk would grant no license. The couple wnet outside the court house, sat in their car, ate lunch, and it is said the bride-to-be cried softly between bites as she saw other couples enter the Hall of Justice on marriage bent and came forth radiantly happy with the marriage licenses tucked beneath their arms and header for the home of a minister to tie the knot making them man and wife.

In the meantime the father had reached Oakland and after conferring with Sheriff Haenftling and A. G. Ross, Clerk of the Circuit Court, telephoned Sheriff Hugh A. Hotchkiss at Cumberland to look out for his son and intended daughter-in-law. The parent, when he arrived in Cumberland, declined to permit his son to wed and under his escort the young people returned to Shinnston.

Are Graduated From Bridgewater College

At the fifty-third annual commencement of Bridgewater College, which was celebrated recently, Murrell Kelso Glover and Ernest Charles Spoerlein, both of Garrett county, were included in the group of thirty-nine young people who received degrees.

Mr. Glover is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde A. Glover, of Accident. After graduating from Accident High school he attended Blue Ridge College for two years, completing the Junior College course. He then went to Bridgewater College and in two sessions completed the requirements for his Bachelor of Arts degree. He majored in chemistry. The student activities in which he took part are the Y. M. C. A., Clericus, Virginia Lee Literary Society, Student Volunteers and Glee Club.

Mr. Spoerlein is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Spoerlein, of near Oakland. He entered Bridgewater College in the fall of 1929, after graduating from the Oakland High School. In college he majored in mathematics. He was a member of the football team for three years and the baseball squad for four years. He was awarded his letter in baseball in his senior year. Other organizations in which he took an active interest were the Y. M. C. A. and the Virginia Lee Literary Society.

Man in Morgantown Hospital First Thought To Be Garrett Countian

A man who collapsed on the Uffington road near Morgantown, West Va., last Friday and who was thought to have been from Garrett county, was identified Tuesday as Harold Quirk, 30, formerly of Warren, Rhode Island.

The police chief of Warren telegraphed Sheriff Hickman at Morgantown that Quirk was a professional faker and had "pulle his collapsing trick in many cities and hospitals."

Sheriff Hickman talked with Sheriff Haenftling in Oakland on Saturday after a woman who had visited another patient in the hospital at Morgantown tentatively identified the man as Arthur Detrick, of Garrett county. She stated she felt positive because of the throat condition of the man. Quirk had an operation performed on his throat eight years ago and since that time he breathed through an artificial tube opening through his neck below his chin.

Rain Helps Crops

Garrett county's 1933 crops took on new life following a number of showers during the first three days of the week, and although it is estimated that production will be lower this year, due to frost, most of the grains, vegetables, etc., have staged a comeback and are growing rapidly.

Up until Saturday evening dry weather had prevailed. In between showers the temperature ranged around the 80's. Thus far Garrett county has not come into the path of the heat wave which is sweeping the midwest causing death to many and heavy damage to crops.

No Basic Course For C. M. T. C. This Year

Instructions have been received from the Third Corps Area headquarters to the effect that C. M. T. C. training for basic or first year candidates will not be given at camp this year.

Candidates for the basic course are being advised not to report at camp as there will be no basic course and expenses will not be allowed in case instructions are disregarded.

The Red, White and Blue courses will be conducted as usual. Garrett county had oversubscribed its quota of ten but none of those who applied for the first time will be taken.

BASEBALL LEAGUE ENDS FIRST HALF THIS WEEK

Vindex Can Tie Friendsville for Lead With Two Victories

The championship for the first half of the season in the Mountain State Basehall League will probably be decided at Friendsville this afternoon when the league leaders, Friendsville will meet Vindex, runners-up.

Friendsville strengthened its position during the past week by defeating Oakland, Sunnyside and Crellin. Vindex must also win from Bayard in order to tie for first place. Vindex took a close game from Friendsville the last time they met, 1 to 0.

Results of games during the past week include: Crellin d. Vindex, 6-0; Bayard d. Oakland, 8-1; Peerless d Sunnyside, 7-0; Sunnyside d. Vindex, 8-1; Bayard d. Peerless, 17-5; Peerless d. Bloomington, 10-9; Oakland d. Bloomington, 13-8; Friendsville d. Crellin, 8-5; Friendsville d. Sunnyside, 7-1; Friendsville d. Oakland, 8-1.

Games for Sunday, which will be the first games of the second half, are Sunnyside at Peerless, Vindex at Bayard, Oakland at Crellin, Bloomington at Friendsville.

TAIT LAUNCHES PLAN TO AVERT G. O. P. PRIMARY

Would Pick Republican Gubernatorial Nominee by Convention of Party Leaders

LAYS PRIMARY PLANS

Groundwork for an intra-party campaign against a primary for the selection of the Republican 1934 Gubernatorial nominee is being laid by Galen L. Tait, chairman of the Republican State Central Committee.

Scarcely twenty-four hours after he was relieved of his duties as Collector of Internal Revenue for the Baltimore District of Columbia area—having relinquished the post Saturday to the Democrats' party chairman—Mr. Tait plunged into the preliminaries of next State-wide election.

For Selection By Convention

He sent to all members of his committee, which now is the only remaining vestige of an official party machine in the State, copies of a recently drafted statement holding forth high hopes for Republican success in the next Governorship contest and—between the lines—warning that the nominee had best be selected by a convention, or—in effect, dictated by the leaders.

Mr. Tait also sent copies of the statement to leading Republicans throughout the State, and since he is party chairman and closely allied politically with Senator Goldsborough, titular head of Maryland Republicanism, his warning—although only implied—might be regarded as significant.

It can and has been taken by Republicans who received copies as an indication of the considered attitude of leaders in the old organization with respect to the ambitions of numerous prospective candidates who have been discussed and the likelihood that, if allowed to proceed unrestrained, they may lead to a primary.

Regarded As Crucial Test

Regarding— as they do—the next Statewide election as a crucial test in the party's history in Maryland, political observers see plainly in Mr. Tait's communication that he and his associates believe the convention system would best fit the present Republican situation and that the party's sole aim in the pre-campaign maneuvers should be the minimizing of the damaging effects of a primary.

Mr. Tait's epistle cites what, in his opinion, are the bases for two kinds of primaries. One, he says, is brought about by maneuvering for purely factional purposes by "trouble makers." This he condemns as silly and senseless and purposely damaging to party prospects.

The other type of primaries, he says, is that which decides the conflicting ambitions of individuals which do not deepen into permanent party schisms.

Advises Proceeding Slowly

He points out that the last person to enter a primary deserves as much consideration as the first, indicating that he and others high in party councils believe the Republicans should take things a bit slowly, since the elections are nearly a year and a half away. By doing so, he infers, the field of all entrants can be canvassed before the leaders settle their support on any one candidate and, given the opportunity, they believe they can eliminate all but their choice before a primary.

"We Republicans—leaders and workers—would deery and frown upon a primary meant to promote factionalism and damage the party organization," Mr. Tait says in his communication, the greater part of which is made up of excerpts from a speech he made on the direct primary law. "It would be silly to listen to mere trouble makers in the year of promises for Republicans of Maryland, which 1934 bids fair to be."

Rotary Club to Install Officers At Meeting Tomorrow

Installation of the newly elected Rotary Club officers will he held at the regular meeting of the cluh at the William-James Hotel tomorrow evening.

Floyd C. Stahl, retiring president, will be presented with the Rotary emblem, and W. W. Dawson, who returned to Oakland Tuesday morning from the convention of Rotary International held at Boston, where he represented the local club, will make a brief report of the meeting.

PIEDMONT ROTARY CLUB URGES ROAD IMPROVEMENT

Seeks R. F. C. Funds For Building Road in this County

Urging that an improved road be built from Bloomington to Swanton, in Garrett county, the Piedmont Rotary club Wednesday took action toward obtaining aid from the Maryland State Roads Commisslon and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Harry Biggs was appointed to select a committee to negotiate with Chairman G. Clinton Uhl, of the Maryland roads board.

The proposed road would be built along the Savage River, a distance of 14 miles. Bloomington is about three miles from Piedmont, and there is now an improved road between the two towns.

Under plans discussed by the Rotarians, the new road would be a macadam or concrete highway, and would provide a shorter and better route from that section to Oakland and other points in this area.

Reports submitted at the club meeting included a resume of the Rotarians' successful efforts to have a swimming pool built with R. F. C. funds.

LEGION CELEBRATION TO CONTINUE WITH PARADE

Will be Processions Tonight and Tomorrow—Fairmont Here Friday

The American Legion celebration will continue this evening and tomorrow evening with parades, closing Saturday evening with a display of fireworks.

Tonight's procession will include Fort Cumberland Legion drum corps, Piedmont, Keyser, Frostburg, and local organizations. and will begin at 7 o'clock.

Fairmont To Come

The famed Fairmont drum corps will head the procession on Friday night at 7 o'clock, which will also include Grafton corps, the Elkins band, legion posts from Elkins, Davis, Thomas and Parsons, besides local organizations, the C. C. C. of Swallow Falls, and local merchants. The Crellin band will also turn out.

The Fairmont corps just recently won first prize of $200 at New Martinsville, W. Va., and will present an exhibition and musical concert in Naylor's Hall for a small admission charge. Charles Hartzburg, owner of the Keystone Attractions, has furnished a truck to bring the equipment of the Fairmont corps to Oakland. There is also a dance scheduled for Friday evening with Paul Dively's orchestra.

The parade on July Fourth was headed by the V. F. W., of Cumberland, State champions. A. R. Martin acted as marshal, and he was followed by the color guards. Other organizations in the parade included the Tri--Towns band, the junior drum corps of Oakland, the Crellin band, the Mayor and Council of Oakland, the Gilbert-Brown Boys' band, the Legion drum and bugle corps, and floats of the health department and the Terra Alta Lime company. Tuesday's program was concluded with a display of fireworks.

Thermometer Was 37 on Monday

Monday was written into the weather records as one of the coldest of July mornings when the government thermometer at Weber's registered 37 degrees. About 40 degrees was registered early on the morning of July 4 but the warm rays of the sun soon brought the temperature to summer readings.

After the heavy storms of Saturday and Sunday the temperature dropped sharply to give the mountain top one of the coldest holiday periods on record. The coldest July day on record is July 21, 1929 when the thermometer read 35 degrees. Two other July days of 1929 read 37 and 36.

State Tax Rate This Year to be Twenty-Five Cents

According to a ruling of the State Comptroller the State tax rate this year is 25 cents instead of 22 cents, as has appeared on the tax bills.

The tax bills of the county have been sent out by J. J. Ashby, Jr., except District 15 and part of District 13, and about 100 have already remitted their taxes, he stated. New bills have to be sent out. Several other counties have made the same mistake.

MAN RESISTS ARREST AND IS JAILED: CURRIE HURT

Officer Hurled From Running Board When Driver Starts Car

Corporal Thomas Currie, of the State Police, stationed at Oakland, was injured Saturday night when he was thrown from the running board of an automobile, driven by Edgar E. Wilson, of Mt. Airy, on the Red House road, near Oakland.

Wilson was arrested on charges of operating a car while intoxicated, reckless driving and resisting an officer. He was taken to the Oakland jail.

The officer said he noticed a machine coming down the road, apparently driven in a reckless manner, and he stepped out and flagged the driver. The car slowed, Corporal Currie reported, and he stepped on the running board of the moving machine.

The driver then "stepped on the gas," the officer said, and he was hurled to the road, suffering painful bruises about the left hip, shoulder and arm. He jumped on his motorcycle and chased the fleeing car for several miles before the driver was finally cornered on a rural road. The officer said Wilson put up a battle, but was quickly subdued.

The machine operated by Wilson is owned by Roy W. Logenbeel, of Mt. Airy. Corporal Currie has remained on duty since the accident.

At a hearing before Justice W. A. Gonder, Wilson was fined $100 and costs for driving a car while under the influence of liquor, $1 and costs for reckless driving and $1 and costs for resisting an officer.

James W. Riggleman, Vindex, is in the county jail in default of payment of fines of $10 and costs each on charges of drivlng a car without a license and with no markers on the car he was operating.

Water Ordinance Passed By City Council at Regular Meeting

A new water ordinance was passed at the regular meeting of the Mayor and City Council held at the City Hall on Monday night, making effective the lower rates for consumers announced two weeks ago following a special meeting of the body.

A contract for lettering street signs was awarded to Edward Wallace. The lettering will be on sheet iron strips and will be erected at all street intersections throughout the town.

The monthly bills, amounting to approximately $1,400, were ordered paid.

The street committee of council announced that the improvements made to Seventh street were nearly completed and that all streets would be oiled and screened during the present month.

Forestry Workers Given Four-Day Holiday

Members of the Civilian Conservation corps companies encamped in Garrett county were given leave of absence to go to their homes from Friday evening until Wednesday morning, July 5.

Scores went by truck to Baltimore or hitch-hiked to towns in Maryland to visit their home folk during thhe holiday. In each camp a detail was left to guard the camps and government property.

Members of the Reforestation army recruited from this county returned here for the holiday period. The Garrett countians are stationed along the Eastern Shore, near Cambridge, and the majority of them made their way here by hitchhiking.

RELIEF NEEDS OF STATE LEARNED AT CONFERENCE

Extra Session of Legislature May be Necessitated: $1,000,000 Urgently Needed

Unemployment relief officials in Maryland learned at their meeting in Baltimore last Friday that $1,000,000 is needed to meet the needs in 12 counties and Baltimore city. This suggested the possibility that a special session of the Legislature may be necessitated.

The meeting of the county welfare board representatives was called to discuss problems of future financing with Richard F. Cleveland, chairman of the unemployment relief committee of the State Board of Aid and Chari-

Governor Ritchie, who attended the meeting, immediately dispatched to ties.

Washington a request for $516,575 of Federal funds which he says is Maryland's share on the basis of relief expenditures made from public funds in the state this year. If this request is approved it is estimated this amount will last the 12 counties and Baltimore City for another month.

After those funds are exhausted, the governor said, "I just don't know what to do. We've got a month to find out and mayhe by that time the Federal relief administration may have changed its stand—I don't know."

He referred to the stand of the Federal body to the effect that relief units are available only on a matching basis and ean be matched only against funds appropriated by the state, city or county governments for relief purposes.

Since Governor Ritchie has opposed the use of state funds for relief purposes the state has not entered the relief field, and because, except in the case of Baltimore city, local government units have appropriated relief funds only on a small scale, the state and the various counties have been unable to claim any substantial share of the $500,000,000 appropriated by the Federal government for relief.

Local Needs Cited

Charles Ream, chairman of the Garrett county welfare board, reported $10,000 to $15,000 per month needed to carry relief load through the next twelve months; one out of every three persons in the county, or a total of 1,200 families, were on relief.

Bewildered Man Enters Kahl Home; Thought He Was in Cumberland

A man who said he was "Sherlock Holmes," but who later told Deputy Sheriff Clarence Spear that his name was William C. Conley, 65, of Cumberland, was found about six o'clock on Wednesday morning in the home of H. W. Kahl, State road, near Oakland.

The man was wandering about the kitchen, opening and closing the water spigots and acting as if the place were his home. Sheriff Haenftling was called when it was found that the man did not know how he got there.

He said he had come to Red Hill, a few miles out of Cumberland on the National Highway, but remembered nothing after that. He thought he was at the World's Fair in Chicago, and later thought he was at his home in Cumberland. Following a telephone conversation with Sheriff Hotchkiss in Cumberiand he was returned to that city yesterday afternoon.

HOW THE FOURTH WAS CELEBRATED 40 YEARS AGO

The Columbia Fourth of July was celebrated in Oakland forty years ago with pomp and ceremony.

The parade formed in the Oakland hotel grounds, moving on Oak to First, thence to Water, to Second, to Liberty, to Bartlett, to Center, to Wilson, to Pennington, to Second, to Alder, to Seventh, to Green, to Picnic grounds in East end, formerly owned by Mrs. Kilbourn.

The chief marshal was Capt. P. A. Chisholm; aides, Waring Thomas, J. B. Fay, James H. Painter, Robert Burley, Robert Townshend.

In the parade were the speakers, fifer band of Keyser, Indians, squirrel hunters and pioneers, Grand Army of the Republic, Goddess of Liberty, States represented by 14 children in red costumes, uniform rank, Junior Order United American Mechanics, states represented by 15 children in white costumes, subordinate lodges, Junior Order United American Mechanics, states represented by 15 children in blue costumes, Accident band, Ancient Order Hibernians.

Second division—Gilbert hand of Piedmont, Unlform rank, Knights of Pythias, subordinate lodges, K. of P., citizens in carriages and mounted, calithumpians.

The program included orations by Hon. Benj. A. Richmond, Cumberland; James A. McHenry, Cumberland; Hon. William M. McKaig, Congressional representative, and Hon. Edward Stake, of Hagerstown.

Also, a donkey race, barrel race, pony race, sack race, foot race, donkey hurdle race, with prizes in each contest; a baseball game, a display of fireworks from the Court House hill, and dancing from 1 p. m. The B. and O transported the Piedmont and Keyser bands free of charge, and there were special rates for the day.

FIRE DEPARTMENT CALLED TO THREE FIRES IN WEEK

Early Morning Alarm Calls Firemen to Giessman Barn Again

For the fourth or fifth time the Oakland Fire department was called out in early morning to extinguish a blaze in the barn across from the Old Giessman hotel, this time at 1:42 yesterday morning. Just a year ago today the department was called for the same purpose and also other times previous to that.

There was more smoke than fire, according to members of the department, and there was no damage done. A little excitement was raised when it was thought a man was in the barn, but this was found to be untrue.

Explosion of an oil stove caused another blaze about noon yetserday in the stand of Oscar Turney, corner of Third and Green street, which has just been erected. Damage was done to the stove, and some foodstuff nearby before the flames were extinguished by the local firefighters. The fire spread rapidly when an outsider poured a bucket of water on the oil.

The local fire department was also called Saturday afternoon to fight the blaze at the A. R. Martin farm, caused by the lightning, but the water was not very effective against the intense heat.

WELFARE BOARD MEETING SCHEDULED THIS EVENING

Work Projects for County Under Federal Act to be Discussed

The Garrett County Welfare Board has invited Senator Henry W. McComas and Representatives Otho S. Fike and A. G. Cullers into their regular board meeting this evening to discuss possible work projects for Garrett county under the Federal Public Works Act.

Representative David J. Lewis has been appointed chairman of the Maryland Public Works Committee of the Sixth Congressional District. Other members of the Committee are Thos. J. Finan, of Cumberland, and Holmes D. Baker, of Frederick.

At a meeting held in Baltimore, on Friday, June 30, called by Richard F. Cleveland, chairman of the Governor's Emergency Unemployment Relief Commission, twelve counties reported on present relief administration which has been carried on by R. F. C. funds. Garrett county and Allegany county reported the largest number of destitute families in the State. Garrett's percentage of total population held highest rank, approximately one in three.

The hope has been expressed that many heads of these destitute families can shortly be transferred from present work projects to such work as will be established in the county under the Public Works Act.

A meeting is called for Monday, July 10, in the City Council Chamber at Cumberland to hear proposals for work projects from Allegany and Garrett counties, and the Welfare Board will confer in advance with Senator McComas and the county's two representatives so as to be prepared to present such proposals on Monday.

It is estimated that Maryland's share of the $3,300,000,000 Public Works program will amount to about $50,000,000, and Garrett county should have a fair share in its distribution because of the distressed condition of its people.

Bible School Enrollment Is Still Open

The Daily Vacation Bible school for Oakland and the surrounding community was opened in the Oakland Grammar school building Monday morning, with a registration of 108. A number were added Wednesday morning. The department of pre-school children in former years the largest, is the smallest this year.

It is not too late to enter the school, as it is intended for all the children of the community, Rev. C. A. Shilke stated.

The school is superintended by Miss Marion Leary, who is county director for Daily vacation Bible schools. Miss Leary has seven teachers, including all school grades, manual arts, handicraft, and an appreciation of modern art.

An outing has been arranged for the children for Thursday afternoon of next week. The closing exercises will be held Sunday evening, July 16, to which the entire community is invited.

ELECTRICAL STORM CAUSE OF MUCH LOSS IN COUNTY

Barn of A. R. Martin and Contents Destroyed By Flames —Eight Silos Blown Down

M. E. STEEPLE IS STRUCK

One of the most severe electrical and wind storms to strike this county for several years destroyed by fire the barn of A. R. Martin, south of town, blew down eight silos on farms in the Gortner section, and put out of commission the electric and telephone lines when four or five large oak trees on the farm of Jacob Swartzentruber fell across route 37.

The M. E. church steeple in Oakland was struck by lightning and nearby residents stunned by the shock. hTe children of Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Bittle, in a bathtub of water, were miraculously saved when lightning entered their home following the pipe line, but failed to touch them.

Mrs. Etta White, who resides next to the Methodist church and several house guests were more or less stunned when the church steeple was struck. Mrs. White is the only member of that group who has not fully recovered, however, and she is still without the sense of touch in onc of her fingers.

Destruction was most severe to Mr. Martin's property, his barn being completely consumed, along with one horse, several tons of hay, and all of his farm implements. His damage is estimated at $10,000 or more, about one-fourth of which is covered by insurance.

At the time of the shock Jonas Savage was in the cow barn with 9 cows. The bolt knocked Mr. Savage and three cows to the floor but he was able to get up and get all of the cows outside. George Paugh, in the horse barn upstairs, was stunned by the lightning but was able to unhook two horses from a wagon load of hay which was being unloaded at the time. One horse was led out but the other would not come out on account of the intense heat, and perished in the flames.

Mr. Paugh stated that the lightning seemed to light the entire front of the barn with its contents and that in a short space of time the heat was intense.

The telephone was out of commission and by the time the Oakland fire department was notified it was too late to save anything except surrounding buildings.

Two silos on the farm of William Welch were struck by lightning while silos on the farms of Simon Swartzentruber, Ross Lichty, P. P. Gortner, Ernest Ridder, Russell Beckman, and others in that section were blown down by the wind. The driving rain injured crops only slightly.

Part of a snowfence piled along the highway was blown into the road by the force of the wind, and a pile of lumber in the yard of Jacob Swartzentruber was strewn along the highway.

The storm seemed to be most severe in the Oakland and Gortner sections of the county, although practically every portion of the county received rain.

Yough Community Boosters Meet

The Yough Community Boosters met last night at Selbysport. A music program was presented by Anna Garletts, Louella Garletts, Joseph and Josephine Mathews, Winchell Eisentrout and Merle Nedrow.

County Agent John Carter spoke on the farm relief program adopted by the Federal government. Mr. Carter spoke of the potato tour to be conducted this summer in Garrett county and a discussion was held on the bean beetle and pea aphids.

Marriage Announced

The marriage of Miss Marion Bloss, of Seibert, Allegany county, teacher of Grade I in the Oakland Elementary school, to Ronald Lohr, son of Mrs. P. Young Lohr, has been announced. The ceremony was performed at Somerset, Pa., on May 20.

Mrs. Charles Hall and Mrs. Kent Linger, of Fairmont, W. Va., were guests of the former's mother, Mrs. Margaret Casteel, on Sunday. Mrs. Casteel returned to Fairmont with them, remaining there over the Fourt.

Lesson for July 9

CALEB

LESSON TEXT—Joshua 14:6-14.
GOLDEN TEXT—Blessed is that man that maketh the Lord his trust, and respecteth not the proud, nor such as turn aside to lies. Psalm 40:4.
PRIMARY TOPIC—A Truthful Soldier.
JUNIOR TOPIC—A Fearless Soldier Rewarded.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Caleb the Courageous.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Caleb's Confidence in God.

Caleb stands out in Bible history as a strong personality. He was a man of such character as deserves special study.

I. Elements of Caleb's Character.

1. Independence of spirit (Num. 13:30). Though the multitude clamored to follow the report of the ten, Caleb determined to stand alone. This is a highly important element in human character. One should stand for what he knows to be right regardless of the sentiment of the crowd.

2. Loyal to convictions (Josh. 14:6; cf. Num. 14:6-9). What Caleb knew and felt he spoke out. He did not wait for the opinion of others and then shape his own to suit that of the crowd. The man who can be trusted is the one who is loyal to his convictions. Joseph was an earlier, and Daniel a later example of the loyalty to conviction exhibited by Caleb.

3. Unselfish (Josh. 14:12). He did not wish to thrust some one else into the place of difficulty. He desired to go into the pince where it would require fighting in order to drive out the giants which were in the land.

4. Courageous (Josh. 14:12; cf. Num. 13:30). This courage he displayed when he insisted that they were able to go up from Kadesh-Barnea and take possession of the land. Forty-five yenrs have elapsed since that time (Josh. 14:10). Though he would be now considered an old man, he still desired that place for an inheritance which would require fighting to possess. He said, "I am as strong this day as I was in the day that Moses sent me: as my strength was then, even so is my strength now for war."

5. Loyal to God (Josh. 14:8; cf. Num. 14:24). He served God with a whole-hearted devotion. A man who is thoroughly loyal to God is always true nnd magnanimous in his dealings with his fellows.

II. Caleb Laying Claim to His Inheritance (Josh. 14:6-12).

Caleb was accompanied by the children of Judah. He did not come alone to present his claim, lest he be suspected of taking advantage. Then, too, he did not wish to wait until after the lot was cast for God had already given a certain portion to him (Num. 14:30). The basis of his claim was:

1. The ground of his service (vv. 6-8). He had endangered his life in spying out the land—had gone to Hebron when the giants were there. He brought back a true report even when his brethren were all agninst him. He bore his testimony and insisted that they go np and take the land even though to do so incurred the displeasure of his brethren, making it necessary for him to stand alone.

2. On the ground of the oath of Moses to him (v. 9). Joshua had respect for Moses, and was bonnd to follow the counsels of his faithful master whom he succeeded.

3. On the ground of God's providential dealing with him (vv. 10-12). God had preserved him in bodily health. His natural forces were unabated, thongh he was now eighty-five years old. He still regarded himself as capable of driving out the giants who possessed the land. The preservation of one's health is an indication of God's will that there is still work to do.

III. Joshua Giving the Inheritance to Caleb (Josh. 14:13, 14).

1. Caleb blessed by Joshua (v. 13). He not only acquiesced in Caleb's claim, but bestowed the blessing of God upon him in it.

2. The inheritance given (vv. 13, 14). Hebron, which means fellowship, was the name of the inheritance. Only those who fully follow the Lord can enjoy fellowship with him. Though Caleb now legally possessed Hebron, it was necessary for him to fight to drive out the giants who infested it. In the Lord Jesus Christ we have an inheritance which God has given us. We, too, must fight because the enemy is unwilling to relinquish the claim upon it. Cnleb got what he asked for because it was in keeping with the will of God. We, loo, are sure to get that which we claim when we lay hold on that which is necording to God's Word.

Will Open Any Lock

What a fool, quoth he, I am thus to lie in a stinking dungeon when I mny as well wnlk at liberty; I have a key in my hosom called promise that will, I am persuaded, open any lock in Doubting castle.—John Bunynn.

THE MARYLAND BIBLE SOCIETY'S CORNER

"The Word of Our God Shall Stand Forever"

PROPHECY

We come now to a consideration of the most exalted books of the Old Testament, the Prophets. The Epistle to the Hebrews makes mention of this plan of divine revelation in its opening verses, linking prophetic testimony with its completion in Christ: God, having of old time spoken unto the fathers in the prophets by divers portions and in divers manners, hath at the end of these days spoken unto us in His Son." The revelation was diversified, fragmentary, imperfect, here a little and there a little, line upon line, and precept upon precept, as men needed and as they were able to bear it. It is the unanimous teaching of this whole New Testament. Our Lord Himself repeatedly declared that the old dispensation looked forward to him. Evangelists and Apostles were but following His extmple when they taught that in nll parts it was the manifold preparation for His coming.

Let us fully admit that God left not Himself without a witness among the heathen nations of antiquity; that many strivings, and very noble strivings, after truth are to be found in other religions than that of Israel; that these too in their appointed way formed part of the divine preparation for the incarnntion, yet from the Christian point of view it is impossible to elass them together. The view which regards the religion of Israel as only one of the principal religions of the world, "maintaining that between it and all the other forms of religion" there exists no specific difference, "is, to the believing Christian, absolutely untenable." For it assumes that all religions alike are but "so many manifestations of the religious spirit of mankind," and that there is no such thing as a special divine revelation. Christianity stands apart from all other religions as the final revelation of God to man, and the religion of Israel stands apart from all other pre-Christian religions as the specinl preparation for that unique event which is the fundamental fact of Christianity, the Incarnation.

It wns the offiee of Israel to prepare for Christ, and it is the function of the Old Testament to bear witness of Christ. It is placed in the hands of the Christian Church as still profitable for teaching, for reproof, for correction, for instruction which is in righteousness. It has an abiding moral and spiritual value. With the light of a fuller revelation reflected upon the prophesies which those to whom they were originally addressed could not have recognized, let us turn to their study.

GRANTSVILLE

Benner-Miller Marriage

Miss Mary Martha Miller, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Miller, Stone House Farm, and Paul A. Benner, son of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Benner, Frederick, Md., were married in the Lutheran church, here Saturday evening, July 1, by the Rev. S. D. Sigler. Immediately after the ceremony they left for Cnnada where they will spend some time.

The bride is a graduate of the Grantsville High school, class of 1928, and of the University of Maryland in June 1933. Mr. Benner attended the Gettysburg college and is now employed as a State roads inspector.

MT. LAKE PARK

"Laddie," Fred Fleming's coeker spaniel is dead. Some one said "the more I see of dogs and men, the more I think of dogs." Of course, this was merely an expression of a disappointed old grouch—possibly a sour old bachelor—but Laddie had many of the traits that gave some reason for the statement. Intelligent, obedient, affectionate and loyal. He was an unusual dog—a friend, a companion, and a guard, whose only interest seemed to be to win and retain the approval of his master and mistress.

We understand that the built section of the new Deer Park road stands at the top of the list of Maryland roads for good construction and smoothness. There is still a strong probability that the road will be completed this year.

While the late frost damaged the pea crop, yet, we understand there will be a fair pack this year. Deliveries will probably be at the peak this week, harvesting having been delayed last week by muddy fields.

MAY CONTRACT SPOTTED FEVER FROM TICK BITES

Campers and Picnickers Are Given Number of Precautions

In a bulletin, just issued, which calls attention to the danger of contracting spotted fever, from the bite of infected ticks, the State Department of Health advises campers, hikers, picnickers, owners of camps, or of shores, and all others whose work or pleasure takes them into sections in which ticks are especially abundant, to take the following precautions:

1. Avoid ticks. Be particularly careful when walking along trails through the woods.

2. Remove ticks when found on the person or animals, as speedily as possible, but take great care in doing so, that the ticks are not crushed between the fingers. If the insect is already embedded in the flesh, use forceps or wear gloves. A slight break in the skin will serve as a portal of entry for the infectious virus.

3. Cut out undergrowth and weeds; cut grass very short around dwellings, along paths, near bathing pools and shores. Remove and burn debris.

4. Wear suitable clothing in going through tick-infested areas.

5. On hikes or camping trips, or in heavily infested areas, both clothing and body should be carefully inspected, at least twice daily, but especially on retiring.

6. Since tick-infested dogs are potential carriers of the infection, it is not only important that dogs be kept free from ticks, as advised in item 2, but care should also be taken to prevent dogs, from sections in which the disease has appeared, from roaming at large and from invading other counties. Persons who take their dogs from one section to another should be especially careful to see that their dogs are free from ticks.

In urging that these precautions be taken, Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the State Department of Health, said, "It has been definitely established that the tick—the kind that you find on your dog, or on your own person, after a walk through the high grass or through the woods—is a carrier of the infections that cause spotted fever. Not all ticks are infected, but those that are infected are sources of grave danger. It is best to regard all of them as sources of danger and to exercise the utmost care in handling them, as the infection can be absorbed through a scratch or break in the skin as well as through the bite of the infected insect. Ticks are inactive in the winter and then start up again in the spring. They are especially active during the spring and summer months.

"Since the middle of May, 29 cases of spotted fever have been reported to the Bureau of Communicable Diseases, 28 from the counties and one from Baltimore City. There have been five deaths, all of which originated in the counties. The cases have been widely distributed and have been reported from eleven counties—Anne Arundel, Baltimore, Caroline, Carroll, Dorchester, Frederick, Howard, Kent, Montgomery, Somerset and Wicomico counties.

"Spotted fever has been well known in the Roeky Mountain regions for a long time. It has been comparatively unknown, under that name, in the Eastern states until recently. It was first recognized in Maryland about 4 years ago. From 1930 to 1932, 127 cases were reported to the Department, 104 from the counties and 23 from Baltimore City, with 16 deaths, 11 reported from the counties and 5 from Baltimore City.

Allegany, Garrett and Washington counties have not had any cases of the Rocky Mountain spotted fever, according to Dr. C. H. Halliday, epidemiologist of the State Department of Health. The disease has been reported in all the other counties of the State, he said.

POLITICS SHAPING AGAIN

There can be no doubt that President Roosevelt's political honeymoon is coming to a close. The final hours of the Congress which recently adjourned gave abundant evidence of this. On several occasions the Congress, though overwhelmingly Demoeratic, actually got out of hand and there is little doubt that the administration leaders breathed a sigh of relief when the curtain was rung down on the special session.

Another evidence of the end of the era of good political feeling may be found in the fact that the Republicans are beginning to bestir themselves and talk about the Congressional campaign next year. The opposition party is watching very closely the trend of events at London. It is preparing to "jump on" any proposed agreement which would mean entangling engagements for the United States, an infringement of American sovereignty or a reduction of the tariff to a point where American industry would be still further handicapped by cheap products from abroad. Just at this time it seems likely that little will be accomplished by the conference, which might turn out to be a good thing both for this country and the political future of the Democratic party.

The Republicans, however, will not confine their ammunition to international issues as was evidenced by the recent statement of Representative Snell, minority leader of the House. Mr. Snell charged that the Democratic promise to reduce governmental expenditures 25 per cent and balance the budget had passed "into the realm of forgotten things." He said that federal expenditures had been doubled rather than reduced and declared that the Congress "appropriated more money, levied more and heavier new taxes and authorized a larger bond issuance, calling for heavier annual interest charges, than any Congress in the history of the United States—with the single exception of the Congress in session during the World War."

Taxes have been greatly increased rather than reduced, he charged, and in addition, he added, more than eight and a half billions in new bond issues had been authorized with annual interest charges of a quarter of a billion dollars. Mr. Snell added further that instead of reducing expenditures, new activities had been added calling for new outlays of nearly four billions and he charged that the national budget is now more out of balance than at any time in the history of the country. In order to bring about an apparent balancing Mr. Snell charged that the administration is keeping two sets of books, one for an "ordinary" and the other for an "extraordinary" budget. He added:

"Tricky bookkeeping, devised to conceal from the public the real financial condition of the government, may succeed in its purpose for a brief time but it don't pay off the debts. It does not stop the strain on the public credit. It does not stop the increase in interest charges. It does not halt the upward march of federal taxes."

In conclusion Mr. Snell said:

"Whether or not the measures enacted by this Congress fulfill the hopes of those proposing them is a question which time only will determine. If they prove successful their very success is the vindication of their wisdom. But if they fail, let it be said that they failed, because they were economically unsound rather than because they were unwisely administered."

The proof of the pudding is in the eating thereof. The administration will have to stand or fall on the results of its program. The congressional campaign next year is going to be an interesting one.

IN DAYS OF OLD

FORTY YEARS AGO

Ground was broken for the new business house of the Sincell Brothers, on Second street, which was to be of brick and metal construction 35-80 feet, the first floor to be used for mercantile purposes and the second floor for law offices and quarters for The Republican.

"The young man who owns a rig can make the most effective love these summer days." Oakland was said by visitors to have the sleekest horses and brightest rigs to be seen anywhere.

Elwood Offutt was home for the summer, having completed his studies for the year at St. John's College in Annapolis. Leonard Townshend, a son of Dr. Singleton Townshend, was also home, having come from Baltimore to recuperate following an accident in which he received a severe back strain.

A willow tree at the Farmers' Hotel in Grantsville, was seven feet in diameter at its base and in the branches a platform 20x30 feet had been erected and equipped with comfortable seats.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

A car driven by E. L. Beckman was wrecked on the Oakland road north of Oakland.

The marriage of Miss Anna Manges of Oakland, and Mr. Edward Swartz, of York, Pa., was solemnized in the Oakland Lutheran church. The ceremony was performed by the bride's father, the late Rev. Edmund Manges, pastor of the church, assisted by Dr. Lewis Manges, of Harrisburg, Pa.

Ernest Beard, 21, Bloomington, returning from Beryl, just across the Potomac River, about midnight, fell from the stone arch of the B. & O. R. R. bridge and died as a result of injuries sustained.

The marriage of Miss Alma Kemp, of Bloomington, and Mr. Franklin E. Rathbun, of Oakland, was solemnized at the bride's home.

The death of W. A. Maffett, sheriff of Garrett county, as a result of an attack of typhoid fever, was recorded.

The ladies of the M. E. church of Oakland undertook to collect a mile of pennies, to be added to the parsonage fund. A mile of pennies equals $848.00.

M. M. Ashby made his initial trip as mail carrier between Oakland and Accident. He used a horse and buggy in trasporting the mails.

Among the veterans who went to Gettysburg for the semi-centennial participated in by soldiers of both the North and South, were Capt. James A. Hayden, James Anderson, Mountain Lake Park; D. Y. Morris, Peter F. Nine, Peter Sines and Rev. Edmund Manges, of Oakland.

DIED.

LORENZO RIDINGS

Funeral services were held in the Methodist church at Gormania, W. Va., last Tuesday afternoon for Lorenzo R. Ridings, who was injured while working on a small sawmill and who died later at Memorial hospital, Cumberland.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Ridings, and three sisters, Lola, Mae and Mrs. Sally Fishel, all of near Gormania.

Rev. A. F. Weeks had charge of the services assisted by Rev. N. A. Parker and Rev. N. L. Dearien. Interment was made in the Steyer cemetery.

The pallbearers were Virgil Steyer, Ray Goodwin, Arlie Whetsell, D. Cerne, Irvin Steyer and James Arbogast, all of Steyer; M. E. Williams, Robert Baltz, Tucker Genk, Henry Duling, Eugene Winters and M. F. White; flower bearers, Edna Foley, Virginia Loughrey, Jenny Cerne, Wilma Steyer, M. Tucker, Elzie and Lester Foley and Rafael Arbogast.

MRS. LEAH FRANCES SINCELL

Mrs. Leah Frances Sincell, aged 89 years, 6 months and 25 days, died at her home in Oakland at 12:30 o'clock Monday morning. Following an injury sustained by a fall about four years ago, Mrs. Sincell became virtually a shut-in, but it was only within the past two weeks that she showed indications of a dissolution when she lost her vitality and the end came peacefully and quietly.

Mrs. Sincell was the daughter of the late John and Mary Ann Richardson, residents of Oakland for many years prior to their deaths. She was born in Carroll county, Maryland, on December 8, 1843, and became the wife of the late Charles H. Sincell in August, 1861, and to this union there were eleven children born, of whom seven survive: John T. Sincell and Mrs. Margaret Durst, of Keyser, West Va.; Benj. H. and Henry C. Sincell, of Oakland; James A. Sincell, of Clarksburg, W. Va.; Mrs. Harry W. Matheney, of Cumberland, and George L. Sincell, of Pittsburgh, Pa.

Coming to Oakland from Frederick City, Md., in 1874, Mrs. Sincell continued to reside here until her death, her husband having died suddenly on February 23, 1884.

For more than fifty-nine years Mrs. Sincell was a faithful and consistent member of St. Mark's Lutheran church in Oakland, at the time of her demise being the oldest, both in years and membership of the local congregation.

Her funeral took place from her late home yesterday morning at 10:30 o'clock, being conducted by the pastor of her church, the Rev. Charles A. Shilke. In addition to her immediate family there were present a large number of friends. The brief address of Rev. Shilke based upon a passage in the Scriptures exemplfied the busy life led by the deceased and the example set by her exemplary life industry, patience and love of all that is noble.

The pallbearers were grandsons of Mrs. Sincell—Milton Sincell, Charles M. Sincell, Donald R. Sincell, John Durst, John Hafer and Carlton McComas, with interment in the Oakland cemetery where the remains were deposited by the side of her husband who had preceded here nearly half a century ago and whose memory she cherished to the end.

Thus passed one of the noblest of women who suffered patiently and endured to the end.

MRS. J. EDWARD HELBIG

Mrs. J. Edward Helbig, 30, died last Thursday afternoon about 2 o'clock, from complications. Her health became impaired last fall and after three months in a sanitarium she returned home last Christmas. Her condition became critical several weeks ago.

Funeral services were conducted from the Union church at Deer Park on Saturday morning at 10 o'clock, Rev. D. C. Trimble officiating, assisted by Samuel Johnson. Interment was in the Deer Park cemetery. Surviving are her husband and two children, Jack and Gene, her father, Wilfred Chadderton, Deer Park; also three sisters and two brothers.

WADE H. LOHR

Wade H. Lohr, 60, of Swanton, died at his home Sunday morning after a brief illness of acute Bright's disease with which he had been stricken a week previous to his demise. He was the only surviving son of the late Peter P. Lohr and Mary Lohr, of Oakland. Funeral services were held Monday afternoon at 5 o'clock from the home, Rev. D. C. Trimble, officiating, with interment in the yard of St. Matthew's church, Oakland.

Surviving Mr. Lohr are his wife and two children, Wade H. Lohr, Jr., and Mrs. Robert W. Sheckells, both of Swanton.

Death of an Infant

The infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bowman died at the Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, Saturday eve. The remains were brought to the home of its grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. James Glotfelty, at McHenry, where the funeral was held Monday at 10:00 a. m., by Rev. C. W. Fraker. Interment was made in the Thayerville cemetery.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By FRANK P. LITSCHERT

We have heard a great deal of late about international cooperation, lowering of trade barriers, free trade, and other things which, the proponents say will in some way or other lead to permanent peace among the nations of the world. In all the publicity attendant upon the Geneva and London conferences, it will not do to overlook one little Washington dispatch which has an important bearing on the maintenance of world peace, and what is even more important to us, peace and tranquility so far as the people of the United States are concerned.

The dispatch referred to, is the one which eame out of official circles at Washington the other day to the effect that President Roosevelt had agreed to new naval construction program of three years duration, to build thirty-two new ships at an estimated cost of $238,000,000. The money is to come from the $3,300,000,000, public works act passed by the recent session of Congress. Of the total amount to be expended in building up our navy the sum of $46,000,000 will be spent the first year, $105,000,000 the second year, and the balance in the third year of the program. The ships to be constructed are two aircraft carriers of 15,000 tone each; four light cruisers of 10,000 tons each; two gunboats of 2,000 tons each and four submarines of 1,400 tons each. The total is 111,000 tons.

In commenting on the new naval program, Secretary of the Navy Swanson said: "It is a start toward a treaty navy. We are going to construct these thirty-two ships as quickly as we can. It is a program to put lahor to work and labor will get more from shipbuilding than anything else. Eighty-five per cent of the money spent on building American warships goes for labor. * * * The limit we can build is measured by the capacity of the yards. We think we can build to the fullest capacity of both public and private yards for two years."

It is entirely true, as Secretary Swanson asserted, that the building of these warships will employ many thousands of workers and many more thousands indirectly; that the "steel industry, the railroads and allied lines throughout the length and breadth of the land will of necessity benefit." Secretary Swanson is again worth quoting when he says: "I know of no more effective or praiseworthy way of giving out industrial life that country-wide stimulus which it so sorely needs than by devoting a portion of the money and energy which is to be used for public construction to this vital arm of our national defense."

* * *

The construction of these ships will undoubtedly contribute in an important way to our national industrial revival. But there is an even more important angle. The ships will contribute toward building up our navy to strength agreed to in the London naval conference. Not to build up to this strength would be a betrayal of the best interest of the American people. No nation wants war less than does the United States. If we follow the wise policies of Washington and Jefferson we will not engage in war unless it becomes a matter of national self defense. And the American navy is our first arm of defense. Seperated from Europe and Asia by thousands of miles of ocean, there is little danger of an invasion of American soil by an alien foe so long as we maintain a navy as good as the best. The facts are so plain as to need little explication. The proposed construction of thirty-two new naval vessels is a big step in the right direction. It is a threat to no nation and a notice to all that Uncle Sam will not be caught unprepared in case of attaek.

SERVICE

The Rural Districts.

People often ask us whether our service extends to the rural districts as well as to the residents of the city. And we always say yes. Our complete motor equipment makes it as easy for us to answer a call in the country as in the town. A telephone message puts our entire organization at the service of the family in need, no matter where located.

This is what fires cost the farmers of America every year. For protection against fire—the quick summoning of neighbors' help—a telephone is a necessity. And in the meantime it gets the best prices in buying supplies and selling produce. It flashes fast messages to doctor and veterinarian. It keeps the family in touch with their neighbors. If you have a telephone, use it more. If not, don't be without one another day. Ask our Business Office and see how low the rates are.

FOREST WORKER IS SHOT BY UNKNOWN ASSAILANT

George Scott Wounded While Walking Near Savage River

Shot Friday by an unseen assailant in the woods near Savage river, George Scott, 23, of Vale Summit, Allegany county, is recovering at the Civilian Conservation Corps field hospital at New Germany. U. S. Army surgeons said his condition is not serious.

Scott, a member of the conservation corps, was walking from the Swanton camp to Piedmont, West Va., when a rifle bullet struck him in the right shoulder. He was passing over a mountain trail near Bloomington, and it is believed moonshiners fired at him, believing him to be a Federal prohibition officer.

The wounded man was able to walk to Piedmont, where his wound was dressed by a physician.

Scott and other forest workers had been given a four-day holiday to observe Independence Day, and he was walking to Piedmont, planning to continue his trip home, by bus. He is the son of James H. Scott, of Vale Summit.

Moonshiners in the Garrett county hills have been annoyed by the forest workers, who find stills in the woods, it has been reported.

MARRIED

Gorman-Robinson—Miss Jane Robinson, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John G. Robinson, south of town, and Mr. Joseph Edward Gorman, of Brooklyn, N. Y., were married in the church of her brother, Rev. Felix Robinson, at Long Beach, last Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Rev. Robinson performed the ceremony.

Mrs. Felix Robinson sang "In the Time of Roses," and played the wedding march. Mrs. Ruth Baird, sister of the bride, was matron of honor, while the brother of the groom served as best man.

Following the ceremony there was a reception at Rev. Robinson's home after which the couple left for a wedding trip to Lake Placid, N. Y. They will reside in Hampstead.

The bride has been in New York for about two years where she has been superintendent of one of the floors in a hospital in Mineola, Long Island.

Mrs. Jessie King Compton gave a tea last Friday at her home in Clarksburg, W. Va., to announce the marriage of her daughter, Miss Margaret Compton, to Keith Ashby, son of Mrs. Maude Ashby, also of Clarksburg.

The marriage took place March 4 in Morgantown, Rev. S. W. Bell, of the First M. E. church, Morgantown, performing the ceremony.

The marriage is the outcome of a romance of long standing. As children they played together and the two families have been neighbors since the children were small, first living near one another in Oakland and in later years in Fairmont.

For the past few years the bride has held a position in the Fairmont office of the Western and Southern Life Insurance company. Mr. Ashby holds a position in the purchasing department of the Consolidation Coal company.

CLASSROOM WORK HELPS COAL WORKERS TO BETTER CONDITIONS

(By P. STEWART MACAULAY in The Baltimore Sun, Issue of June 25)

Three generations of men—the grandfather, approaching 70, and the grandson about 18—sit side by side in a public school classroom in the little town of Midland, in Allegany county. They listen intently for an hour and a half as a youthful instructor talks to them about coal-mining practice in or another of its phases. Then they pick up their notebooks and go home. Next morning the three generations put on their working clothes, light up the carbide lamps on their caps and set about their day's work in one of Western Maryland's coal mines.

The three men afford a striking example of the important change that has taken place quite recently in the mining industry. At one time coal mining was a craft which was handed down from father to son. In many mining communities in this country and abroad it was taken as a matter of course that a son should learn its rudiments from his father—or at least that he should follow the parent's footsteps into the mine as soon as he was old enough, there to pick up a practical knowledge of mining from practical miners.

In the past, the plan has worked out fairly well, but it has its limitations. The father, obviously, cannot teach what he has not learned, and there are a great many details of modern mining which were unknown to the men who burrowed into the hills of England, Scotland and Wales—the men whose descendants are the backbone of many American mining communities today. If it were simply a matter of getting coal out of the earth, the tutelage of these oldtimers would be enough. But nowadays it is essential that the work be done speedily, economically—and safely. Science, invention and legislation have added complications to the job, and the ambitious man who seeks advancement in the mines today must be trained to meet these new conditions.

For nearly ten years now training of this sort has been available to members of Maryland's little mining colonies located in the two western counties—Allegany and Garrett. Vocational courses touching upon all the essentials of mine practice are being provided under the combined auspices of the Federal Government, the Maryland Bureau of Mines, the University of Maryland, the State Board of Education and the Allegany and Garrett county School Boards. When the first classes were started they were regarded in some quarters with considerble skepticism. Now with a ten-year record behind them they have won the hearty support of educators, mine operators—and even the hard-bitten veteran miners themselves—many of whom, at the ontset, were quite sure that classroom work could teach them nothing about getting the coal out of the ground.

The establishment of these mine vocational classes really grew out of a practical necessity. Over in West Virginia where there are many more mines and miners than in Maryland, classes in mine engineering had been established and were being conducted by the State University. From Harpers Ferry westward only the slender thread of the Potomac River separates Maryland from her neighbor, and there is a fairly extensive movement of miners from one side of the stream to the other. After West Virginia classes had been running for a while the Maryland authorities began to note that miners from that State were carrying off the honors in examinations for assistant foremen, foremen and fire boss. The Garrett and Allegany county miners were losing out, as it were, on their home grounds, for the West Virginians were winning promotions over their heads.

The most active advocate of mining classes in this State was Dr. John J. Rutledge, chief engineer of the Maryland Bureau of Mines. It was he who started the movement and he carried the fight to the various governmental agencies whose help would be needed. The Bureau of Mines itself was only a few years old at the time, and the State had hardly accustomed itself to the idea of doing anything further for its miners. At last, however, Dr. Rutledege was able to persuade the proper authorities that vocational classes were necessary and in the fall of 1923 the first groups of "students" were assembled. Roy Dimmett, director of vocational education, State Department of Education, and Dean A. N. Johnson, of the College of Engineering at the University of Maryland, assisted in obtaining the necessary funds. Mr. Dimmitt's sucessor, Dr. J. D. Blackwell, has cooperated actively in the work. At the outset the administration lent its influence and approval of the project.

It was decided at the outset that it would be impossible to establish the classes at any single point; that it would be impracticable even to select a dozen places as permanent meeting places. Maryland's mining localities are scattered pretty well over the two western counties. Most of them are small villages separated from their neighbors by high mountain ridges or connected by roads that are not always in the best condition. Only a few are so close together that it is possible to ask miners from several to gather at one point to attend a night class.

The alternative—the establishment of "circuits" was much more convenient for the men and much harder for the instructors. But that plan was adopted. With only two instructors available for the work, it was necessary to limit the number of classes to ten, five in Garrett county and five in Allegany. In each of the two divisions one class meets each night except Saturday and Sunday. That means that the instructor must appear at a different town or village five nights out of each week in order to carry on his classes. During the long Western Maryland winter—and considering some of the mountain roads that must be traversed—that in itself is something of an accomplishment.

From year to year some of the classes are moved from one location to another so that, in the course of several years, vocational training has been brought to, or within a very short distance of, every mining community in the State. This year, for example, classes have been held at Mount Savage, Lonaconing, Eckhart, Midland, Frostburg and Barton, in Allegany county, and in Kempton, Vindex, Crellin and Shallmar, in Garrett county. Next year some of the smaller of these centers will have classes and some which have gone without this year will be chosen to replace them.

In addition to the night classes, Maryland's mine vocational training plan includes the operation every summer of an intensive short course of advanced study. This course is held at the Normal School in Frostburg and it is a day school. Its aim is to attract the more ambitious of those enrolled in the night courses and to provide for them a comprehensive course of advanced work.

The curriculum of the night classes includes lectures on mine ventilation, mine gases and map reading, in addition to a group designed to prepare the student specifically for the job of mine foreman. The summer course includes advanced work in these subjects and lectures upon such subjects as explosives, electricity in mines, haulage, safety lamps, drainage and pumping, first aid and mine rescue. In the study of electricity the instructors use a text book prepared especially for the Maryland classes.

This volume, entitled "Electricity Applied to Coal Mining," was originally prepared as a pamphlet by R. C. Fleming, mining engineer, who was associate instructor. Later it was revised by several prominent electrical engineers and published in book form. It has become so popular that now it is being used in other States and even in Europe. Several requests for the volume have come all the way from Russia.

For some of the more highly specialized subjects—particularly in the summer course—outside lecturers are obtained. Dr. Rutledge and the two inspectors of the Bureau of Mines, Frank T. Powers and Clyde J. Rowe, assist regularly in the conduct of the summer class and on occasion experts on various phases of mining practice have been called in. But the bulk of the work falls upon the shoulders of the two regular instructors—the educational "circuit riders" of the coal counties.

Maryland's mine vocational course probably is unique in one respect: the instructors are practical miners—young men who not so many years years ago were working right alongside those who are now attending their lectures. The senior instructor, in charge of the Garrett county classes, is I. C. Hutson, a native of Kitzmiller, a little town on the Potomac. Mr. Hutson worked in the mines near his home before going across to West Virginia to take the vocational courses being offered in that State. For some time he was instructor in West Virginia, but with the establishment of the vocational work here he returned to Maryland. His assistant, Robert D. Ewing, who has charge of the Allegany county classes, was himself a member of Maryland's first vocational class. He was working in the mines at the time and he had risen to the position of foreman before he left them to take his present job.

These practical men, according to Dr. Rutledge, are able to get much closer to their classes than could the average graduate of a mining school, most of whose training has been theoretical. They do not shoot over the heads of their classes and they are able to win the confidence and cooperation of the men because they have an intimate knowledge and understanding of their problems. The night classes include very little theoretical instruction and the miners who attend them have little use for theory. But they are both willing and anxious to add to their store of knowledge.

Some idea of the popularity of the classes may be obtained by looking over the enrollment and attendance figures for the last ten years. In 1923-24, the total enrollment for the night classes was 315, and the average weekly attendance for the term was 160. During the term which has just closed 520 men were enrolled in the ten classes and the average attendance was 245. In the ten years since they were started, the gross enrollment has been 3,082, but this figure includes a number of duplications, since quite a few men have taken the course several times. The lectures vary from year to year, so those who enroll for more than one term do not necessarily cover the same ground twice. However, with these duplications eliminated the statistics shows that 1,693 individuals have received instruction in the last ten years—a number which represents more than forty-seven per cent of Maryland's total miner population of 3,600.

The summer classes, of course, are smaller. They are held at only one central point—Frostburg—most of those who attend must arrange to leave their work and their homes for the duration of the season. For the coal miner whose income in these days is very low anyway, attendance at the summer school usually involves a considerable sacrifice, yet the average for the last ten years has been 16, and last year, in spite of unfavorabel conditions, it reached 20.

Usually those who attend the summer course are men who have attended one or more terms of the night classes and who are ambitious to carry their studies further. It is not easy for these men to give up six weeks of work in the mine—even though under present conditions they may be working only two to four days a week—and it is even more difficult for them to scrape up the cash with which to pay for their transportation to and from Frostburg and for their room and meals while staying there. Yet somehow those who have the ambition manage it. Some who attend the classes live in neighboring villages and can commute; others living nearby have arranged to work on the night shift in the mine while attending classes during the day. Those who live farther away have to save every penny during the year in order to be able to attend, and recently the instructors came across the case of a wife who, unknown to her husband, had saved enough out of her meager household funds to enable him to enroll in the course.

It is not so difficult, of course, for those who attend the classes in their home towns, but even the night courses have provided some striking examples of the eagerness of the miners to take advantge of the opportunity which the vocational work affords them. Last year a night class was held at the town of Kitzmiller and there was none at Vindex. The two communities are some four miles—mainly verticle miles—apart. All last winter a half dozen Vindex miners followed the precipitous footpath which leads to the top of a high mountain ridge and then down into Kitzmiller. It was an arduous journey on a cold winter night, but they missed very few meetings. This year Vindex has a class of its own—the largest in the history of the vocational course. Its enrollment is 137, and the average attendance has been 78 for the session.

One might expect such vocational training to appeal especially to young men just starting work in the mines. Most of them have had better schooling than their parents and they have not had a chance to become "set in their ways." Yet an inspection of any of the classes will reveal that older men, too, are being attracted by the opportunity to better themselves. The average age in all the classes is 31, but the extremes are 16 and 74 years.

Quite a number of those who attend are well beyond middle age, and while the three generations mentioned above are exceptional there are other cases of father and son attending the same classes. Veterans of forty or fifty years of mining in Maryland and in the "Old Country" have attended the courses regularly for the last four or five years and at the other extreme there are a number of youngsters just over 16—the age at which they may begin work in the mines. At Crellin which is west of Oakland, and just a jump from Maryland's western extremity, a set of triplets, just turned 18 years of age, rivals the three generations of Lonaconing for honors as the most unusual family group enrolled in the vocational courses.

Some of the skepticism which greeted the organization of the first classes ten years ago was based upon the belief that the miners, particularly the older ones, would not respond with any degree of enthusiasm to such an innovation. Those in charge of the work believe that the figures cited above dispose of that argument quite effectively. There were other skeptics who asserted that, even though the courses might prove popular, they would do no good, they would not help the miner materially to better himself. Dr. Rutledge, Mr. Hutson and Mr. Ewing have kept a constant watch over the changing fortunes of their students and former students and they have assembled some facts which, they believe, provide an answer to skeptics.

In the first place, Dr. Rutledge points out Maryland miners are no longer handicapped when they compete with their West Virginia neighbors in competitive examinations for promotion. In fact, he says, the balance now seems to favor this State, since a number of former students in the vocational classes have won for themselves good jobs across the line. Maryland-trained miners are also working as foremen or in other official capacities in Pennsylvania, Illinois and other parts of the country. Some few, who have displayed special aptitude in first aid and rescue work, have found employment directing such activities in industries which have nothing to do with mining.

While it cannot be claimed that all of the students have benfited equally, the records show quite a number of the more apt have turned their training to direct financial advantage. In 1929, when the vocational work had been going on for six years, a survey was made of sixty-four selected students who had taken both night classes and the summer course. It was discovered that this group had increased its earning power by $54,000, an annual increase of $843. Conditions in the mines this year are not what they were in 1929, but a recent survey of a similar group of seventy-six men showed an aggregate increase in earnings of $36,750, or about $485 each.

There are individual cases which show even more clearly what the vocational courses have done. Nine years ago a 22-year-old miner enrolled in one of the night classes. He was a weigh boss and his average pay was about $4 a day. He completed the course and then signed up for the short summer course. After this he took the State examination and became successively assistant foreman and foreman in his mine. Still he was not satisfied. He left the mines for two years to take a course in mine engineering in a regular university. The man now is superintendent of the mine in which he worked only a few years ago in a minor capacity.

Another Marylander followed a slightly different course. He started out also in a minor position in the mines and promotion also began with his completion of the night course and the summer studies. Now, however, he is a foreman instructor with the United States Bureau of Mines, a position which pays a great deal more money than he was able to make before enrolling in the vocational class. Still another example of the purely practical value of the courses is to be found in Mr. Ewing, the junior instructor in charge of the classes in Allegany county. As a very young man he was working in a mine when he enrolled in the State's first vocational class. As a result of the training he received he became assistant foreman and at the time he quit to become instructor, he was foreman.

One measure of the value of the vocational work—and one which is presented with pride by those in charge—is thec ircumstance that ninety-four pe rcent of all the officials (from the grade of assistant foreman upward) of all Maryland mines have attended one or more of the courses. Tbis does not mean that all of them have become officials directly as a result of the vocational training. Quite a number of mine superintendents and even one or two mine owners have found the courses valuable as a means of keeping posted on new developments, especially in the field of safety promotion and rescue work. But quite a number of the men who rank as officials attribute their promotion directly to the training which they have received.

Dr. Rutledge points out that the real value of the vocational work cannot be measured in dollars and cents. One of the chief benefits and one which applies equally to those who may not have had their wages raised, is the fact that instruction in safety methods, first aid and rescue work has tended to reduce accidents. Mining at best is a hazardous occupation and the dangers are increased geatly where there is ignorance as to the cause of accidents, the means of preventing them and the best methods of minimizing their effects.

Mine rescue and first-aid squads, trained in Maryland, have won high honors in national and international competitions. Practically every mine in the State has a well-trained first-aid personnel and in some of them every worker has received instruction along these lines. This work is closely allied with the vocational training and it is stressed particularly in the summer courses.

Until quite recentl ythe mine vocational leaders boasted that not a man who had enrolled in their classes had been injured seriously in a mine accident. A single fatal accident of the sort that is unavoidable in the mines had marred that perfect record, but Dr. Rutledege, as chief engineer of the Bureau of Mines, and his two mine inspectors, who spend their time investigating conditions in the various Maryland mines assert positively that the vocational work has been an important factor in reducing the number of fatalities and serious injuries.

And if you should want to attach a dollar-and-cents value to this safety factor, Dr. Rutledge says it may be approximated by comparing the accident record of former students with the rate for the untrained mine population—and estimating the actual saving to operators of payments under the workmen's compensation law.

STEYER

Croquet seems to be the favorite pastime in this town.

The Children's Day program was successfully presented here last Sunday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. George Grimm returned to their home in Terra Alta last week.

V. T. Steyer, George Steyer, I. E. Steyer and Mr. and Mrs. Leon Steyer spent part of last week on a fishing trip in the South Branch.

James Burton and son, Robert, and Joe Sullivan called on Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Tucker, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Shockey and Albert Shockey spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Steyer.

Clyde Tucker returned home after spending a week with relatives in Kitzmiller.

Joseph Cerne, Jr., was home on a four-day leave from the Reforestation camp at Paw Paw, W. Va.

Helen and Junior Goodwin called on Maryland Propst, Monday.

Mrs. Oscar Wolfe is spending a week at the home of her mother, Mrs. Hester Harvey.

Mrs. Thomas Rice, of Bayard, is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Ervin Steyer.

Mr. and Mrs. Leon Steyer spent the week-end with relatives here.

Miss Edna Foley called on Mrs. Frank Propst, Saturday.

Miss Rose Cerne spent last Thursday with Mrs. Albert Steyer at Ryan's Glade.

Ray Armourtrout, of the Reforestation camp near Bethlehem, was home over the week-end.

JELLIES AND PRESERVES

Currant Jelly

Wash. stem, drain and slightly crush part of fruit. Use 4 lbs. ripe fruit and add from none to 1 cup of water. Bring to a boil, then simmer until tender, three to ten minutes. Settle. Strain thru double cheese cloth or cotton flannel bag. Use 1 cup sugar to 1 cup juice and cook slowly until sugar dissolves. Then boil rapidly to jelly test.

Jelly Test—When last two drops sheet off spoon.

Care When Done—Remove from fire, skim and pour into hot glasses. Let set, then cover with hot paraffin and tight lid. Wipe off glass. Label with name of jelly and date. Store in cool, dry place.

Sour Cherry and Currant Conserve

One quart pitted cherries, 1 pint currants, 2 lbs. sugar, no liquid.

Clean and stem fruit, slightly crush some of fruit. Sugar down and let stand 12 to 24 hours. Heat slowly until sugar is dissolved, then boil rapidly until done. Partially cool, pack, seal and store.

Currant Marmalade

One pound currants, 1 pound sugar, none to ½ cup juice.

Slightly crush a few currants to start juice, cook until tender, add sugar, heat slowly until sugar is dissolved, then boil rapidly until juice gives jelly test and currants are tender. Partially cool, pack, seal and store.

Cherry Preserves

One pound cherries, ¾ pound sugar, none to ½ cup cherry juice.

Make syrup of sugar and juice. Add seeded cherries to partly cooled syrup and bring gently to boil. Boil rapidly until clear and tender. Cool rapidly. Let stand in syrup to plump. Pack, add heated syrup, seal. (If desired, process 3-5 minutes). Store. Cherries may be sugared down, then cooked.

Potato Growers Warned to Use Bordeau Mixture at Once

Unless corrective measures are taken at once many potato fields of Baltimore, Carrol, Frederick and surrounding counties will be destroyed by the leaf hopper, flea beetle, Colorado and blister beetles, and early blight, it is reported by Dr. R. A. Jehle, plant pathologist for the University of Maryland Extension Service, who has just returned from a tour of inspection in these counties Fortunately, it is pointed out, all of these insects and diseases may be controlled with one spray—Bordeaux mixture.

According to Dr. Jehle, most of the trouble is found in unsprayed fields and he strongly urges that Bordeaux be used at once. In most of the fields, it is said, leaf hoppers are abundant and the hopper burn, which results from their presence, is beginning to appear. In others there aws considerable evidence of injury by the flea beetle and early blight had appeared in some. Colorado and blister beetles were found also.

The spray should be made up at the rate of eight pounds of copper sulphate bluestone, powder or lump, eight pounds of stone or ground lime, and six pounds of calcium arsenate or arsenate of lead to one hundred gallons of water. Twelve pounds of high calcium hydrated lime may be substituted for the stone lime, but it is essential that the arsenical be used. The spray should be applied at seven to ten day intervals.

FRIENDSVILLE

Mrs. W. J. Glenn entertained for her little daughter, Dorothy, last Thursday afternoon. Fifteen guests were present.

Mrs. R. E. Guard entertained three tables of bridge Monday evening. High honors were won by Mrs. Glenn while Mrs. Gilleland received consolation.

Mrs. T. D. Pryor entertained at cards last Friday evening in honor of Mr. Pryor's sister, who is visiting here.

Alvin Cook and daughters, of Frostburg, visited Q. A. Murphy and family Sunday.

Everett Dunham and son, of Uniontown, Pa., spent the holiday with Mr. and Mrs. Leo Dunham.

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Kamp and friend of Almira, New York, are visiting Mrs. Fred Kamp this week.

Mr. and Mrs. William Rogers and Marie Dixon, Milroy, Pa., spent the week-end here with relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. C. U. Gillelond and family are guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Friend this week.

Katheryn Filsinger and Freda Frazee, Cumberland, spent the week-end here.

Mrs. J. W. McCullough was a guest of Miss Gertie Hone, Grantsville, Sunday.

David Silver, Allen Friend, Howard Skidmore and Paul Friend have just returned from a trip below Baltimore where they were doing some saltwater fishing.

Mr. and Emmer Ball, Mrs. C. V. Guard, Olen and Betsy Guard, Pittsburgh, spent the Fourth at their cottage below Friendsville.

Helen Statler attended a dance in Frostburg Friday night.

Mrs. Ethel Wolfus, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Statler were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. William Taylor, of Hooversville, Pa.

Miss Ruth Conley and Messrs. Russell Brown and James Hart, of Oakland, were dinner guests on Sunday of Miss Leona Nicklow.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley DeWitt and daughter, Akron, Ohio, are visiting their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Orval Welch.

Ducky Kyle, Frostburg, spent the week-end here.

Ruby Dahlgren and brother Clyde were guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. O. McCullough Tuesday.

Some of the Accident young folk, Ethel and Raymond McCullough and guest, and Helen Statler enjoyed a picnic dinner at Swallow Falls last Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Williams visited relatives in Frostburg Friday.

In spite of the inclement weather on Sunday, the Kamp reunion at the Cove was well attended.

Mr. and Mrs. John Holman and family motored to Annapolis Saturday where Mrs. Holman and children will spend the rest of the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. John Pike, Hagerstown, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn this week-end.

Mrs. Hollensworth and children, of Fairmont, West Va., are guests of Mrs. Ernest Friend this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Fike, Mill Run, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Fike this week.

Mrs. R. O. McCullough is ill.

Mr. and Mrs. James McGettigan, Mrs. Deleon Rush and son, of Accident, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Sebold and family, of McHenry, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Bedenharn, of Philadelphia, Pa., were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Foster Glover.

Mrs. Orval Rush and Margaret May Humberson were Uniontown shoppers on Thursday.

Playford Ryan spent the week-end with his folks in Cranesville, W. Va.

Dick Friend and family and Mr. Spedden, Worthington, West Va., spent several days here with friends.

SELBYSPORT

At Selbysport, on Saturday evenlng, July 8, there will he a church social held on the church lawn to which the public is invited.

Last Saturday evening Mrs. Myrtle Frazee and Mrs. Ethel Loudermilk entertained their Sunday school classes.

Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Succop, of Pittsburgh, spent the week-end here with relatives.

John and Mary Martha Knapp, of Pittsburgh, are visiting their grandparents here for a few weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Talmage King, of Baltimore, were the guests of Mrs. N. R. Selby, last week.

Church services here on Sunday morning, July 9.

Miss Jennie Timney has returned to her home at Lonaconing.

The following pupils of the Selbysport school had perfect attendance during the school year of 1932-33:

Robert W. Bowser, Junior Frazee, Junior Fike, Clarence Friend, Irvin Lowdermilk, Jim Lowdermilk, Frances Silbaugh, June Lowdermilk, Thelma Frazee, Jean Frazee, Dora Ellen Frazee, Helen Frantz, Maude Fawcett. Thelma Frazee has made perfect attendance for the past five years, or ever since she started to school.

Given Jail Sentence

Ellsworth Liller, Kitzmiller, was given 30 days in jail at a hearing before Justice George Poole yesterday on charges of being drunk and disorderly and resisting arrest.

Roy Sowers attempted to arrest him on Tuesday on a drunk charge and when he failed to comply with the demands of the officer, the additional charge was placed against him.

HOW ONE WOMAN LOST TWENTY POUNDS OF FAT

Lost Her Prominent Hips—Double Chin—Sluggishness

Gained a Shapely Figure

If you are fat how would you like to lose it and at the same time gain in physical charm and acquire a clean, clear skin and eyes that sparkle with buoyant health?

Why not do what thousands of women have done to get rid of pounds of unwanted fat? Take one half teaspoon of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water every morning before breakfast and keep it up for 30 days. You can help the action of Kruschen by cutting down on pastry and fatty meats and going light on potatoes, butter and cream. Then weigh yourself and see how many pounds you have lost.

Kruschen Salts are a blend of 6 salts most helpful to body health. Best of all, a bottle of Kruschen Salts that will last you for 4 weeks costs but a trifle. Ask Gonder's Pharmacy or any druggist for a bottle and start to lose fat today. It's the safe way to reduce but be sure you get Kruschen—your health comes first.—Adv. 7-6;9-21; 12-14.

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse J. Ashby, Jr., and family returned home Tuesday afternoon from Buckhannon where they had visited relatives a few days.

SUMMER MISSION SCHOOL BEGINS SESSION JULY 25

Is Seventeenth Year Of Existence—Camp Gleam for Young Girls To Be in Connection

TO HAVE NOTED TEACHERS

Seven days of opportunity for Bible study, methods, mission study, missionary messages, conferences and fellowship will be offered all interested in both home and foreign missionary work at Mountain Lake Park Interdenominational Summer School of Missions, July 25 to July 31, inclusive. at the Park.

In connection with the Summer School of Missions, Camp Gleam, for girls interested in missionary endeavor and missionary activities, will be open on the same dates.

This will be the seventeenth year in which a missionary program has been carried on at the Park.

The faculty and the text books for this year include:

Bible study by Donald C. Ward, of Fairmont, W. Va.; foreign mission book, "Eastern Woman—Today and Tomorrow," by Ruth Frances Woodsmall, taught by Mrs. Bess White Bunch, of Indiana, former editor of World Call.

Home study book, "The Christian Mission in America," by Hugh T. Kerr, taught by Miss Janet Gilbert, of the United Brethren Board, Dayton, Ohio; the young people's home study book, "Builders of a New World," by Robert M. Bartlett, taught by Miss Gilbert; the young people's foreign study book, "Africa," conducted by Mrs. Rebeka Dodge, of Oberlin, Ohio, an instructor in the Chautauqua Institute.

Junior study and methods, conducted by Mrs. Dodge, assisted by Miss Frances Dodge and two missionaries; pageantry and demonstrations, Mrs. Paul Naylor, Oakland; methods and forum, conducted by Mrs. F. I. Johnson, director of Women's Relations of the American Unit of the International Save the Children Union of Geneva, of New York City.

Evening addresses will be by outstanding speakers, including deaconesses and missionaries.

Four missionaries will be in the school this year, including Mrs. Richards, of Africa; Mrs. Ryan, of Turkey; Miss Elsie Otto, of Africa, and Miss Chii Yang, of China.

Registrations for Camp Gleam are to be sent to Miss Anna F. Shaw, 3022 Garrison Boulevard, Baltimore, and for the Summer School of Missions to Mrs. A. A. Richards, Mountain Lake Park.

Mrs. F. I. Johnson is program chairman of the school, and Mrs. C. Richard Hall, Fairmont, is local chairman.

Taken to Hospital

Corporal Thomas Currie of the State Police, was taken to Memorial hospital, Cumberland, last Thursday for an injury to his hip as a result of his being thrown from the running board of an automobile, over a week ago.

Following the acident Corporal Currie remained on duty for several days but decided to have an examination made when the injury did not improve.

RECOMMEND W. A. GONDER FOR CHIEF APPRAISERSHIP

Senator Tydings Suggest Local Man for Post in Home Loan Corporation

W. A. Gonder, local magistrate, has been recommended for the appointment of chief appraiser for this division of the Home Owners Loan Corporation, it has just been announced.

Mr. Gonder's territory will include Garrett, Allegany, Frederick and Washington counties, with headquarters in Cumberland. The recommendation, made by Senator Millard E. Tydings, is subject to approval of the Federal Board.

Oliver Bruce, Cumberland attorney and banker, has been named manager of the Western Maryland Division. R. Harry West, of Oakland, has been recommended as local appraiser, which position Mr. Gonder at present holds.

David Stiefel was recently named State manager of the Federal organization, and in an article Tuesday in the Baltimore Sun he stated he was not ready yet to receive applications from homeowners seeking mortgage relief under the home-loan act governing the Home Owners Loan Corporation, but that he hoped to be ready within ten days.

The home loan act proposes mortgage relief only to home owners, not to owners of business property nor to real estate speculators. When a home owner cannot meet his mortgage payments and his property is to be foreclosed he can make formal application for relief. Then appraisers will value his property and the title will be examined. The appraisers are to fix a fair valuation between the highs of a few years ago and the present lows and the corporation will be empowered to loan up to eighty per cent of that appraised value.

Mr. Gonder will be over all local appraisers in Western Maryland, providing his appointment is approved. If approved, Mr. Gonder will resign as magistrate.

To Present Movie for Benefit of Boy Scout Camping Fund

A benefit picture "Gabriel Over the White House," will be presented on Monday and Tuesday in the Maryland Theatre by the Oakland Boy Scouts in order to raise funds for their camping activities.

There will be approximately forty boys in camp this year and the entire cost will be about $275. Part of this amount is paid in by the boys and the remainder must be raised by donations and other methods.

The picture presents a telling scene of a conception of governmental activity, of executive authority, at a time when the theme itself is still a matter of high interest. The story treats of the government, its politics and most particularly the office of the presidency. Walter Huston plays the role of the president. He emerges from a motor crash an apostle of action, firing his cabinet, demanding dictatorial authority, crushing a gangster leader and forcing a world-wide peace treaty by a show of naval air strength. Karen Morley and others are in the cast.

Scout Troop to Camp on Lake

A scout troop from McKeesport, Pa., under Mr. P. G. Eizenhafer, scoutmaster, will arrive Sunday at Deep Creek Lake for a week's outing at the Oakland Boy Scout camp site.

Following the McKeesport troop the tri-county 4-H boys will encamp from July 24 to 29, after which the Oakland scouts will spend two weeks there.

On August 16 a troop of scouts from Connellsville, under J. M. Southard, scoutmaster, will spend about ten days there, and on Sunday, August 27, a troop from Frostburg will occupy the camp for a week.

A group of Clarksburg scouts are now camping at Rainbow Inn.

Verdict Favors Defendant

After deliberating for less than a half-hour, a jury in Preston county Circuit Court on Tuesday returned a verdict in favor of the defendant in the case of Oran Rinehart vs. the Stanley Coal Company.

The case had been before the court several years ago, but was retired here this term. Several days were required to hear all the testimony. Rinehart, a farmer living near the coal plant, claimed damage to his property from fumes of a burning "gob" pile at the mine. He was suing for $5,000.

PRE-SCHOOL CHILDREN TO BE EXAMINED AT CLINICS

Letters Have Been Sent to Parents With Schedule of Dates

Letters have been sent to mothers of pre-school children who will enter school this fall notifying them of pre-school clinics which are being held this week and next in various centers throughout the county.

Any child may be examined at any of the clinics, but parents are urged to take their children so that they may be in good physical condition when they begin school life.

The laws of the State require that all children must be successfully vaccinated before entering the public schools and it will be necessary to present a birth certificate at the time of enrollment of the child in school in September. The letter also asks that if possible the child be protected against diphtheria.

Clinics were held yesterday at Oakland, Finzel, Accident and Crellin. Today they are being held at Mountain Lake Park, 10:00 a. m.; Friendsville, 10:00 a. m.; Selbysport, 1:00 p. m.; Red House, 1:00 p. m.; Kempton, 3:00 p. m.

Tomorrow, July 14, they will be held at Jennings, 9:30 a. m.; Bittinger, 11:00 a. m.; Kitzmiller, 2:00 p. m.

July 17, Grantsville, 9:30 a. m.; Vindex, 2:00 p. m.

July 18, Deer Park, 10:00 a. m.; Swanton, 2:00 p. m.

July 19, Bloomington, 10:00 a. m.

July 20, Gorman, 10:00 a. m.

In the letters sent out the hour for Jennings and Grantsville is stated as being 9:30 p. m., but the correct hour is 9:30 a. m.

Dr. Joseph P. Franklin, deputy State health officer, Cumberland, arranged the schedule. Local physicians and Dr. A. K. Fidler, of Kitzmiller, are in charge of the examinations of the children.

WHEAT RAISERS ASKED TO GET PRODUCTION RECORDS

Past Records Needed to Speed up Adjustment Program of U. S.

By compiling records now on how much wheat they planted and produced in the last three years, farmers can speed up the Government's adjustment program, according to John H. Carter, county agent.

Dr. T. B. Symons, director of the University of Maryland Extension Service, says that past production records of each farmer are needed to determine individual allotment. He suggests that wheat farmers get the following information now:

Number of bushels grown each year from 1930 to 1932.

Number of acres of wheat planted for the crop of each of these years.

All that is needed is the total number of bushels of wheat grown on each farm. It all counts in a farmer's total production for the purpose of the wheat program, whether it was sold, fed, used for seed or otherwise.

If a farmer has moved from one farm to another in the three-year period, he should make a separate record of the wheat grown on each farm. If he has operated more than one farm, he should also have the information for each of them. By using elevator, freight, threshing or bank deposit records, it is believed that each farmer can get accurate estimates.

Each farmer will later be asked for the records on past production and number of acres planted to wheat in the last three years. The county association will use these to determine each farmer's allotment.

Dr. Symons emphasizes that the allotment to each county is computed from official records at Washington, D. C., and is all the county can get. It is up to the farmers, through their county association, to divide it fairly among themselves.

To Hold Benefit Card Party for Annual Tennis Tourney

The Women's Civic league of Mt. Lake Park will give a benefit card party on Friday evening, July 24, at the Mt. Lake Park hotel, to raise funds for the annual tennis tournament for the Western Maryland championship, held the middle of August.

Hostesses are Miss Hardic, Mrs. Bushrod Grimes, Mrs. Burns, Mrs. Willoughby Chesley, Mrs. Simpson, and Mrs. Coffindaffer. Tickets will be 50 cents each including refreshments and an award for each table. Tickets are in charge of Mrs. Charles J. Bolgiano.

WELFARE VISITING TO BE KEPT UP BY LOCAL BOARD

Relief Families to Be Classified Into Three Groups; Field Workers Called Together

COUNTY TO BE DIVIDED

Because of the constantly changing status of relief families of the county, the Garrett County Welfare Board is planning to continue family visiting in the homes of its clients. All homes of these families were visited following registration to verify the information given but a more constructive follow-up is being planned by the Relief Administrator.

The relief families will probably be classified into three groups. Those in which unemployment or insufficient wage is the major social problem and where, if the head of the home is given regular employment, the family can be a self-maintaining unit of the county. Those who have always found it difficult to maintain themselves even in prosperous times and those families in which there are outstanding difficulties such as physical or mental ill health, domestic trouble, non-support, neglect and delinquency.

Miss Charlotte Wilcox called together a group of field workers last Tuesday to set a plan in motion. The county will be divided into possibly eight sections and the families within those districts will be classified according to social need and visited at regular intervals by the social aide. An effort will be made to not only continue regular relief in the homes through work projects already established but to assist in readjustments that are indicated and to rehabilitate broken homes when possible. "It is the hope of social work that as many families as possible may be kept intact during these trying times," according to Miss Wilcox, "and that no child or adult shall suffer physical hardship because of poverty caused by unemployment." There are always those homes, however, where living standards have never been wholly influenced by the economic status of the home and where little children will never be given inherent rights unless there is very close supervision of a constructive nature." The group of social aides who have been selected for this regular family visiting will meet weekly during July in an informal training course. During August it is hoped that the trainees will have the benefit of several discussion periods under Mr. Earl S. Bollman, Professor of Sociology, University of Maryland.

DIED.

MRS. EVA MARION ARNOLD

Mrs. Eva Marion Arnold, aged 86 years, 2 months and 13 days, widow of the late John W. Arnold, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. William Whorton, Third street, Oakland, early on Tuesday morning. Death was due to pneumonia with which disease Mrs. Arnold was stricken only a few days prior to her death.

Mrs. Arnold was born near Fort Pendleton on April 28, 1846, a daughter of the late William and Mary Waltz, who resided in Oakland for a number of years following the Civil War and who died here forty years ago. For more than eight years Mrs. Arnold made her home with Mr. and Mrs. Whorton.

Funeral services are being held this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the Whorton home, Rev. C. A. Shiike, pastor of St. Mark's Lutheran church, officiating. Interment will be made in Oakland cemetery.

Surviving are one daughter, Mrs. J. W. Whorton, two grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

Legion Celebration Ends

The annual Legion celebration was concluded Saturday evening with a display of fireworks.

The concluding parade was held Friday evening and was headed by the championship drum and bugle corps of Fairmont, West Va. Due to a truck breakdown, which carried the equipment of the corps, the parade was not held until nine o'clock.

Other organizations participating in the parade included the Grafton drum corp, the Queen Sylvia band and Legion post of Elkins, Civilian Conservation corps of Swallow Falls, floats and local organizations.

A parade of drum corps and local organizatoins was also held on last Thursday evening.

FORESTRY CORPS WORKER IS MAIMED UNDER TRAIN

George Wilson, Baltimore, Attempts to Board Freight at Bond

George Wilson, 21, member of the Civilian Conservation Corps at Camp Bond, this county, whose right arm was amputated after it had been crushed when he fell under the wheels of a Baltimore and Ohio freight train Saturday, is expected to be removed to the Walter Reed hospital, Washington, within ten days.

His condition was reported as improving, and if improvement continues the injured man will be taken to the army hospital.

Wilson is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Wilson, Baltimore. He fell under the wheels of the train which he attempted to board to go to Piedmont. He also suffered from shock and received head and body injuries. The amputation was effected at Potomac Valley hospital, Keyser.

Members of the conservation camp at Bond have been making a practice of going to Piedmont on freight trains in the evenings, it is said.

ATTENDANCE FIGURES FOR ALL SCHOOLS ARE LISTED

Comparison With Last Year's Records Shows Improvement

Attendance data on all elementary and high schools of the county during 1932-33 as compared with the year previous, have been compiled by John L. Fitzwater, attendance officer, showing an improvement in practically every tabulation.

In the Elementary Schools

There were 26 less pupils enrolled last year compared with 1931-32, 4,453 having entered late, an improvement of 77. Withdrawals were less by 11, 106 having withdrawn, other than transfer or death.

Percentage of attendance was increased from 92.1 to 92.7, 811 children were transported, an increase of 71; and less were absent 40 days or more.

Thirty-five hundred were promoted at the end of this year, an increase of 43, while the number not promoted decreased from 516 to 480.

In the High schools attendance increased from 974 to 1,024. Only 27 entered late and only 92 withdrew, both being improvements on the 1931-32 figures. Percentage of attendance improved from 92.4 to 93.7, 601 children were transported, an increase of 35, while the number absent 40 days or more was decreased from 16 to 10.

Eight hundred fifty-seven were promoted, an increase of 84, while the number not promoted decreased from 167 to 141.

Schools were open 191.5 days in both elementary and high schools, as compared with 189.8 for 1931-32.

A bulletin received from the State department of education showing improvement in attendance, reduction in late entrants and withdrawals, shows Garrett county fifth among the counties of the state.

Tennis Season Inaugurated At Park, Locals Playing Kingwood

The 1933 tennis season at Mountain Lake Park was inaugurated Wednesday afternoon by a match between Kingwood and Mountain Lake Park on the courts at the bowling alley.

Five singles and two doubles were played. In the singles Grimes defeated Shaffer 5-7, 6-4, 6-4.

Sincell defeated Keck, 6-1, 6-2; Offutt d. Bonafield, 6-3, 6-3; Calhoun d. Elliott, 6-2, 6-2; C. Chesley d. Garner, 6-1, 6-2.

In the doubles Grimes-Sincell d. Shaffer-Garner, 6-2, 6-1; Keck-Bonafield d. Offutt-Chesley, 6-1, 5-7, 7-5.

Miss Frances Grimes, who is in charge of the courts this season, is arranging for games with Keyser, Cumberland, Morgantown and other towns.

To Run Series of Dances

The Cotillion club, composed of college students, will run a series of dances during the summer at Mt. Lake Park hotel, on Saturday evenings. Some of the leading bands will be featured, according to J. F. Hayes, manager.

Soddy Haines and his Virginians, of Winchester, will be featured this Saturday evening. This orchestra has played in leading ballrooms of the middle west, and comes direct from the Arcadia ballroom of Buffalo, N. Y.

COUNTY'S WORK PROJECTS SUBMITTED AT MEETING

Representatives Assert County Has No Money—Federal Financing Is Necessary

MAYOR PRESENTS PROGRAM

Admitting that the county would not obligate itself in any projects, representatives of Garrett county appeared Monday before the Sixth District public works committee, at the City Hall, Cumberland, and submitted plans for work needed in this section.

F. E. Rathbun, superintendent of schools, submitted a summarized list of projects affecting the schools of the county, totaling about $75,000. He admitted bond issue referendums in the county had failed to carry in the past, to secure school improvements, and they had no money. The projects included additions to Oakland High school and the elementary schools at Kitzmiller, Bloomington, Accident, Grantsville and Red House.

Finances Poor

George D. Browning, County Commissioner, was frank in admitting Garrett county would not obligate itself for any expenditures, to the Federal government. He said the financial condition of the county now was bad, with uncollected taxes and unemployment.

Mr. Browning, however, submitted a list of county bridges needed at Sang Run, Buffalo Run, Bear Creek, Cherry Run, totaling about $31,000. Representatives Lewis suggested that these county bridge projects be submitted to the State Roads Commission, since a direct appropriation was proposed by the government to the States for roads.

Cites Distress

Miss Charlotte Wilcox, relief administrator, working in recent months in Garrett county, described the work that had been done in meeting distress in urban as well as mountain families. She said the mining towns were hard hit by decreased coal mine operations. In recent months, she said, 1200 families had been aided, and the R. F. C. loans for day work have been staggered, to distribute the work weekly among a large number of men.

Grover C. Stemple, mayor of Oakland, submitted a program of streets in the incorporated limits to cost $5,284.25. He said Oakland would finance its 70 percent of the costs. He said the object was to take care of unemployment this fall and winter.

Joseph Fahey, councilman, and D. L. Folk, town clerk, of Grantsville, submitted a complete plan, engineering data, costs, financing and amortization of a $25,000 bond issue for a gravity water supply to Grantsvill. They said the present supply now was individual wells and springs. County Health Officer Dr. Joseph P. Franklin, cited some of the sources had shown pollution. The Grantsville representatives said they had been unable to sell $25,000 in bonds for the work, the banking houses asserting the issue was too small. Their town had no bond debt and no current expenses, with a community of 400 people, and assessed property at $324,000

Charles E. Hardesty, of Loch Lynn Heights, said he submitted two road projects there to the State Roads Commission.

The State-wide public-works coordinating committee tentatively approved a list of projects totaling more than $35,000,000 on Tuesday which it will recommend for construction in Maryland as purely Federal undertakings.

This figure did not include the cost of a Lincoln Memorial Highway from Washington to Gettysburg, through Frederick, which also received the recommendation of the committee on the suggestion of Repersentative Lewis of Western Maryland.

Vacation Bible School to Close With Program Sunday Evening

The Daily Vacation Bible school will close on Sunday evening with exercises in the Methodist church at 7:45 o'clock. Each class will have some demonstration showing the type of work done.

All note books, hand work and art will be on display in the Sunday school room and the vestibule of the church Sunday evening.

The registration of the school almost reached the one hundred fifty mark, with attendance and interest better than usual, it was stated.

Lesson for July 16

DEBORAH

LESSON TEXT—Judges 4, 5.
GOLDEN TEXT—God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble. Psalm 46:1.
PRIMARY TOPIC—God Helping Deborah.
JUNIOR TOPIC—A Woman Courageous.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—An Inspiring Leader.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Leadership in Emergencies.

In order to teach this lesson intelligently, it is necessary that the teacher have a grasp of the book of Judges from which it is taken. In chapter 2:6-19 is given a synopsis of the book. Observe:

a. The sin of the people (vv. 6-13).
b. God's judgment for their sin (vv. 14, 15).
c. Repentance of the people (3:9).
d. God's deliverance at the hands of the judges (2:16-19).

A repetition of sin, oppression by the enemy, repentance on the part of the people, and God's deliverance, is the story of the book of Judges.

The book covers the period from the conquest of Canaan and death of Joshua to the judgeship of Samuel. While Joshua and the elders of his generation lived the people in some measure remained faithful to God, but the very next generation went into apostasy.

I. The National Emergency (vv. 1-3).

1. Lapse into idolatry (v. 1). Ehud was not only a righteous but a strong ruler. As soon as he was dead, the people turned away from God.

2. The bondage of the people (v. 2). The Lord abandoned them to be oppressed by Jabin, king of Canaan. For twenty long years they were under the hand of this king who had nine hundred chariots of iron.

3. The people cried unto God (v. 3). Affliction brought them to their senses.

II. The Judgeship of Deborah (vv. 4-10).

The great national emergency which confronted the nation was met by a woman named Deborah. Her name means "Bee." As suggested by another, she answered her name by her industry, sagacity, and public usefulness. This woman was called to the judgeship of the nation because there seems to have been no man capable.

1. The place where she judged Israel (v. 5). It was under a palm tree, showing that she held an open air court for the administration of justice.

2. Her method (vv. 6-10).

a. Her summons to Barak (vv. 6, 7). Barak means "lightning." Deborah, being a prophetess, was able to select a man whose gifts would enable him to rally the forces needed to gain the victory over the formidable foe. Judging from his accomplishments, Barak was true to his name, for with lightning dispatch he wrought deliverance. It was really God calling Barak through Deborah. She gave definite instruction as to the number of men and the strategy to be employed, assuring him that God would deliver Sisera, the captain of Jabin's army, into his hand.

b. Barak's reply (v. 8). He expressed an unwillingness to go unless Deborah would go with him. This unwillingness should not be considered as weakness, for the presence of the prophetess would inspire courage.

c. Barak rebuked (vv. 9, 10). Deborah yielded to his request, but made it plain to him that it would detract from his honor as a conqueror, "for the Lord shall sell Sisera into the hand of a woman."

III. The Defeat of Jabin's Army (vv. 11-16).

Sisera, the captain, gathered a mighty army and went forth, confident of victory over the ill-equipped, undisciplined army of Barak, but he made one sad mistake. He did not consider that it was the Lord's battle (v. 15). At the psychological moment Deborah gave the signal to charge, assuring Barak that the Lord had gone before and would give the victory (v. 14). Through supernatural interposition the enemy became panic-stricken (5:30).

IV. Sisera Killed by a Woman (vv. 17-24).

In his flight he took refuge in Jael's tent. In the guise of friendship, she committed a most heinous murder after inviting him into her dwelling.

V. The Song of Deborah and Barak (ch. 5).

This song was composed and sung in celebration of the marvelous victory which God had wrought. Deborah set forth in the most definite way that the secret of victory was the help of God. Praise is given to those who responded to the cry, and scorn is heaped upon those who remained behind.

All Barriers Down

All his life long Christ had been revealing his heart, through the narrow rift of deeds, like some slender, lancet windows; but in his death all the barriers are thrown down, and the brightness blazes out upon men.—Alexander Maclaren.

Scars of Sin

"Ransomed, healed, restored, forgiven—thank God I can say that, but the scars of sin always keep me humble."—Bishop Linton.

Now, isn't that appreciation for you!

There's just one thing I want to get off my chest especially this week, and it might as well be first as last. If I don't, the rest of the office editors, sub-editors, assistants, etc., swear that they will add it, so there's nothing left but to hide my face.

It was all Mrs. Scoop's fault for leaving town last Friday and not returning until the parade was under way, but anyway, under the cover of darkness and a very few people at the Sincell corner on upper Second street I took a chance of stepping out of line to greet my wife, whom I thought sure would be watching her hero in the procession.

I was three-fourths completed on an embrace when I discovered my mistake, and I don't know what the color of her face was, but was mine RED! And all the time my wife was inside satisfying her inner craving for food.

Oh, well, my face could have been redder. Just suppose she had caught me in the act!

Remember last year how the Taxpayers' league hollered for cutting down in the number of teachers of the county? It was decided to cut one, at least temporarily, in the Accident community, and who do you think headed the delegation opposing the elimination? Nobody but Mill Biller himself, one of the league's leaders. As our old friend Shakespeare once said, "Oh, consistency, thou art a jewel," or something like that.

Is there going to be a fair? is the question that is being asked by nobody, as far as can be learned, except maybe the star reporter of the Oakland Republican.

Manager Speicher said it might be held if they can hold it in Sweeney's lot and block off Third street as they did at the Firemen's convention. But there aren't half a dozen farmers who seem interested.

With fairs pretty much in the discard all around, it makes one wonder what is the trouble. Is it lack of pride in their products, too much trouble with no immediate benefits, or what? At any rate, pride in ones products should never lag. Quality is being demanded more and more of products in order to make them marketable, and if quality is demanded, quality is what the public is going to have.

Maybe the country is getting ready to pull a Rip Van Winkle and go to sleep for twenty years, resting until times are better.

I've never predicted much since I predicted Hoover's re-election but I'm of the opinion that all these huge loans being made to States by the Federal government will go the way the foreign debts are going. They'll never be paid back.

And I also believe, as if you cared anything for my opinion, that the taxpayers will not be permanently benefited by R. F. C. funds, Federal grants, welfare gifts, etc.

Bare existence will be so easy for a large number of people that they never will go back to work when the opportunity arrives.

And what will happen to the C. C. C. boys when the six months are up and they are dumped back on the towns from whence they came?

Just give me a picnic in the cold, misty weather anytime. Of course, the sun can shine and it can get warm afterwards when it is time to swim.

But just think, no flies, no ants, no bugs, and you have to exercise to keep warm so you can eat more chicken. And the wind comes along and blows away all the scraps left on your plate, and there isn't anything to clean up afterwards.

Weigh all the inconveniences of a hot weather picnic against an occasional dribble of rain down your back on a misty weather picnic and I'll choose the latter—until dinner is over.

Suggestion to the Fire Department—Some deep, dark night, take the fire trucks out of town. Come back and set fire to the Giessman barn on south Third street. Then laugh heartily when the fire alarm is turned in and let the durn thing burn.

Then, maybe the people of Oakland can get some sleep at night. If at first you don't succeed, try, try again, seems to be the motto of the crumb who persists in planning its destruction.

RYAN'S GLADE

Mr. and Mrs. Burt Wilson, of Wilson, W. Va., and Mrs. Hester Harvey were visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Scott Harvey, Monday evening.

Miss Dorothy Harvey returned to her home Sunday afternoon after spending a few days with her sister, Mrs. I. L. Neville, at Bayard, W. Va.

Mrs. Hester Harvey spent a few days of last week at the home of Misses Anne and Emma Hamill at Mt. Lake Park. While there she attended Camp Meeting.

William, Keith and Raymond Steyer were helping Elmer Harvey with his hay crop a few days of last week.

A large number of people from this community attended Camp Meeting at Mt. Lake Park, Sunday.

The farmers in this community are busy harvesting their hay crop.

Alfred Smith has received an honorary degree from Harvard. Nevertheless and notwithstanding, he will be expected to go ahead and say "raddio" whenever he feels like it.

There's ONE way to Solve THIS Housework Puzzle

How to fit daily tasks into some sort of pattern . . . how to do them well, yet easily, too . . . how to find time for rest and recreation . . . these are like pieces of a giant puzzle which many housewives find almost impossible to solve.

But not those women who command a staff of tireless, efficient electrical appliances. There is hardly a household task these magical helpers cannot lighten—and do better. The minutes they save in smaller jobs, like mixing the cake batter, plus the half-hours and hours they save in major tasks, like ironing, add new time for leisure—for doing those things you most enjoy.

And remember, electrical servants ask humble wages—pennies only. All from refrigerator to iron, are priced for 1933. Just see us or ASK ANY DEALER.

STEEL ALONE IS NOT ENOUGH!

—neither strong enough, nor safe enough, nor quiet enough for the body of a quality car like

CHEVROLET

CHEVROLET Why is it that every 12-cylinder and 16-cylinder car in America has bodies of steel reinforced by hardwood? Why is it that every make of car selling for over $4000 uses bodies of exactly the same type? Why? For the same reason that Chevrolet uses it exclusively. Because every test and every experiment have definitely proved: STEEL ALONE IS NOT ENOUGH!

The trouble with steel alone is that it stands just so much shock and punishment. Steel alone is also inclined to rumble and rattle. BUT—when you put the two together—a heavy, staunch steel body over tough, solid hardwood—then the hardwood reinforces the steel—and vice versa! And the result: the strongest, safest type of body, such as Fisher builds for Chevrolet.

WHY BOTHER?

Why bother about the other fellow? If he is having a tough time of it in business and his personal affairs are out of joint, isn't that his concern, not mine?

If he is flat on his back in the hospital, why should I visit him?

If local politics reek with corruption, well isn't that just politics anyway?

If there's crookedness and double-dealings in my line of business, why should I trouble myself so long as it doesn't hurt me?

Maybe that isn't the answer, but it comes to mind. Some Hindu, whose name has long been forgotten, first stated it. Generations have repeated it so often that it has taken its place among the proverbs of the East. It is:

"Help thy brother's boat across and lo! mine has reached the shore."

80 PER CENT U. S. FARMERS ARE SOLVENT

Publicity given to mortgages, low commodity prices and other farm problems in recent years has not meant, as is seemingly thought by many, that most farmers have reached the pauper stage, is the opinion expressed by Harry J. Boyts, livestock commissioner of Sioux City, Iowa, in an article in the Rotary Magazine.

"We overlook the fact that, according to the last reports of the United States Department of Agriculture, more than half of the farmers of the United States have no mortgages on their lands, many have small mortgages that are not burdensome, and over 80 per cent are solvent," he says.

"Today, farmers are the most stable citizens of the country, and the average farmer is asking for the least charity, is practicing the most thrift and is paying his way better than any other man in the nation."

ILLUSIVE FOREIGN MARKETS

While Secretary of State Hull is offering "hope" to the American farmer in a reduction of tariffs, in the evident belief that such a procedure in some mysterious way would open up foreign markets to the American manufacturer and to the American farmer who has been suffering acutely during this depression, Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, another member of President Roosevelt's cabinet, bluntly told the corn and hog growers of the Middle West the other day that their foreign market was lost to them. He offered no hope for regaining it and suggested a curtailment of production down to the domestic demand. In his conclusions as to the value of foreign markets for the farmer in the future Mr. Wallace is more practical than Mr. Hull who for years has dealt with low tariffs in a theoretical sense, using theories which came down to us from the Victorian era, and from even before that blessed period of long skirts and bustles.

It is difficult to see how the farmer would get a greater world market for his grain and meat products through the lowering of our tariffs on finished goods. Because of lower land values, lower living standards and lower production costs, Canada, Australia and Argentina can undersell us in farm products in the markets of the world. To lower our tariff would not help in the least. The result would be not the gaining of a farm market abroad but the loss of the great home market to the cheap goods of Europe and the Orient. This in turn, with American factories and American mines idle, would mean greater unemployment than ever and the loss to the American farmer of the American market because the workman who is out of a job could not buy bread, bacon and butter. Europe, which would displace our manufacturers in our own market, would continue to buy her agricultural products where she could get them the cheapest, and that would not be in the United States, at least until our scale of living had sunk to world levels.

It seems, therefore, that the first thing to be done, would be to see to it that the American market, which consumes more than 90 per cent of our products, should be kept safe and secure for the American farm and the American factory.

Then with a return to normal conditions at home we would have a rising demand for American farm products in America. This would not mean economic isolation for the United States. We must and will continue to import many commodities from abroad, for the simple reason that we cannot produce them at home. Rubber, tin and coffee are three examples. In fact more than half of our imports now come in free of duty.

Therefore as employment rises in the United States there will be not only greater consumption of our own agricultural products at home but a greater consumption of the commodities which we do buy abroad. This would increase the buying power in America, of the countries which do sell us greater quantitles of raw material, and so give us a world market without subjecting ourselves to cut-throat competition from cheaply paid European and Japanese labor in our own market.

We will have real world stability and real world prosperity when each country looks after the interest of its own people first, and principally purchases from other nations the things which it cannot produce at home. There is nothing in world-wide dumping and unprofitable cut-rate competition. Like happiness, prosperity begins at home. The sooner the nations of the world realize this, the better off we will all be.

An Agriculture Speed-Cop Now

IN DAYS OF OLD

FORTY YEARS AGO

A free fight on the westbound accommodation train on July 4 was not stopped until the train reached Skipnish and the participants ejected from the car in which the fracas occurred.

Men were thought to be getting more effeminate because they were wearing flowers in the buttonholes of their coats.

Fires were necessary and extra wraps were necessary to bring comfort to the people of the community on account of the cold weather.

Mountain Lake Hotel had fifty more guests than the same day the year previous and there was a demand for Mountain Lake Park Association stock.

Owen Mackin reopened his meat market at the corner of Alder and Third streets.

A new hotel at Bayard was nearly complete.

James B. Reese donated eighteen acres of land as the site for a tannery to be erected at Bayard. The tannery was planned to use 1500 hides per week.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Morgan Fairchild, employed at the Kendall lumber mill at Crellin was fatally injured when he was caught and crushed between two logs at the mill.

Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Ravenscroft celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary.

An International Harvester Company auto-truck owned by Dr. W. Ravenscroft and driven by Cal Menhorn, en route from McHenry to Oakland, was consumed by fire at the Browning lane on Route 37.

St. Peter's Catholic church was rededicated with Rev. James E. Connell, pastor of the church, in charge of the service. The interior of the structure had been handsomely redecorated and other improvements made.

A heavy rain broke the ten-day drought and cooled the atmosphere to such an extent that it was decidedly chilly.

Miss Jennie Smith, well-known railroad evangelist, was spending a few days at Mountain Lake Park.

Messrs. A. T. Matthews and J. Roy Hammond formed a law co-partnership.

ACCIDENT

Miss Schlossnagle Weds

Miss Althea Oretha Schlossnagle, daughter of Mrs. Florence Schlossnagle, Accident, and Stanley Walter Fike, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Fike, Friendsville, were quietly married last Wednesday in Cumberland. The bride is a graduate of Accident High school and the groom is employed in Kentucky. They left immediately for Hazard, Ky., where they will be at home.

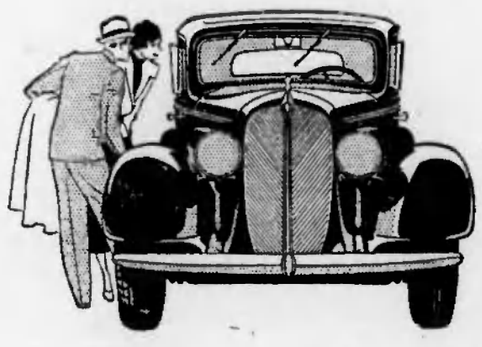
..IT'S THE STYLE LEADER!



Coming, going, standing at the curb—in fact, anyway you look at it, the new Oldsmobile is the Style Leader of America's motor cars. It's the first time in history that Style Leadership has come to a car priced so low—and Oldsmobile sales show how America is reacting . . . almost one out of every three cars sold in its price field today!

And Oldsmobile has more than Style—it has really brilliant performance. The Six will do 75 to 80 miles an hour, the Eight 80 to 85—actual stop-watch speeds. The power flows without a sign of vibration. Roadability is marvelous. In fact, many are saying that here is the world's finest performance. Come in today for a demonstration.

"The Word of Our God Shall Stand Forever"

ISAIAH

Isaiah is generally regarded as the greatest of the Old Testament prophets. He was the statesman prophet of the Southern Kingdom at the time the Northern Kingdom was destroyed by Assyrlah. It was Isaiah who saved the Southern Kingdom at the time of the collapse of the Northern.

Isaiah is pre-eminently the Prophet of Redemption. He exemplifies in fullest measure the two functions of propheey—forth-telling, that is the declaration of the Divine will and purpose for Contemporaries, and foretelling, or the declaration of future events which may not transpire until centuries have passed into history.

Many of the passages of this book are among the finest in literature, as the 5th Chapter, describing the "vineyard in a very fruitful hill," or the majestic 6th Chapter which describes Isaiah's call, and his visions of the Lord's glory, or the 53rd Chapter recounting the bitter sufferings of the Servant, or the 55th Chapter with its royal invitation to drink of the living waters and to eat of the bread of life.

A synopsis of this great book naturally falls into two sections, the first referring chiefly to events leading up to the captivity. The second contains predictions, warnings and promises which refer to events beyond the captivity, and reach on down the centuries through the Christian dispensation. This portion of the prophecy is especially rich in Messianic reference. Isaiah was imbued with the idea that his nation was to be a Messianic nation through whom a great and wonderful blessing would come to the whole world; and he was continually dreaming of the day when that wonderful work would be done.

The key word of Isaiah's prophecy is salvation, by which he means, of course, the salvation of Jehovah. There are many references to this theme, under divers figures. In Chapter 12, 2-3, he says: "The Lord Jehovah is my strength and my song; he also is become my salvation. Therefore with joy shall ye draw water out of the wells of salvation. He lived in the day of walled cities; therefore he conceives of the walls of salvation as a sure defence. This salvation is to be everlasting; it will spread over the whole earth; it will be as an helmet, or like beautiful garments, or shining as the light.

This mighty prophet describes the Messiah who was to come in a series of single word pictures which grow into a grand climax of revelation. Here are some of them: Reprover; Judge; Law-giver; Illuminator; Liberator; Burden-bearer; sin-bearer; Intercessor; only Savior, Mighty traveller; Annointed Preacher; Arm of the Lord; Divine Servant; Righteous King Immanuel; Mighty God; Everlasting Father; Prince of Peace; and declares that of the increase of his government and peace there shall be no end.

Pork and Beans Summer Style

Although many people prefer to have their snap beans merely steamed or boiled and seasoned with butter or pork fat, an old-time favorite dish is snap beans cooked with salt pork. A variation of this is to sprinkle over the cooked beans small bits of crisped salt pork or baeon. The Bureau of Home Economies suggests another variation, a summer form of pork and beans—shredded snap beans with fresh pork. This is a good main dish for dinner, and an economic dinner at that. Pork is still eheap, and beans in season, even if you have no garden, should not cost much. Add to the menu potatoes and fruit—berries or fresh peaches would be excellent, and you have a nutritious, balanced meal.

The bureau suggests another, a quick-cooking method for snap beans. Cut the beans into small pieces. Drop them into a small quantity of boiling salted water, leave uncovered and cook 20 to 30 minutes. As soon as the beans are tender, drain, season with more salt if necessary, pepper, and melted butter or other fat. Green beans or wax beans are excellent in salads, and this is a good way to use left-overs. With potato salad, especially, beans are good, both for flavor and color.

Shredded Snap Beans and Fresh Pork

Two tablespoons butter or meat drippings, 1 quart shredded snap beans, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 pint shredded cooked pork.

Melt the fat in a heavy skillet, add the beans and salt, cover and cook for 20 to 25 minutes, turning the beans frequently. Add the pork, stir until well mixed with the beans, and cook for about 5 minutes longer, until the meat is thoroughly heated. Serve on buttered toast. The beans should be young and tender when this method of cooking is used.

Snap Beans au Gratin

Drain the liquid from cooked or canned snap beans, and put them in a shallow greased baking dish. Cover with white sauce, sprinkle with buttered bread erumbs mixed with grated cheese, and bake in a moderate oven until the sauce bubbles and the crumbs are brown.

Potato Salad With Snap Beans

Four medium-sized potatoes, 1 eup cocked snap beans, cut diagonally in smallpieces, 1½ teaspoons salt, 1 teaspoon grated onion, or more, 1 cup cooked salad dressing.

Cook the potatoes in their jackets in boiling salted water. As soon as tender, but not soft, drain, remove the skins. After they are cold, cut the potatoes in small uniform cubes and pour the salad dressing over them while it is hot. The potato absorbes the dressing and has a better flavor. When cool, add the beans and onion. Mix together lightly so as not to break the potato and maks a mush. Chill thoroughly and serve on crisp lettuce leaves.

Members of the American Legion Drum and Bugle Corps of Fairmont, W. Va., headed the final parade of the American Legion celebration in Oakland last Friday evening. The corps is known as "The Green Hussars" and is composed of 47 men.

Named State champion of West Virginia in 1930, 1931, and 1932, the corps also finished eleventh in the national contest in Boston in 1930, fifth in the national contest in Detroit, in 1931 with 97.65 points, only 1.3 points behind 1st.

The Green Hussars will compete in the following contests this month: Pittsburgh, July 14; Uniontown, July 17; Johnstown, July 21; Charleroi, July 27. The cost of their equipment is approximately $4,000.

40,000 STATE CHILDREN WILL REACH SCHOOL AGE

Parents Are Urged To Get This Army In Healthy Condition

Over 40,000 youngsters in Maryland will reach school age this year and will start to school in the fall. A little over half of the number will attend school in the counties and the rest in Baltimore City. About one-fourth in each group are colored.

The State and City Departments of Education and of Health are jointly concerned in the arrangements for the reception of this army of young citizens. Class rooms are being put in shape, repairs are being made and supplies ordered by the Department of Education. While this is being done the Departments of Health are making every possible effort to get the children themselves in the best possible condition to stand the strain of school life. Health conferences for the examination of prospective first-graders in preparation for their admission to school were started in the early spring and are under way in every part of the State. If conditions that need attention are observed, the parents are advised to take their children to their doctor or their dentist so that corrections can be made before school opens, and the children can enter school, free from the strain that comes from physical handicaps.

Because of the State law requiring every child to be vaccinated against smallpox before he or she can be received as a pupil in any public school in the State, parents whose children have not been vaccinated are reminded that this must be done, and are urged to have it done promptly. They are also urged to have their children protected against diphtheria—another dread disease that is just as preventable as smallpox.

"Two things have helped us to shut the doors on smallpox in Maryland," Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the State Department of Health, said recently. "The State law which requires all children to be vaccinated before they can be enrolled in any public school and the cooperation of the parents in carrying out the law. As a consequence, smallpox is very rare in Maryland.

"We are hoping that eventually diphtheria will be shut out just as completely. We have a preventive against the disease, in what is known as toxoid. Practically everybody has heard, I am sure, of the anti-toxin, that is used in the treatment of diphtheria after the disease has developed. A great many people also know that we have a 'vaccine' which because of certain properties, is called toxin-antitoxin, and which is used to immunize, that is, protect children, so that they will not get the disease if they are exposed to it. Toxoid is an improvement on toxin-antitoxin, and one of the great advantages in its use is that only one dose—instead of several—need be injected, to bring about the desired protection.

"Practically all young children—from babies six months old to those of school age—are very likely to catch the disease from others who have it, or who are carriers of it, unless they have been immunized against it. It is especially important for children to be protected against it before they start to school.

"The State Department of Health furnishes toxoid to physicians thruout the counties free of charge. Parents whose children have not been protected against diphtheria are urged to take their children to their family doctor and have them immunized. If you have no doctor, go to your county health officer for advice."

Legend of Arcas

According to a Greek legend concerning Arcturus; Arcas, son of the king of Arcadia, while hunting, pursued his mother, who had been transformed into a bear by Zeus. The bear mother took refuge in the temple of Zeus and the god, in order to prevent matricide, transported both the mother and son into the heavens.

To locate Arcturus, follow the handle of the big dipper in a curved line a distance that of the dipper itself. Arcturus is the brightest star in the constellation.

FRIENDSVILLE

The Fourth of July celebration here drew a large crowd of people from in and about Friendsville. Baseball fans witnessed three games. Perhaps the one most enjoyed was the game between players of by-gone days and the Boy Scouts. I doubt if anyone knows this score but the Scouts were victorious. In the afternoon the locals and Bloomington played. Friendsville winning 10 to 2.

The game with Shallmar was a too easy victory for the visitors, the score being 12 to 0.

Mrs. Charles Wolfus and daughters left here Friday en route to Charleston by way of Clarksburg where they will spend a few days. They have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Earl Statler for the past month.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By FRANK P. LITSCHERT

Events have moved so swiftly during the past few weeks that even yet a great many people do not realize the importance and the sweeping effect of much of the legislation passed during the recent session of Congress. In effect, the national legislators attempted to make over the economic structure of the country, with a measure of government control never before contemplated in peace time. Just how it will all work out nobody of course can tell. The ease with which the President's' program was put through Congress, was due in no small measure to the nation-wide personal popularity of the President. From now on the new system will have to prove itself. If it does not, it will speedily become unpopular and the administration's political fortunes will wane with it. Every American, of course, regardless of politics, is wishing for the success of the President's efforts to guide us out of the depression. That some progress has been made is undeniable. How much of it is due to healthy recovery and how much to speculation in anticipation of inflation remains to be seen.

One of the most sweeping accomplishments of Congress was the industrial control act. It went through so speedily that few people yet understand it, outside of some of the industries vitally affected. It is the complaint of Republican leaders that sufficient time was not given for discussion, and they say that if it fails the fault will lie in large measure with the haste with which it was passed. Every now and then a conservative statesman is pointing out what he regards as fundamental defects in the program. One of the latest is no less a person than Alfred E. Smith, former Governor of New York and one of the leaders of the President's own party. In a recent editorial in the New Outlook, Mr. Smith expresses grave doubt as to the workability of the recovery act. While admitting that individual initiative and unhampered freedom of action in the field of public utility is a thing of the past the Governor declares:

"It is quite another matter to set up government control of all business. I have never hesitated to recommend the extension of government activities to meet the needs of a growing population in an age of industrial invention, but this plan goes beyond anything my imagination can follow."

Later in the same editorial Governor Smith reorganizes the sweeping effect of the new law by adding:

"If we give the planners a corner of Alaska or a chunk of the bad lands for their experiment, it would not be so serious. Then if the laboratory blew up the whole nation would not suffer." Governor Smith adds that in his opinion the Recovery Act will tend to "cripple initiative, legalize and even encourage monopoly, raise prices and require higher tariffs to maintain the new structure * * * In such a triumph of beaureaucracy the little man would be lost in the shuffle."

In summary Governor Smith says: "It may be that we have reached a new era in which the government must run everything, but I hope not, because I do not want to see this land of opportunity sink to a dead level in which we shall all be civil servants working under political control. If that happens we shall have sold our American birthright for a mess of communistic pottage."

While all are hoping that from now on the traveling will be smother it is not a bad idea occasionally to stop and visualize the direction in which we are going. In this new national experimentation it is true that the laboratory is not one corner of Alaska, but the entire United States. It will pay us well, therefore, to go slowly and carefully. What we want is not more bureaucracy but less of it. We want to preserve individual initiative and personal enterprise so far as possible. If we do not do this, we will have moved a great deal closer to some of the systems now in vogue in various parts of Europe. Let us move forward, but let us at the same time watch our step and be sure where we are going.

MT. LAKE PARK

Self Deception

We are told it really happened a few nights after the formal opening of the Mountain Lake Hotel this summer.

The night was murky and warm—just such a night as we sometimes have in the late spring—with occasional stars showing through thin, fast-fleeting clouds. The hotel owners were seated on the front porch, chatting about this, that and what not, when a car drove up to the front entrance, stopped and the lights were snapped out.

"Guests," thought the hostess, "thus early in the season is a good omen." She hurriedly flooded the lobby with light, aroused the bell hop, twirled the register into position and generally prepared to welcome her guests.

Still there was no movement in the car outside.

She joined her husband on the porch and waited—expectantly. Still silence in the car.

A dense fog had arisen over the glade some distance from the hotel grounds, which, as a thick blanket, filled the low lying land to a heighth of several feet, level and undulating. It was an inspiring sight.

After a time a contented sigh came from the darkened car and the occupants, a young man and a young woman, alighted and approached the entrance to the hotel. The man apologized for the lateness of their arrivel and asked if, perchance, they could be served with sandwiches and coffee.

"Why, certainly, responded the hostess, and placed the tempting midnight snack in the open on the porch.

The guests ate and looked in silence. Finally they asked to be shown to their room, the girl softly humming snatches of a song about an "enchanting azure sky."

On arising the next morning, they immediately hurried to the front porch with delighted expectation on their faces. They just as hurriedly entered the hotel with expressions of disgust. And were they mad? Their disappointment was apparent.

The clerk solicitously enquired what was wrong.

"Well," snapped the girl, "we certainly have been gypped. Last night we thought we were seated by a large body of water. Now, this morning—"

"We are sorry," replied the clerk. "But what you saw last night was simply a sea of fog."

Things are not always what they seem—even at Mountain Lake Park.

The Cotillion Club is sponsoring a dance to be given Saturday night at the Mt. Lake Hotel. Soddy Haines and His Virginians will furnish the music.

There was a light vote polled at the town election on Tuesday owing to the fact that there was no contest on for the various offices. Those nominated were elected, as a matter of course. The new officials are: F. R. Utterback, mayor, reelected; members of the council, J. S. Elliott and Gay Hayden, holdover; H. L. Bittner, I. E. Hardesty and L. H. Killius, newly elected.

Missionary to Speak

Dr. W. T. Reid, of Cincinnati, O., a missionary to the Jews, will speak in the Loch Lynn Baptist church on Sunday morning at 11:00 o'clock. His subject will be, "Bible prophecy as it applies to modern problems."

All are invited to attend this service, as Dr. Reid's message will be well worth hearing.

BITUMINOUS COAL PLAYS CHIEF PART IN INDUSTRY

Few Realize What Depression Means To This Industry

Few folks realize the roles which the productions and distribution of bituminous coal play in the national business picture. Because of the depression in the industry, brought about in no small measure by the encroachment of rival fuels, half a million men, particularly miners and railroad workers, and including thousands who were engaged in furnishing supplies, machinery and other material to the mines and mine workers, have been shoved out of the picture. Unless proper price relationships between coal and rival sources of energy, oil, gas and hydro-electric are established by the National Recovery Administration, the purpose of the Industrial Recovery Act, namely, to put men back to work, would unquestionably be defeated should the bituminous industry be included in the proposed code program.

The industry as a whole, and everywhere, is working energetically to develop a plan that will fit in with the policies of the National Recovery Administration and to formulate an equitable code. A code without that price relationship would not only be inequitable but would obviously defeat the purposes of the act, as the per cent of labor employed in the production of the competitive sources of energy is negligible and these sources of energy, without controlled prices would run away with the bituminous market and throw several hundred additional thousand men out of work.

Although no accurate figures are obtainable, it is a conservative estimate that about a half million men, mine, railroad and other workers, have been thrown out of their jobs within the last fifteen years because of the encroachment on the bituminous market of rival fuels. Also, according to conservative estimates, the average is four dependents for each worker, which means that about two and one-half million people have been affected. Should the code program of the National Recovery Administration be carried out without due protection to the present workers, it is conservatively estimated that, within a comparatively short period 100,000 now engaged in the mining and distribution of bituminous coal would be thrown out of that employment, which would effect a total of half a million or more people. That is not the purpose of the National Industrial Recovery Act.

One of the main objectives of the codes of fair competition provided for in the National Industrial Recovery Act is the increase in purchasing power of the laboring population. This is to be brought about, it is proposed, through a shortening of hours, which will necessitate the employment of additional labor and thru the establishment of minimum wages, which will increase the earnings of labor. The inevitable result of these changes will be an increase in the cost of production of commodities to which the code applies, which, in turn, will necessitate an increase in selling prices. In the case of different commodities competing in the same market these changes may seriously alter the competitive position of the different commodities, reducing the consumption of those whose costs are most enranced and increasing the consumption of rival commodities undergoing less increase in costs.

This situation is particularly serious with reference to bituminous coal and its rival sources of heat and power, petroleum, natural gas and hydro-electric generation. Since the war these competitors have been steadily encroaching upon the market for bituminous coal. Between 1918 and 1932 the consumption of coal declined 47 per cent, while the consumption of fuel oil increased 110 per cent, natural gas 111 per cent, and hydro-generated electricity 138 per cent. In 1918 bituminous coal furnished 69.5 per cent of the total energy consumed in the United States. In 1932 that percentage had declined to 44.7 per cent. If bituminous coal had furnished in 1932 the same percentage of all the energy consumed that it furnished in 1918, the consumption of that fuel, even in a year of marked industrial depression, would have been more than 170 million tons in excess of the actual consumption. If the 1932 percentage had prevailed in the active industrial year 1929, to produce with coal the energy furnished by petroleum, natural gas and water power in that year would have required the consumption of over 250 million tons of that fuel.

Any increase in costs and prices of bituminous coal not offset by similar increases in the case of its rivals, would cause a still more rapid displacement of coal that is now taking place. Anything like uniform increase in labor costs per unit of production would have the effect of increasing disproportionately the price of coal. Labor costs constitute 65 per cent of the total mine cost of coal, according to a computation made last month by the U. S. Bureau of Mines. In the production of petroleum the labor cost is relatively slight, more than 90 per cent of the cost being represented by interest on capital investment, and in the case of natural gas and hydro-generated electricity the percentage of labor cost is even more negligible. A uniform increase of only ten per cent in wages would result in an increase of 6½ per cent in the cost of mining coal, considerably less than one per cent in the production of petroleum, and an insignificant amount in the case of gas wells and hydro-electric power plants. If the mine price of coal is to be increased because of an increase in mining costs, similar advances must be made in the prices charged for competitive sources of heat and energy of the bituminous mining industry, on which hundreds of thousands are dependent, is not to be ruined.

As bituminous coal furnishes the railroads of the country with nearly 39 per cent of their entire tonnage, it is evident that a loss of coal tonnage must result in a substantial decline in the number of railway employes. The same principle could be carried through the handling of coal at wholesale and retail and through the manufacturing and sale of materials and supplies for coal mining companies and their employes, and the transportation of such materials and supplies from the producing markets of the coal communities. It has been estimated that in the aggregate, in all those direct and indirect ways, every ton of coal marketed furnishes one day's employment somewhere in the industrial organization.

TELLS HOW SHE LOST 15 POUNDS OF FAT

Rheumatism Gone Too

Here is a woman who was rapidly putting on weight and who was troubled with rheumatism too. Read her letter:

"I started taking Kruschen Salts because of the good it had done for a friend of mine who had been crippled with rheumatism. At the end of the second bottle I was weighed and find I am now only 148 pounds (original weight 163 lbs.), at which I am so pleased. But I have also felt my rheumatism much less, which has been so troublesome in my knees. I must say I think Kruschen a splendid weight reduced." (Miss) E. L. P.

Overweight and rhematic poisoning often go together. The six salts in Kruschen assist the internal organs to perform their functions properly—little by little that ugly fat goes; slowly, yes—but surely. You feel wonderfully healthy, youthful and energetic—more so than ever before in your life!

Kruschen Salts is obtainable at Gonder's Pharmacy—a jar lasts four weeks and costs not more than 85c.—Advertisement July 13-Oct. 5.

PERMANENT IMPROVEMENT IS BEING MADE AT CAMPS

Forests Are Being Cleared of Underbrush and Roads and Telephone Lines Being Built

CAMP SITES ARE CLEARED

Under the direction of experienced foremen 160 Baltimore men and 20 local woodsmen in Camp S-52 at New Germany are completing a number of forestry projects.

Major jobs comprise the drainage of the 8-acre lake at New Germany, rebuilding the dam and the removal of hundreds of old stumps and logs from the bed of the lake; the construction of several permanent buildings at the resident warden's headquarters; construction of a serviceable motor road from New Germany to Savage River along Poplar Lick Creek; the construction of another road following the old tram grade along the top of Meadow Mountain to the National Highway; building a telephone line from Grantsville through New Germany to Swallow Falls, a distance of 28 miles; and the opening of many miles of boundaries and additional permanent fire lines. If time permits numerous springs will be cleaned out and walled up for permanent recreational use.

A local saw mill has been operated recently under the direction of one of the camp foremen and a crew composed of local woodsmen. The logs are being cut from dead chestnut on the State forest and the lumber is to be used at the camp and at Camp S-60 near Bond.

The camp superintendent, Kenneth J. Seigworth, in commenting on the camp, expressed satisfaction with the general progress, the willingness to learn on the part of the men and the complete cooperation of his technical staff and foremen. He is sure the men are being benefited physically and mentally and that they will return to their homes better citizens.

Potomac Camp

One of the new jobs at Potomac Camp is the creation of a wire-fenced enclosure, floored with crushed rock, which is to be the garage for the eight trucks attached to the camp. In addition to the parking space the area will contain a gasoline tank and pump, a homemade elevated runway for lubricating jobs and other small accessories.

A new telephone line being erected from Potomac Camp to Deer Park, where it will connect with the C. & P. lines, is well under way and will be of the two wire system. The mess hall and tent floors are nearing completion. The reservoir and water supply, recently finished, have made the bathhouse popular. The road into the camp has gone forward until it is now about completed. Work on the dam, temporarily halted, has begun again, and the regular work of clearing, making forest trails, etc., continues.

Swallow Falls Camp

The 120-foot mass shack at Swallow Falls is to be finished this week and the camp site will be moved to the hill where the men will have hot and cold running water, shower baths and board floors in their tents.

The area around the first and second falls has been cleared of underbrush and undesirable trees and the entire section has been made more beautiful. Old trails have been widened and cleared and new ones blazed thru the woods, making more numerous camp sites and picnic grounds.

Sunnyside Baseball Team Leads League at Present

Sunnyside baseball team, the lowest in the first half of the league, is now leading the other nines, with two games won and no defeats. Bayard, with five victories and one defeat, holds second place.

Friendsville, league leader of the first half, holds fourth position at the present time. During the week games were played as follows: Bayard defeated Crellin 4-2; Crellin d. Oakland 3-0; Sunnyside d. Bloomington 8-1; Bayard d. Vindex 8-3; Bayard d. Oakland 5-1; Crelllin d. Vindex 6-5.

Games scheduled for this Sunday are Crellin at Sunnyside; Friendsville at Vindex; Bloomington at Bayard.

ANNUAL TRI-COUNTY 4-H CAMP TO BEGIN JULY 24

Approximately Fifty To Attend From 3 Western Counties

Approximately fifty boys, members of 4-H clubs of Washington, Allegany and Garrett counties, will be present at the fourth annual 4-H tri-county camp to be held at the Oakland Boy Scout camp on Deep Creek Lake next week, July 24 to 29.

The camp will be in charge of Milo S. Downey, county boys' club agent, Cumberland, and John H. Carter, Garrett county agent. Instructors will include E. G. Jenkins, State Boys' Club agent; Serg. McManus, in charge of marksmanship; J. A. Conover, in charge of ice cream and judging demonstrations; James Robinette and John Armstrong, Cumberland, in charge of swimming and life saving; Richard Kilbourne, extension forester, in charge of forestry work.

Elementary work in handicrafts will be in charge of Messrs. Downey and Carter. H. W. Beggs and Charles Miller, agriculture instructors of Accident and Friendsville high schools, respectively, will also be present in the camp.

Knights of Pythias to Install Officers Friday Evening

Playford Ramsey will be installed as Chancellor Commander of the local lodge Knights of Pythias at the regular meeting of the organization on Friday evening. Others to be installed include Gladstone Morris, vice-chancellor; Charles F. White, prelate; L. R. Mason, master of work; Walter Hardesty, keeper of records and seal; M. W. Mann, master of finance; Wilson White, master at arms; Scott W. Shreve, inner guard; Jesse J. Ashby Jr., outer guard; A. G. Gortner, master of exchequer. A. L. Lawton will be the installing officer.

At the last meeting of the lodge it was decided to hold the annual Labor Day picnic, and committeees are to be appointed this Friday and preliminary plans made. This will be the fourteenth annual picnic of the organization.

Home Loan Bank Will Open in Near Future

Within the next week the Western Maryland branch of the Home Loan Mortgage Corporation expects to open quarters in the postoffice building, Cumberland, according to Judge Oliver H. Bruce, Jr., manager of the district which embraces Allegany, Garrett, Frederick and Washington counties.

Judge Bruce expects to secure details and meet with State and National managers this week. He said due notice would be given of the opening date of the mortgage loan branch which will operate in conjunction with the farm loan system.

Twenty-three persons will be employed in the entire district. W. A. Gonder, of Oakland, is the chief appraiser for the district.

Girl Scouts To Hold Lawn Fete On July 29

The Girl Scouts of Oakland will hold a Japanese lawn fete on the Lutheran church lawn on Saturday afternoon and evening, July 29.

There will be lemonade, ice cream, cake, etc., and the Oakland Boys' Band will play. The proceeds will be used to help in defraying the expenses of the Girl Scouts camp.

Aged Woman Breaks Hip

While descending cement steps from the front yard to the street in front of the residence of George H. Falkenstein in Terra Alta Tuesday morning, Mrs. Rhoda David, of Mountain Lake Park, who had been a guest at the home for several days, fell and suffered the fracture of her hip. She was brought to the home of her sister, Mrs. J. M. Falkenstein in Oakland the same day where she is being cared for by members of the family.

110 Pay Income Tax in Garrett

One hundred ten people paid income taxes in Garrett county during 1931, according to a report from the Treasury Department, 63 of them being from Oakland.

Income taxes paid at the Baltimore office for 1931 totalled $11,091,081, as compared with $16,259,979 paid in 1930. A total of 63,992 persons made individual returns. Baltimore is the collection office for Maryland and the District of Columbia, and for persons in foreign countries filing returns in the United States.

SCOUTS PREPARING FOR SUMMER CAMP ON JULY 30

Assistants Have Been Appointed and 40 Members Will Attend

Preparations for the annual encampment of the Oakland Boy Scout troop are being made, according to members of the troop committee. A meeting will be held within the next few days to complete the list of food and other necessities required for the two week's camp, which will be held from the afternoon of July 30 to Monday morning, August 14.

James Lee and McClelland Dixon have been appointed as summer assistants at camp to supervise swimming activities and passing of some of the tests required of the scouts. Both of these assistants have their life-saving merit badges and are former Eagle Scouts of the troop. Four or five others will be in camp who have passed their life-saving requirements, including Bernard Gonder, Jr., assistant scout master.

A court of honor is being held on Monday, July 24, so that those who need merit badges in order to be eligible to attend the camp may earn them. Approximately forty scouts are expected to be in camp.

A benefit picture was presented on Monday and Tuesday at the Maryland Theatre. The proceeds will go towards defraying the expenses of the camp. The balance of the fund is made up from donations and from the boys themselves who will pay $6 each for the two weeks' outing.

Rotary Members Attend District Conference at Cumberland

Seven members of the Oakland Rotary Club attended a district conference at Cumberland on Tuesday afternoon and evening when representatives of clubs from Cumberland, Keyser, Frostburg, Piedmont, Bedford, as well as Oakland, were present. Oakland members, traveling the greatest distance had the largest delegation present, outside of the host club.

Following the business meeting a banquet was held at the Fort Cumberland and an address was delivered by Dr. Albert Lindsay Rowland, president of the State Teachers' College at Shippensburg, Pa.

Those attending from the local club included H. C. Sincell, president; F. C. Stahl, W. W. Dawson, Ralph Weber, Rev. C. A. Shilke, Jesse J. Ashby, Jr., and Paul B. Naylor.

To Make First Field Inspection for Certified Seed Potatoes

Dr. R. A. Jehle and J. W. Heuberger, potato specialists, University of Maryland Extension service, will be in the county next week to make the first field inspection of certified seed potato growers.

More than thirty farmers have already applied for seed certification by returning cards recently sent out by the county agent, and it is expected that before the end of the week the number will exceed fifty.

C. Graham, University of Maryland, completed the pea aphid control work on Monday and has returned to College Park.

Bible Society Representative to Remain in County Several Weeks

Dr. Fred Leonard, Baltimore, a representative of the Maryland Bible Society, is spending several weeks in Garrett county for the purpose of completing his work of distributing Bibles. He will work in Kempton, Gormania, Bayard, Vindex, Kitzmiller, Grantsville, Jennings, Friendsville and Selbysport communities and hopes to arrange for a service in each of these places.

Wherever Dr. Leonard finds a home that has no Bible and the people are unable to purchase one, he presents them a bound copy, the only stipulation being that they read and study it.

While in the county his headquarters will be in Oakland.

ANNUAL TENNIS TOURNEY SCHEDULED AUGUST 14-19

Card Party Tomorrow Evening at Mountain Lake Hotel to Help Defray Expenses of Matches

COMMITTEES ARE NAMED

Despite financial hardships, the committee in charge of the annual tennis tournament for the Western Maryland championship, plans to go ahead and has announced the dates for the fourteenth annual tourney—from Monday, August 14, to Saturday, August 19,—at Mountain Lake Park.

The annual meet is held under the auspices of the Woman's Civic Club of the Park and is sanctioned by the United States Lawn Tennis Association.

Men's singles begin August 14 at 10:00 a. m., with the woman's singles beginning the next day at 2:30 p. m. Men's and mixed doubles will be played later in the week and women's doubles will be held only if there are sufficient entries.

The present Western Maryland challenge cup in men's singles has thus far been won by B. F. Arkle, of Wheeling, W. Va., 1929; Bob Considine, Washington, D. C., 1930; Randolph Shields, Winchester, Va., 1931; John O'Loughlin, Pittsburgh, Pa., 1932.

The present women's singles cup has been won by Miss Mary Will Wakefield, of Mobile, Ala. 1929; Miss Frances Grimes, Morgantown, 1931; Miss Margaret Carspecken, Morgantown, 1930 and 1932. These cups become the permanent property of the player thrice winning. Suitable trophies will be awarded the winners and runners-up in all events.

To Have Card Party Friday

The Woman's Civic Club of the Park will hold a benefit card party on Friday evening, July 21, at the Mountain Lake Hotel, in order to secure funds for the tournament. Hostesses will be Miss Isabelle Hardie, president of the club; Mrs. Bushrod Grimes, Mrs. W. D. Grimes, Mrs. Caroline Burns, Mrs. Willoughby Chesley, Mrs. W. N. Skyles, Mrs. Ralph Weber, Mrs. Mary Coffindaffer, Mrs. Laura Simpson. Tickets are in charge of Mrs. Charles J. Bolgiano.

Committees Are Named

Committees in charge of playing details, finance, social functions, etc., have been named and folders with entry blanks are being mailed to prospective entrants this week. R. E. Weber is chairman of the committee on details of the tournament; Miss Katharine McLain is chairman of the finance committee, and Mrs. Elizabeth Talson is chairman of the social committee. A reception will be held the first night and a dance will be given during the week. Prizes will be awarded on the concluding evening of the tournament.

To Play For Dance Saturday

Eddie Roy and His Boys, of Akron University, will play for the Cotillion Club dance at Mountain Lake Hotel Saturday night. Emmerson Gill, with his recording orchestra, will play on August 4, the only appearance in this vicinity, it has been stated.

Little Savage Inn Destroyed by Fire Tuesday Night

Fire of undetermined origin Tuesday night at 11:30 o'clock destroyed Little Savage Inn, on the National Highway on Little Savage Mountain, eight miles east of Grantsville. The inn was constructed of logs and contained four rooms and was owned by Charles McKenzie, of Frostburg.

The Frostburg Fire Department answered a call to find the structure completely enveloped in flames. The fire, however, was prevented from igniting gasoline tanks about 100 feet away.

Search Ends When Billy Finds Himself

When Billy Treacy disappeared after the evening meal on Sunday, nobody thought anything about it. He was just out playing with his cronies, or something. But when 8:30 came and with it Billy's bedtime and no Billy—Mr. and Mrs. James Treacy began to get worried.

Of course they had read about all the kidnappings in the papers and that didn't help matters—much. A trip to Thad Hinebaugh's home at the edge of town proved to be fruitless. All the children of that household were accounted for. Murphy's was the next stop, but nobody there had seen Billy.

The search now became frantic, but just as fruitless. And hard to tell but they might have been searching yet if it hadn't been for Eddie Dixon.

About 10:30 o'clock he rambled downstairs from the second floor of the Treacy home. He and Billy had gone to the upper rear porch and had amused themselves with a game for awhile, he said. Becoming drowsy, they had stopped to rest and had fallen asleep.

And they didn't seem to be much concerned that they had been "found."

W. W. DAWSON IS ELECTED HEAD BAR ASSOCIATION

Lawyers to Take Afternoon Holiday July 25 to August 5

Walter W. Dawson was elected president of the local bar association at its meeting on Tuesday. Other officers chosen were Neil C. Fraley, vice-president; S. F. Hamill, secretary, and A. T. Matthews, treasurer.

E. R. Jones, retiring president of the organization, has invited members of the association to his lakeshore home for a dinner in the near future.

To Take Vacation

Beginning Monday, July 25, the attorneys will take a two weeks' vacation, their offices being closed in the afternoon of each day. Anyone having legal business is requested to call at their offices during the morning of the vacation period. The afternoon recess will end on August 5th.

MAYOR TALKS TO ROTARY CLUB ABOUT CITY'S NEEDS

Advocates Cemetery Improvements—Golf Course Needed

Two community projects that will add materially to Oakland and the immediate vicinity were emphasized by Mayor Grover C. Stemple in a talk before the Oakland Rotary Club last Friday evening when he advocated the need of improving the appearance of the cemetery and the importance of a golf course that could be built on city property at slight cost.

Mayor Stemple's talk centered on community activities and in his discussion spoke of the revenues and the expenses of the town. He suggested the building of a road by R. F. C. labor to the cemetery entrance and perhaps a driveway through the cemetery, the expense of this to be borne by the city. The rest of the improvement inside the cemetery, he pointed out, would have to come from the lot owners, sponsored or backed by a community organization, such as the Rotary Club.

In speaking of the second project needed here, a golf course, Mayor Stemple stated that the 62 acres of city property, at the northwest edge of town, would be available to any organization that would sponsor it.

The property, he said, could be made into an excellent course, with a house already on the property which might be used as a club house. The land, although hilly, has some level places which would furnish variety and a fairly difficult course.

Mr. Stemple also praised the Rotary Club for its community spirit and the principles for which the organization stands.

Fishing Prohibited in Savage River

Fishing is prohibited in Savage River for the remainder of the year, according to Joseph A. Minke, district game warden, and those caught violating the law recently passed by the Maryland General Assembly will be prosecuted. Several arrests have been made by deputy game wardens within the past few days.

Only trout fishing was permitted in both branches of Savage River during April, May and June, and since June 30 no fishing is allowed in the river. The river has been patrolled by deputies since the close of the trout season.

There is an open season on trout in the Youghiogheny River below Swallow Falls July 1 to November 30, and on bass in any waters between the same dates. Fishing in Deep Creek Lake is from April 1 to August 15.

Second Pioneer Jubilee to be Held at Mt. Storm, July 29

The Mount Storm Community Club will hold its second Pioneer Jubilee at the Community Club grounds, July 29.

The Jubilee program will consist of band and orchestra concerts, male and mixed quartettes, group and solo singing, boxing, shooting matches and other interesting attractions.

The feature of the program will be a pageant at sundown, depicting the second step in the pioneer life of West Virginians, under the direction of Miss Sara B. Huff, member of the Extension Service of West Virginia University, assisted by Mrs. H. G. Duling.

The Allegheny Women's Club will serve home cooked meals and offer for sale home grown products of the mountain.

Ample parking space has been provided.

PROGRAM FOR SCHOOL OF MISSIONS IS ANNOUNCED

Seventeenth Annual Session To Begin at Mountain Lake Park Tuesday, July 25th

The detailed program for the seventeenth annual Interdenominational Summer School of Missions, which begins at Mountain Lake Park on Tuesday, July 25, has been announced.

Bible study will begin each morning at 9:00 o'clock under Dr. Donald C. Ward. This will be followed at 9:35 by the Home Study Book and Methods by Miss Janet Gilbert; 10:25, Visualization on Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Monday, by Mrs. Paul B. Naylor; 11:00, Foreign Study Book and Methods, Miss Bess White Burch; 11:50, Literature presentation.

At 2:30 p. m., Junior Study Book and Methods, Mrs. Rebekah Dodge; 3:35, Forum hour; 7:30, evening services. On Sunday evening, July 30, a pageant, "The Soul of the Church," will be presented, and on Monday evening, at the closing service, another pageant, "Not of This Fold," will be presented.

There will be demonstrations and playlets morning and evening thruout the week. Four missionaries will be in the school this year, including Mrs. Richards, of Africa; Mrs. Ryan, of Turkey; Miss Elsie Otto, of Africa, and Miss Chii Yang, of China.

In connection with the Summer School of Missions, Camp Gleam, for girls interested in missionary endeavor and missionary activities, will be open on the same dates, with Miss Anna Shaw, of Baltimore, in charge.

World War Veteran of Sang Run Dies at Rockwood

Alfred F. Bittner, a World War veteran of Sang Run, died at Rockwood, Pa., on Friday morning of a cerebral hemorrhage. He was aged 40 years. He had been in ill health for some time and had submitted to an operation for the removal of his tonsils on Thursday.

Surviving are his widow, Mary L. Bittner, two children, Alfred, Jr., and Louise; and the following brothers and sisters: Albert Bittner, Akron, O.; Samuel Bittner, Meyersdale, Pa.; Charles B. Bittner, Glencoe, Pa.; Walter Bittner, Johnstown, Pa.; Mrs. Alice Engle, Meyersdale, Pa.; Mrs. W. H. Hoffmeyer, Morgantown, W. Va.; Mrs. Francis Smith, Mrs. Edna Cook, Johnstown, Pa.

The body was taken to Meyersdale and funeral services conducted Sunday afternoon, with burial in Mount Lebanon cemetery.

Mr. Bittner was the son of the late Hiram and Mrs. Sara Coughenour Bittner, of near Meyersdale. He served overseas in the World War and resided for some time in Cleveland, Ohio, but at the time of his death was a resident of Sang Run.

Public Meeting Planned With State Relief Workers

Richard F. Cleveland, a member of the board of State Aid and Charities and chairman of the Governor's Unemployment Relief Commission, and Harry Greenstein, newly appointed State relief administrator, will be in Oakland on Thursday, August 3, according to Miss Charlotte Wilcox, of the County Welfare Board.

A public meeting is being planned, at which these men will speak.

Closing Exercises of Bible School Are Held

The closing exercises of the Oakland Daily Vacation Bible school was held in St. Paul's M. E. church Sunday evening when with song, dramas, exercises, dialogue and recitation, the various classes of the school depicted the type of work done during the two weeks of study.

Notebooks of pupils, work in basketry and art and articles made in the manual training class were on display.

Miss Marion Leary was superintendent of the school, which had the largest registration and highest average attendance of any of the schools in the past. The school will be continued next year.

A card party for the benefit of the Ladies' Guild of St. Matthew's Episcopal church of Oakland, will be given next Thursday evening, July 27, at 8:00 o'clock at Allenhurst, Mountain Lake Park, the home of Mrs. Busselle. Price of tickets will be fifty cents. This will include refreshments.

ISAIAH DENOUNCES DRUNKENNESS AND OTHER SINS

LESSON TEXT—Isaiah 5:1-30.
GOLDEN TEXT—Righteousness exalteth a nation: but sin is a reproach to any people. Prov. 14:34.
PRIMARY TOPIC—God's Good Gifts.
JUNIOR TOPIC—The Wrong Road.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Attacking Wrongs Without Gloves.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Evils Which Must Be Overcome.

I. Israel, the Unique and Beloved Nation (vv. 1-7).

The unique relation of this nation to God is presented under the figure of a vineyard (v. 1).

1. God's peculiar favor shown (v. 2). God did for this nation what he did for no other nation in the history of the world.

a. He "fenced it" when he assigned the boundaries of Israel's inheritance (see Num. 34:1-13).

b. He "gathered out the stones thereof" when the Canaanites were exterminated.

c. He "planted it with the choicest vine" when the Israelitish nation, which had gone through the disciplinary process in Egyptian bondage, was placed therein.

d. He "built a tower in the midst of it" when under David Jerusalem was made the capital city.

e. He "made a winepress therein" when the temple built by Solomon became the fixed place of worship for the nation.

2. The obligation of the nation (v. 2). "He looked that it should bring forth grapes." The word looked expresses the idea, not only of desire, but of expectation.

3. The divine disappointment (vv. 3, 4). "It brought forth wild grapes." Instead of sweet, luscious grapes, they bore grapes of a sour and unwholesome kind.

4. The desolation of the vineyard (vv. 5-7). Since all efforts had been wasted, the owner of the vineyard purposes to take away the fences and leave it to be exposed to the wild beasts to waste and devour.

II. The Sins Which Brought Ruin to Israel (vv. 8-23).

1. Monopoly and oppression (vv. 8-10). The crime against which the first woe was denounced was that of the avaricious grasping after property which leads to the accumulation of wealth in the hands of the few. This state of affairs met God's judgment in Judea (vv. 9, 10), as one day it shall likewise do in America.

2. Dissipation (vv. 11-17). The particular sin denounced here is that of drunkenness. How we shudder to contemplate what God may do to America as she brings back liquor! This sin is never alone.

a. Drinking made the life-business of some (v. 11). They get up early in the morning and continue until late at night. A duplication of this will soon be seen in all of our American cities.

b. A show of refinement (v. 12). The saloon and brothel always have music. Pleasing music was always heard pouring forth from the infamous saloon. The prostitution of music has led many an unsuspecting youth into the way of sin.

c. Blindness to God's warnings and judgments (v. 12). Drinking and dissipation render men insensible to God's dealings.

d. God's judgments for such sin (vv. 13-17). The people were carried into captivity. Not only would they go into captivity, but there was great mortality among the drunkards (v. 14). The records everywhere show a much higher death rate among drinking men than among abstainers. Drinking degrades all classes (v. 15). The rich and mighty men are brought down with the poor and humble. Even the country itself was made desolate (v. 17).

3. Unbelief (vv. 18, 19). This woe is denounced against the sinner who presumptuously plunges into vice. He is not overtaken with sin, but deliberately goes after it and works at it. He becomes so daring as to defy the judgments of the Almighty (v. 19).

4. Moral confusion (v. 20). This woe is pronounced against those who try to adjust moral conditions to suit their sensual appetites.

5. Conceit (v. 21). The fifth woe is pronounced against the sin of self-conceit.

6. Perversion of justice (vv. 22, 23). The sixth woe is pronounced against judges who, because of a lack of moral discrimination, and the desire for temporal gain, cause justice to miscarry.

III. Predicted Judgment (vv. 24-30).

The historic fulfillment of these predictions are but types of the severe ones which are to follow.

The Soul Beautiful

The colored sunsets and starry heavens, the beautiful mountains and the shining seas, the fragrant woods and painted flowers, are not half so beautiful as a soul that is serving Jesus out of love, in the wear and tear of common, unpoetic life.—Faber.

His Will, Not Mine

"I cannot wish things were different from what they are, for if I do this, I wish my will not his to be done."—Gen. Charles G. Gordon.

SCOOP'S COLUMN

By Scoop Himself

Such a temper as I display when I fear some accident is going to befall one of my garden plants! This time it was tomato plants. I let my dog Hank loose the other evening, just to see whether he had absorbed any sense or reasoning power. Right away he wanted to run all over my tomato and cabbage plants. My deepest voice and cruellest commanding tone had no effect on him. He still tore around like mad, coming dangerously close to my garden treasures.

Convinced of his stupidity and wanting to show my authority in some way I picked up a rock and whizzed away at him. And didn't that rock cut off the top of one of my nicest plants! And I never even came close the dog.

At a meeting of the lawyers it was decided most of them had been suffering from voluntary inertia, and that they would take a holiday during the afternoons to recuperate during these strenuous summer months. So everybody having business with them are requested to call at their offices in the mornings—or at their homes after offices close; or peck three times on the office doors and yell the magic word through the keyhole. Just because the blinds are down doesn't mean—

I've said enough on that subject. Neil Cusser Fraley said to be careful and not say anything that might bring on a libel suit, and I'm liable to if I keep on.

* * *

The other evening we stopped in the Boss Editor's domicile to get some of those rolls for which the household if famous. After getting inside the kitchen door, I began sampling a number of other things when the Boss Editor's real boss appeared. "Why don't you stay for supper," she hollers. "You might as well eat here as get it cooked here." And we accepted her invitation before she had a chance to change her mind. Always congenial to the last erumb.

* * *

I have often heard of people who don't have sense enough to come in out of the rain, but I didn't know there were four in one community, and I never would have believed that I might be one of them.

But that was in the time, BAAITUG (before Archibaldson and I took up golf).

Such a plight might be excusable for a couple of ordinary printers but for an educator and a treasurer to be in the same boat, it's appalling. And besides being in the same boat the oars leaked, and the put-put-putter wouldn't put.

It all happened when Prof. Bailey Banks and Bittle got bit again by the golf bug and wouldn't rest until he made a pet out of the thing for no other reason than just to train it to sting somebody else.

Before a golf bug can sting, he has to have some one out on a goof course to sting, so Prof. Bailey got Jesse James, Jr., Archibaldson and me where we are all exposed to the disease. Later effects show, however, that Archibaldson must have been immunized, inoculated, or else it just didn't take with him.

It might have been the rain and again it might have been the first time he came to bat. He had four strikes and one foul ball before he finally teed off. James, Jr., (better known as Ashby) performed more satisfactorily and Prof. Banks of course hit the first one across the plate. I would gladly pass over the fourth of the foursome but if you really want to know he got to first base on balls, called too high, too low (please replace turf) inside and high, and outside wide. Incidentally I got to second base by fanning several times. The rules are funny that way.

I still claim it was all right until the rains descended and smote me hither and thither until I was nothing but hither and thither all over.

Bittle would he the one to egg us on, rain or no rain, and we would be crazy enough to follow him.

And I still claim Archibaldson might have liked the game if Dead Eye Dick or Jesse James hadn't tried to make a hole in one with his mashie and then yell "fore" just in time for Archie to dodge the club. He says when it gets to the point of throwing your club and carrying he ball it's time to quit.

While I think of it, Mayor Stemple's idea for a golf course on the city property at the edge of town is a good one.

Hope There's Still a Purgatory

They said this forty years ago, and I guess it's still good: "You may hive all the stars in a nail keg, hang the ocean on a nail to dry, put the sky in a gourd to soak, unbuckle the bellyband of eternity and let out the sun and moon, but never delude yourself with the idea that you can escape that place on the other side of purgatory unless you pay the printer.

* * *

There now. I hope your conscience hurts.

THE HALF-PRICE STORE

"WE BUY FOR CASH AND SELL FOR LESS"

Wearing Apparel for the Entire Family

OAKLAND, MARYLAND

Thursday, July 20th, 1933

To Our Friends and Customers:

Last week this store announced through the columns of both County newspapers, as well as by circulars, the fact that our July Sale was opening on Thursday, July 13th, and is still in full swing. In this same announcement we also gave a list of articles with prices that were far below the actual present day market prices. In this letter to you we want to explain how we are able to give these low prices on this high quality merchandise.

As per usual some several months ago our buyer was on one of his scheduled trips to the markets of the East, and upon every stop he made, he was told that it would be only a matter of a few weeks until market prices were bound to advance, and in several instances double the cost to the merchant. Realizing that this condition would force every merchant to raise their prices unless they were prepared, we decided to protect our customers and stock up heavily at the old market price.

Therefore we bought and bought heavily in every line of merchandise at the old market price and are prepared to take care of all of our customers, giving them the usual high grade merchandise at our OWN low prices---and when we say take care of our customers---we mean for months to come. Remember, regardless of market prices we are selling at the old-time low prices, and to prove it to you, we extend a cordial invitation to one and all to come in during this July Sale and be convinced that "We Buy for Cash and Sell for Less."

We appreciate your business and want you to make this store your headquarters when in Oakland. The policy of the Half-Price Store has been, and will always be on a Money-Back Guarantee.

We thank you,

SOME PUZZLIING QUESTIONS

On the one hand, the administration is preparing to redistribute the income of the nation in ways that will, it is hoped, bring about a better adjustment of demand to supply and thus tend to increase productive activity. On the other hand, it is planning restrictions upon output as a method of effecting that redistribution. This novel experiment in nation-wide price and production control suggests many puzzling questions. For instance, will the country benefit from introduction of an abnormally short working day designed to provide more jobs for the unemployed?

Can we find a solution of our unemployment problem hy "organizing for leisure," as some of our sociologists urge? Can we afford to withdraw millions of acres of land from cultivation for the sake of giving farmers a larger relative share of a physically diminished national income? If not, what disposition will ultimately be made of the lands which are leased by the government at public expense in order to cut down the amount of certain crops?

Finally, can the country raise its llving standards by redistributlng the national income among producing groups, while simultaneously organizing to reduce the amount produced?

Higher prices can, perhaps, be secured and maintained by resort to such methods, and the glaring injustices of systems of uncontrolled inflation can at the same time be prevented; but the nation's permanent well-being can in the long run only be assured by combining equitable distribution of income with adequate utilization of the land, labor and capital belonging to the people.

THE NEW CONTROL

The United States is soon to experience within its own borders the most far-reaching and sweeping political and industrial experiment in all the world, excepting Russia, IF all the powers being vested in President Roosevelt are to be exercised.

The word "if," of course, is the crux. The power to regulate or control all business, industry and agriculture, all employment, production, hours, wages, distribution and prices may, it is true, never be exercised to a great degree. If and when it is the United States will have become a socialistic state.

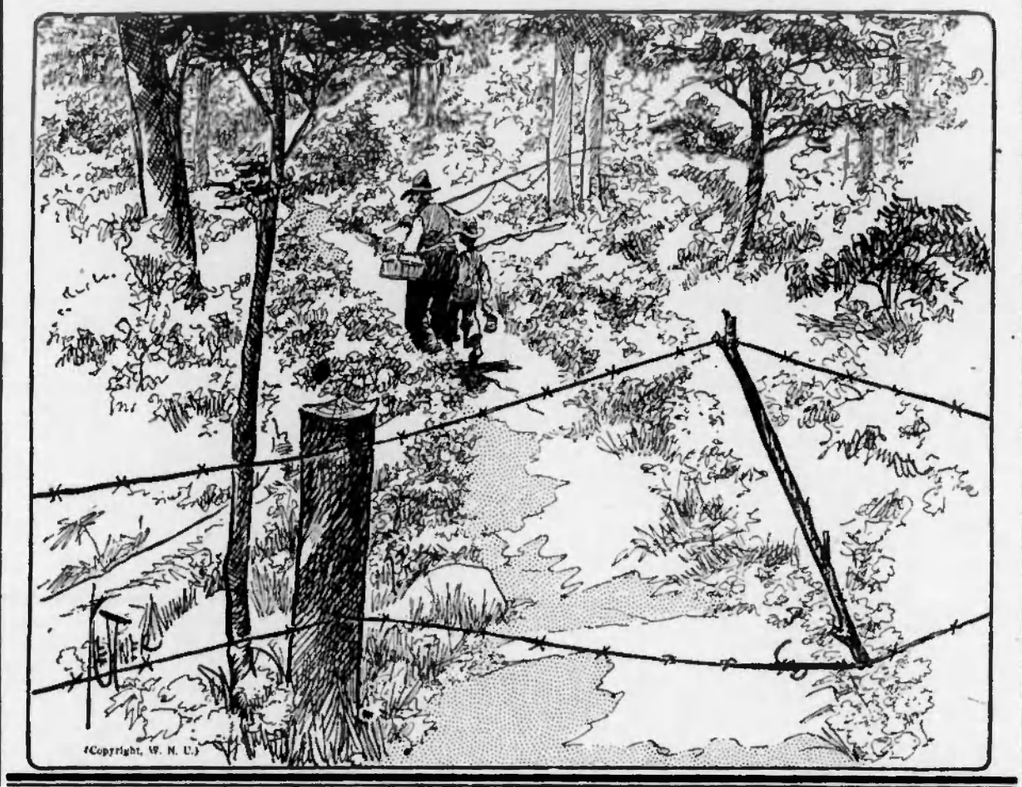
Prediction as to what may or may not transpire, however, has come to be the most uncertain thing in the world. Nobody had any Idea on March 4, last, that any President of this country would ever presume or dare to ask Congress for the dictatorial peace-time authority that Mr. Roosevelt has requested—and received. Nobody had the slightest notion that any Congress would ever consent to giving any President such unprecedcnted powers in so many fields (soon to cover nearly every field) as has been and is being vested in the present executive.

The New Deal, so-called, or the Roosevelt plan, is known to be the brain child of the professorial kitchen cabinet in Washington. The ranking members of the official cabinet are reported to have been little consulted and less heeded. The Democratic leaders in Congress have pushed it thru although some of them are known to have their misgivings as to possible results.

The excuse for it all is the emergency occasioned by the economic depression. In principle it is the reverse of the tarditional American governmental doctrine. The anti-trust laws of sacred memory are to be set aside and every industry, in effect, welded into a trust under the supervision of the government.

The scheme is so distinctly new and untried in the modern world that comparisons are not at hand. It is a step toward sovietism and distinctly revolutionary, but it is a peaceful revolution, voted by the established lawmaking body of the existing order. Where it Is headed and to what extent the authorized machinery will be employed nohody knows, probably not President Roosevelt himself. So far it is legislative theory. The practical application is yet to come.

The Trail of Missing Men



IN DAYS OF OLD

FORTY YEARS AGO

Burglars entered the postoffice in Oakland and robbed it of all money, stamps, registered packages, etc., the value of which aggregated about one thousand dollars. Ways of Feeding the Family Economically

1. Know the most economical foods.
2. Teach the family to eat all wholesome foods and see that each person at the table has at least a small serving of everything appropriate for him. Avoid discussion of food likes and dislikes.
3. Give small servings and see that food is eaten and not left on the plate.
4. Do not serve too much variety at one meal, but have variety from day to day.
5. Plan meals carefully and have few left-overs except those definitely planned.
6. Use left-overs in appetizing dishes. The best manager does not continually have left-overs, because she knows how much to plan for her family.
7. Use more desserts from milk, eggs, cereals, dried, canned and fresh fruits.
8. Prepare foods so that the health value lost is reduced to the minimum.
9. Prepare foods that might be bought ready to serve after comparing prices.

The following are some economical dishes which add variety to the menu:

Prune Cobbler

1. Place stewed dried prunes, sweetened to taste, into a baking dish, with juice sufficient to cover the fruit.
2. Lay a rich biscuit dough, slit open in the center, on top of the prunes.
3. Brush top with milk or fat.
4. Bake until crust is browned or biscuit is not sticky in center when tested with a toothpick.
5. Serve hot with milk and sugar.

Scalloped Mixed Vegetables

1. Place a layer of sliced potatoes in a greased baking dish and sprinkle with salt.
2. Add a layer of sliced carrots, then another of potatoes, salt and a little flour.
3. Add a layer of sliced onion.
4. Add bread crumbs or pork rind at top.
5. Pour in milk up to top layer but not over it.
6. Cover loosely and bake in moderate over about one hour or until vegetables are tender. Remove cover toward end to brown the top.

Scalloped Cabbage and Apples

Two quarts shredded cabbage, 1 quart tart sliced apples, 2 teaspoons salt, 1 cup bread crumbs, 2 to 4 tablespoons butter or other fat, 1-3 cup sugar, 1 cup hot water. Grease baking dish. Lay alternate layers of cabbage, salt, apples, sugar, fat and crumbs, having top layer of crumbs. Add hot water. Bake in hot oven until apples are tender (about 45 minutes).

COUNTY MEDICAL GROUP TO AID NEEDY PATIENTS

Allegany and Garrett Society to Continue Charity Work

At a special meeting of the Allegany and Garrett County Medical Society, held last night in Cumberland, a resolution was passed whereby the physicians and surgeons who are members of the organization will accept no offers of pay from welfare groups, Federal, State or county or city authoritics for treating charity patients.

It was cited that a large number of needy and unemployed persons are being treated by physicians in Allegany and Garrett counties and that many persons are under the impression that the physicians are paid by welfare agencies or governmental bodies.

During the discussion of handling charity cases, it was decided that the members of the Allegany-Garrett society will continue their charity work and will reject any offers of pay from welfare groups and other organizations.

IMPRESSIVE SERVICE ALWAYS

Sympathy

One of the questions most frequently asked us by our friends is this:

"How can you be constantly in the homes of bereaved families without becoming callous and 'case hardened'? How do you keep your sympathies alive?"

We always answer that in each individual case there is a new opportunity to be of real service in time of need. We consider our knowledge and experience as a charge given to us for the benefit of others.

MARGARET JANE C. BRAY

Margaret Jane Campbell Bray was born November 15, 1869, and died on July 10, 1933. She became ill March 8 but had apparently recovered a month ago when she was able to be up and around her home. Funeral services were held in the M. E. church in Swanton on Wednesday afternoon, July 12, Rev. Samuel Johnson, officiating, with interment in the U. B. cemetery.

Surviving are her husband, Bradley T. Bray; seven children, Mrs. Laura Weicht, Mrs. Tressa Friend, Mrs. Iva Paugh, Mrs. Doris Frlend, Robert, Everett Bray, all of near Swanton; and James Hugh Bray, at home; also three sisters, four brothers, Mrs. Mary Rhodes, Mrs. Ellen I. Lee, of Oakland; Miss Alice Campbell, Benjamin Campbell, Robert and James Campbell, of Kitzmiller; 15 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Bray was converted at an early age and her faith never wavered although she was unable to be present at church services in her later years due to her delicate health.

The flowerbearers were her six nieces, Ruth, Mary, Janet, Marie, Elizabeth and Bernice Campbell. Pallbearers were Clyde, Leroy, Paul and Ralph Campbell, Lee Rodeheaver and Thomas Rhodes. Lee Rodeheaver and Ralph Campbell sang "In That City," which was requested by the deceased some time prior to her death.

DEER PARK

Members of June Grove, No. 38, W. O. W., met Thursday, July 13, with Mrs. Anna G. Clatterbuck presiding. The grove will hold its annual picnic some time next month. A social program was prepared for the next six months. Refreshments were served picnic style. Mrs. Dora Pysell and Miss Anna Thrasher are the hostesses for the next regular meeting.

A girl scout troop has been organized in Deer Park. Rev. Samuel Johnson will assist in the work.

Miss Nadine Hardesty has been chosen captain of the blue team and Miss Lola King captain of the red team in the attendance contest of the Christian Endavor Society.

A children's program will be given next Sunday during the Sunday school hour. All members of the cradle roll, beginners and primary children and their parents are especially invited.

Mr. and Mrs. D. V. Grayson and son, Cumberland, visited Mrs. Grayson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. J. Harvey, recently.

Mrs. Ethel Nichols, Cumberland, visited her sister, Mrs. Woodrow Warnick, a short time ago.

Miss Evelyn Warnick has returned from Piedmont, W. Va.

James Browning, of Warren, Ohio, is visiting here.

SAFEGUARD BABIES FROM ILLNESS DURING SUMMER

Special Precautions Should Be Taken at this Time of Year

Special precautions should be taken at this time of the year to protect the babies from the digestive disturbances that are prevalent during the warm weather. Some of the most effective ways by which digestive upsets and diarrheal diseases may be prevented are outlined by Dr. J. H. M. Knox, Jr., Chief of the Bureau of Child Hygiene of the State Department of Health, as follows:

Mother's Milk—Mothers' milk is the best and safest food for a young baby. Babies who are nursed by their mothers are less likely than bottle-fed babies to have serious digestive troubles. Weaning should be avoided in hot weather.

Clean, Cow's Milk—The best substitute for mother's milk is clean cow's milk, diluted with water under the doctor's direction. All cow's milk used for infant feeding should be boiled for two or three minutes—it is not necessary to boil it longer. The milk should then be cooled as rapidly as possible, placed in individual bottles and kept on the ice or in a very cool place. It should be warmed as needed.

If a suitable quality of cow's milk cannot be obtained, unsweetened evaporated milk can be used. An equal quantity of water added to the unsweetened evaporated milk, produces a mixture equal to fresh milk.

Cleanliness in the Care of the Baby's Bottles—Digestive ailments that occur among bottle-fed babies can often be traced to carelessness in handling milk in the home and to failure to wash thoroughly and sterilize the bottles each feeding. Fifteen or twenty minutes is long enough for the baby to take all he is going to take at a single feeding. If the bottle is not emptied by that time, throw out the milk mixture remaining in it. Clean bottle thoroughly and sterilize it by boiling before using it again.

Intervals Between Feeding—Babies should rarely be fed oftener than every three hours during the day. There is less risk, especially in hot weather, if they are fed at four-hour intervals.

Cooled, Boiled Water to Drink—Cooled, boiled water should be offered to the baby frequently, between feedings, in hot weather.

Clothing—Dress the baby according to the weather. Have a light cover at hand to slip over the baby when there is a sudden drop in the temperature.

Protect the Baby from Flies—House flies are a much greater source of danger to the baby than is generally realized. They carry disease producing germs from all sorts of places and deposit them in the baby's food, on the baby's face and hands and on articles that come in contact with the baby. Flies should be kept away from the baby, its food and its clothing.

Keep the Baby Away from Persons Who Are Ill—Babies should be carefully protected from contact with older persons who are sick.

Regular Medical Care—The best way to keep the baby well is to have him under regular medical supervision. The doctor should see the well baby frequently, at least once a month so that the mother may be advised as to its feeding and care.

Call the Doctor—At the first indication of sickness, call the doctor.

"The Word of Our God Shall Stand Forever"

JEREMIAH

Jeremiah is often called the weeping prophet. The lugubrious character of his prophecies is fully justified by the wretchedness of the times in which he lived. The principle themes treated by him are the backsliding and bondage of the Jews, with here and there a gleam of hope as he foresees the restoration. In all his trials he is sustained by the Word of God: "Thy words are found, and I did eat them; and thy word was unto me the joy and rejoicing of mine heart."

Jeremiah fearlessly denounces rulers who are unfaithful, and also the false shepherds and prophets of his people. King Zedekiah, always weak and easily led astray by his advisers, cannot believe that he and his people will be carried away captive to Babylon, for there are conflicting prophecies, or what appear to be such, Isaiah having declared that Zedekiah would never see Babylon, and Jeremiah that he would be carried away captive to Babylon. Both prophecies were fulfilled, however, for Nebuchadnezzar first put out his eyes, then carried him away bound in chains to Babylon.

The bitterest experience that can come to a prophet is to see his word despised. Here is a fountain of springing water, but the thirsty rely upon broken cisterns, Chapter 2:13. The experienced teacher points to the old ways, untried and devious. Lost opportunity plunges the prophet's soul in grief: "The harvest is past, the summer is ended, and we are not saved," he wails, thinking not of himself, but of his beloved people. This leads him to a tearful call to repentance wherein he exclaims: "Oh, that my Head were waters, and mine eyes a fountain of tears, that I might weep day and night for the slain of the daughter of my people." He deplores the depravity of the human heart in this bitter lament: "The heart is deceitful above all things, and desperately wicked; who can know it?"

In chapter 8, under the type of the potter, God's absolute power in disposing of nations is revealed. "Oh, House of Israel! Cannot I do with you as this potter? saith the Lord. Behold, as the clay in the potter's hands, so are you in mine, Oh, House of Israel!"

Always there is the light of hope following the gloom of despair. While Israel is told of her doom in no uncertain terms, there is given the promise of redemption if idols are forsaken and the true spirit of repentance manifested. The prophet tells not only Israel but all of us how to find God, in this passage, found in the 29th Chapter, verses 13-14: "And ye shall seek me and find me, when ye shall search for me with all your heart. And I will be found of you, saith the Lord; and I will turn away your captivity, and I will gather you from all nations, and from all the places whither I have driven you, saith the Lord; and I will bring you again into the place whence I caused you to be carried away captives."

Notes on Early Maryland Governors: VII

AN INDIAN REMARKED THAT GOVERNOR NICHOLSON WAS BORN DRUNK

ONE VANISHED MEMENTO OF A STORMY COLONIAL CAREER

By
ETHEL ROBY HAYDEN
In the Paltimore Sunday

Maryland, approaching her three hundredth birthday, is gathering her scattered mementoes. Attics give up their treasure in hope that some ancient document or article may turn up to add to the State's history and help recreate the days that are gone. Meanwhile there rests somewhere (likely in Massachusetts) an interesting fragment of Maryland's past in the shape of a pewter tankard. Besides being a Maryland presentation piece, this tankard bears a double interest in that it points out one more picturesque gesture in the career of one of the most picturesque Colonial figures, Gov. Francis Nicholson.

The tankard was presented in 1698 by Governor Nicholson, in the name of the colony of Maryland, to Hannah Dustin and Mary Neff. Everyone is familiar with the story of these two women and their escape from an island a few miles above Concord, N. H., where they were held as prisoners in an Indian camp. Hannah Dustin and the nurse, Mary Neff, together with a white boy named Leonardson, arose at midnight, while the savages were asleep, killed 10 Indians, scalped them and, to prevent pursuit by the others, scuttled all the boats but one, and in that set out for Haverhill, Mass. When they reached there with the ten Indian scalps to witness their bravery they were acclaimed as heroes and their story furnished a theme for New England poets for 200 years thereafter. The Legislature of Massachusetts unanimously voted them 50 pounds apiece, and more than a century later a granite monument was raised on the island, now called Dustin Island, to commemorate the deed.

All this is history and too well known to bear elaboration. What is not so well known, but of significance to Maryland, is the circumstance of the tankard. News traveled slowly then, and the Hannah Dustin story may have been a long time drifting down to Maryland; anyway, in 1698, more than a year after the incident occurred, Governor Francis Nicholson declared it a deed worthy of the noontide of chivalry, and presented to the actors the pewter tankard as a token of the appreciation of Maryland for "bravery such as this." Fifty-five years ago that diligent historian, Benson J. Lossing, described the tankard as being of pewter and weighing 2 pounds 2 ounces, and holding a little more than a beer quart. Upon one side was rudely engraved a portrait of William the Third inclosed in an elipse of scrollwork, supported by a lion and the Unicorn, and bearing the initials of the King. On the other side of the tankard was the outline of the Unicorn and a large thistle The lid was ornamented by an outline engraving of a flower.

The chivalrous gesture and the very design of the token serves as an interesting commentary of the character of Governor Nicholson; a character made up of contradictions, consistent only in its inconsistencies. These days we hear much mention of his name. The long silences of time have decidedly softened the picture and we know him now as the founder of the William and Mary College of Virginia, promoting the first free school in Maryland, the builder of Annapolis, and altogether a sort of patron saint of learning and of progress. But the Governor was something more than that. He was on the one hand a patron of some very good things, and on the other a vertiable wild man. No one more nearly emulated the little girl with the curl.

He first appears in history as a young man with bared head devoutly kneeling with the Catholic King James while mass is being celebrated in the royal tent at the camp on Hounslow Heath. He was a Protestant, but such courtly pliancy won for him the command of a company of regular soldiers (made up mostly of Irish Catholics) that sailed with Sir Edmund Andros and reached Boston in December, 1686. In April, 1688, Captain Nicholson was commissioned Lieutenant-Governor of New England. He was left in command of New York while Andros, to prevent another Indian war, hurried to Boston and, as it proved, to prison.

England was in a state of religious and political ferment, the vibrations of which shook the colonies. In New York the Dutch were agitated over religious matters and distrusted Nicholson. When news came of the invasion of England by the Prince of Orange, the Governor refused to credit it and summoned a meeting at the town hall, where he produced his commission from James and swore with big oaths that he would live and die by the same. The Dutch, overjoyed at the change, ignored Nicholson and went merrily on with the festivities. It was decided to strengthen the fort by some city militia and in some way (maybe by accident) the guns of the fort were turned on the town and there were rumors of an intended massacre. Nicholson threatened to set fire to the town, saying he was not sure of his life nor safe to walk about the streets. The agitators took possession of the fort, changed its name from James to William and proclaimed the Prince of Orange.

The following year Nicholson sailed for England, and it was supposed his colonial career was ended. On the contrary, after a liberal display of gold at court, he crossed the seas again with a new commission from William of Orange and took his place as Lieutenant Governor of Virginia. Howard, the titular Governor, had antagonized the colony, and Nicholson set out to be popular. Like the Grecian candidates for the people's favor, he instituted athletic games and set prizes for the contestants. He sugested a college building, headed the subscription himself, and encouraged James Blair in his mission to London which produced the College of William and Mary.

Then he was superseded in Virginia by his former chief, Sir Edmund Andros, and he again sailed for England. On the death of Llonel Copley he returned to America as Governor of Maryland. Here he became an active reformer. He used the most arbitrary methods in moving the Assemby to Anne Arundel county from its original seat in St. Mary's. Ancient enemies, Protestant and Catholic, joined each other in protest against this change. In vain did they petition the Assembly, naming the great loss of wealth and inconvenience the change would incur. The reply was that the reasons given adverse to the proposed change were "hardly deserving any answer at all." Such a step implied no little power with the King, for a careful reading of history will show that no matter whether or not the change was expedient, it was most unpopular at that time. But to Anne Arundel Town the Assembly went early in 1695, leaving the town of the Calverts to crumble into decay and finally to vanish.

Soon the name of Anne Arundel Town was changed to Annapolis, and contracts were made with Casper August Hermann, third son of Augustine Hermann, of Bohemia Manor, for a State House, a parish church and a schoolhouse. The Governor himself subscribed 50 pounds a year toward the building of the school and 25 pounds a year "toward the maintenance of the master during his Excellency's continuance in the government." Thus the Governor has been credited with the beginning of free education in Maryland. It was not, however, until 1701, three years after his departure for other fields, that the first public school in Maryland was started. A more definite and far-reaching good than his gesture toward a free school was his system of management for the fiscal affairs of the colony. He laid the foundation for a sound banking system, and did valuable work in revising the colonial laws.

The year following the arrival of Governor Nicholson in Maryland saw the establishment of a public post, the route extending from the Potomac, by way of Annapolis, to Philadelphia. The postman was required to traverse his route eight times a year, carrying all public messages and delivering letters and packages to the inhabitants along the way. For this service he received 50 pounds sterling a year—for the three years during which this rude system endured.

The kneeling figure on Hounslow Heath became in Maryland the arch persecutor of Catholics. He was in constant rows with the Assembly, and though he received from England a "recommendation of moderation," he later boasted that he could never have governed Maryland if he had not "hampered the people and kept them under." One example of this policy is found in the well-known case of Philip Clark, whom Nicholson persecuted to his very death. Though the terror of his temper and his obstinacy was everywhere felt, he could, when occasion demanded it, put on the cloak of the lamb. An illustration of his meek side is included in his reply to the House after that body had objected to a proposed tax for the building of a church in Annapolis. He wrote:

His Excellency is pleased to signify that he is not so dogmatic as to imagine his own opinions to be infallible, or endowed with eloquence enough to persuade the House against its own inclinations, or to force people's consciences.

William Penn, in 1696, wrote of the violence and harsh carriage of Governor Nicholson, and Logan described how the Governor passed through Pennsylvania on his way to New York "doing all the mischief it was possible for him to do, though he was treated very civilly by friends here." An Indian, seeing him in a fit of temper, said, "the gentleman is drunk."

"No," objected a bystander, "he never drinks strong liquor."

"I do not mean that he is drunk with rum; he was born drunk," the Indian replied.

About the middle of the year 1698 he also seemed to be a little drunk with ambition, for he was then considering a plan to bring the colonies under a sigle viceroy, with a standing army to do his bidding. He found this idea a bit premature, however, and turned a wistful eye on New England. It may have been at this point that the bravery of Hannah Dustin and Mary Neff impressed him, for this was the date of the presentation of the tankard. He likely could have got the appointment, but the more lucrative post of Governor of Virginia beckoned and to that he went instead.

In less than six weeks after his accession to the Governor's chair, Nicholson had so embroiled his affairs in Virginia as to be losing the support of the Assembly. When he found himself unable to control them he threatened violent means to bring them to his wishes. All the tact of his former regime was gone.. No longer was he the sauve, temporizing Governor they had known before, but a tyrant instead, though when the wild-riding Colonel Parke gave him a horsewhipping by way of settling an argument, the Governor bore it with singular resignation. At the same time he assumed the role of defender of the church, and so well did he pull the wool over the eyes of some of the clergy in England that they spoke of him as the right hand of God and thought him fit to be a bishop.

As a lover he was quite as violent. The father of a pretty Virginia girl objected to Nicholson's marriage with his daughter, and the Governor swore in dramatic language to have his blood. Suspecting a rival in a young clergyman, he waylaid him on the road and in the King's name and as his superior in the church, forbade him to enter the lady's house or to speak to her. Finally, hearing that she was to be married, the Governor threatened to cut the throats of the bridegroom, the minister who should perform the service and the justice who should issue the license.

James Blair, the man who had been his friend in the early Virginia days, wrote of him now:

No Governor had greater art to gain the affections of his people than he if only he chose to make use of it. But instead of the halcyon days we promised ourselves under his government, we have never had so much storm and tempest and hurricanes as in that time. He governs us as if we were galley slaves by roaring and thundering abusive Billingsgate language utterly indescribable to those who have not heard it.

Nor was this an isolated complaint. The whole colony shared Blair's lament and after four years his removal from Virginia was soughtand in disgrace he left for London.

But the man recovered from defeat as a cat from a fall, and in a short time he was appointed to command the provincial forces that were to attack Canada by land while an English force was to cooperate by way of the St. Lawrence. This resulted in the capture of Port Royal and subsequently the Governorship of Nova Scotia for Nicholson. The post palled after five or six years and again he intrigued to made Governor of New York instead of Robert Hunter, who outwitted him. Nothing daunted, Nicholson returned to England and was knighted in 1720. Shortly afterward he was made Governor of South Carolina. His disposition seemed to sweeten up, for here he carried on with much success for five years, and was rewarded for his services by being made a lieutenant-general.

In 1728 Lieut.-Gen. Sir Francis Nicholson died in London with a record to his credit of more than thirty-eight years in the royal service. Today his name is probably more familiar to us than any other royal Governor. He sleeps in a glory that was wrested from life by many a strange way. But where is the tankard now?

* * *

In October, 1874, A. W. Corliss, a captain in the United States Army, wrote Mr. Lossing that the tankard was then in possession of Emory Coffin, of Newburyport, Mass. Recently a search of the most likely places in Massachusetts brought no results. Nor can information be had of either Mr. Coffin or Captain Corliss. There is little doubt that the tankard still exists, and maybe soon some lucky person will uncover its hiding place so that in 1934 Maryland will find it among her souvenirs.

BITTINGER

Regular church services in the Lutheran church here are announced to be held next Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock; Sunday school session at 1:30. The afternoon sermon will be delivered by Rev. Harry Hall, of Cumberland. All are most cordially invited to attend.

Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Collingwood, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Govan and Mrs. James Govan, all of Pittsburgh, were guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Silas Beachy over the week-end.

The rain last Saturday evening prevented the holding of the announced social to be held by the Busy Workers' Sunday school class, from being held in the village grove, but the resourceful young ladies served refreshments and entertained the good crowd that attended in the village school house.

Last Sunday afternoon a number of young men from the Crab Tree reforestation camp came to this village and played a game of baseball with the home team which resulted in a vistory for the visitors, the score being nine to three.

Mrs. Willis and daughter Miss Marjorie Willis, and a grandson, Gordon Willis, of Marianna, Arkansas, spent one night last week in this village as guests of Mrs. Willis' sister, Mrs. O C. Buckle. Mrs. Willis and daughter continued their journey from here to New York City, leaving the grandson to remain for a month at the Buckle home.

County Commissioner George D. Browning, of Oakland, was a very pleasant visitor in this neighborhood last Friday afternoon.

The Commonwealth Attorney and the Sheriff of Allegany county, accompanied by a Mr. May, of Cumberland, and W. E. Folk, of Grantsville, were business callers in Bittinger one day the early part of last week.

Constable Andrew Shartzer, of Oakland, accompanied by two friends, visited this community one day last week and while near Jennings took into custody John Bittinger and E. V. Fazenbaker, both of whom, in default of bond for their appearance at court, were taken to the Garrett County Jail at Oakland.

James Speicher and family, of Accident, visited relatives here last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Hetrick and family and a party of friends from Lumberport, West Va., were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Melchoir Hetrick last Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Howard Resh and children, of Akron, Ohio, are visiting relatives in this community.

Leslie Stanton, of near Grantsville, was a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Asa J. Orendorf last Wednesday afternoon.

Rev. Milton Miller, of Grantsville, conducted services in the Glades Mennonite church last Sunday evening.

This is what fires cost the farmers of America every year. For protection against fire—the quick summoning of neighbors' help—a telephone is a necessity. And in the meantime it gets the best prices in buying supplies and selling produce. It flashes fast messages to doctor and veterinarian. It keeps the family in touch with their neighbors. If you have a telephone, use it more. If not, don't be without one another day. Ask our Business Office and see how low the rates are.

MT. LAKE PARK

Epworth League of Baltimore Conference in Session

The Park again welcomes the Baltimore Conference of the Epworth League, now in its nineteenth annual session. This is a society of the Methodist Episcopal church founded in the year 1889, at Cleveland, Ohio, having for its principal object the helping and broadening of the young people in their Christian life.

The annuel meeting of this association of young people is always looked forward to by the people of the Park not alone because of added financial returns, but because of the fact that this gathering is inspirational to us as well as to the members of this outstanding affiliate of the church. Its influence has been felt in more than a dozen foreign countries.

Approximately 225 have registered here this season and will remain during the conference which closes Sunday evening.

In a social conversation with a citizen of the Park last evening, a man who has the interests of the Park at heart, the question of the sale of beer at this resort was discussed in case Garrett county voted to legalize its sale at the coming election. While this man is liberal in his views on the general question of prohibition, nevertheless he was most emphatic in his opposition to extending the sale privilege to Mountain Lake Park. His chief objection was that this resort was founded and has always been known as a Christian summer resort, and in the past, as now, relies entirely on revenues derived from such meetings as the Ministerial Association, the Summer School of Missions, the Interdenominational campmeeting, the Epworth League and other affiliated activities of the Christian Church. Eliminate the meetings of these different associations and others of like nature from the Park and nothing would be left to maintain it, much less to restore it to its pristine glory.

Whether 3.2 is intoxicating in fact, or non-intoxicating, under an implied dictum of Congress, it is at least debatable, but its sale, either under the sanction of the law or without it, will not add one jot or tittle to the reputation or prosperity of the Park.

School of Missions

It is with pleasure that the people of the Park as well as many living outside its confines and indeed outside of the State of Maryland, will learn that the program for the coming Interdenominational School of Missions to be conducted in the Park for one week beginning on Monday, the 25th inst., has been completed and is being distributed not only here but throughout the section of country from which the school draws its patronage.

The program is up to the high standard which has been maintained by it for many years and with the corps of workers now in charge laboring and cooperating wholeheartedly, it will be the success they all hope for.

Were it not for the women—the good women of the world, it is hard to think what would become of the Christian religion and the spread of the Gospel not only in our own land but the world over.

Tennis Tournament Will Be Held

We are glad to learn that despite the inconveniences of delayed return to economic normalcy, there will be a tennis tournament this year at the Park. August 14 is the date set. This annual meet, by tireless effort in the face of frequent discouragements, has been advanced to the point where it ranks as one of the major tennis events within the territory covered For several years past it has attracted some of the crack players of the country to the Park and aside from any other consideration, is a fine advertisement for this section of the country. It is believed this year will be no exception.

Among those registered at the Mt. Lake Hotel during the past week were: Mr. and Mrs. John E. Potter, of the Potter Title and Trust Co., of Pittsburgh; Mr. R. D. Anderson, also of Pittsburgh; Mrs. Emily Motz, Baltimore; Mrs. Henry D. Gilchrist, Sewickley, Pa.; H. F. Wright, Chattanooga, Tenn.; Mrs. J. M. Stewart and Mrs. H. C. Stewart, Minerva, O.; Dr. W. F. Maury and sons, Wheeling; Mrs. John F. Parker, Baltimore; Mr. and Mrs. F. T. Campbell, Pittsburgh.

Mrs. E. L. Davidson, of Parkersburg, W. Va., accompanied by Miss Gertrude Humphreys, also of Parkersburg, arrived in the Park on Friday where Mrs. Davidson maintains her summer home. Mrs. Davidson has been ill practically all the winter and during the spring, but with the fresh mountain air and invigorating climate her friends expect her speedy recovery and restoration to health.

George Hipsley, located for some months in Washington, D. C., has joined Mrs. Hipsley here for the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Curtis B. Fleming were guests for a few days of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Comerford. They were en route to their home in Fairmont from a fishing trip in Pendleton county, W. Va.

Miss Frances Jane Hogue, of Akron, Ohio, is spending her summer vacation with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Rathbun, in Loch Lynn.

Mr. Gus Watkins, of Fairmont, was a recent guest of his sister, Mrs. C. E. Hutchinson, in the Park.

Ira McKee and his sisters, Misses Faith and Myrtle McKee, of Pittsburgh, have opened their cottage for the season.

Miss Kitty Carr and Miss Mary Moore Miller, of Wheeling, motored here Sunday and spent the day with friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Morris Beamer, Mrs. Geo. Beamer, Miss Ruth Beamer, of Cincinnati, Ohio; and Mrs. Harry Searls, of Memphis, Tenn., motored to the Park Monday and were guests until this morning of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Turney when they returned to their homes.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Gaskins, of Fairmont, spent Sunday in the Park with friends.

Mrs. Isobel D. Hill and son Jordan have returned from a business trip to Halstead, Pa.

Miss Minnie Daugherty, of Cleveland, is spending the summer here.

Mrs. Hattie Moss and Mrs. Charles Alexander, of Baltimore, are summer guests at Allenhurst.

Mrs. Laura Lott, Miss Flesher and Mr. and Mrs. Sabriski, of Brookline, are guests of Dr. and Mrs. L. L. Carr.

Rev. and Mrs. John Beddow and daughter Gladys, were recent guests of Rev. and Mrs. Gregory Bleakly. Rev. Beddo wand Rev. Bleakly were classmates in a school in England more than forty years ago and both are now members of the West Virginia Conference of the Methodist Episcopal church.

Mrs. Charles W. Fairfax, Washington, D. C., was a week-end guest of Mrs. Willoughby Chesley at her home in Loch Lynn. Mrs. R. Winston Holt, also of Washington, is spending this week with Mrs. Chesley.

GRANTSVILLE

Bible School Picnic

The daily vacation Bible school closed with a picnic Tuesday morning. Classes were conducted seven mornings in the Lutheran church with the following teachers in charge: Mrs. Stewart Rodamer, Miss Caroline Wallace, Miss Rachel Holmes and Miss Dorothy Edwards. Eighty-one pupils were enrolled and almost all of them cofpleted the course and received certificates for work well done. The course included exercises in Bible study, in art and in music. A great deal of interest was shown and the results of this short course are quite satisfactory to both pupils and parents as well as to the teachers and others interested in Bible study.

Following the class period Tuesday morning the children gathered on the lawn and joined in a picnic lunch. Games and contests followed.

Missionary Society Meets

The Lutheran Missionary Society met in the social room of the church last Tuesday evening for their regular monthly meeting. Sixteen members of the organization were present and Mrs. Nevin Broadwater led an interesting meeting.

Mrs. Durst Entertains

Mrs. Floyd Durst entertained the following members of the Reformed Missionary Society on Wednesday evening at her home: Rev. and Mrs. Bash and son, Mrs. J. U. Stanton, Mrs. Fred Livengood, Mrs. Marshall Beachy, Mrs. H. O. Miller, Mrs. Ida Hershberger, Mrs. C. A. Bender, Mrs. W. E. Stanton, Mrs. Hayward Broadwater, Mrs. T. O. Broadwater, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Beachy, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Folk, Miss Anna Yutzy and Mrs. Sidney Setzer. The lesson was discussed by Rev. Bash. The August meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Ida Hershberger.

Personal Mention

Dinner guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. U. Stanton on Sunday were: Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Stanton, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Stemple, Misses Louise and Margaret Stemple, all of Aurora, W. Va., and Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Newman, of Pittsburgh, Pa.

Mrs. W. L. Dill, Jerome, Pa., is spending some time with her mother, Mrs. Noah Warnick, who has been ill for the past two weeks.

Mrs. P. C. Boucher is visiting relatives in Salisbury, Pa.

Miss Gladys Anne Garber, Greensburg, Pa., is here studying under the direction of Misses Rachel Holmes and Caroline Wallace.

Mrs. M. C. Thompson, Grindstone, Pa., is visiting her daughter, Mrs. George Edwards and family.

Mrs. Sarah M. Miller and daughter, Mrs. Alice Lydinger, spent last week with Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Miller.

Mrs. George Barbarow, daughter Ruth and son George visited Miss Christina Winterberg last week. Miss Ruth remained for a short visit with Miss Winterberg.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Hendershot, Hancock, Md., spent Saturday evening with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Swauger.

Mrs. Ward Compton, Salisbury, Pa., is visiting her brother, Fay Miller, and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Harley Spoerlein are spending a few weeks with relatives in Baltimore.

Emmons Younkin, Pittsburgh, is here for several days with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Younkin.

Thomas Jeffrey, Addison, Pa., spent the week-end with his sister, Mrs. Olen Yoder.

Miss Helen Baum spent the week-end with her parents in Berlin, Pa.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Bowlin and children, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Shaw and family and Miss Wilma Schaefer, Confluence, Pa., were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Schaefer.

Mr. and Mrs. James Martin and son Willard, Washington, D. C., recently visited Mrs. Noah Warnick.

Mr. and Mrs. C. V. Rice, Frostburg, spent Sunday with Delbert Durst.

Miss Elizabeth Steicken, of New Brunswick, N. J., is spending some time with Miss Ruth Stanton.

Dalton Dill, Jerome, Pa., is spending this week with Mark Miller.

Miss Martha Engle will leave Friday for the University of West Virginia, Morgantown.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Edwards and children and Miss Almedia Simpson, of Barnesville, O., will leave Thursday for Chicago, where they will attend the World's Fair.

Miss Lillian Kelly, Newport News, Va., is visiting her aunt, Mrs. B. T. Keller.

Mrs. H. L. Osborne and daughter, of Sidney, N. Y., are spending some time with Mrs. Etta Engle.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Hershberger and son have returned to Saranac Lake, N. Y.

Mrs. Hayward Broadwater, accompanied by Mrs. Eva Beachy and her daughter, Mrs. Fred Livengood and Miss Julia Ellinger, attended a lawn fete at St. Paul Thursday evening.

Beers' Show Coming to Oakland

The Beer Players, a dramatic stock company, playing under canvass, will open here for a week's stay on Monday, July 24.

The company consists of 25 people, presenting latest Broadway plays with vaudeville between the acts.

The opening play is The Wanderer, a comedy-drama in three acts featuring Charles "Toby" Beers, the "Red Headed Country Boy."

The vaudeville includes circus acts, singing, dancing, blackface comedy and novelty acts. Plenty of music is furnished by Eddy Mixon and his recording orchestra.

Everything possible has been done to make this year's show bigger and better than ever. The tent will be located on the Sweeney lot on Third street.

The admission, 10 and 25 cents. Ladies are admitted free on Monday evening with one paid adult ticket. Show starts at 8:30 with a change of program each night and don't forget—"Everything new but the name."

STATE RELIEF WORKERS TO SPEAK HERE AUGUST 3

Son of Former President to be One of Those to Address Gathering in High School

BAND CONCERT SCHEDULED

Richard F. Cleveland, son of the 22nd President of the United States, and Harry Greenstein, recently appointed State Relief Administrator, are making a tour through Western Maryland next week. They will visit Garrett county on Thursday, August 3, and will speak before a public meeting that evening in Oakland.

Mr. Cleveland, following in the steps of his illustrious father in service to his state and country, accepted the chairmanship of the Governor's Emergency Relief Commission some time ago. He will speak of the social welfare program through Maryland and Mr. Greenstein will present relief plans for the coming months.

The Garrett County Welfare Board is sponsoring the public meeting. Mayor Grover C. Stemple has arranged a band concert on the Court House terrace from seven to eight o'clock that evening when the public will be cordially invited to go from the concert to the auditorium of the high school building nearby. A large attendance is expected. Notices of the meeting will be posted in various parts of the county and an invitation issued to all families on work and direct relief through foremen, social aides, and in other ways.

According to Mr. Charles W. Ream, chairman of the County Welfare Board, the number of heads of families on work relief projects in the county has been somewhat reduced during the past month because other work appears to be opening up in various lines. "This has enabled the Relief Administrator to increase the number of work days allowed to many of the men on road projects," Mr. Ream stated. "It is the hope and plan of those in charge of the relief work that we can continue to make such increases until more adequate relief can flow into homes of need during the coming weeks. We have been forced in the past because of the large number of those in need of aid to spread out our relief funds so thin that it has been impossible to give sufficient aid in some cases," Mr. Ream continued.

Mr. Ream stated he felt that Garrett county should feel honored to welcome the distinguished visitors to Oakland on Thursday, August 3, and expressed the hope that an overflow meeting would be held. Everyone interested should take advantage of the opportunity to hear the county's relief plans presented that evening.

Bayard Now Leads Baseball League With 6 Victories

Bayard baseball team, with six victories and no defeats, is leading the Mountain State baseball league, with Sunnyside and Friendsville in a tie for second. A mistake in the score sheets turned into The Republican office last week showed Bayard with one defeat, but a corrected sheet sent in shows that the West Virginia team has won all of its games in the second half.

Effective Sunday, July 30, Swallow Falls C. C. C. camp will assume the unplayed schedule of the Peerless team under the direction of Lieut. Lang, camp physician and director of athletics. The addition of this team will complete the circuit of the league and will bring another strong competitor for the other members of the organization.

Games scheduled next Sunday are Vindex at Sunnyside, Friendsville at Crellin, Bayard at C. C. C. camp, unless otherwise arranged, and Bloomington at Oakland.

Standing of the League

Walter Dawson, son of State's Attorney and Mrs. W. W. Dawson, has been confined to his bed for about ten days as the result of an attack of intestinal influenza. He will be able to sit up today or tomorrow. Charles Mason, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wade H. Mason, who was also confined to his home with influenza, is able to be out again.

Bishop Adna W. Leonard to Preach at Mountain Lake Park

Bishop Adna W. Leonard, resident bishop of the Pittsburgh area of the Methodist Episcopal church, will preach in the tabernacle at the Park on Sunday morning at 11:00. This will be Bishop Leonard's first visit here since his appointment to this area. He is recognized as one of the out-standing members of the Board of Bishops of his church, and is a preacher of eloquence and power. He comes here in connection with the Pittsburgh area Summer School of Ministerial Training which has been in session all this week. There will be no morning service at St. Paul's church and the people are urged to take advantage of this opportunity to hear Bishop Leonard.

PRESIDENT ASKS SUPPORT OF EMPLOYERS IN SPEECH

Hopes to Get Public Behind His Program Immediately

President Roosevelt in his third talk to the nation since his inauguration on Monday night called upon all employers in the nation to put into immediate effect the voluntary code to shorten working hours and elevate wage levels.

The President said the American people "will pull themselves out of this depression if they want to." He expressed his belief that the people would mobilize the force of American public opinion in the plan to divide work and to give all living wages. He analyzed in his talk the full program which Congress gave him the power to carry through. Two things he declared, must be done to find better days: first, improvement of the prices of farm products; second, bringing back industry along sound lines."

He proposed that the "badge of honor," the insignia of the industrial recovery act, be displayed by all those who enroll in the national campaign.

"It is obvious," he said, "that if we can greatly increase the purchasing power of the tens of millions of our people who make a living from farming and the distribution of farm crops, we will greatly increase the consumption of those goods which are turned out by industry." e

Arrangements Complete for Pioneer Jubilee at Mt. Storm

All arrangements have been completed for a gala musical festival and dramatization of the best in West Virginia rural life at the second annual Pioneer Jubilee to be held at Mount Storm in the community house on Saturday of this week, July 29. The music program will feature a combined string orchestra with more than fifty pieces.

The Mount Storm event will consist of an all-day and evening program, which in addition to the music festival will feature an old-fashioned riding tournament.

A rifle match and an exhibit of historical relics and heirlooms of the region are also scheduled.

There will be a pageant at sundown, depicting the second stop in the pioneer life of West Virginians, under the direction of Miss Sara B. Huff.

Commissioner's Son Injured

Elliott Harvey, nine years old, son of County Commissioner and Mrs. George W. Harvey, of the Ryan's Glade community, suffered a fractured skull Friday when he was trampled by a horse which he was leading. The injured boy was taken to Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, by Dr. McComas, where he is under the care of Dr. Gracie.

The boy was leading the horse from one portion of the farm to another when the boy stumbled and fell and the horse struck the boy as he was lying on the ground with its foot. He was reported to be improving and will likely recover.

Nearby Pennsylvania Roads to be Improved Soon

Unanimous indorsement of a motion to list the improvement of the National Highway from the Summit, east of Uniontown, Pa., to the Maryland line, west of Keyser Ridge, under the national public works program was passed at a meetlng of the industrial recovery commission at Uniontown on Saturday.

Improvements to the following roads are also being considered by Somerset county's committee: route 219, National Pike to William Penn highway; route 50, Addison to William Penn highway, and others.

SCOUTS TO BEGIN ANNUAL ENCAMPMENT ON JULY 30

Approximately 35 Will Be On 2 Weeks' Outing at Camp

Thirteen second and first-class Boy Scouts of Oakland Troop No. 1, were awarded 22 merit badges at the regular meeting of the Court of Honor held Monday night. This was the final meeting before the annual encampment which begins Sunday afternoon.

Those passing merit badges were as follows: Handicraft, Howard Naylor, Robert Lawton, Walter Stevens; leathercraft, Howard Naylor, Maurice Treacy, Walter Stevens; carpentry, Eugene Nordeck, George Stuck and Kenneth Lawton; electricity, George Stuck; woodwork, Hopwood Wooddell, Robert Browning, Horace O'Donnell; bird study, Hopwood Wooddell, Horace O'Donnell; swimming, Howard Smouse, Robert Browning; first aid, Robert Lawton; first aid to animals, Howard Naylor public health, Wilbur Altstetter; reading, Irving Broadwater.

Approximately 35 members of the troop, their officers and Harper Bartlett, camp cook, will leave Sunday afternoon for the camp. An intensive schedule of class work and recreation will be carried out. At a meeting of the troop committee the eligible list was approved and the camp food list discussed.

The funds for the camp are raised by donations, a benefit picture and from the boys themselves who are required to pay $6 for the two weeks. It will require approxximately $275 to cover all expenses, it was estimated. This amount has not yet been secured, according to members of the troop committee, and any personal donations will be gladly accepted, they say.

Wednesdays and Sundays will be visiting days, when parents and the friends of the boys are invited to visit the camp.

Those contemplating to be in camp include Bernard Gonder, Jr., Irving Broadwater, Robert Browning, John Treacy, Robert Broadwater, John Darby, Howard Smouse, William Grant, Jack Lawton, Kenneth Lawton, Horace O'Donnell, Maurice Treacy, Laural Whipkey, George Stuck, Hopwood Wooddell, Eugene Nordeck, Lawrence Dixon, Wilbur Altstetter, Walter Stevens, Howard Naylor, Robert Lawton, Charles Mason, Guy Hinebaugh, Darwin DeWitt, Irvin Field, Edward Lauer, Robert Tibbetts, William Glotfelty, John Sharps and the two assistants, James Lee and McClelland Dixon.

The boys will leave Sunday afternoon at one o'clock and all equipment will be hauled to the camp in trucks of the local merchants.

DEAN C. DUTTON TO GIVE SERIES OF LECTURES HERE

Former Redpath Chautauqua Speaker Scheduled Aug. 7 to 14

An opportunity to hear Dean C. Dutton, a former Redpath Chautauqua lecturer, and an associate at the University of Oklahoma, will be accorded the people of Oakland for one week beginning August 7, it has been announced.

Dean Dutton will hold two services daily, one in the morning from 6:45 to 8 o'clock when he will speak on character topics, the home, and life. This will be in the nature of a forum.

The other service will be in the evening at 8 o'clock, alternating between the Methodist and Lutheran churches. He will begin Monday evening, August 7, at the Methodist church.

Dean Dutton was recently at Clarksburg, W. Va., where they could not find an auditorium large enough to accommodate his audiences. He will be in Terra Alta the week preceding his coming to Oakland and will also address the Oakland Rotary club Friday evening, August 4.

Oakland will be under no financial obligation. He will take an offering at each service for his remuneration.

Miner Injured at Work in Freeport Mine

Omar Shaffer, aged 26, of near Terra Alta, was admitted to Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, Saturday evening as the result of injuries sustained while working as a coal miner at the Laurel Valley mines of the Freeport Coal Company at Freeport, a few miles west of Oakland.

The man was reported in a critical condition after he had undergone a surgical operation. His left leg was badly crushed and his right foot was seriously injured. His leg was amputated by the surgeons at the hospital. He also sustained painful injuries about his body.

Shaffer and another employe of the coal company were loading cars in the mine when they broke away and in an attempt to set the brakes Shaffer was caught beneath the wheels of one of the cars. He was held in this position for more than an hour before he was released as his fellow-workman had to go outside the mine to secure the assistance of other men to raise the car from the victim's leg. He was taken to the hospital in Bolden's ambulance.

Benefit Picture to Raise Funds For Tennis Tournament

A benefit picture, "Son Daughter," featuring Ramon Navarro and Helen Hayes, will be shown at the Maryland Theatre on Monday and Tuesday, July 31 and August 1. This is for the benefit of the Woman's Civic Club of Mountain Lake Park to raise some funds necessary for the holding of the annual tennis tournament.

Misses Katherine Murphy, Ellen Jane Grimes, Mary Lee Coffindaffer, Charlotte Bolgiano and Mary Bolgiano and Messrs. Richard Davis, Castleman Chesley, Thomas Gonder and others will have charge of the ticket sale. Usual prices will prevail.

Marine Recruiting Resumed

The United States Marine corps has resumed recruiting with an officer at room 325, Postoffice building, Baltimore, and enlistments are open to men between 18 and 35. The minimum heights is now five feet eight inches, and the maximum is six feet two inches.

Recruiting is resumed after a shutdown of several months during which time only men with prior service in the corps were eligible for enlistment.

NEW CAPITAL STOCK OF GARRETT NATIONAL BANK OVER-SUBSCRIBED

Announcement Made This Morning That Required Capital Has Been Oversubscribed and That Institution Will Function Within a Short Time Under New Charter To Be Applied For Immediately, Thus Releasing Many Thousands of Dollars Now Tied Up in Vaults

The Capital Stock of the new Garrett National Bank of Oakland has been over-subscribed and immediate action will be taken to comply with the requirements as laid down by the Treasury Department for the re-opening of the bank, it was announced this morning by the Organization Committee in charge of the re-organization of the institution.

As announced in The Republican several weeks ago, the plan for re-opening the bank was submitted to the Committee by the office of the Comptroller of the Currency, and has the approval of the Treasury Department at Washington. The Committee will promptly advise the department of the fact that the required new capital has been raised and application will be made for the new charter.

After this has been done the details of the plan for the proper functioning of the new bank will be worked out between the Department and the officials of the new bank. It is thought that these arrangements will be completed within the next few weeks.

The raising of the required capital in so short a time is due to the unceasing efforts on the part of the Organization Committee and the faith of the public in the future of the institution. The Committee desires to thank the public and those subscribing for the stock for their assistance and co-operation.

The public generally has given its complete support to the plan for re-opening and the successful carrying out of the matter will be hailed with satisfaction by the entire community.

The re-opening of the oldest and largest financial institution in the county is certain to have a salutary effect on the people of the community at large and The Republican adds its congratulations to those responsible for bringing about this result.

HEARING ON DAM PROJECT ON STONY RIVER PLANNED

To Come Up in West Virginia Friday; Submitted to Maryland

The West Virginia public works committee will be asked at its meeting at Charleston on Friday to approving a $700,000 dam project in the Stony river, a tributary of the Potomac.

The project has also been submitted to the Maryland public works committee, as it would affect Garrett and Allegany counties to some degree.

The purpose of the dam would be to prevent the Potomac from falling to its frequent low level during the summer with consequent pollution. Randolph, who endorsed the plan, said it would benefit particularly Cumberland, Washington and other Potomac river cities.

Randolph said an effort would be made to have the dam adopted as a Federal project. If this fails, a plan under which West Virginia, Maryland and the Federal government will share its cost, will be offered. Stony river lies in Grant county, W. Va., south of Garrett county.

Returned Missionary Speaks at Civic Club Meeting Tuesday

The manners, customs, and characteristics of the people of Liberia, Africa, were discussed by Miss Elsie Otto, missionary, at the regular meeting of the Oakland Civic club Tuesday afternoon at the home of Miss Lottie Loar.

Miss Otto also gave a short history of the people there and had a number of exhibits of the weaving and carving done by the people, and articles of clothing worn. She explained that in Liberia the men did the sewing and weaving and that the women did most of the farm work and household labors.

The judges of the yard and garden contest made a report, declaring that they were most gratified with the interest shown and the improvement made, especially among the gardens.

It was announced that the Civic club would sponsor the Bolgiano dancing class recital this year, during the latter part of August. Mrs. J. Gordon Mealy rendered two vocal selections.

Argument Heard in Garrett County Suit at Cumberland

Following the testimony Saturday in the Circuit Court at Cumberland, argument was made yesterday in the case of Hetrick vs. Liston, removed to Cumberland from this county. In this case, Mrs. Liston, the defendant, was married twice. Her first husband was named Hetrick. Hetrick left her a large building at Accident, used as a hotel. She had two minor children by Hetrick. Liston, an auto mechanic, built a large public garage on a vacant lot on the property, costing $8,500. It was necessary to raise $3,500 to complete it, and the property was mortgaged. The mortgage was foreclosed.

It is contended the wife had no right under her first husband's will to place a mortgage on the property to secure her second husband's debt. W. A. Gunter and Earl Cobey represent to the minor Hetrick children; T. L. Richards and H. P. Whitworth, the defendants.

Canning Demonstration to be Conducted Thursday, August 3

There will be a demonstration of jams, jellies, butters and marmalades on Thursday, August 3, in the grand jury room of the Court House from 10:30 a. m. until 3:30 p. m., according to Miss Margaret K. Burtis, home demonstration agent for Garrett county.

Miss Margaret McPheeters, nutrition specialist, University of Maryland, will be present. Anyone desirlng bulletins on jams, jellies, etc., is asked to notify Miss Burtis at her office in Oakland.

Held on Liquor Charge

Levi A. Smith and Troy M. Smith were arrested on July 21 by Prohibition agent W. R. Harvey, on charges of manufacture and possession of 25 gallons of moonshine liquor.

They waived a hearing before Justice W. A. Gonder and furnished $500 bond each for their appearance at the September term of court.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL

SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

Lesson for July 30

GIDEON

LESSON TEXT—Judges 7:1-22.
GOLDEN TEXT—The Lord is my light and my salvation, whom shall I fear? the Lord is the strength of my life; of whom shall I be afraid? Psalm 27:1.
PRIMARY TOPIC — God Helping Gideon.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Winning Without Swords.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Gideon and the Three Hundred.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Winning With a Few.

After forty years of freedom, Israel again passes under the cruel yoke of bondage at the hand of the Midianites. So grievous was their affliction that they hid in dens, caves, and strongholds (Judges 6:2). In their distress they cried unto the Lord and He sent deliverance. This deliverance was effected through Gideon. The angel of the Lord appeared to him while at the post of duty. Gideon's hesitancy, when called, was due to modesty and caution, and not to unbelief. Before going forward he wished to be doubly sure (Judges 6:36-40). When once he was convinced of duty he was not only courageous, but enthusiastic.

I. The Opposing Army of the Midianites (v. 1).

On that eventful day, Gideon and his army arose early and encamped by the spring of Harod. Over against them was the Midianite host in battle array. Gideon's army was insignificant by comparison with the Midianites.

II. The Sifting of Gideon's Army (vv. 2-8).

At Gideon's call, 32,000 men responded ready for the struggle. This seemed a small army to go against the Midianite army of 135,000 strong (Judges 8:10), but God said this was too many lest they be led to self-confidence and boasting. All that were faint-hearted were allowed to go back, leaving only 10,000. There were 22,000 cowards in that group of men and, worst of all, they were not ashamed to confess it. This was still too many. When God was through with his sifting process only 300 remained. The 10,000 were brave men but not of the proper quality and fitness. Those who "lapped" the water showed alertness and caution. If a similar test were made today in our churches and Sunday Schools, would the percentage stand any higher?

III. Encouragements Given to Gideon (vv. 9-15).

God bade Gideon go down to the Midianite camp where he would hear something that would cheer his heart and strengthen his hands. When Gideon came near he heard a man telling a dream which was that of a barley cake tumbling into the camp and smiting it. He also heard the interpretation given to the dream which made Gideon to be the cake. This greatly cheered his heart and strengthened him for his work, and caused his heart to burst forth in worshipful praise to God. A barley cake is a very insignificant thing, a very cheap affair in itself, but with the hand of God upon it, it would be successful to spread consternation among the Midianites and even bring destruction upon their armies.

IV. Gideon's Victory (vv. 16-23).

His army was very insignificant and his weapons worthless. His attack was most unique. The whole matter was of faith (Heb. 11:32). The ground of his faith was God's Word and the token which he had given. God does not ask his servants to go forward without good ground upon which to rest their faith. Gideon formed his 300 men into three companies and provided each man with a trumpet and with a lamp concealed in a pitcher. Thus armed, they surrounded the camp of the Midianites. They were all instructed to keep their eyes on Gideon, their leader, and imitate him. Believers today are to keep their eyes on Christ, their Leader, and ever to do as he does. At the proper moment they blew their trumpets and broke their pitchers, giving an opportunity for their lights to shine out. This awful crash of breaking pitchers, following the sound of the trumpets accompanied by the shout, "The sword of the Lord, and of Gideon," threw the Midianites into a panic, causing them to fight among themselves. Thus 120,000 were slain, leaving but 15,000 of that mighty army (Judges 8:10).

In applying the teaching of this lesson to our age, we can think of the sounding of the trumpets as representing prayer or calling upon God; the torches as the light of the gospel; the pitchers, our human nature. Only as the pitchers were broken to allow the light to shine forth and as the trumpet of prayer sounds loud and long, can victory be expected.

Must Have First Place

God will put up with a great many things in the human heart, but there is one thing that he will not put up with in it—a second place. He who offers God a second place, offers him no place.—Ruskin.

Energizing Power

The world's advance is due only to the hopes, the plans, the progress, and the work of living men and women who have tasted of the waters of life for themselves.

SCOOP'S COLUMN

At least one conscience hurt after reading my concluding paragraph in last week's column. My uncle came all the way from Altoona, Pa., just to pay his subscription. Now, if just a few more consciences would prick the bodies that contain them we'll be able to continue the business of writing this column.

* * *

I hope Al Jolson's encounter with Walter Winchell, column writer of some fame, isn't any criterion of what might happen to all column writers. Jolson said Winchell spoke slightingly of him and his wife in his column, which called for a punch on the nose. And I don't believe Winchell liked it so well, either.

But he staged a come-back night before last when he socked Jack Dempsey on the jaw.

At the Civic Club on Tuesday a returned missionary from Africa exhibited a number of articles of clothing such as the well dressed people of Liberia wear. As far as can be learned none of those present attempted to try them on.

* * *

This new program of working 40 hours a week, advanced by President Roosevelt, is too much. That only leaves 128 hours a week for other things. Sleep takes 56 hours, leaving but 72 hours. Meals require 21 hours, and we have but 51 hours remaining. Fifteen minutes a day to learn how to be an executive takes another hour and 45 minutes, leaving only 49 hours and 15 minutes. Dressing, shaving and taking a bath each day takes another 7 hours, leaving but 42 hours and 15 minutes.

Thirty minutes a day for piano lessons, half an hour each day for reducing or gaining weight, as the case may be, adds seven more hours to the total loss, leaving only 35 hours, 15 minutes.

The time spent swatting flies is at least one-half hour a day, entailing another loss of 3 hours and one-half, leaving only 31 hours, 45 minutes. Pulling Johnson grass, squzzing bean beetles, looking for potato bugs and pests on the cabbage, cucumbers and tomatoes takes three and one-half more hours, leaving 28 hours, 15 minutes.

Attending meetings in this town takes up at least 14 hours, 15 minutes, leaving only 14 hours. Learning how to be a public speaker so you can hold your audience spellbound takes 30 more minutes each day; surprising your better half by learning to speak French takes the same amount of time, leaving just seven hours. That leaves one hour each day—and what can one do in one hour? Swat more flies? Or what have you? Leaving no time whatever for recreation. What we demand is fewer hours of work.

If the boss editor sees this he might comply with the demand, but that wouldn't be helping the unemployment question—or me either.

The President stated Monday night the purchasing power of the dollar was restored. Restored to what, I'd like to know. It's buying less for me, and who's this new deal supposed to be helping, anyhow?

Also, that the budget has been balanced. Now I'll tell one.

Eggs have gone up. Feed for the hens has gone up. And how is that going to help the poultry raiser, asks me. As if I had a hennery and eared a lot.

* * *

Speaking of eggs—
It always chills me when I try
To make a public speech
And note the articles that lie
Within the public's reach.

Lead paragraph—An oversupply of Lowdermilk's homemade ice cream and the one-half cake, coupled with a pickle, lemonade and chicken salad sandwich were too much for Scoop Hanst Tuesday night at the Friendsville Scout function, who hadn't seen much good cooking since leaving Oakland one or two hours before.

Scoop was due to address the gathering, but after eating heartily he got to his feet, mumbled a few words in what might have been Hungarian as far as intelligibility was concerned and resumed his seat munching on more cake as the meeting adjourned in confusion.

Seven Safety Pointers for Swimmers Given by Red Cross Life-Saving Head

A seven-point water safety plan to reduce the summer's casualties from drowning is suggested by H. F. Enlows, director of First Aid and Life-Saving Service of the American Red Cross.

Water casualties are not always due to carelessness or "horseplay," he points out, in urging attention to the following safety suggestions:

1. Do not exceed physical limitations. If a doctor's examination has revealed a bad heart or other deficiencies, follow his advice as to bathing and swimming.
2. Select a swimming place that is supervised. Particularly is this important for the beginner.
3. Swim only within the area where you are qualified to swim. The right to extend this area must be earned. Care should be exercised even when under the protection of guards and life lines.
4. Remember that a swimmer who is expert in a pool may be a comparative novice on an ocean beach and vice versa.
5. Boats and canoes require craftmanship of their own. Be careful.
6. Even good swimmers should observe the fundamental rules of safety and good swimmers usually do. Never swim alone. In long distance swims always be accompanied by a boat. Wait two hours after eating before entering the water. Avoid the shock of a sudden dive into cold water; when you first enter the water, do so gradually. Dive only into water of known depth and character and thus avoid hitting rocks or stumps.
7. Use common sense. Never rock the boat. Do not accept dares.

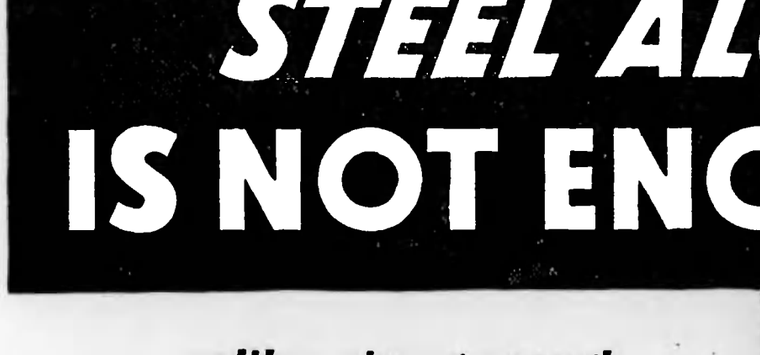
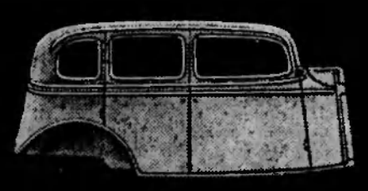
STEEL ALONE IS NOT ENOUGH!

—neither strong enough, nor safe enough, nor quiet enough for the body of a quality car like CHEVROLET





STEEL BODY plus

HARDWOOD REINFORCEMENT equals

STRONG, SAFE BODY BY FISHER

CHEVROLET There is only one type of body construction which Chevrolet will permit on the chassis of the cars it builds: That's the type which every test—and every experiment—and every experience has proved to be the safest, strongest, and best. Not steel alone, because steel alone is not enough. But a Fisher body of steel reinforced by hardwood! The same kind of construction used on practically all the highest-priced cars in America.

Chevrolet well knows that steel alone has one distinct advantage: it's cheaper. Steel also is strong—up to a certain point. BUT—beyond that point, steel alone will bend and crumple under severe stress or shock. It takes the strength and supporting solidity of a hardwood reinforcement to give you the full protection and full satisfaction you want in a motor car body today.

If you're thinking of buying a new low-priced car, better watch this matter of bodies, and watch it carefully. Insist on steel reinforced by hardwood! Fortunately, the only low-priced car with this preferred type of body is also the only car with a proven valve-in-head six; with Fisher Ventilation; Cushion-Balanced Power; a Starterator. That car is Chevrolet—America's most economical automobile.

PLAY THE GAME

When the umpire calls you out
Don't you cuss and balk and pout—
Be a sport and step right out:
Play the game!

And when the game is through,
If you're feeling mighty blue,
Don't yell out "You Cheater, you":
Play the game!

If you're having your big day
And the breaks all come your way,
Don't be chesty—just be gay:
Play the game!

Sportsmanship is a fine thing—
The name has a fine ring;
Practice it and be a king:
Play the game!

To Baseball Players and Fans
Let us resolve—
To take the umpire's decisions with good grace;
To treat the teams playing in our town as guests;
To win gracefully and without boastfulness;
To lose cheerfully and without rancor;
In other words, let us practice sportsmanship.

THURSDAY, JULY 27, 1933.

HISTORY CAN REPEAT ITSELF

In 1860 the federal government cost the average citizen $2.08 per year.

In 1931 the cost of government, for all units, was $107.37 per capita.

In 1913 the total cost of government was $2,900,000,000, and in 1919 it was $7,500,000,000, and in 1931 it was $14,000,000,000.

In 1929—a year of inflated prosperity—the total tax of the American people amounted to 16 per cent of their incomes.

In 1931—a year of bleak depression—it amounted to 28 per cent. The current year may be the most exxpensive in our history, with the exception of the war period.

How much of the increase in the cost of government, federal, state and local, can be laid to waste, is problematical. But there is no question but that it runs into the hundreds of millions, for there are scores of bureaus, commissions and inflated governmental payrolls, many of which simply duplicate the work of others.

We have permitted the government to go into various tax-exempt business ventures in competition with the livclihoods of private citizens who are forced to pay the taxes to maintain the competition.

More and more money is going into tax-exempt government bonds instead of taxable, labor employing investments. The result is increased unemployment and distress.

History shows many examples of taxing a people until they repudiate tax obligations. Unless all units of government retrench, it is not impossible to force such a tax crisis in our own country.

THE DANGER OF GOVERNMENTAL RELIEF

The new farm bill is swinging slowly into action. The government will undertake to balance production and demand, to improve the farmer's financial condition, to ease the burden of mortgages and to raise the prices of his produce.

While this will be temporarily beneficial it will be permanently harmful, if the farmer as an individual, comes to depend upon the government to solve his problems and smooth his path. That is always the trouble with governmental aid measures, no matter how carefully they are drawn—they are apt to create a feeling of dependence in the beneficiary that leaves him helpless when aid has been taken away.

The wise farmer will recognize the bill for what it is—an effort to carry him through a critical period, and give him a hand in straightening out his troubles, so that he may stand on his own feet thereafter. Lasting farm progress comes from the farmer's own effort. It must be the reflection of his own will, his own aggressiveness, his own courage, if it is to be permanent.

During the next few years there is one agency that will be of vital importance—the farm cooperative. It is the agency through which the individual farmer, in company with his neighbors, may fight his own battles and win his own victories. Long after governmental relief is no longer necessary, the cooperative will remain. No matter how often we may change our ideas of what attitude government should take toward the farmer, the cooperative idea is fixed and will not be dislodged. And this is the time for farmers to work their hardest in advancing the interest of their cooperatives.

IN DAYS OF OLD

FORTY YEARS AGO

Fire in the mountain near Gortner destroyed forty acres of pine timber, a stable and several wagons belonging to the Buffalo Lumber Company. The loss was about $1,800.

The Crooks Tobacco Company, operating at Terra Alta, issued a notice that it would discharge all employes using intoxicating liquors.

Telephone connection was made from Oakland with Hutton, thus giving direct communication with Terra Alta, Eglon, Sunnyside, Aurora and Brookside.

Five dollars reward was offered for information leading to the arrest of parties who threw mortar against the new Lutheran church in course of construction where the postoffice building now stands.

The marriage of Miss Laura Wilson and George Gemmell was solemnized; also the marriage of Miss Ella M. Spiker and Jacob L. Echard was announced.

In an impromptu rifle match at Oakland, Arthur Chisholm was high scorer with 45 out of a possible 50. James H. Painter was second with a score of 43 points.

Mrs. Drinkwater, wife of Dr. W. G. Drinkwater, Gorman, and Miss Cropp, also of that community, were thrown from their carriage while driving toward Oakland but were not seriously injured. The vehicle was considerably damaged.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

During an electrical storm Merwin Carey, 25, near Avilton, was instantly killed when a bolt of lighning descended and struck a shed under which he had taken refuge from the elements.

A number of flowering plants, donated by the H. Weber and Sons Co., were planted in a barren spot between the Baltimore and Ohio railway tracks and Second street, near the bridge, thus eliminating another unsightly spot which had existed for a number of years.

The thirtieth annual assembly of the Mountain Chautauqua at Mountain Lake Park began.

J. B. Emory, Bittinger, built an addition to his barn and erected a large poultry house. O. C. Buckle, also of Bittinger, contemplated erecting a new store building in the fall. Simon Brenneman and his crew of men were erecting a barn on the Stone House farm.

L. A. Rudisill retired from the editorial chair of the Garrett Journal.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By FRANK P. LITSCHERT

An interesting theory of depression and recovery was presented recently at the University of Virginia by Edmund Platt, vice-president of the Midland Marine Corporation of New York. Mr. Platt said that "if 1932 had not been a presidential year, the recovery begun then might have continued without any interruption so that we might have been about where we are today."

Continuing, Mr. Platt said: "Personally I feel that the recovery beginning in 1932 would have continued, barring the election, if the Glass banking reform bill had been put upon the statute books before the adjournment of Congress last summer, in the form in which it was reported from the Senate Banking and Currency Committee in May."

Without going into the merits of the Glass bill it is interesting to speculate on whether or not the election did halt the recovery which seemed to have set in about a year ago. It will be remembered that just before the Fourth of July the stock market hit its low for the depression. Business depression had been existent for three years. There was a slow recovery continuing until October when there was another relapse. Republican politicians like to recall the fact that the first sign of the relapse came with the Maine election in September, an election which plainly indicated that there was to be a change in the natioal administration in November.

It is true that the stock market in New York halted its advance immediately after the Maine election and after some hesitation started falling again. This need not be taken to mean that there was any lack of confidence in Mr. Roosevelt. If it meant anything at all it indicated that with such a change of administration in the offing, and a necessarily drifting policy from November to March, the recovery would have to be held in abeyance until the new administration was seated and its policies had developed. Whether or not there would have been continuous recovery after last July except for the intervention of the national campaign, is now purely a matter for speculation on the part of the politicians. Perhaps the time element in recovery from a depression is an important one. Nobody can tell, when recovery comes, how much of it is due to governmental programs and how much to the healing agencies of Father Time.

Certain it is that the recovery which was interrupted last September began again in March this year after the bank holiday. Whether it is sound and lasting remains to be seen. All Americans regardless of policies hope that it is. There is a general atmosphere of "going along with the President" in all parts of the country. The people are refraining from criticism to an extent unparalleled in the political history of the United States and are wishing the administration well. If there is failure and then harsh criticism it will not come until another campaign is upon us. The opposition party has pretty generally adopted a sportsmanlike attitude of giving Mr. Roosevelt his chance. There has been no setting up of a "poison gas squad" as was once done by Mr. Raskob and Mr. Michaelson early in the Hoover administration. The Republicans in Congress during the special session just ended turned the tables on their Democratic colleagues in Congress by giving the President at least 98 percent suport although practically the same Democrat members had knifed the Republican program in 1932 plenty.

Local Boy Strayer Graduate

Joseph T. Glotfelty, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Glotfelty, Deep Spring farm, south of town, who was graduated from Strayer Business college, Washington, D. C., early in June, returned to that city to receive his diploma at the semi-annual commencement exercises on Tuesday evening, July 25, in the grand ballroom of the Mayflower hotel.

Mr. Glotfelty was one of the few members of his class to be elected to the Strayer Honor society, perfcetion in six completed courses having been earned. While attending collegc Glotfelty played clarinet with the Boys' Independent Band and The East Gate Band, of Washington. Since a small boy he has played with the Crellin and Oakland bands and is well known here.

ACCIDENT

Annual Outdoor Meeting

The women of St. Paul's Lutheran Aid Society and members of their families held their annual outdoor meeting on the lawn of Lloyd Alexander last Thursday evening. Sixty-one members and guests were present. After many games all joined in roasting weiners and marshmallows as well as eating them. Ice cream, eake and coffee were also served.

Hospital Patients

Mrs. James Rush, who underwent a minor operation at Memorial Hospital in Cumberland last week, was returned to her home on Sunday.

IMPRESSIVE SERVICE ALWAYS

Sympathy

One of the questions most frequently asked us by our friends is this:

"How can you be constantly in the homes of bereaved families without becoming callous and 'case hardened'? How do you keep your sympathies alive?"

We always answer that in each individual case there is a new opportunity to be of real service in time of need. We consider our knowledge and experience as a charge given to us for the benefit of others.

STEP OUT in the Style Leader!

WHEN you go out in a new Oldsmobile, you not only step out in style—but you also step out ahead! For style is but half the story of Oldsmobile leadership. Oldsmobile performance is equally outstanding. Few cars, at any price, will challenge an Oldsmobile on the road—and it is doubtful whether any can provide more delightful performance. Won't you prove this today—at the wheel of an Oldsmobile? Fifteen minutes is really all you'll need!

An amazing book—"How to Test the Performance of a Motor Car"—has been written by the testing engineers at the General Motors Proving Ground. With this book, you can judge any car's performance quickly and accurately. It's free—and you have never seen anything like it! Come in and get your free copy today. It is unbiased—does not advertise Oldsmobile.

LESS SICKNESS AND FEWER DEATHS REPORTED IN MD.

A Report of Vital Statistics Bureau Gives Three-Year Totals

There was less sickness from communicable diseases and fewer deaths reported in the State during the first six months of 1933 than during the corresponding period of 1932. There were 25,153 cases of sickness from reportable diseases in comparison with 26,203 during the first six months of 1932—a net decrease of 1,050 cases.

Over 400 fewer deaths were reported to July 1, 1933, than during the first six months of 1932 and over 1000 less than were reported during the corresponding period of 1931.

A report prepared by the Bureau of Vital Statistics of the State Department of Health gives the following figures for the three years:

Deaths Reported, From January to June 30, Inclusive

Year	State	Baltimore City	Counties
1931	11,731	6,305	5,426
1932	11,061	5,687	5,374
1933	10,658	5,582	5,076

Of the 10,658 deaths reported during the current year, 871 were under one year, 971 were in the age group from 1 to 24 years old, 1,482 were in the group from 25 to 44 years, and 7,334 in the group from 45 to 84 years old or older.

Of the deaths reported during the first six months of the current year, more than half—5,613—or 52.5 per cent of the total from all causes, were due to what are known as the degenerative diseases of middle life or old age. Heart disease, for instance, was responsible for 2,294 deaths, diseases of the kidneys for 1,271, cancer for 975, cerebral hemorrhage for 849, and diabetes for 224. The pneumonias, with 953 deaths, tuberculosis with 724 and influenza with 218 were responsible for 1,895 deaths, of 17.8 per cent of the total. The deaths from the degenerative diseases and those from tuberculosis, the pneumonias and influenza constituted over two-thirds of the total from all causes.

There were 13,977 births reported during the first half year, 6,863 in Baltimore City and 7,114 in the counties, in comparison with 14,480 during the corresponding period of 1932—7,036 in Baltimore City and 7,444 in the counties. There were 871 deaths under one year, 402 in Baltimore City and 469 in the counties as compared to 954 in the first six months of 1932, 430 in Baltimore City and 524 in the counties.

June with 1,605 deaths had the lowest number reported in any one month and January with 2,065 the highest number.

GIRL SCOUTS WILL HAVE TRAINED STAFF FOR CAMP

Interested Citizen Writes Concerning Outing for Local Troop

When the Girl Scouts of Oakland go to camp in August, they will enjoy privileges too often reserved for girls in communities where funds are more abundant than they are here. The camping place selected meets the requirements of the National Girl Scouts Headquarters as to sanitation, screened dining room and adequate shelter for play during rainy periods.

The Oakland Troop committee is most fortunate in having recently secured as captain of the local troop Mrs. Polly Hanst, who has had nine years' experience in directing activities in camps for girls. For the last two seasons Mrs. Hanst has been director of the Girls' State 4-H camp at Jackson's Mill, West Virginia, where last month 335 club members outstanding in their local groups thruout West Virginia met with the twenty-five instructors. Since Mrs. Hanst comes in contact with many girls in connection with her work as editor of the girls' page in a magazine of national circulation and is so highly experienced in camp management, the Oakland Troop comittee feels that it is worth making every effort to give our Girl Scouts an opportunity to live for two weeks this summer in a camp under her leadership.

A camp, however, that meets in its activities the standards of the National Girl Scout Headquarters might not be possible for the Oakland troop this year if Miss Jane Seabright, of Wheeling, W. Va., had not, like Mrs. Hanst, generously offered, without financial compensation, to give her services to our troop during its camping season. Miss Seabright possesses extraordinary ability and unusual experience as instructor in the camping arts. A high ranking Scout herself, she was at one time a councillor in charge of handicrafts for boys and girls in Ogilbay Park at Wheeling. While she was a student at West Virginia University she was captain of a Girl Scout troop in a nearby mining town and a life-guard at the girls' swimming pool of the University. Since her college days she has been an instructor in 4-H camps.

During the approaching camping season for the Oakland Girl Scout Troop Miss Seabright will have charge of swimming and of the morning activities. Through her instruction the girls will have an opportunity to do the work required for earning merit badges that would be difficult for them to secure without expert help. Courses in nature, study of the stars, signaling, map-making, camper's craft, and possibly pioneering, will be included in the regular morning program. In the afternoon there will be instruction in handicrafts and in swimming. From reville to taps the Oakland Girl Scouts will have a glorious time and learn a lot that will be of advantage to them, too—if every interested person in the community responds to the call and helps swell the girls' camp fund by attending the lawn festival to be given on the Lutheran church lawn Saturday evening, or in any other way possible.

Frances Frisbie O'Donnell.

DIED.

MISS VIRGINIA B. JOHNSON

Miss Virginia Bowie Johnson, aged 23 years, daughter of the late Bowie and Anna Grant Johnson, of Oakland, died at the home of her aunt, Miss Virginia Thayer Johnson, Washington, D. C., early last Saturday morning following a brief illness of pneumonia and complications.

Miss Johnson was born in Oakland and resided here until the death of her mother, when with her late father and three brothers, removed to Washington where her father died, following which she made her home with her aunt.

Miss Johnson was the great-granddaughter of Reverdy Johnson, during his lifetime a United States Senator from Maryland and United States Ambassador to the Court of St. James. She was also connected with the Bowie and Thayer families of Maryland, her paternal grandfather being the late Ralph Thayer, of Oakland.

Until she was taken ill a month ago Miss Johnson was employed in the engineering division of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation in Washington, D. C.

Her brothers, Reverdy, Bowie and Edward Johnson and an aunt, Miss Virginia Johnson, all of Washington; Dr. W. W. Grant, an uncle, and Mr. Fred. A. Thayer, a great-uncle, both of Oakland, survive.

Miss Johnson's body was brought to Oakland on Sunday and taken to the home of Mr. Thayer. Funeral services were conducted in the Episcopal church Monday afternoon at three o'clock by the rector, Rev. D. C. Trimble, and interment was made in the family plot of Oakland cemetery.

GRAHAM MOORE WEEKS

Graham Moore Weeks, 33, a resident of Loch Lynn Heights, died on Friday morning, July 31, at Springfield State Hospital, where he had been a patient but a short time. Funeral services were held Monday from the residence of his brother, H. M. Weeks, Loch Lynn, with Rev. I. S. Middaugh and Rev. J. A. Jessee in charge. Interment was made in the Pleasant Valley cemetery. Surviving are his widow and three children, Graham, Francis and Robert; 5 brothers, R. L., H. D. and I. W., of the Park; J. D. Weeks, of Fairfield, Va., and two sisters, Miss Sadie Weeks, of Lexington, Va., and Mrs. Wilbur Miller, of Roanoke, Va.

The deceased was born in Fairfield, Va., but for many years was a resident of Loch Lynn. Until recently he was manager of the Weeks and Weeks store. His very large circle of community friends deeply regret his passing thus early in his young manhood.

The pallbearers were H. C. Leighton, W. A. Combs, William White, Max Orendorf, Lloyd Cook and Clyde Shipley.

FRANCIS THOMAS CASTEEL

Francis Thomas Casteel, aged 55 years, died at his home in Confluence, Pa., on Saturday. He was a son of the late Archibald and Margaret Sterling Casteel, both of whom died a number of years ago. He was born at Elder Hill, this county and was buried at Blooming Rose, on Tuesday.

He was a member of the I. O. O. F. lodge and Methodist Episcopal church at Friendsville. During his lifetime Mr. Casteel was employed by the B. & O. Railroad company as a bridge builder.

He is survived by five sisters, Mrs. Clyde Shipley, of the Park; Mrs. Geo. Friend, of Friendsville; Mrs. A. C. Griffith and Mrs. Valeria Grove, of Baltimore, and Mrs. Harry Frazee, of Webster Springs, W. Va.

MRS. ALBERT CARL FULLER

Mrs. Vera Shipley Fuller, 44, wife of Albert Carl Fuller, died at the home of her brother, Arthur Shipley, at Ingram, Pittsburgh, Pa., on Monday.

Mrs. Fuller was the only daughter of the late J. Polk Shipley and Ida W. Shipley, who settled in Oakland about fifty years ago. Surviving are her husband, her mother and one daughter, Doris L. Fuller, 9, and three brothers, Arthur and Albert Shipley, Pittsburgh; and William Shipley, of Cumberland. Funeral services and interment is taking place today.

Mrs. James A. Towler and children and Miss Frances Heath, spent a day or two recently at Morgantown, where they visited Mr. Towler, manager of Hotel Morgan.

Rev. and Mrs. B. T. Trevy, of New Martinsville, W. Va., were here a few days this week visiting friends. Mr. Trevy was recalled to his home this morning to conduct the funeral of one of his parishioners.

The new garage being erected for E. S. Evans, corner Third and Oak streets, is now nearing completion. The structure is of cement blocks, brick and steel and will be used by Mr. Evans as salesrooms and work shop for his Oakland branch.

"The Word of Our God Shall Stand Forever"

LAMENTATIONS

The lamentations of Jeremiah are a sequel to his prophecies, and their theme a series of dirges written as if for a National funeral, portraying the capture and destruction of Jerusalem. In the Septuagint version the following introductory words are found:

"And it came to pass after Israel was led into captivity that Jeremiah sat weeping and lamenting and lamented this lamentation over Jerusalem. How doth the city sit solitary, that was full of people! How is she become a widow? she that was great among nations and princess among the provinces, how is she become tributary! She weepeth sore in the night and her tears are on her cheeks: among all her lovers she hath none to comfort her: All her friends have dealt treacherously with her, they are become her enemies."

This pitiable ruin of Jerusalem and the misery of her exiles is the result of their sins. Jehovah, the ancient defender of Israel, has given up his people to their awful fate. Yet the prophet reaffirms his trust in God, despite persecutions, and the draught of wormwood of which he is made to drink.

"This I recall to mind," saith Jeremiah, "therefore have I hope. It is of the Lord's mercies that we are not consumed, because his compassions fail not. They are new every morning. The Lord is good unto them that wait for him. It is good that a man should both hope and quietly wait for the salvation of the Lord.'" Thus while shadows darkly gather about his beloved city and land, hope begetteth patience and he determines to quietly await the fulfillment of the Divine promises.

The fourth chapter of the book is one of contrasts. The golden age of Solomon's glory is reflected against the lusterless and changed gold of Israel's present. The precious jewels of the past are now esteemed as fragments from the potter's wheel. The wrath of the Lord "hath kindled a fire in Zion and it hath destroyed the foundations thereof."

The book closes with a prayer for mercy and a recital of the many signs of departed glory. Liberty is forfeited: "We have drunken our water for money; our word is sold to us." The yoke of slavery is constantly upon their necks. The elders are rudely treated, young men are set grinding at the mills, music is neglected, joy banished and dancing has turned to mourning. Yet faith is not dead. "Thou, O Lord, remainest forever: thy throne from generation to generation." Thus while everything earthly upon which Jehovah leaned seemed to be tottering to its fall, he was able to rise from the darkness of despair, follow his divine conductor through the labyrinth of disasters and in his heart of hearts fear no danger. "Turn thou us unto thee, O Lord, and we shall be turned; renew our days as of old," he prays. This is a veritable conception of the divine attitude. God is the burden of Jeremiah's prayer for himself and his people.

Making the Most of Meat Flavor

The flavor of meat has an extraordinarily strong appeal to most appetites. Knowing how to buy meats, how to cook and serve it in a variety of appetizing ways is, therefore, a prime asset to a good cook.

Cheap cuts are just as flavorful and nutritious as expensive cuts. Take shoulder of lamb or veal for instance. The meat is tender and with the bones cut, and a savory stuffing in their place, these cuts make roasts in every way comparable to those that command a higher price. Slow roasting in a moderate oven after browning is the secret for tender roasts. For the less tender cuts of beef such as lower round and brisket, the way to convert them into savory pot roasts and stews is to brown the meat first in a little fat, then add a very small quantity of water, cover the pot, and cook very slowly at moderate temperature until the tough connective tissue becomes tender.

With meat well cooked in the first place, it is easy to make the most of the flavor in the next day's hash. By adding potatoes to the left-over meat, you "extend" the flavor. There are many other meat "extenders" besides potatoes—other foods that readily take up the flavor of meat. Most of these are starchy foods, such as macaroni, spaghetti, rice, dumplings, pie crusts, noodles, bread crumbs, toast, or patty shells. Some sauces also serve the purpose. Creamed chopped meat on toast is an attractive way to serve the left-overs, with plenty of flavor and substance, too.

Scalloped liver and potatoes, liver and rice loaf, savory meat on toast, scrapple, stewed meat with noodles, meat and vegetable stews—all of these are examples of "extending" meat flavor to less flavorable foods.

Another way to extend meat flavor is with gelatin. Jellied meats, especially veal or lamb, with or without vegetables in the jelly are a particularly agreeable hot weather dish—cheap and easy to make if you have a good refrigerator but not to be undertaken otherwise, because the gelatin as well as the meat spoils quickly in warm temperatures.

Beef and Ham Gumbo in Rice Ring

One-half pound cured ham, diced, 3-4 pound beef, diced, 1 onion sliced, 1 green pepper, chopped fine, salt and pepper to the taste, 1 pint water, 1 quart tomatoes, fresh or canned, 1 qt. okra, cut crosswise. Cook the ham and beef until browned in a large frying pan. Add the onion and the green pepper and cook for a few minutes. Add the water and tomatoes, cover, and simmer until the meat is almost tender. Then add the okra. Season to taste and simmer uncovered until the okra is tender and the stew has thickened. Serve the gumbo in a rice ring as follows:

Rice Ring

One cup rice, 4 cups water, 1 teaspoon sale, 2 tablespoons butter, 2 dashes tabasco sauce. Wash the rice well and sprinkle it into the rapidly boiling salted water. Cook for about 20 minutes, or until the rice is tender and the water absorbed. Add the seasonings, put the rice into a well-greased ring mold, and pat it down. Reheat in the oven, turn onto a round platter, fill the center with gumbo and serve at once.

Curry of Pork or Lamb

One cup sliced onion, 2 tablespoons drippings, 4 cups diced green or half-ripe tomatoes, 2 cups chopped lean cooked meat, 1 cup thin gravy, 1 teaspoon curry powder, salt to taste. Cook the onion in the drippings for a few minutes. Add the tomatoes, cover and cook until tender. Add the meat, gravy and seasonings, stir and heat the mixture thoroughly. Serve hot with flaky rice. Apples may be used instead of tomatoes.

Creamed Ham

Three tablespoons butter or other fat, 4 1-2 tablespoons flour, 3 cups milk, 3 cups ground cooked ham, 1-2 eup chopped green pepper, salt, pepper. Make a white sauce of the fat, flour and milk. Add the ham and green pepper and cook the mixture about 10 minutes. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Serve hot on toast with waffles, or in a rice ring.

GRANTSVILLE

Benefit Dance

One of the outstanding social functions of the past week was the benefit dance given by members of Grantsville Tennis Cluh at the National Hotel last Wednesday evening. Paul Diveley's Orchestra from Meyersdale furnished splendid music and an enjoyable evening was spent.

The Tennis Club is growing and a great deal of interest is being shown.

Community Club Picnic

Grantsville Community Club will hold a picnic at the Meadow Mountain Inn, east of Grantsville, on Wednesday, August 2, from 11:00 a. m., to 4:00 p. m. The Mars Hill Club will join and each member is expected to bring a friend. A picnic lunch will be served at noon.

Community Park Work Progressing

Work in Community Park has been in progress for some time and is showing very satisfactory results. A circular driveway through the park has been built, a tennis court has been completed, the grounds have been cleared and leveled and a culvert, the material for which was furnished by the County Commisioners, has been put in place.

Local Cultural Development

Grantsville has been honored by the visits of many from cosmopolitan cities in the east during the present summer season. A number of them have expressed their amazement at the progress of the children of the community in cultural development under the tutorship of Misses Holmes and Wallace and the strangers gave voice to their genuine admiration in favorable comparison of the children's work with similar training in private institutions in large cities.

Personal Mention

Mr. and Mrs. T. D. Maurer, New Philadelphia, Ohio, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Stanton.

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse J. Ashby and children and Miss Crystal Elliott, of Oakland, in company with Mrs. Cleve Ashby, of Crellin, were Sunday visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. U. Edwards.

Mrs. Lillie B. Younkin, accompanied by Dr. and Mrs. G. B. Ryland, Pittsburgh, spent several days in Frederick, Gettysburg, Chambersburg and Berkeley Springs.

Mr. and Mrs. Ira Staley, of Rehoboth Beach, Del., are guests at the Casselman Hotel. They were formerly teachers in the Grantsville school.

On Sunday last Rev. R. L. Bash christened the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Bender and Betty, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Beachy.

Mrs. P. H. Yost is visiting her brother, Edward Bowermaster, at Berlin, Pa.

Mrs. Annie Baker and son Harry, Latrobe, Pa., Miss Sylvia Yost, Roanoke, Va., and Mrs. P. H. Yost were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Winters last Wednesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard H. Thomas, Baltimore, have been guests of Mrs. Mary Ellinger, who is spending the summer at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred. Livengood. They will also visit the lakes and camps.

Mr. Jonas Gnagey, who spent the winter with his daughter at Salisbury, is visiting his daughters, Mrs. Clarence Loechel and Mrs. J. U. Stanton in Grantsville.

Mr. and Mrs. William Rutter and daughter Nancy, of Martinsburg, W. Va., were guests of Mrs. Lillie Younkin on Monday afternoon.

Mrs. Ruth Smouse and Dr. Wittman, of Cumberland, spent Sunday evening with the former's sister, Mrs. Fay Miller and family in Grantsville.

Miss Clara Barnes, Friendsville, is visiting Miss Pauline Glotfelty.

Mr. and Mrs. Hayward Broadwater and son, Mrs. Marshall Beachy and daughter Betty and Mrs. Lottie Gwinn spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. William Stahl and family and Charles Stahl, at Wilmerding, Pa.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis E. Hoover, of Washington, D. C., spent the week-end here with their daughter, Mrs. Carlton Goodiel and family.

SAND! SAND! SAND!

For Building Purposes and Construction Work
Third Street. Oakland, Md.
C. H. BROWNING,

Notes on Some Early Governors: VIII

SEDAN CHAIRS WERE MAKING THEIR APPEARANCE ON THE STREETS OF ANNAPOLIS

BLACKISTON AND SEYMOUR, AND THE RESTORATION UNDER HART

By KATHERINE SCARBOROUGH
In the Baltimore Sunday Sun

The great pestilences which had scorged the Maryland colonists and deciminated their cattle during the latter part of the administration of Governor Nicholson were on the wane when that official was transferred to Virginia during the latter part of December, 1698, and the government devolved upon Nathaniel Blackiston.

The arrest of the plague and the restoration to health of many of the colonists were credited by Governor Blackiston, in his initial address to the Assembly, to the perspicacity of Governor Nicholson in establishing Cool Springs, in St. Mary's county, the first sanatorium in Maryland. The combination of this rudimentary prophylaxis and the healing properties of the waters had effected, the new Governor said, "many wonderful and signal cures."

With the wane of the epidemic, life in Maryland assumed an even tenor of its existence. The two major excitements which punctuated the universal calm were the importation by William Bladen (contingent upon his appointment as the first public printer of the province) of a printing press and complete type setting apparatus upon which public documents were recorded for years thereafter, and the partial destruction of the State House by lightning on July 13, 1699, while the House of Delegates was in session. James Crauford, a member from Calvert county, was killed and a number of others injured. Doors and windows were shattered and the upper part of the building caught fire. Governor Blackiston's capacity for clear thinking and prompt action apparently saved the building from total loss, since it is recorded that the blaze "was presently quenched by the diligence and industry of his Excellency," apparently doubling for the occasion as an impromptu fire department.

Five years later, after Governor Blackiston, on the plea of ill health, had returned to England, and had been commissioned by the colonists to represent their interests before Parliament and the crown, the State House did actually burn to the ground. The cause of the fire is unknown, but Governor John Seymour, who succeeded Blackiston, waxed sarcastic on the subject in his address to the Assembly soon afterward and informed the Assemblymen that "the late melancholy incident might have been prevented had my often admonitions took place, for I never saw any public building left solely to Providence but in Maryland. I hope this said experience will awaken your care for time to come."

The Legislature winched and arranged immediately for rebuilding. "Mr. W. Bladen," the architect of the other public buildings, was given the contract at a sum not to exceed one thousand pounds and any material he might salvage from the wreck of the old State House. During the reconstruction the Governor and Council met in the Treasury Building and the House of Delegates, summoned by the beating of a drum, held its sessions at the home of Col. Edward Dorsey.

Annapolis at this time was quickening with the spirit which was to make it, within a few years, the most finished and the most sophisticated city in the colonies. Close on the heels of the contract for rebuilding the State House another was let for the construction of an armory near by and the city possessed, when they were finished, two of the finest public buildings in America. An aristocratic flavor was provided for the interior of each by portraits of Queen Anne. In the armory the features of Lord Baltimore, set down in oil, faced those of his sovereign. The armory, lighted by a gilded chandelier hung from the center of the ceiling, furnished a splendid setting for the balls for which it was frequently requisitioned. By this time the wealthy planters of the outlying districts already had begun the construction of town houses in the little capital and sedan chairs were making their appearance on the streets.

Governor Seymour himself seems, however, to have been but meagerly provided for. No official home had yet been erected for the chief executive of the colony. He was domiciled in a rented house so urgently in need of repairs that he was forced to appeal to the Assembly to make it habitable, reminding them at the same time that Governors of other colonies were adequately sheltered by a considerate public.

Temperamentally, this legate from the Queen seems to have been very straight-laced and blue-nosed to a degree. He was a militant Protestant, his bias along this line being manifested soon after his arrival in the colony, when, in an outburst of splenetic vehemence he delivered a bitter rebuke to two priests charged with saying mass in the chapel at St. Mary's, ordered them to cease their priestly activities and to remember that they were on sufferance as undesirables. He concluded by warning them that he was "an English Protestant gentleman who could never equivocate." The chapel, by his command, was sealed by the Sheriff, who kept the key, and the next Assembly, still imbued with the dread of "Popery," passed a law subjecting any bishop, priest or Jesuit who should say mass or administer the rites of the church within the province to a fine of fifty pounds and imprisonment for six months. Repetition of the offense subjected the offender to transportation to England to undergo the penalties provided there "for the further preventing the growth of Popery."

This statute was relaxed several months later to permit the celebration of mass in private families of the Catholic communion. Out of this privilege grew the custom of building chapels under the same roof and connected with the dwellings of Catholic families such as the one which survives today at Dougroregan Manor, once the home of Charles Carroll of Carrollton.

Equally as strong in his aversion to Catholocism was the Governor's rigidity of moral outlook. Members of the Established Church as well as dissenters and Catholics were blasted by his diatribe delivered before the Assembly of 1704 against licentiousness, profanity and "breaking the Lord's Day," which, he said, defiled the province from one end to the other.

As an administrator, however, Governor Seymour seems to have possessed marked ability. During his regime a real, if crude system of public roads came into existence, their destinations quaintly indicated by notches cut in the bark of the trees, additional emphasis being placed upon those going to Annapolis by blazing the letters "AA" above the notches and those leading to Williamsstadt (Oxford) being similarly indicated by the letters "WW."

Governor Seymour also succeeded in having Annapolis incorporated as a city, although the Assembly at first refused either to issue the charter or to permit the Governor to do so.

In 1705 another attempt at insurrection was made by discontented debtors and others who endeavored, with the help of Indians and Negroes, to seize the government and discharge their incumbrances by legislating for their own benefit. The provincial court house was burned, together with a number of other buildings. Richard Clarke, the ring leader, was arrested together with a number of others and outlawed and attainted by the Assembly. Two years later Clarke again was in the toils and was charged with the design of burning Annapolis, destroying public records, sacking and blowing up the public magazine within the limits of the town, counterfeiting dollars and pieces of eight, all as a preliminary to a career he had planned as a pirate.

The stir was terrific. Clarke was convicted and attainted of high treason and sentenced to death, but there is nothing to show whether or not the sentence was ever carried out. For a long time after his excursion amuck, however, the populace shivered and quaked whenever his name was mentioned.

Governor Seymour died July 30, 1709, and pending the arrival of Capt. John Hart, who reached the colony in 1714, Major Edward Lloyd, of Wye House, served as provisional governor of the colony, the signal advance in civic progress during his tenure of office being the establishment of a general postoffice system to supersede the private carriage of letters.

On February 20, 1714 (old style), Charles, third Lord Baltimore and erstwhile Governor of Maryland, died full of years and disappointments. He was the son of Cecilius, the second lord, and nephew of Leonard, Maryland's first Governor, and grandson of George, the first Lord Baltimore. Charles' son, Benedict Leonard, who now succeeded as the fourth Lord Baltimore, had become a Protestant, greatly to the displeasure of his aged father, who had cut off his allowance in consequence. Benedict Leonard, however, had acted with an eye to the future. As a Protestant, he no longer furnished the King (George I, who had ascended the throne upon the death of Queen Anne) with a valid excuse for withholding longer from the Calverts the colony which another king had bestowed upon their ancestor.

The restoration was forthcoming and, as Benedict Leonard had requested, the King renewed to Capt. John Hart, who had served in Spain and Portugal, the commission which

IN ANSWER TO A LADY'S LETTER

A lady writes to say that she does not understand why an 8-cylinder car does not cost more to run than a car with fewer cylinders. She refers to my statement that our Ford V-8 develops more power on a gallon of gas than any car we have made.

The use of 8-cylinders does not mean the addition of two or four extra fuel consumers. It is not, for example, a 4-cylinder engine multiplied by two. Our 8-cylinder engine takes the fuel supply of an ordinary 4-cylinder engine and divides it eight ways. And why?

By reducing four larger explosions into eight smaller ones, we get engine smoothness and quietness. Eight-cylinders indicate the way the gas is used, not the amount. It is just the difference between going upstairs in four long jumps or in eight ordinary steps.

Two things use up gas—bad engine design and useless car weight. Besides having an engine that gets a high percentage of power out of the fuel, the Ford V-8 has a light, strong body and chassis so that no power is wasted in moving excess weight.

The only extravagance about the new Ford V-8 engine is in the building of it. The extravagance is ours—the economy is yours.

The whole question of car economy needs clearing up. An economical car gives economy all round. Price, operation, upkeep, all play their part. If what you save on gas you lose elsewhere, that is not economy.

As to upkeep, our dealers say that in recent years the improved quality of Ford cars has cut down their repair business 50 per cent.

As to price with quality,—judge for yourself.

As to economy, here is the record of a stock car three weeks out of shop in Oklahoma:

On a run of 10,054 miles at the rate of 1,000 miles a day—the Ford V-8 gave 18.8 miles per gallon of gas. Not a drop of water was added to the radiator. The oil was changed once in 1,000 miles.

That should answer a lot of questions.

NOTES ON SOME OF THE EARLY GOVERNORS

had been made to him as Governor of Maryland, but which he had not yet taken up. Captain Hart sailed at once, assuming administration of the government May 20, 1714.

Benedict Leonard Calvert, however, did not live long to enjoy the fruits of his religious sacrifice. His death followed that of his father by only two months, and before the legal technicalities incident to the restoration of Maryland to the proprietary had been completed. The title descended to his infant son, Charles, for whom Lord Guilford was appointed guardian, and the minor Lord Baltimore became the new proprietary.

Captain Hart's commission was reissued in his name and that of Lord Guilford, but it was a very different proprietary government over which he was to rule from that which the early Calverts had dominated. The "absolute lord" of the charter was an autocrat in name only. The germs of popular rule, sown during the revolution of 1688, had rooted deeply and sprouted a flourishing plant which later was to burst forth and bear fruit in the War of Independence.

A general revision of the laws followed the arrival of Governor Hart. Property qualifications were made prerequisite to the right to vote and Catholics were denied the franchise unless they took the oath of allegiance (to King George) and abhorrence (against the Stuart Pretender) which was required of all officeholders.

Maryland, like Virginia, had been a harbor for years for "the King's seven-year prisoners," convicts who were transported as servants to the colonies for offenses against the drastic penal code of England. Futile efforts had been made to keep them out, though not all of them were desperate characters, but when they continued to pour in the Assembly fixed the kind and quality of goods to which they were entitled upon receiving their freedom.

Concerning Governor Hart nothing is known except his official acts and the fact that, during their stay in Annapolis at least two children were born to him and his wife, Anne. The elder, a girl, received the name Marylandia. It has been hazarded that he was a member of the great Irish clan of O'Hart, but this is mere conjecture. None of the old Annapolis houses now standing is known to have been connected with Governor Hart as owner or tenant. He is known to have leased 200 acres from Andrew Norwood for thirty-one years dating from September 29, 1715, but no house is mentioned as standing or to be built on this tract.

After a preliminary hesitation, the people of Maryland seem to have treated this Governor, under whom they prospered exceedingly, with the utmost kindness. At a time when he no longer had anything to expect from their favor he described them as "a well-natured and most hospitable people" who, for the much greater part, were "zealously affected to the present government and the Protestant interest."

MT. LAKE PARK

Allegheny Tableland Association

It is of great interest and importance to the whole area embraced in the activities of the Allegheny Tableland Association that the proposed plans for this year's meetings be successfully consummated.

Mr. I. S. Middaugh, secretary of the Association, has issued notices of a meeting of the governing board to be held Friday, July 28, at 12 o'clock noon, beginning with a luncheon at the Ferner Hotel, in Somerset, Pa. Following this, a meeting will be held with the Tableland Council of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce.

Matters which have already been proposed for discussion before the governing board include the annual Allegheny Tableland Music Festival —place and date; the Tableland Fair in Pittsburgh, which proved such a success last year; a Tableland Barter Exchange, for the exchange of Pittsburgh and Tableland products; a Rural-urban Conference, probably to be held at Mountain Lake Park where retailers, wholesalers, bankers, doctors, educators and other groups from the Tableland and Pittsburgh may get together and discuss their common problems and build a cooperative program.

Whether there will be a successful Tableland program this fall at Mt. Lake Park depends upon the decisions at these meetings. All—and that means everyone in the area covered by the Tableland Association—should be vitally interested and aggressive in the movement.

In connection with the Tableland activities here it is earnestly hoped that the new road to Deer Park may be completed, or, at least, the work of construction advanced by late fall. Our visitors would be very favorably impressed with this progressive movement.

School of Missions In Session

The Interdenominational School of Missions (Home and Foreign) is now in session and will continue until on next Monday evening, the 31st inst.

The enrollment in the girls' school is greater than in any previous year and there are more missionaries from foreign fields present than ever before, three being from China; one from Turkey; one from Liberia, and several others. The officers of the school feel elated over the success that is now apparent when it is taken into consideration the economic conditions confronting a movement of this character and scope.

Students in the girls' school are present from several States and the number now registered is more than forty with others coming in daily.

Every hour of the week's session is fille with interest and instruction and inspiration.

On Sunday night a pageant will be presented which will be directed hy Mrs. Paul B. Naylor, of Oakland.

Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. B. Y. Powers, Beaver, Pa., are now at the Arnold Cottage where they spend a few weeks every summer. Mr. and Mrs. Powers were married in Pasadena, Calif., July 24, 1915, and in honor of their eighteenth wedding anniversary Mrs. Arnold planned a pleasant surprise to celebrate the occasion. When the guests of the house entered the dining room in the evening of the 24th, Mrs. Arnold placed on Mrs. Powers' head a pretty veil, surmounted by a wreath of beautiful flowers and congratulations ewere extended. Mr. Powers received a buttonaire. The victrola played "Thinking of You." The dining room was beautifully decorated with plants and a large cluster of flowers was on the table. A friend, Miss Eula Keener, acted as bridesmaid. A fine wedding dinner was served and a bride's cake made a handsome centerpiece. The bride of 1915 cut the cake and served the guests. Mrs. J. A. Bowen, of Mississippi, a close friend of Mr. and Mrs. Powers, was a special guest upon the occasion.

MORE SAFETY
at no extra cost

ONE of the strange facts about the tire business is—the PRICE of all tires is about alike. That being so, you might as well pick the best—in quality, in safety, in mileage.

What's the best in quality? The public says Goodyear — this tire is preferred by more people than any THREE other makes of tires.

What's the best in safety? Accurate tests on wet concrete show Goodyears will stop a car quicker than any other tire. The next best tire skidded 10% more—other tires skidded up to 77% more under exactly the same conditions. And if you want safety from blowouts—remember that Goodyears give safety in every ply, because every ply is built with Supertwist cord and every ply runs from bead to bead.

What's the best in mileage? Bus fleet records show Goodyear Tires give 97% more mileage than they gave five years ago.

Now that all prices are headed UP — it's more important than ever to get the most for your money. Better look over your tires and buy new Goodyears now while prices are still low.

LARGE LIQUOR PLANT IN COUNTY IS CONFISCATED

200-Gallon Plant Near Mason School Found In Operation; Five Men Are Arrested

WORKED ALL DAY ON CASE

One of the largest liquor seizures and confiscations ever made in Garrett county was effected last Friday by Federal Prohibition Investigators William R. Harvey and Leon Poore, Cumberland, and Samuel Cole, deputy sheriff of Garrett county.

Several cases were completed during the week, the total seizures including two automobiles, four stills of a total capacity of 355 gallons, nearly 300 gallons of whiskey and 1,200 gallons of mash, together with large quantities of equipment and material used in the moonshine business. A thousand pounds of brown sugar was also seized which was given to the relief organizations of the county.

Eight were arrested in the several cases made, the majority being in Garrett county.

Investigator Harvey said he and Poore, accompanied by Deputy Sheriff Cole, worked on the Garrett county case nearly all day Friday, having the license number of a new automobile which was alleged to be used by persons engaged in the liquor business. The officers spotted the car in Oakland and followed it to the vicinity of Mason school, near Table Rock, about twelve miles from town, where after an intensive search and investigation they found a 200-gallon plant in operation.

William Runner, of Philippi, W. Va., was arrested at the plant, and G. Lee Ridder was arrested at his farm house nearby. W. C. Nuetzling, alias William G. Lewis, of Clarksburg, a previous offender; was arrested as the driver of the car the officers followed from Oakland and which served to lead them to the discovery of the plant.

William P. Lee, who resided with Ridder, and Shirley H. Sager, on whose property a part of the seizure was made, were also taken into custody and arraigned before Magistrate Charles F. White and held under bond of $500 each for the September term grand jury on charges of possession and manufacture.

Ridder was held on a dual charge under $50 bond in each case. A room in his house was used as a cutting plant and ageing quarters for whiskey and brandy, the major products at the still, and it was here 286 gallons of intoxicants were seized.

Officer Harvey said the case involved several families, but thought all those implicated in the plant were apprehended. The entire outfit was confiscated.

Some of the prisoners had in their possession complete plans of the still and plant and also records of liquor transactions and their expense accounts in connection with the selling and manufacturing of the product.

Officers seized two stills, mash and whiskey at the home of Edward Wampler near Finzel, who was held for the Garrett county grand jury on charges of manufacture and possession under a bond of $500.

One of the seized stills was in operation in the spring house of Wampler's farm when the seizure was made.

Preston Coulter, of Hutton, was arrested Saturday after Prohibition agents had discovered a 20-gallon still and 100 gallons of mash on his property.

He was taken to Cumberland where he was lodged in jail on a Federal charge of manufacture and possession. He failed to give bond.

Coulter is an alleged previous violator. Officers said when they reided this liquor plant they were attacked by a large dog which seemed to object to their presence and Officer Poore had some difficulty in driving the enraged animal away long enough for Harvey to arrest Coulter.

Marriage Is Announced

The marriage of Olin Walter Hardesty to Miss Hazele Vivienne Garlet, of Kingwood, W. Va., has been announced. The ceremony was performed Tuesday, July 25, at Uniontown, Pa., by Rev. William Boyd Hindman, who used the ring ceremony.

The groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hardesty, Pennington street, Oakland.

NEGRO AND WHITE MARRY HERE; ARE BEING HELD

Marriage Performed April 25—Both Said They Were Negroes

Upon complaints of citizens of Fairfax, W. Va., just across the line on the Oakland-Thomas highway, Dale Robey Walker, 25, and Silvia Marie Dawson, of Fairfax, were arrested and brought to the Oakland jail on charges of perjury and an infamous crime, that of inter-racial marriage, and are being held for action of the Grand Jury.

Walker and the Dawson girl obtained a license here on April 25, the girl giving her age as 21 and her color that of a Negro. It was learned, however, that the girl is white and only 14 years old and since being married here by a local minister had been living at Fairfax, with her husband, who is a Negro.

SCHOOL BOARD ANNOUNCES SCHOLARSHIP WINNERS

Other Business Transacted at Meeting Last Friday

At a meeting of the Board of Education last Friday the following scholarships were awarded contingent upon the legal requirements being complied with by the parties designated in the institutions named:

St. John's College, Annapolis, William Lower Wonderly, Mountain Lake Park;

Blue Ridge College, New Windsor, Miss Mary E. Miller, Accident;

St. Mary's Female Seminary, St. Mary's City, Miss Frances Catherine Filsinger, Deer Park;

Maryland Institute of Art and Design, Miss Margaret Mary Blocher, Grantsville.

The County Superintendent reported that upon the acceptances hy the bus contractors of reductions in their annual rates for the transportation of school children, the bus routes of the county that were operated during 1932 and 1933 will be operated during 1933 and 1934 at a reduction in cost of about $7,000.

The County Superintendent submitted the following list of twelve one-teacher schools in the county having the number of pupils enrolled and having an average daily attendance during the past school year of less than 15 children: Glendale, Bond, Winding Ridge, Johnstown, Broadford, Lynndale, Pleasant Valley, Sand Run, Shook Shop, Caton, Casselman, Promised Land.

The Board awarded contracts for supplying coal to various schools of the county.

Upon the resignation of Joshua Turner as trustee of Avilton school, William Garlitz was named.

J. W. Gilbert, trustee of Gorman school, resigned, and George Williams was named to succeed him.

At Crellin school Ernest Colaw resigned as trustee and Lester Yutzy was named to succeed him.

Lawrence Sellers, trustee of Winding Ridge school, submitted his resignation and Samuel Friend was named to succeed him.

The resignation of the following teachers from the teaching staff of the public schools of the county were accepted, the same being effective at once: Jacob J. Oester, Mrs. Beulah Walker-Wheeler, Lena E. Delbrook, W. W. Jenkins, Mrs. Myra Custer-Taylor.

The Board ordered the Bond school closed and the children of that school transported to New Germany school.

The County Superintendent reported that the Davis Coal and Coke Company had reduced the annual rental of the school building in Kempton from $600 per year to $475, and that the Miners' Sunshine Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., had reduced the annual rental of the school rooms in Bloomington from $200 per year to $175.

Those in attendance upon the meeting of the board were Stuart F. Hamill, president; Norval Speelman, vice-president; H. A. Loraditch and F. E. Rathhun, County Superintendent.

Boy Drowned In Potomac

Kenneth Harold Stullenburg, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Stullenburg, was drowned in the Potomac river near Kitzmiller, Sunday afternoon. The body was recovered shortly after the accident.

Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon from the Nethkin Hill church, near Elk Garden, with interment in the church cemetery. Surviving besides the parents, are a brother, Harvey Stullenburg, Jr., and a sister, Miriam Stullenburg.

TO EXPLAIN RELIEF WORK AT PUBLIC MEET TONIGHT

Son of Former President of the United States Will Speak on Situation In the State

STILL MUCH NEED HERE

The public relief meeting to be held this evening in the Oakland High School building will have the following program:

Group singing of "America," led by the Oakland Band and Walter W. Dawson; welcome, by Mayor Grover C. Stemple; introduction of Richard F. Cleveland, chairman of the Governor's Emergency Unemployment Committee, by Charles W. Ream, chairman of the Garrett County Welfare Board; the relief situation in Garrett County today, Charles W. Ream; introduction of Mr. Harry Greenstein, State relief administrator.

Mr. Cleveland and Mr. Greenstein will speak not only of the relief situation in Maryland generally but particularly of the future of the relief work of this county.

Federal relief funds at this time are being granted the States on what is known as a "matching basis," or one dollar of Federal money for every three dollars of public State or county money spent during the preceding three months for relief purposes.

Garrett county, because of its inability to meet the relief needs of its people in the past, is now being financed as a beneficiary of the State in the relief work being done among approximately 1000 families of the county, but this situation is little understood by county people generally, according to Miss Charlotte Wilcox, the Relief Administrator.

"It is unthinkable that there should be any curtailment of this service," Miss Wilcox stated. "We are just beginning to see some constructive results in the family life of the county of the funds we have been permitted to spend. Many had so completely exhausted all resources that it took weeks of work and direct relief for them to catch up at all and now, with winter just ahead, mothers and fathers are thinking not onl yof needed food for their families but clothing and shoes for school children as well. There is also much need of medical care," Miss Wilcox said. "We have only recently been advised that Federal funds may be spent when imperative for the care of sick. One little girl who could not speak distinctly because of enlarged tonsils and adenoids was operated on last week, and the public health nurses are daily reporting other similar cases of children who should be cared for before school opens."

To August 1, 1738 applications have reached the headquarters of the Relief Board in Oakland. The last payroll gave relief to approximately 5000 individuals in the county through work projects. There are also certain families receiving direct relief from the Board because there are no breadwinners in the home. $2,866.34 was disbursed through the last payroll by the relief agency.

A large and enthusiastic meeting is anticipated this evening to hear the visiting speakers. A band concert on the Court house lawn will precede the meeting.

Miners Receive Wage Increase

Coal miners of the George's creek and Upper Potomac regions were given a substantial increase in wages, effective Tuesday. An increase is also to be given to various other classes of coal mining.

Inside labor which heretofore has been paid $2.60 will get $3.44 under the advance, while the mining rate for Big Vein and Tyson will jump from 45 cents a ton to 58 cents a ton.

At the Stanley Coal company mine C. W. Ream stated that miners at Crellin had received an increase of 33 1-3 percent. Approximately 225 are employed at present.

Examination to be Held for Kitzmiller Postmastership

An open competitive examination to fill the vacancy in the position of postmaster at Kitzmiller has been announced by the U. S. Civil Service Commission.

The examination will be held at the Oakland postoffice and receipt of applications will close on August 21. Applications must be filed at Washington on or before that date.

The salary of the Kitzmiller position is $1,200.

PUBLIC HEALTH OFFICER FOR COUNTY IS SELECTED

Dr. Eugene C. Peck, of Connecticut, Appointed by County Commissioners Saturday

BEGAN WORK SAME DAY

Dr. Eugene C. Peck has been appointed health officer of Garrett county by the County Commissioners of Garrett county upon the recommendation of Dr. R. H. Riley, State health director, and the new officer assumed his duties in the county on Saturday.

Dr. Peck comes to Garrett county highly recommended, having studied, taught and practiced medicine for a number of years. He was graduated from Harvard in 1916; Harvard Medical School in 1919, and the Harverd School of Public Health. Before coming to Garrett county, Dr. Peck was employed by the State of Connecticut in contagious disease work.

He taught biological chemistry and physiology for five years—one year in Tulane University; three years at St. John's University, Shanghai, China, 1922 to 1925, and one year as an assistant in the Harvard Medical School.

Dr. Peck is a native of Connecticut, having been born at New Briton. He is married and has three children, Helen, 11; Jean, 8, and Robert, 5.

He began his duties Saturday afternoon by assisting with a diphtheria clinic in the office of Dr. A. K. Fidler, Kitzmiller, when 192 persons were given the serum. Mrs. Samuel Cole, public health nurse, also assisted.

Dr. Peck stated his work would be along the lines of preventive medicine alone and not as a practicing physician.

PREVIOUS WINNERS WILL RETURN FOR TENNIS MEET

Fourteenth Annual Tournament to Begin August 14 at the Park

When the fourteenth annual tennis tournament for the Western Maryland championships, sponsored by the Woman's Civic club of Mt. Lake Park opens on August 14, there will be in competition four who already have been crowned singles champions at different times, and two who have just recently won tournaments in nearby sections.

The most heated competition is expected this year in the women's singles when Miss Margaret Carspecken, Morgantown, W. Va., and Miss Frances Grimes, Morgantown and Mt. Lake Park, will vie for honors. Miss Carspecken has won the championship cup twice and another win will give her permanent possession. Miss Grimes was winner for one year.

Miss Carspecken recently won the women's singles in the West Virginia open tournament at White Sulphur Springs, and paired with Miss Grimes to capture the women's doubles at the same tournament. Miss Grimes won the women's singles championship of the Allegheny tournament at Cumberland last week.

Men's Singles

Randolph Shields, Winchester, Va., and Dr. John O'Loughlin, of Pittsburgh, Pa., will return this year in an attempt to gain another leg on the men's singles cup, both having been victorious in previous meets. Other stars are expecting to return and entry cards from others have already been received, according to Jared Young, secretary.

Tickets for the match are being sold this year for $2.25, porch; and $1.75, grandstand; the tickets good for the entire week including admission to the social events held in connection with the tournament.

Arthur Lawton Named General Manager of K. of P. Picnic

At a meeting of the executive committee of the Knights of Pythias lodge last night, Arthur Lawton was named general manager of the fourteenth annual Knights of Pythias Labor Day picnic to be held in Helbig's Grove, Oakland, on Monday, September 4th.

Other committees appointed include: Automobile, A. G. Gortner, Wellington Yutzy; advertising, Harry Stemple, Gladstone Morris, Lee R. Mason; parade, A. R. Martin.

A Chevrolet Six will be given away upon the day of the picnic. Other committees and definite arrangements as to ammusements, etc., will be made at the regular meeting of the Knights tomorrow evening.

TWO SERIOUSLY INJURED IN AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT

Mr. and Mrs. C. Brooks Deveny, Fairmont, Hurt at Red House

Mr. and Mrs. C. Brooks Deveny, of Fairmont, were seriously injured last Saturday evening. Mr. Deveny lost control of his car and left the road near Red House, crashing into a tree.

Mrs. Deveny is the more seriously injured and she is quite weak from the loss of blood and shock to her system. She has a broken arm, bad lacerations about her ear and neck, and bruises and cuts about the body. She will be confined to Cook's hospital, in Fairmont, for a few weeks.

Mr. Deveny has a broken nose and collar bone, with severe lacerations about the head and legs. The car was almost totally demolished.

Mr. and Mrs. Deveny had started to Brookside Inn to attend an outing and dinner by the Marion County, W. Va., Bar Association. As they had arrived early at the Inn they decided to drive on up the mountain toward Thomas, and returning a short distance from Red House the accident occurred. Passersby stopped and gave the injured couple every attention and they were rushed to the office of Dr. H. W. McComas in Oakland, where they were made as comfortable as possible and later were taken to the hospital in Fairmont.

LECTURE SERIES BEGINS MONDAY IN M. E. CHURCH

Dean C. Dutton Will Conduct Meetings Here all Next Week

A week of lectures in the form of a summer assembly, covering topics of current events and character studies, will begin in the M. E. church Monday evening. Dean C. Dutton, a former Redpath Chautauqua member and professor at the University of Oklahoma, will be the speaker.

He will also conduct a forum each morning beginning Tuesday morning at 6:45, in the Presbyterian church.

It is said by those who have heard him that it is no dry lecture course but a series of topics filled with human interest and dramatically and forcefully delivered.

The evening lectures begin at 7:45 and alternate between the Methodist and Lutheran churches. Offerings taken each evening will go toward defraying his expenses.

His first subject is "The Undiscovered Country," and throughout the week continues with such subjects as "The Meaning of the Universe and the Place of Man in it," "Men of Tomorrow," "Radiance and Power in Beautiful Womanhood," "The Throb of Power in Personality," "Life's Supreme Romance," and others.

Cards containing his entire week's program will be distributed.

Plan Submitted For Reorganization of Friendsville Bank

A plan to reorganize the affairs of the First National Bank at Friendsville has been approved by the Comptroller of the Currency and will be put into effect within the next two weeks, is has been announced by those who compose the reorganization committee.

Under the new plan the bank will have a capital of $25,000 with a surplus of $6,500. As soon as 75 per sent of the depositors and stockholders owning at least two-thirds of its outstanding capital give their written consent to the plan, the work of reorganization will be started.

Three Hundred Bibles Distributed In County

Dr. Fred. F. Leonard, representative of the Maryland Bible Society, Baltimore, who has been in Garrett county the past three weeks engaged in Bible colportage, will complete his work this week.

Dr. Leonard has visited all reforestation camps, the mining communities and isolated places, and in all instances where people did not have Bibles and were unable to purchase them they were presented with a copy without charge. More than three hundred Bibles were distributed.

Conducting Potato Inspection

Dr. R. A. Jehle and J. W. Heuberger, Universitey of Maryland Extension service, are in the county this week conducting the first inspection of certified seed potatoes. They will complete their work the latter part of this week.

F. L. OTTO, FARMER, JAILED IN PLOT TO EXTORT MONEY

Confesses to Sending Letter to Dr. N. R. Davis, Grantsville Physician, Demanding $1,000

THREE PENALTIES LISTED

Charged with an attempt to extort $1,000 from Dr. N. R. Davis, prominent citizen and bank president of Grantsville, Fred L. Otto, of New Germany, is being held in the Garrett county jail and may be turned over to Federal authorities.

The arrest followed an investigation from Monday until Friday night of county authorities after Dr. Davis had received a threatening letter signed the "Clu Clan Comity," and demanding that the money be placed under the steps of the Reformed church at New Germany on the night of July 27.

State's Attorney Dawson stated that Otto has made a voluntary confession that he sent the letter in question to Dr. Davis demanding the money.

The $1,000 was demanded for the purpose of "keeping people from losing their farms," and the penalty for failing to comply with the request meant the kidnaping of some member of the family, that his property would be "blowed up" or that he would be "burnt at the stake".

Officers working on the case stated that a package was placed under the church steps Thursday night but was removed Friday morning when no one appeared to get it. Otto is said to have told officers later that he looked for the package Friday morning when he and two of his children had gone to the cemetery adjoining the church to fix up a burial plot.

Until the investigations produced results leading to the arrest of Otto, Dr. Davis and family were under quite a mental strain, his children not being allowed to go any place for fear of kidnaping.

The facts in the case will be turned over to Federal authorities.

16 LOCAL INSTITUTIONS SIGN THE PLEDGE OF NRA

No Meetings Have Been Held for Formation of Codes

Sixteen business institutions had signed the pledge of cooperation with President Roosevelt's National Recovery Act, and had turned them in to Lawrence M. Fraley, postmaster, up until 10 o'clock this morning.

Owing to the smallness of the community and the fact that there are no industries here, there have been no meetings for the purpose of formulating codes for conducting and operating the different business establishments.

Merchants and other business men are not at all sure about what they are signing, but nevertheless are willing to signify their intention of backing the government.

Those who have signed up include the Farmers Bank, the First National Bank, the Garrett National Bank, Henry Lauer, Coffman-Fisher Company, Gonder's Pharmacy, Oakland Hardware and Furniture Company, Sturgiss' Pharmacy, Community Store, L. B. Shaffer, Sharps Motor Company, Oakland Pharmacy, J. W. Jackson Company, the Great Atlantic and Pacific Company, The Republican, The Mt. Democrat.

Others are expected to be added.

Home Owners Ask $306,874.22

Applications from property owners for financial assistance, to pay taxes, mortages, and interest, continue to pour into Branch No. I Home Owners' Mortgage Corporation, located in the Federal building at Cumberland.

Judge Oliver H. Bruce, Jr., manager, said loans sought since the branch opened aggregate $306,874.22. Most of the applications are from Cumberland and Allegany county.

Grasped Live Wire

Elva Porter, a young member of the Girl Scout troop of Oakland, grasped a live wire in front of the Lutheran church here on Saturday night at the close of the Girl Scout lawn fete. The child appealed for help, and she was pulled free of the wire by Rev. Charles A. Shilke, who was standing nearby. She was uninjured aside from a slight discoloration of the palm of her hands.

Lesson for August 6

RUTH

LESSON TEXT—Ruth 1:6-19.
GOLDEN TEXT—Beloved, let us love one another: for love is of God: and every one that loveth is born of God, and knoweth God. I John 4:7.
PRIMARY TOPIC—God's Gift of Friends.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Ruth the Loyal.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Ruth the Loyal.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Message of the Book of Ruth.

In order to grasp the material contained in the subject there must be swept into view the whole book of Ruth. The lesson committee recognized this and nssigned the book as the lesson text. However, for convenience the lesson text which is to he printed has been confined to the first chapter, verses 6-19.

I. Ruth's Connection With the Jewish Nation (1:1-5).

1. The sojourn in Moab (vv. 1-3). On account of famine in Bethlehem of Judah, Elimelech with Naomi, his wife, and their two soas sojourned in the land. During this sojourn Elimelech died, leaving Naomi, the widow, to care for two fatherless sons.

2. The marriage of the two soas (v. 4). During the sojourn the two sons fell in love with and married Moabitish women named Orpah and Ruth. For God'a chosea people even to sojourn in the world exposes them to the likelihood of intermarriage of the members of the family with the people of the world.

3. The death of the sons (v. 5). In a brief time, three widows were left in the one family relation. This family went to Moab to escape trouble, only to have their troubles greatly increased. When God's people go into the world to escape difficulties they are sure to suffer in consequence.

II. Naomi's Return to the Land of Judah (vv. 6-14).

Because of the chastisement that was sent upon Naomi, she resolved to return to her country. The purpose of God's chastisement is to cause his children to return nato him.

When the time came for Naomi to go, Ruth and Orpah accompanied her for a distance. This she permitted, hut dectrmined to place before them frankly the difficulties that would confroat them. Having laid the matters before them, she urged them to turn hack. As much as Naomi loved her daughters-in law, she would not have them go with her without knowing fully what their decision meant.

III. Ruth's Noble Choice (vv. 16 18).

This choice on her part meant:

1. No chance to marry again. In that day to be unmarried was the greatest disgrace. Furthermore, it was against God's law for the Jews to marry outside of their own people.

2. She must renounce her gods. Idolatrous worship could not be carried oa in the land where God's people dwelt. This was delicately touched upon by Naomi when Orpah went back (v. 15). Orpah went back when it was plain that there was ao chance to marry again. At this time Naomi put an additional test upon Ruth, that of giving up her religion. Ruth was equal to the occasion. Her mind was fully made up. Her very expressions have come down to us in words which "no poetry has outrivaled, and no pathos has exceeded, and which have gone through centuries with the music that will not let them he forgotten." She was determined to share Naomi's journey, her home, her God, her lot in life and her grave in death, whatever that would he. It meant that she would renounce her heathen gods, and worship Jehovah.

IV. Blessings Which Attended Ruth's Choice (chaps. 2-4).

1. She found the true God (1:16). Instead of her heathen gods who were nnable to help her, she now had a living God—the God of Israel.

2. She found human friends (chap. 2). As she went to glean she was led to the field of Boaz, a man of wealth and grace. The servants treated her with consideration. Even Boaz gave instructions for special consideration to be given her.

3. A good husband and a happy home (chaps. 3, 4). She not only secured a husband, but a man of God who had an abundance of this world's goods.

4. An honored place in the Israelitish nation (4:13 17). Though she had to forsake her own people, she became one of a nobler people.

5. She became a link in the chain of Christ's ancestry (4:18 22. cf. Matt. 1:5). The one who fully decides for Christ and gives up all for him shall receive a hundredfold in this life, and in the world to come eternal life.

The Holy Spirit

There is only one inlet of power in the life; just one inlet—the Holy Spirit. He is power. To yield to his mastery, to cultivate his friendship, to give him full swing—that will result in what is called power. One inlet of power—the Holy Spirit in control.

Facing Wrong Way

The man who becomes a Christian because he confirms the faith of his fathers may be on the right way, but he is not facing in the right direction.

Lost Property

By DOROTHY DOUGLAS

© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate. WNU Service

TOM REYNOLDS was asking Mildred for the nnteenth time when she would be likely to make up her mind to marry him and Mildred was smiling very charmingly into Tom's anxious eyes when she suddenly leaned forward and stnred at the umbrella in the hands of the man in the seat nhead of them.

She and Tom were sitting on top the Fifth avenue bus enjoying the lovely Riverside Drive trip.

"Tom," whispered Mildred, "that man has an umbrella that looks exactly like Brother Fred's—in fact," she added, craning her neck a bit, "I am absolutely certain it is Fred's umbrella—the one I had the misfortune to lose when I was in London two years ago. Tom," and Mildred became fearfully coaxing, "do you mind asking that young man where he got that umbrella?"

"Mildred! Have you gone nutty? There are, no douht, a thousand umbrellas like Fred's."

Mildred shook her head. No—I know that is it for the ear of the ivory elephant on the handle was broken just like that, and Fred did so prize that umbrella. He only lent it to me that day in London because I had on my new Paris suit and he didn't want me to spoil it first thing. I left it on the train and didn't have time to go back and inquire as we sailed the next day for home. Please, Tom, nsk him."

But Tom steadfastly refused.

"All right!" Before Tom could stop her she had leaned forward and in the most heavenly voice in the world was asking the perfectly strange man to excuse her being rude hut would he mind telling her where he got that umbrella.

The stranger turned round, looked only once into Mildred'a eyes, and Tom had a beastly feeling that the game was up.

"Why no," Jim Weldon naswered with n ready smile, "ng a matter of fact, I got it in London at a small lost property office on the Strand. I rather fancied this ivory elephant."

Mildred laughed. "Well, it's really quite funny," she snid, "to see that umbrella again for I lost it on a train in London. My hrother lent it to me and I simply felt dreadful when I lost it. We visited England two years ago and—that was when I fost it."

"And I've had it with me constantly for some eighteen months," he laughed.

"You know," confided Mildred, and Tom was beginning to feel quite out of the picture and a bit gloomy, "my brother would give a lot to get that back. His girl, who is now his wife, gave it to him for an engagement present and she has always sort of felt that it was very careless of me to lose it."

Tom felt that the conversation had gone quite far enough now and he didn't like the new and interested expression in Mildred's eyes nor the admiring glances the strange man was giving Mildred.

"Well, he put in a trifle roughly, "what are you golag to do about it?"

"Give it hack to its rightful owner," said the young man rather curtly.

Mildred, too, was a hit snappy. She felt annoyed that Tom could be so petty about nothing nt all.

"In fact," continued the strange young man calmly, "if you will give me your brother's name and address I will take pleasure in taking the umhrelin to him myself. I'm sure we could enjoy a chat nbout London, too."

Mildred choked back a desire to laugh. Tom's brow was like a thundercloud.

"No need to take all that trouhle," he said with an effort to seem genial. "Miss Caldwell can give it to him."

"Tom! Don't he ahsurd," flashed Mildred with a laugh. "Don't you see that this gentleman could easily think us a couple of crooks. How does he know I have a brother—if he doesn't meet him? I think he is perfectly right in wanting to put it in the right haads." And in order to hide the expression of her eyes, Mildred bent over her vanity hag and extracted therefrom a card on which she wrote the address of her brother. She handed this to the young man.

"Thanks," he said, "and—is there any particular time, Miss Caldwell, when I would he most likely to find your hrother?"

Mildred bit her lips hard. She simply dared not show her dimples and her appreciation of the subtle manner in which the young man was asking just when she was likely to he visiting her hrother.

"Brother is always in on Wednesday evening," she said.

And Jim Welden got off the bus, nor did he look back for there were those Wednesday evenings to look forward to.

"Lost property isn't the word," growled Tom.

Cautious Courage

The king of a large African tribe "shows off" his courage every morning by dashing into his crowded courtyard, where he mounts his horse and calls for his army to attack a nearhy kingdom. Assistants then persuade him to wait until tomorrow. Feigning anger, he dismonnts and goes to breakfast.—Collier's Weekly.

SCOOP'S COLUMN

By Scoop Himself

Hugh Hamill, from down on the lake shore, was in the latter part of last week nnd said he liked this column all right, but he didn't want his name in it. So here it isn't.

* * *

Boy, what a night to sleep! And am I tired? First day of Scout camp over and me with a rubber air mattress. Better than straw ticks any day, if you ask me. Ask any Scout.

Lights out and taps already sounded at 9:30. First time in bed at that hour since last camp. Ho-hum, and other exclamations of persons needing sleep. Now to turn over and welcome the Sandman or Morpheus, whichever you choose.

What's that? This is no time for machine gun practice. Well, if it isn't that, somebody's using the crosscut saw—oh, ho, so it's just a gentle snorer, is it? Why doesn't his bedfellow punch him one, run his toe nail across his sunburn or wriggle the bed? There, he must have a hold on his nose, or else the boy's coming to a knot in the board. Sort of jerky, if you'd like to know. The kind of snore that has an ogre chasing you in your dreams and you're just out of puff thinking any minute may be your last.

Well, he ought to turn over after that one. Maybe he's been glued to the tick. There it goes again. Sounded like a thunder shower that time. It's only been two hours since I crawled into bed.

What wouldn't I give for a long stick. He's still at it. Or maybe somebody's throwing gravel on the tin roof. It's gotten so regular it's got me worried when it cuts off. If he'd only blow his nose it might go a couple of octaves higher or maybe reduce it to a faint rumble.

Well, it's doesn't make much difference now. Somebody else is keeping him company. Not quite so much volume, but he has regularity, I'll say that much for him. It's too much to hope that they might wake each other.

If it wasn't for the effort I'd move my covers and bed out under the stars. That's about the last resort. There—he's stopped. Nope, just resting. What a pile of wood could have been cut with that much sawing. There he goes again. The only thing left is to count sheep. I've often heard it might help. I'm up to ten and he's still at it. Twenty-five, thirty-one, forty-six, fifty-six, I'll execute the bugler in the morning. Seventy-eight, eighty-five. Never saw so many sheep in my life.

But did I care? I should say not. They certainly pulled the wool over my eyes! * * *

One of the latest rackets, it seems, is to go around and pick other people's apples.

It isn't so bad when you gather them under the tree, but when you go with ladders and pick the best ones from the trees, and have a truck there to load them on, it's getting beyond me.

And another thing. For kids to do that, it might be excusable, but for grown men! What gall!

And if you don't believe it happened, ask a Second street orchardist.

The Recovery Plan

"They've got so many codes and life saving propositions in Washington a man is liable to get looney trying to find out what is what before it's too late," remarks Old Grouch of Snake Hollow, as quoted in The Observer, a weekly newspaper published in Baltimore.

Old Grouch continues: "I got my doubts you can get prosperity with a code. In Maryland it seems like the only thing that works every time is a strong machine.

"The schemes are worth trying out though, I reckon, but it seems like more people have got their eye on the stock market than on the new codes. And I see in some store windows where some ten-cent articles have already been jacked up from twenty-five cents to thirty-five. They want to get the harvest early. They will skeer the customers off.

"They needn't skeer them to death. They've been nervous for a long time. Of course the short week ain't no great trouble. Lots of people have had a short week or no week at all for a long time. A short week is better than none a tall. What is most needed is the mazuma. I hear they be gonna make the gold dollar smaller and put out a lot of new paper. That might help. A smaller dollar is better than no dollar and a paper dollar is something even if a lotta people will make faces about it.

"You can't tell about this code business experiment till you try it. If it won't work then they can try something else. In the meantime things will slowly be getting better anyhow. You can't keep everybody down in the gutter all the time.

"As far as making the gold dollar smaller, it is already invisible as far as I am concerned. I ain't discovered one in a coon's age."

Vacation Health Rules Suggested by Red Cross Medical Adviser

"A vacation period used for rest from the daily grind and for recreation conduces to mental and physical health, but if used only for getting thrills and for violating every rule of health it is worse than no vacntion," says Dr. William DeKleine, medical adviser to the American Red Cross.

"No season of the year causes more physical upsets than hot weather. The season is not so much in the weather as in the things we do or do not do. We subject ourselves to indiscretions in diet. We indulge in too little sleep, too vigorous exercise, too long exposure to the burning sun at bathing beaches. We subject ourselves to infection from contaminated water and from food at questionable eating places. We undertake nerve-racking motor trips and engage in other harmful practices. Radical changes in habits cause physical and mental upsets which ruin all the good effects that might accrue from a vacation given to genuine rest and recreation."

A few rules for vacation health are given by this authority, as follows:

Eat moderately and limit yourself to three meals a day. Stomachs need rest between meals. Milk, fresh vegetables and fruits should constitute the principal of the diet. Milk should be pasteurized or boiled. Some vegetables and fruits should be eaten raw. Meats should be eaten sparingly. Avoid drinking water of doubtful purity.

There should be moderate exercise out-of-doors every day. Do not indulge too vigorously in unusual exercises. Daily exposure to direct sunlight is extremely important, but there is no advantage in very long exposure. It may even be harmful.

Long hours of sleep are the rule at all times, but sleep is particularly important in the summer season.

Dress cool. This should apply particularly to babies and children.

60 MEN CAME TO THIS FARMER'S AID!...

"There's a fire at Mr. Flatter's farm," called the telephone operator hurriedly. She rang up the neighboring farms and soon 60 men were fighting the flames.

A neighbor discovered the fire while the family was away. She notified the operator who located Mr. Flatter while calling other farmers. This quick work saved the home and other farm buildings.

Many cases like this show how the telephone reduces the hazards and losses of farm life.

Many Fanciful Theories Concerning the Pearl

The history of the pearl industry is a colorful and romantic story. The ancients obtained their pearls chiefly from India and the Persian gulf, but for a long time nothing was known scientifically of the pearl's formation. Early peoples thought it had formed from a dewdrop or rain, but inquisitive scientists of the Sixteenth century set themselves to discover how the rain or dewdrop got into the shell in the first place. There followed a period when it was believed pearls were formed from the eggs of the oyster. Then it was noticed that pearls were made of the same substance as the inner lining of the shell. With keener observation the truth was finally discovered. It became known that a foreign body, attacking the inner shell, caused the oyster to deposit matter at the point of invasion, and this hardened substance made up the "pearl" known to the jewel industry.

Imperfectly formed pearls, attached to the inner shell, are known as "blister" pearls. Hollow, warty pearls are known to the trade as "coq de perle," while irregularly shaped pearls are "perles baroques." Pearls of the first water are of delicate texture, free from speck or flaw, and a clear, almost translucent white in color, with a subdued sheen. They are perfectly round or pear-shaped.—Exchange.

Great Ox Among Others of Vanished Animals

Caesar wrote of an animal which he called "urus." In size, he said, it was "a little less than elephants; in appearance and color and form they are bulls. Great is their strength and great their swiftness; they spare neither man nor beast whom they have perceived. These (the Germans) take pains to catch in pits and kill." Caesar, the scientists assume, probably was writing of the great ox whose skull and other bones are found in so many drained marshes, clay pits and caves across the length and breadth of Europe. And if the animal still lived in Caesar's day, how much longer did it continue? Various "proofs" of its persistence have been forthcoming; none is wholly satisfactory. Perhaps the most likely is the report of Baron Herbenstein, who, returning from Muscovy in 1550, wrote of a race of animals obviously greater than the bison which then lived in the Polish forests; but some scientists suspect that he merely saw a race of cattle gone wild.

Dives With Her Babies

The grebe is a tiny bird endowed with a wonderful amount of cunning. She hides her nest in a manner that makes it impossible for any human to discover, but it is when the five tiny young appear that the parents bring out their cunning. You will seldom see them, although the babies are able to swim and dive short distances a few hours after they leave their shells. If there is the slightest sign of danger, the mother gives the alarm cry, and instantly the diminutive birds scuttle across the water to her. She lifts both wings, and all five scramble underneath. Then she brings her wings to her side, with her family safely hidden underneath, dives with them, and carries them under water to a place of safety.

Catch Fish by Whistling

Natives of some sections of India have several unusual methods of catching fish, including luring them by whistling, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. In Assam, fishermen crouch on the banks of shallow lakes and emit a shrill whistle which attracts a species of mountain fish. Lured by the sound, this fish darts into the open palms of the whistler and is caught. In other places the direct rays of the sun force mountain fish to seek shelter beneath or beside rocks along the banks of streams. The cunning hillman crawls to a boulder behind which a fish is hiding, strikes the rock a heavy blow with his steel-shod club, and catches the fish, stunned by the sound vibrations.

"Hobo" and "Yegg"

The word "hobo," meaning a shiftless worker or itinerant laborer, a tramp (as distinguished from "yegg") originated in the United States. "The tramp's name for himself and his fellows is hobo, plural hoboes," says J. Flynt in the Contemporary Review for August, 1891. "Yegg" or "yeggman" is a tramp who makes a business of robbing rather than of hegging; a traveling burglar and safeblower. "When a particularly clever thief," says the Philadelphia Press of May 27, 1900, "is found among a gipsy tribe he is selected as the yegg or chief thief. Then came the name of John Yegg and finally the word yeggman."

Investment Planning

An investment trust is an organisation which, with its capital, buys a variety of stocks and bonds. The dividends received on these are pooled and constitute the earning of the trust. If a corporation, dividends are paid on the stock in accordance with the amounts earned on the securities held. The purpose is to spread investments over a wide field so that if one investment goes bad it will be balanced by another which will pay. The owner of stock in the investment trust thus gets the benefit of the wide spread over a great many risks.—Washington Star.

GRANTSVILLE

Business Men Are With the President

Due to the fact that there is a small number of persons employed in each establishment and the small population of the town, there has been considerable debate as to the exact requirements demanded of employers under the President's N R A program. The community as a whole, however, is with the President but not many have signed on the dotted line for the reason above stated.

Base Ball News

Grantsville won an easy victory over the Berlin team at Grantsville Sunday afternoon when they defeated them by a score of 10 to 3.

Metz was leading hitter for Grantsville, scoring three hits. H. Glotfelty, Rodamer, Fazenbaker and Trent each scored two hits. Fazenbaker knocked a three-bager and a double, and H. Glotfelty knocked a home run with two men on bases.

Battery for Grantsville were Metz nnd Fazenbeker; for Berlin, Zilco and S. Beal. Metz struck out 8; Zilco 6.

Grantsville was also victorious in a game with Rockwood at Rockwood on Monday evening, the score being 1 to 0. The only score was made by Pyle for Grantsville in the seventh inning. Battery for Grantsville was Trent and Tipton; for Rockwood, Meyers and Kimmell. Trent struck out 8 men; Meyers, 6. Grantsville scored one hit; Rockwood, two.

BITTINGER

It was supposed to be a stag party but fate decreed that it should be a "stagnation party," for when the boys arrived on the beautiful green plot selected for the occasion at nine o'clock p. m. they found that they had cream, ice and salt, but no sugar, no ice cream freezer and not a soul who knew how to prepare the evening's feast, so they all went home empty and unhappy. Try again, boys. You will know better next time.

Attorney Ernest Ray Jones and Mrs. Jones, of Oakland, were brief but pleasant callers on this village one evening last week as they were returning home from Cumberland.

Mrs. E. S. Brenneman visited friends in Cumberland and Grantsville a couple of days last week.

Mrs. Herbert Buckle and Mrs. Clark Brenneman motored to Oakland for a brief visit a few days ago.

The local baseball team went to Jennings last Sunday afternoon and measured bats with the Jennings boys and suffered a defeat with a score of 11 to 20.

Messrs. Hayward Broadwater and J. C. Miller, of Grantsville, were in Bittinger on business one evening last week.

Mrs. Fern Buckle spent part of last week with her grandmother, Mrs. Lydia Wilcy, in Grantsville.

WHY CREATE A FOOD SCARCITY?

It is distressingly obvious that the main concern of the economist and legislators who are attempting by national and international action to raise wheat prices in not human welfare but increased profits. Profits do not insure human happiness or even prosperity. In fact, one of the underlying causes of the present pitiful plight of mankind is too much profit in the hands of those engaged in non-essential and in some cases uneconomic pursuits. And what do we find our practical thinkers urging as a remedy for the fact that low wages and tariff barriers have lowered wheat prices and created an unsalable surplus? Do they see to the root of the matter—that inability of the peoples of the world to buy is the reason there seems to be a "surplus"? We do not have too much grain. Millions of people go hungry every day. Thousands have died of starvation in India and China in the last ten years. Yet the remedy, say the economist, is less wheat. Almost as if in answer to their problem, and yet making even more glaring the inhumanity of crop destruction and limitation, comes a drought to America's Middle West threatening to destroy acres and acres of growing grain. Prices immediately leap sensationally, yet who is the gainer? Not the farmer whose crop is ruined; not the worker whose pittance must be spent for higher-priced bread. The speculators and brokers make the profit and each continued day of the blistering drought is money in their pockets and joy to their unproductive little minds. But the farmer, with the love of the soil and growing things in his heart, is again the loser, for the results of his labor are being destroyed before his eyes. Of what value is dollar wheat to him who has no wheat to sell or to him who has no money with which to buy? Forecast of approaching rain bring unloading of grains on the market and rapidly falling prices. Plenty is an evil; scarcity a blessing; starvation an incident. Why has it not occurred to these assiduous price-raisers that the best and surest remedy for the malady of which they complain is to develop a market for their wheat—all they can produce of it? The extent of the potential world market has never even been probed. We do not have over-production. What we are suffering from is underconsumption, the inability to satisfy wants because of lack of purchasing power. Of course, the problem of opening and creating new markets is not simple; in many respects it is more involved than the artificial stimulants and sedatives now being experimented with. It might not be the final answer. But it is sound and constructive. Why not try it?

FLIGHT FROM THE DOLLAR.

The administration's concern over rising price levels in advance of wage increases is justifiable. Any other course, however, could not possibly have been expected. Since the government is so obviously planning to devalue the dollar it is only natural that the things which the dollar buys should seek refuge in flight from the dollar-anchor and thus hang on the advances now being witnessed.

When the current upturn got underway following the conclusion of the bank holiday it was predicted on the natural demand arising from empty shelves and warehouses. This demand was backed by swiftly returning confidence and the belief that the New Deal program was going to turn things along an upward course. It has continued steadily until recently and now it is beginning to show signs of getting out of hand and becoming virtually speculative in character.

Industrial Administrator Hugh Johnson expresses concern over the effect of "runaway price structures" on the national recovery program because he knows that too much of this sort of thing will shortly build up another unwieldly surplus, clog the markets and bring on a new crash of values. But blaming it on speculation is not quite hitting the exact mark. The real and paramount reason will be found in the desire of all business to protect itself against a devalued dollar of the future, one outcome of the managed currency which we so obviously are going to have.

Manufacturers and dealers feel safer converting their money into goods and commodities than possessing dollars of uncertain value. Knowing that managed currency and the New Deal program will still further enhance price levels it is natural they should prefer the solid anchor of necessary materials which people must buy against a currency which may or may not be worth much in the months to come.

It will do no good under the circumstances for the administration or others to criticize the trend. It is the natural result of the course adopted.

IN DAYS OF OLD

FORTY YEARS AGO

All industries except one saw mill at Davis, West Va., had shut down on account of the depression then prevailing. A stone crusher being operated near Oakland, was also closed, throwing about twenty-five men out of employment.

Grover, the son of Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Stemple, fell while at play and broke his collar bone.

Thieves gained access to the home of Constable David Stephens and stole $12 in cash and some eatables.

It was reported from Blomington that fish were being killed by the use of dynamite in the Potomac and Savage Rivers.

The Columbian Hotel at the Park was formally opened by its proprietor, Adam Howell.

George W. Moose having been appointed ticket agent and telegraph operator by the Baltimore and Ohio, residents of Oakland were assured that the office would be kept open the year 'round.

E. M. Spedden was awarded a contract to erect The Republican building.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Two hobos, sentenced to work on the streets, made a break for liberty but were overtaken by Special Officer Maroney, who placed them in jail.

The Loch Lynn U. B. church was to be rededicated and roepened for worship.

Bishop William F. Anderson, of the M. E. church, was a speaker at the Park. and Marie Stone Langston, of Philadelphia, was scheduled to sing.

The death of Hampton McRobie, an old Union soldier, was recorded.

Butter was scarce on the local market and the reason was said to be the fault of the numerous candidates for office who detained the farmers' wives by telling them how pretty their children were.

Fish and Game Association to Meet Here August 4

The Deep Creek Lake Fish and Game Association will hold a meeting in the City Hall, Oakland, on Friday evening, August 4, at 8:30 o'clock.

Anyone interested in the propagation and protection of game and fish is invited to attend. "Insofar as game and fish are concerned," Elmer Haulenbeek, one of the members of the association, stated, "Garrett county is the county of Maryland, and everyone taking a real interest in the county should be a member of the Association."

WILL DECIDE PLACE FOR HOLDING MUSIC FESTIVAL

Joint Board of Tableland Association to Meet August 8

The place for holding the annual music festival of the Allegheny Tableland Association will be decided at a meeting of the joint board to be held on August8, it has been announced by I. S. Middaugh, Mountain Lake Park, secretary.

At the regular meeting of the governing board held at Somerset last Friday it was stated that communities desiring to have the festival should file an invitation with the secretary prior to August 8. The festival has been held at Somerset the past two years.

Every county in the Tableland was represented at the meeting at Somerset, and Joseph T. Miller, Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce, read a set of by-laws which were under consideration by the Pittsburgh organization whereby the commerce body would set up its Tableland council.

Plans were discussed for an organization tour of the Tablelands, when speakers would address each community unit and perfect the organization.

Tentative plans were discussed for a rural-urban conference for Mountain Lake Park the last week in August.

Frostburg Plans Scout Camp on Piney Run Dam, This County

That a Scout camp for Frostburg troops would be established on Piney Run dam, in Garrett county, was announced by scout leaders of that city. A site has already been selected, it is stated, and it is planned to make it one of the most attractive camps in Western Maryland.

The city officials are to be asked to give a tract of land of about two acres situated so that no structures will be built to obstruct the view of the lake from the scout cabin which is to be built of logs.

The site of the swimming pool has also heen tentatively selected. It will be on the Meese property below the spillway of the Piney Run dam.

Scout leaders informed the Rotary committee that the project is to be for Girl Scouts as well as Boy Scouts, and that an effort would be made to secure coperation of the entire community in the movement.

To Open Exclusive Ladies' Department of Half-Price Store

An exclusive ladies' department of the Half-Price store will be opened in the near future in the store room at present occupied by the A. R. Martin Furniture Company, Alder street. This store will be in addition to the clothing store on Green street which has been operated by Messrs. Harry and Benjamin Feld for the past two years or more.

Mr. Martin expects to dispose of his stock of furniture, floor coverings and other merchandise within the next few days either at public auction or to the Harman and Company furniture store, opposite his present location on Alder street. Mr. Martin will in future spend his entire time in the management of his large farm south of town.

The Pastor's Aid Society of St. Mark's Lutheran church will serve a chicken and waffle supper in the Sunday school room on Tuesday evening, August 8, beginning at 5 p. m.

A Home Coming

The people of Hoyes are preparing for a real home coming on August 20 following a request from a number of persons formerly of that community and who are now located in different parts of the country. One especially, Rev. J. H. Enlow, now of the Pittsburgh Conference, who is anxious to meet with his friends again at the little Hoyes church of his childhood days, is a leader in the proposed home coming.

An interesting program for the day is being prepared and will consist of a sermon, choir singing, quartets, speaking, instrumental music, etc.

The church committee, under whose direction the affair is to be held, requests all to attend, bringing with them a picnic basket of food and to remain during the day.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By FRANK P. LITSCHERT

Time after time during the long and weary months of the depression, when prices were still tumbling, we consoled ouselves with the thought that if normalcy ever returned, things would be different. People, we said, would never again over-extend themselves, not in this generation at least. And the practice of gambling on the stock market, and in the grain exchange, with the public going crazy in wild splurges of get rich quick speculation, were gone forever. People, we said, had learned a lot during the depression, and one of the lessons absorbed was that there was no short cut to riches, that wealth could only be won by hard work and the practice of rigid economy.

But here we are back in the old ways again. And we didn't even wait until prosperity was re-established. At the first sign of a rift in the clouds of depression, just as soon as commodities were stabilized, and had the appearance of pointing upward in price, we started out in the old merry-go-round of speculation again. Evidently a goodly portion of the American people still like easy money.

There can be little doubt that the first strengthening in the securities market, and in the grain, cotton and other commodity markets was due in part to a fundamental change in conditions. The depression had won itself out in four grinding and cruel years, public psychology changed after the bank holiday, and confidence returned. But the markets were taken in hand again by the speculators and soon began shooting upward at a dizzy pace. Finally the public got in. Then came the gentle task of transferring stocks and grain futures from the hands of the insiders into the hands of the unsuspecting public. Of course a crash followed and we were told that once again the market had "over-extended itself"; that the rise had outrun the improvement in business.

With the crash came momentary terror and the wiping out of thinly held margins. The melting away of values on the grain market was so rapid that the grain exchange had to be closed. Business on the New York stock exchange became so heavy that the exchange had to go on half time to permit the over-worked clerks and bookkeepers to catch up. Then followed the establishing of minimum grain prices and the placing of a limit on daily fluctuations.

A statement from the Agricultural Department gave one "astonding illustration of the result of individual unrestrained speculation as it effects commodity prices." A man whose identity was not revelaed owed on July 20, on margin, about 13,000,000 bushels of corn. He was caught in the decline of prices and if the exchange had opened the following day would have been sold out because he could not protect his margin. This would have meant the dumping of 13,000,000 bushels of corn in the market, which would have caused another break in prices, the statement said, "all the result of the selfish speculation of one individual." And this was only one case in many.

After all it seems that the big crash of 1929 did not teach all of us to avoid the pitfalls of speculation. The lure of easy riches continue. And the general effect on the country is not so good.

Entertainment will be provided for those who attend and meals will be served.

DIED.

THOMAS CARROLL

Thomas Carroll, aged 69 years, died at his home in Hutton Sunday evening following an illness of several weeks. He was the son of the late Patrick and Margaret Carroll, his father dying while he was still a lad. He was born at Hutton where he resided his entire lifetime. A member of the local Catholic church it is said that for more than forty years, through storm and fair weather he never missed a Sunday morning service until his last illness. His funeral services were conducted in the Oakland church yesterday morning at nine o'clock, Rev. Fr. Ryan, of Baltimore, in the absence of the resident priest, Rev. Fr. McVeigh, officiating. The deceased is survived by two brothers, Matthew and John Carroll, residents of Hutton. The pallbearers were W. R. Pendergast, M. J. Carney, M. P. Canty, J. A. Hughes, Frank Gank and Romanus Pendergast. Interment was made in the church cemetery in Oakland.

MRS. SARAH A. MASON

Mrs. Sarah A. Mason, aged 83 years, wife of Alex. C. Mason, died at her home on Third street about 5:30 o'clock this morning after an illness of about six months.

Funeral services will be held Saturday afternoon. Other arrangements have not been completed.

Surviving are her husband, one son, Wade H. Mason, of Oakland; two brothers, Oscar Friend, Deer Park; and Dolliver Friend, Clarksburg, W. Va. The deceased was born in Deer Park and except for a few years in Florida, had resided in Garrett county.

MRS. MARY C. MITCHELL

Mrs. Mary Cunningham Mitchell, aged 76, died at her home on Third street about 11 o'clock this morning as a result of a third stroke. She had been ill for more than four weeks when she was first stricken.

Funeral services have not been made pending the arrival of her niece, Miss Ruth McRobie, of Washington, D. C. The deceased was a native of Bittinger section. She came to Oakland about ten years ago from Arkansas to care for her sister, Mrs. Thomas McRohie and following her death had made her home here.

Death of an Infant

The year old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Brown, Kitzmiller, died on Tuesday night about 10 o'clock. Death was due to cholera infantum. Funeral services were held this morning.

The child was a grandson of Charles Sprague, well known in Oakland and Garrett county.

BOY SCOUTS ARE PASSING MANY TESTS DURING CAMP

Four Nearing Eagle Scout Rank —Four Become First Class

Oakland Scout troop is expecting to have four more Eagle scouts added to the troop record at the conclusion of the annual encampment or shortly thereafter, if the work that has been done the first few days of camp is any indication.

The older scouts are passing a number of their required merit badges and four have become first class since camp work started on Monday. The older scouts are concentrating on merit badges in civics, bird study, safety, athletice, first aid, and life-saving which are required of an Eagle scout.

Four former Eagle scouts are instructing in the work. One of them, Bernard Gonder, Jr., is active as assistant scoutmaster, and the other three, Robert Stemple, James Lee, and McClelland Dixon, are summer assistants.

Scouts attending camp include Irving Broadwater, Robert Browning, John Treacy, Robert Broadwater, John Darby, Howard Smouse, William Grant, Jack Lawton, Kenneth Lawton, Horace O'Donnell, Mauriee Treacy, Laural Whipkey, George Stuck, Eugene Nordeck, Lawrence Dixon. Wilbur Altstetter, Walter Stevens, Howard Naylor, Robert Lawton, Charles Mason, Guy Hinebaugh, Darwin DeWitt, Irvin Feld, Robert Tibbetts, William Glotfelty, John Sharps, and John McIntire.

Walter Dawson and Edward Lauer are expected for the second week. Since coming to camp John Treacy, Irvin Feld, Guy Hinebaugh and William Glotfelty have become first class scouts. Howard Smouse became a first last week.

Kenneth Lawton, Horace O'Donnell, George Stuck, and John McIntire are the four nearing the Eagle scout rank, with Robert Lawton, Eugene Nordeck, and Howard Naylor well on the way.

SUMMER MISSION SCHOOL IS DECLARED SUCCESSFUL

Talented Speakers and Teachers Gave Services Entirely Free

The seventeenth annual Interdenominational Summer School of Missions which was held at Mountain Lake Park from July 25 to 31, inclusive, has been declared by those in charge to be a success in every way, and by those in attendance as the very best school that has ever been held.

Representatives of many of the older and more prominent schools which were closed this year on account of finances, who attended say it was equal to and in many ways superior to the larger schools which cost much more than the school at Mt. Lake. These representatives were also high in their praises for the beautiful country and genial hospitality they received while here.

The teachers and speakers at the school, declared to be of the most intellectual and wholesome nature, gave their services free this year so as to make the school possible.

Mt. Lake and Oakland people generously supported the school, it was stated, and those in charge were appreciative of the fact, mentioning in particular Mrs. Paul Naylor, who had charge of the pageantry, and Mrs. Edwin Lanzer and Mrs. E. C. Liller, her co-workers and those who assisted in presenting the playlets and pageants, said by many to be the most beautiful and helpful ever given at the Park.

The auditorium was decorated by Mrs. Winchell and Miss Ida King and this added to the setting of the week's programs.

A detailed account of the week's program is expected to be presented in a later edition of The Republican.

AVILTON

The lawn fete which was to have been held at Cherry Grove church on Saturday evening, August 5, is being postponed until Saturday evening, August 13.

Mr. and Mrs. Jonas Wampler and Floyd Wampler and family were Sunday guests of J. E. Weitzell and family.

Orville Stark and family attended services at New Germany Sunday morning.

O. S. Fike and members of his family were visiting relatives in Frostburg on Sunday. They were accompaied home by Miss Rose Fike, who had spent the week there.

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Merrill and Mrs. D. M. Merrill attended the Sunday school picnic held at Oak Grove on Sunday.

Wm. Pope and family, of Cumberland, spent the week-end at the H. K. Pope home in this community.

Visitors at the J. C. Merrill home on Sunday evening were William, Albert and Vernon Robeson, George and Mildred Fike and Lawrence Hayes.

THE MARYLAND BIBLE SOCIETY'S CORNER

"The Word of Our God Shall Stand Forever"

EZEKIEL

The very name, Ezekiel, is a symbol of Israel's hope in the midst of her captivity. As the young prophet strove to arouse the fagging spiritual energies of the discouraged Israelites on the banks of the River Chebar, his name as well as his message should have inspired faith, for Ezekiel means "God will strengthen." Ezekiel was the son of Buzi, a priest, and had received a careful, thorough education. It is generally believed that he was not over thirty years of age when he began to prophecy. He was energetic, earnest, spiritually minded. The first eight years of his work were contemporary with Jeremiah, who was one of his teachers.

Like Daniel and the Revelation the Prophecy of Ezekiel might be termed a mystery book. It is full of oriental imagery which is difficult of interpretation, some of it probably incomprehensible to our occidental mind far removed in time from the original background and environment. Nevertheless its essential teachings are clear and of the highest value.

God always prepares his prophets for the special task he has for them. Ezekiel is no exception to this rule. He is very clear as to the time and circumstances of his call to the prophetic office. He describes it thus: "Now it came to pass in the thirtieth year, in the fourth month, in the fifth day of the month, as I was among the captives by the river Chebar, that the heavens were opened, and I saw visions of God. In the fifth day of the month, which was the fifth year of King Jehoiachims captivity, the word of the Lord came expressly unto Ezekiel the priest, the son of Buzi, in the land of the Chaldeans by the river Chebar: and the hand of the Lord was there with him."

Ezekiel's commission made him a home missionary to his own people: "Get thee unto the house of Israel, and speak my words unto them." Then the prophet did a most unusual thing, one which reveals his intense practicality of thought despite the ethereal character of the visions entertained by him. In the third Chapter and the fifteenth verse of his prophecy he writes: "I came to them of the captivity at Tel-a-bid, that dwelt by the river Chebar, and I sat where they sat, and remained there astonished among them seven days." How few prophets of the better way are patient and wise enough to go over to the other fellow's camp and sit down long enough to catch his viewpoint and consider his problems from that view-point! Many a scathing denunciation would be softened into a mild rebuke or a word of blessed encouragement by this method.

The second section of the book consists of a portrayal of the apostate condition of Judah before the Captivity, the guilt of the people and the coming destruction of Jerusalem.

The third section deals with the means by which the glory of the nation is to be restored. These may be briefly summarized as follows: By heeding the warnings of the spiritual watchman, and repenting of sin; the displaying of false shepherds, and the coming of the Good Shepherd, who will feed the flock; a national revival and a spiritual resurrection in the valley of dry bones; the overthrow of the enemies of the nation; the building of a new Sanctuary; the returning of the Glory of the Lord; the ministry of a loyal priesthood; by the life giving waters issuing from the Sanctuary.

Ezekiel sends forth a challenge for a man of integrity to arise and meet the national need. He shows the weakness of untempered mortar, and its worthlessness for building the walls of Zion. He further demands as a fundamental of salvation, a new heart and the assumption of personal responsibility.

Million Dollars Paid Out To Forest Workers' Relatives

Approximately $1,003,502 was paid out in Maryland, Pennsylvania, Virginia and the District of Columbia to members of the Civilian Conservation corps or their families for reforestation workers' salaries.

Approximately 32,000 men are working in the three states and their families received in round figures four-fifths of this amount, or $800,000. Maryland received $104,808 for July. Approximately $3,125 of this amount will come to families in Garrett county.

LABOR

Takes Inventory And Sees The Future With New Inspiration!

I have heard my people mumble deep-throated intonations of pessimism, hands clenched in despair, eyes raised in fearful anticipation. They have said among themselves . . . "What is our country coming to? There is nothing for us to do. Nothing for us to earn. Where shall we go?

"Fears struck me when I heard these foreboding words and my eyes penetrated far into my country to glean why such unhealthy stirring had arisen. I gazed at great stretches of fertile soil, which have been farmlands . . our fathers . . . and their fathers before them: rich, seething lands, ready to be impregnated with the seeds of fruitfulness. I dropped my hands deep into the west, and raised them, coated with oil whose golden gleam foretold the wealth that waited there . . I turned my steps north, south, and east, and everywhere found ample precious metals . . . minerals . . . and forests laden with a promise to much which is ready to be lifted from the earth's dark recesses to the light of industry, where their power will flow into new energy.

THE REPUBLICAN

Notes on Some Early Governors: IX

GOVERNOR OGLE PERSONIFIED TO THE LETTER THE MARYLAND IDEA OF A COLONIAL GENTLEMAN

SAMUEL OGLE PERSONIFIED THE IDEA OF A COLONIAL GENTLEMAN

By KATHERINE SCARBOROUGH

In The Baltimore Sunday Sun

In Samuel Ogle, whose intermittent administration of the affairs of Maryland covered the long period from December, 1731, to May, 1752, terminating with his death in office, Maryland acquired a Chief Executive who personified to the letter the Maryland idea of a Colonial gentleman.

Issuing commissions as Governor to this stalwart officer of cavalry in his British Majesty's service seems to have become something of a habit with the lord proprietary who named him first to succeed his sickly brother, Benedict Leonard Calvert, released him in 1733 to take over the Government in person when the boundary disputes with the Penns seemed to make his presence here imperative, reappointed him in 1735 for a period of seven years and, in 1747, intrusted him for the third time with the highest office he couid bestow.

During the interim between the administration of the somewhat nebulous Governor Hart and the arrival of Governor Ogle at Annapolis the Colonists had endured the rule first of Lord Baltimore's uncle, Captain Charles Calvert, and then of his brother, the inadequate Benedict Leonard, who found the Maryland planters generally to be "proud, petulant and ignorant." Financial depression at home and stratagems abroad had harassed them unmercifully and their expectation of benefits to come from the new Governor was anything but lively.

But Samuel Ogle was one of those rare indviduals who seem to be born at long intervals with a genuine talent for Government and a genius for living magnificently. In one of his earliest speeches to the Assembly he convinced the Maryland salons that he was "heartily concerned" for the condition of the country and succeeded in restoring, in some measure at least, the public confidence in the head of the Government. He encouraged the cultivation of other staples in addition to tobacco and encouraged the growth of manufactures which had begun to spring up here and there.

Governor Ogle, the Colonists soon discovered, had the ability to be firm without arrogance. He could be counted upon to take as much interest in the welfare of the province as in the revenues of the proprietary. He took himself seriously but not ostentatiously, worked as hard as he played and did both with gusto. Under his leadership the colony entered upon a gathering wave of prosperity which swelled throug successive decades until it finally was dashed to pieces on the rocks of Revolution.

By 1748 the population was estimated at 130,000. Iron furnaces sprang up and they were encouraged. Grants of land were made to those who undertook to erect flour mills in order to encourage the manufacture of flour for export. As early as 1742 copper works were in operation and although their opening was coincident with the administration of Governor Bladen, whose term intervened between two of Governor Ogle's, the launching of this industry was, in reality, due to the impetus imparted to Colonial enterprise by Governor Ogle. In order to encourage the proprietor the Assembly relieved all laborers employed at his works for seven years from the duty of working on public roads and bridges and from attending muster.

Free schools were established in every county by the end of Governor Ogle's regime and were supported by general taxation. Winemaking was attempted, with indifferent commercial success, to be sure, but still attempted. Wheat and Indian corn were exported in large quantities, but tobacco remained the great staple of the province. During the first year of Governor Ogle's administration it was made legal tender at the rate of one penny a pound, and by 1736 there were 130 ships traveling back and forth across the Atlantic engaged in transporting this commodity to Europe and in bringing back to the colony household staples as well as the luxuries which made the lives of the wealthy Maryland planters a glittering delight.

Excellent as were the ways of Governor Ogle as an administrator, however, it was as a sportsman that he shone so refulgently that most Marylanders credit him with being the leading spirit in organized racing in the colony. As a former cavalry officer it was natural for him to rejoice in the fine points of a good horse, but he went farther than that and extended his interest in the thoroughbred to the improvement of the entire "breed of fine horses" in the coiony through the importation of fine stallions.

Long before 1745 gentlemen had raced their horses in Maryland and had been willing to drop anything they happened to be doing in order to put a promising filly through its paces. There is in existence an almost priceless silver bowl, with a lovely patina, and the inscription, Annapolis Subscription Plate, 4 May, 1743, to the purchase of which Governor Ogle, although not then in office, possibly was a contributor and which undoubtedly was won by some unsung horse in a forgotten match, but it was on May 17, 1745, that the first announcement was recorded of a public meet at or near Annapolis and this is the date that most Marylanders accept as the beginning of organized horse racing in the colony.

The advertisement of this race, appearing in the Maryland Gazette, stated

> That on Thursday and Friday, the 30th and 31st Days of this Instant May, will be run at John Conner's in Anne Arundel county, the Sum of Ten Pounds Currency, the first day; and on the following day, will be run for at the same Place the sum of Five Pounds Currency: By any Horse, Mare or Gelding (Old Ranter and Limber Sides excepted); to carry 115 pounds, three heats the course Two Miles.

Of the horses entered in this race, or its results, nothing is recorded, but it is believed that the contestants were horses of considerable celebrity. That this race was the result of matches which had been introduced in the English fashion at Annapoiis by Governor Ogle there can be no question, but Governor Ogle himself could not have been present, as he was in England at the time with his young wife, who had been Ann Tasker and whose wooing by a man twenty-nine years older than herself had furnished one of the most celebrated romances of Colonial Maryland.

It was on his return from that sojourn abroad, however, that he brot over the celebrated thoroughbred, Spark, which had been presented to him by Lord Baltimore to whom the horse had come as a gift from Frederick, Prince of Wales (father of George III), who had revived the royal stud in England. His landing at Annapolis with his lady in March, 1747, about 10 o'elock in the evening, was a gala event in the provincial capital and must have been something to admire. Gentlemen in silks and velvet with lace ruffles at their wrists and rapiers at their sides, pressed close to the edge of the dock in order to be the first to greet him when he stepped ashore. Torches flared fitfully in the dark and in the background the faces of a throng of the townspeople in homespun reflected the glow. The town guns boomed in salute and their deep throated welcome was echoed by the roar of guns on sundry ships in the harbor.

* * *

It was a tremendous welcome that the Governor and his lady received on this occasion, but it is likely that the Governor was not too exhausted by it to be up betimes next morning in order to have a look at Spark and see how he did in his new quarters, or to show him off proudly during the day to a constant string of the Annapolis gentry who were eager to inspect the famous steed. Governor Ogle also imported the famous brood mare, Queen Mab. The blood of these two famous horses still runs in some of the finest horses in America, together with that of some of his other importations.

With the patronage of so distinguished a personage as Governor Ogle, the races at Annapolis automatically became the fashion and attracted sport-loving aristocrats from all parts of Maryland and Virginia as well. No horse might be entered by anyone unable to pass the social test. The usual subscription purse was one hundred guineas and the meets are said to have iasted a week, closing invariably with a ball at the Assembly Rooms. Each meet seemed more brilliant than the last and, the young George Washington came over from Mount Vernon especially to be present on these occasions, meticulousiy recording his winnings and his losses in his journal. Hallam and Henry's Dramatic Company usually managed to be on hand during the race week at Annapolis and Marlborough, and at times appeared at Chestertown during the races there, for tracks existed in almost every part of the state.

During his residence in the colony, Governor Ogle occupied, during part of the year, the house in Annapolis still associated with his name, but he spent every available moment in the country at his estate known as Belair in Prince George's county. This great tract originally contained 1,410 acres, first known as Catton, and was bought by the Governor and Benjamin Tasker, Sr., from the Rev. Jacob Henderson to whom it had been granted in 1719 under a special warrant of resurvey and by whom it was patented in 1721 under the name of Belair. Shortly after the joint purchase of the land Governor Ogle became the sole owner through the purchase of his future father-in-law's interest in the estate. To it he added through the purchase of contiguous tracts, so that, in all, he became lord of 2,177 acres.

It is a popular fallacy that Governor Ogle came into possession of Belair as a wedding gift to his girl bride from her father, but the facts are more prosaic. During the absence of the Governor and his family in England, while Bladen was Chief Executive in Maryland, the senior Tasker, at the request of his distinguished son-in-law, had built for him a two-story brick house on the estate. To it the Governor, after his return in 1747, added an L-shaped wing containing a kitchen and other offices for servants. This wing has been destroyed and in recent years the mansion has been flanked on either side by wings, conforming perfectly with the original architecture. It now is owned and occupied occasionally by William Woodward, of New York, himself a noted horseman.

Governor Ogle still was in middle age when he died at Annapolis in 1752. The inventory of his estate mentions more than twenty horses of various sorts which were sold, together with a parcel of his slaves and other live stock at public auction on his estate early during the following October.

After his death, his widow, then only 29, went to Belair to live, for the Governor, contrary to the general belief, did not own the house in which he lived at Annapolis. There she remained for two years until a suitable home could be procured for the rearing of her young son and two daughters all of whom were less than ten years of age when their father died. Her brother, Col. Benjamin Tasker, assumed charge of the administration of this vast estate, and after the departure of his young nephew Benjamin Ogle, at the age of 10, to schol in England, he made lavish improvements, adding orchards, vineyards and a park for deer, planting locusts and poplar avenues to the mansion and erecting a swarm of outbuildings.

At Belair, during Colonei Tasker's regime, the great Ogle tradition for blooded horses was carried on. Governor Ogie's successor in office was Benjamin Tasker, Sr., then president of the Council, who administered the Government until the arrival of the colorful Horatio Sharpe. Governor Sharpe's successor was Robert Eden, concerning whom much has been printed. He was the last of the Colonial Governors of Maryland.

Conserving Food Value in the Cooking of Vegetables

Pobably most cooks have their specialties, and some are proudest of their skill at cooking vegetables.

Of all the kinds of food, vegetables, more than any other, need scientific cooking. Some of their most important food values are easily lost in cooking, and this is less true of other kinds of foods. To avoid food losses so far as possible, different rules apply to the cooking of different kinds of vegetabies.

Baking in the skin is the ideal way, from the standpoint of food vaules, to cook potatoes, sweet potatoes and the squash, for example. Baking in a covered dish, a casserole, accomplishes the same purpose in vegetables that can be cooked without added water. Panning, or cooking in a covered pan on top of the stove, using little or no water, is another application of the same principle and can be used for a considerable variety of vegetables.

Steaming is the second best method from the standpoint of preserving food values. Many vegetables can be steamed.

Boiling, the commonest method, calls for special precautions to prevent loss of food value. Three important points to observe are these:

Cook vegetables only long enough to make them tender but leave them firm in texture.

Cook them in as little water as possible. Some, like spinach, in just the water that clings to the leaves after washing. Brussels sprouts and cauliflower, on the other hand, need water enough to cover.

Serve the cooking liquid, if possible, for it contains much of the mineral substances and some of the vitamins dissolved in cooking the vegetable. Gravies, sauces, soups and seasonings can be made with this cooking liquid, if it is not feasible to serve it with the vegetable itself.

These same rules apply also for conserving the flavor. For texture, short cooking is the thing. As to color, short cooking, in salted water and uncovered, will produce least change of color. Soda is often used for this purpose, but the bureau of Home Economics of the U. S. Department of Agriculture does not recommend this practice because it reduces the vitamin content and takes away some of the flavor of the vegetable.

To shorten the cooking time, have the water boiling when the vegetables are put into it, but boil gently after that. Removing the tough stems of leafy vegetables is another way to cut down the cooking time.

Cabbage is the vegetable most abused by over-cooking. Yet all its best qualities are saved and there is no objectionable odor if cabbage is cooked only 5 or 10 minutes instead of hours as some do it.

For other common and inexpensive summer vegetables, the bolling periods suggested by the bureau, for prepared vegetables are approximately as follows:

Beans, snap, cut in pieces, boil 20 to 30 minutes; beets, young, whole, boil 30 to 45 minutes; beets, greens, with stems, boil 15 to 20 minutes; without stems, 10 minutes; Brussels sprouts, whole, boil 15 to 20 minutes; cabbage, shredded, 5 to 10 minutes; cauliflower, separated, boil 10 to 15 minutes; collards, boil 20 minutes; corn on coh, boil 6 to 15 minutes; kale, boll 20 to 25 minutes; kohlrabi, pared,sliced, boil 25 to 30 minutes; okra, boil 10 to 20 minutes; peas, fresh shelled, boil 10 to 20 minutes; spinach, boil 10 minutes; summer squash, pared, sliced, boil 15 minutes; Swiss chard, boil 20 to 30 minuts; turnip greens, boil 20 to 30 minutes.

THE Streeters had been "out" a month, and by that I don't mean out of jail, but on the road, in the great out-of-doors, hitting the trail, or what you will in camp lingo.

To look at them, you would know they had been out for some time. A thick coating of dust hid the newness of duffle bags, suitcases, stove, umbrella tent, telescope cots, and collapsible table, all stowed on running boards, fenders, bumpers and either side of the hood.

The latter arrangement was very awkward for Mr. Streeter when putting in oil hut, as his wife said. It was one of these small inconveniences which one should not mind. She didn't.

Mrs. Streeter had been the instigator of the trip. She had had difficulty in persuading her husband to go. As for Darlenne, their daughter, it required all of their combined parental authority to get her to accompany them. And it was because of her that they were there.

"We must get Darry away from that plumber's boy," Mrs. Streeter had insisted. "I suggest that we take the car and go touring."

"Stopping at hotels, of course?"

"Nothing of the kind. It isn't being done as it used to be. We will put up at those lovely state parks and municipal camps you hear tell of. The Dunbars were out all last summer and they said they just rode all day long, looking forward to the camp at night, some of which had electric lights, caretakers, showers, and everything!"

So here they were on this warm August day doing a mean forty-five and hoping to reach a camp the man in the chain store where they had bought some groceries had told them about. "Somebody's camp grounds or other, it says on a sign. Don't know about the shower baths, but it's right on the highway and you can't possibly miss it."

However, darkness, unleavened by moon or stars, for the night was cloudy, had descended before the Streeters reached their destination; sure enough, there was the sign, on which, aided by the spotlight, they could at least make out the welcome words "camp grounds."

In the background, a dark hulk, as of a tent, loomed up, and a general trodden-down appearance of the level ground seemed to indicate that other campers had preceded them.

Within an hour, mother, father and daughter were wrapped in slumber. Darry's sleep, to be sure, was interwoven with pleasant dreams of Charley regarding whom absence had only seemed to make her heart grow fonder.

The sun had been up some time, when Mrs. Streeter awoke with a start. Then she nudged her husband, "Listen, Ed, am I dreaming or do I hear an awful lot of people outside?"

Ed turned over drowsily, roused up, and peeked through the tent flap. Then he sat up suddenly. "There are at least two hundred," he said, "sitting around and acting as if they were waiting."

"Waiting?" cried Mrs. Streeter, in a loud whisper, "waiting for what?"

"Well," groaned Mr. Streeter, "they look as if they were waiting for us to get up!"

"And that canvas thing in back we thought was a tent," broke in Darry, who had been doing some peeking on her own account, "looks like a statue waiting to be unveiled!"

Those storied Arabs, who folded their tents and silently stole away had nothing on the Streeters that morning. In utter stillness and with never a glance at one another, they crept into their clothes, packed up their equipment and climbed into their car.

Just as Ed put his foot on the starter, a portly woman rushed over to them and shook Mrs. Streeter's hand violently. "We do hope we didn't disturb you, but you know we're a club made up of his descendants and we've come to dedicate this statue on the anniversary of his birthday. If you would like to stay—"

But Mrs. Streeter declined her well-meant invitation kindly but firmly. Not until they were many miles away did she open her mouth again. Then, "Well, I would like to know whose descendants they were, but I don't suppose I ever shall, for never, in all my born days will I come back this way again."

"Well, I can tell you, Mamma," said Darry bitterly. "It was Joshua Putnam. While she was talking to you, I looked over at that sign we half read last night and it said, "Joshua Putnam Camp Grounds. Where Joshua Putnam made his headquarters in 1777." We weren't camped in what we think of as camp grounds. We were sleeping in a public park, and if you say another word against Charley, I shall tell everybody at home the whole thing. I just guess it isn't any more disgraceful to marry a plumber's son than to hold up an unveiling celebration while you get your clothes on!"

Next day, Charley received a telegram. "Dearest Charley, we are coming right home because Momma is sick of camping. She says no more camping for her. But lets you and I go camping on our wedding trip. It's all right if you go with the right party and camp before dark so you know where you're at. Love and kisses.

DARRY."

MT. LAKE PARK

The Receivership

It might be well to understand that no receiver has been appointed for the Mountain Lake Park Association, a Maryland corporation, or for the town of Mountain Lake Park, its Mayor and Council.

To clear up some misapprehension, the situation as we understand it, is that the Community of Mountain Lake Park, under the Annual Committee, ceased to exist, so far as municipal affairs were concerned, when the General Assembly of Maryland erected the town of Mountain Lake Park and provided it with the powers of government through its Mayor and Town Council.

When the books of the treasurer of the annual committee were audited, it was found that the community owed some debts and had a certain amount of taxes uncollected. The question of the power and authority of the annual committee to enforce the collection of these taxes having been raised, a suit was instituted in the Circuit Court of this county, resulting in the appointment of the receiver, whose principal duty is to collect these past due taxes and apply the proceeds to the liquidation of the debts of the community, contracted prior to the new charter. That is the situation, briefly, as we understand it.

School of Missions

We cannot let the opportunity pass to congratulate the officers and workers on the success of the School of Missions held at the Park this season. In the face of what looked like mountaineous difficulties, these tireless workers put their shoulders to the wheel, and depending almost solely on volunteer contributions to an almost depleted treasury, staged one of the most successful meetings ever held at the Park. Arthur Brisbane is fond of saying that "what can be envisioned, can be done." It was a big job well done.

Mail Messenger Bids

The postmaster suggests that we note in this column that sealed bids for carrying the U. S. Mails between the Mt. Lake Park postoffice and the B. & O. depot will be received by the postmaster up to 12 o'clock noon of August 7. The notice of bids require that all proposals must be inclosed in an envelope, sealed, marked "Proposals for Mail Messenger Service," with the name of the bidder, who must not be under 16 years of age, on the outside. Blanks may be had at the Mt. Lake Park postoffice.

N R A

What ever differences of opinion may exist, there seems to be a most general disposition to join wholeheartedly in the program proposed by the President and his advisers for increasing employment, increasing the buying power and generally lifting the Nation out of the dumps. This is as it should be. As a result N R A emblems are generally displayed in all places of business and customers and buyers are signing the pledges of cooperation.

Prof. James Cox and family are spending some time in the Park. Prof. Cox is superintendent of the public schools in Morgantown.

The Emmerson Gill Orchestra, which fills an engagement at the Mt. Lake Hotel August 4, is a really worth while broadcasting musical aggregation. It will pay to hear it.

Mrs. Charles E. Manley, Fairmont, is the guest of her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. McClellan Clayton.

Late arrivals at the Mt. Lake hotel include: Mrs. W. B. Francey, Toronto, O.; Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Forbs, Wheeling; Miss Bertha Bonnet, Baltimore; Mrs. George P. Frysinger, Washington, D. C.; Mr. and Mrs. N. P. Jordans, Cumberland; Mr. S. Gray Robinson, Pittsburgh; Mrs. Howard Adams, Perryopolis, Pa.; and Mr. J. G. Boyce, Washington, D. C.

Miss Frances Grimes again won her match at the Allegheny Mountain Tournament, at Cumberland, last week. In the finals she defeated Miss Ruth Lynn Colladay 6-2, 6-3.

Mrs. R. Winston Holt, who has been a guest of Mrs. Frank Morgan, returned to her home in Washington, D. C., Monday.

C. D. Barry, Fairmont, spent several days in the Park with Mrs. Barry, a guest of Allenhurst.

Dr. T. D. Richards is reported very seriously ill at the home of his son in Cumberland.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Hall, Rochester, N. Y., were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Rathbun.

Mrs. Leo Crane, Grafton, was the guest of Mrs. Alma Bell and family.

Miss Norma Welling is recovering from a recent illness.

Mrs. Richard Cale, Terra Alta, is a guest this week of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Comerford.

Mrs. Elmer Grosnell and son, after spending some time in Baltimore with Mr. Grosnell, have returned to Loch Lynn and are the guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Rathbun.

Miss Helen Leighton, Loch Lynn Heights, went to Glenville, West Va., on Sunday where she will visit her sister, Mrs. L. W. Stephenson, a few days before going on to Chicago to remain a short time with Mr. and Mrs. W. Day Mullinix and attend the World's Fair.

Mrs. Florence White and family returned to Clarksburg after a visit to Mrs. Lyle Weeks.

Mrs. George Gumbert, of Boise, Idaho, is the guest of Mrs. C. E. Hutchinson.

Announcements of the wedding of Mr. Harrold Bell and Miss Meltrude Montgomery, both of Cumberland, have been received at the Park. The ceremony took place at Romney, W. Va. Mr. Bell is a son of Mrs. Alma Bell, of Loch Lynn, and is widely and favorably known here.

Mrs. Walter Talbot and Miss Clara Wood, of Winchester, Va., and Mrs. Oscar Ricketts, Washington, D. C., are guests of Major and Mrs. Skyles.

RELIEF TO BE CONTINUED IN GARRETT THIS WINTER

State Relief Workers Explain Existing Conditions at Public Meeting Last Thursday

LARGE NUMBERS ATTEND

In spite of torrential rain, a large group greeted Richard F. Cleveland and Harry Greenstein, of Baltimore, in the public relief meeting Thursday evening at the High School auditorium, Oakland. More than half of those assembled were elients of the Garrett County Welfare Board who were eager to hear what the speakers from the State and Emergency Relief Headquarters might have to say.

A "family" dinner preceded the public meeting. Members of the Welfare Board, their wives, the clerical staff and the social aides were asked to meet Mr. Cleveland and Mr. Greenstein informally at the William-James Hotel. A round table discussion followed the dinner and was continued after the public meeting.

The Oakland Band, scheduled to play on the Court House terrace prior to the meeting, was forced to take shelter from the rain in the school building and entertain the crowd there. Mayor Grover C. Stemple made an address of welcome and spoke with pride of having been named for Mr. Cleveland's distinguished father.

Mr. Cleveland presented a comprehensive picture of Federal and State Relief organization. He stated that R. F. C. funds became exhausted July 1 and that since relief funds were being drawn from the Federal Emergency Relief Administration for the States and counties unable to meet their own relief needs. Mr. Cleveland stated that almost $500,000,000 had been set aside by the Federal Government for such purpose. This fund is being drawn upon so heavily by the forty-eight states that even such an amount would not meet existing needs unless states and counties of the states do their part in helping for themselves. The first half of this sum is supposed to be granted on a matching basis, Mr. Cleveland advised, or $1.00 for every $3.00 spent in relief measures. Maryland is benefiting through a bond issue voted by Baltimore City to care for this unemployment relief problem and though Garrett county has been unable to qualify for a portion of the Federal money granted the state, its relief needs have been carried by the state.

The most heartening information given by Mr. Cleveland was the fact that this relief started in April among the distressed people in the county would be continued through the winter months. A loud applause followed this statement.

Mr. Greenstein spoke of existing conditions in the other three western counties visited on the trip—Frederick, Washington and Allegany—but stated that because Garrett county lacked other industries than mining the situation appeared to be more acute here. He paid a tribute to the local board for its efficient set-up and stated that more than $53,000 had been disbursed through the county relief program since the first payroll, May 6, and that of this amount more than 90 per cent had gone for work relief and 5 per cent for direct relief.

Mr. Greenstein spoke with enthusiasm of the great scenic beauty of the county and expressed the hope that at some time in the near future the natural beauties of Garrett county might be publicized and the people of Maryland, as well as of other states, made to know of the county's natural beauty spots and the western portion of the state transformed into a mecca for beauty-loving people.

Mr. Charles W. Ream, chairman of the County Welfare Board, gave a report of the work accomplished in the county and its status to date. He stated the relief peak had been reached when 1,131 heads of families in need had been at work. Mr. Ream further stated that because some other employment had opened up, he was gratified to say the last payroll had contained the names of only 819 men. Mr. Ream also called attention to the fact that only 5 per cent of the total relief funds spent had been for overhead expenses and that this includes the social aides who are going regularly into the homes of the clients as friendly visitors. These aides who were recently named by the Relief Administrator, Miss Charlotte Wilcox, include Miss Ida V. Engle, near Grantsville; Mrs. Jeannette Statler, Friendsville; Miss Helen Townshend, Oakland; Mrs. Myrtle Sollars, Deer Park; Miss Catherine O'Donnell, Loch Lynn Heights; Miss Vera Ream, of Crellin, and Mrs. Wade H. Lohr, of Swanton. Miss Wilcox is meeting weekly with the social aides in the Bar Library, Court House, Oakland, for a short intensive training course.

Following the public relief meeting last Thursday evening, Mr. Ream, Chairman of the Welfare Board, stated that authority had been granted the county board to increase the hourly rate for work relief from 20 cents to 30 cents. This increased rate will become effective August 14.

Mrs. Grant Hospital Patient

Mrs. William W. Grant was operated upon Wednesday morning at Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, for a gall duct condition. The operation was entirely satisfactory and she will be able to be returned to her home in a short time.

MAYOR AND COUNCIL JOIN NRA AT REGULAR MEETING

Wages Are Increased and Working Hours of Laborers Reduced

The Mayor and Town Council of Oakland joined the NRA movement at its regular monthly meeting on Monday evening by increasing wages and reducing the working hours of town laborers. The wage inerease amounted to 5 cents on the hour, or an approximate 20 percent advance, according to Grover C. Stemple, mayor.

The city officials pledged cooperation to the project of holding the music festival of the Allegheny Tableland at Mt. Lake Park, but declared they would not be financially responsible. The declaration was made to a committee of Tableland members, C. N. McIntire, I. S. Middaugh, H. A. Loraditch, W. B. Brock, F. R. Utterback, and H. L. Bittner, who appeared before the council.

A permit was granted the school board to erect a cover over part of the playground at the Oakland Grammar school.

Street work on Seventh street and Fourth street has been completed, the street committee announced and work on Pennington street practically finished. Monthly bills amounting to approximately $1,200 were ordered paid.

TWO SCOUTS QUALIFY FOR EAGLE; MANY PASS TESTS

Total of 169 Equals Last Year's Record for the Same Period

Two scouts of Oakland Troop No. 1 qualified for the rank of Eagle scout when they completed all requirements for the Bird Study merit badge at camp on Tuesday afternoon. Two others will qualify for the Eagle rank when they have finished a camping requirement to build a fire without matches, either with flint and steel, or by rubbing sticks together.

Kenneth Lawton, patrol leader of the Crowe patrol, and John McIntire, scribe, are the two to qualify, while George Stuck and Hopwood Wooddell need their fire without matches before reaching the coveted rank. The rank of Eagle scout is conferred by the Court of Honor and the merit badges passed at camp are subject to approval by that organization.

Up until Tuesday evening 169 tests and merit badges had been passed by those in camp, equaling last year's record for activity for the same period. Those advancing in rank include Jack Treacy, William Glotfelty, Irvin Feld, Lawrence Dixon, Jr., Guy Hinebaugh, from a second class scout to a first class scout and Star scout; Howard Smouse from a first to Star; Charles Mason and Robert Lawton from a Star to Life scout. One test each day is the aim of each Scout in camp.

The troop will return from its annual encampment on Monday. Activities during the week have included an athletic meet, a dart tournament, a Scavengar hunt, speedball, volleyball and horseshoe games, mapmaking instruction from C. Milton Sincell, Bird Study instruction from Joseph E. Harned, vesper service by Rev. C. A. Shilke and daily instruction groups in various tests and merit badges by the assistants, James Lee, McClelland Dixon and Robert Stemple.

Rev. D. C. Trimble will have charge of the concluding campfire program on Sunday evening. Programs have been held nightly around the campfire.

Barn and Contents Destroyed Near Jennings Monday.

The large barn on the farm of Charles Meyers, at Manadier Ridge, near Jennings, was completely destroyed by fire Monday afternoon. All the summer's crops and two hogs were burned.

Mr. Meyers was hauling oats into the barn and was returning to the field for the last load when he looked back and saw the barn on fire. The origin of the blaze has not been determined.

The Grantsville fire department and neighbors rushed to the scene too late to save the barn but proteced the house not far away.

Attending 4-H Club Camp

Karlo Rush, Wilbur Fox, and Ralph Murphy, all of Friendsville, are attending the annual State Boys' and Girls' 4-H club camp at College Park this week, having left on Wednesday.

Miss Margaret K. Burtis, home demonstration agent, is also attending the meeting.

PLAY IN TENNIS TOURNEY AT PARK BEGINS MONDAY

Competition for Challenge Cups Promises Close Contests

Play in the Western Maryland Championship Tennis Tournament begins next Monday on the Woman's Civic Club courts at the Park, and will continue through the entire week, mornings at 10 and afternoons at 2:30.

The annual competition for the silver Challenge cups in men's and women's singles promises close contests. In addition to John O'Loughlin, Ran Shields, Margaret Carspecken, and Frances Grimes, former champions in these events, a number of expert players new to this section will be here to make the going for further laurels quite difficult.

The usual reception for the players will be held Monday evening at the Club house. The principal social event of the week comes on Wednesday evening when the tournament dance, with Whitey Whitener and his Highlanders supplying the orchestra music, will be held at the Mountain Lake hotel. All players and reserved seat patrons will be the guests of the Woman's Civic Clube for that evening. Others wishing to partieipate may secure tickets at $1 per couple.

This is the fourteenth annual tournament and is sanctioned by the United States Lawn Tennis Association.

Returns to Find House Had Been Used All Night

Returning from a three weeks' vacation in Frederick county, Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Bittle found that their home on Oak street had been entered during their absence and that there were evidences that the bedroom had been used, the kitchen used for a meal and that several rooms had been ransacked.

One of Mr. Bittle's suits was missing, as well as the coffee percolator and several small articles. Covers from the beds were piled in a heap and one of the sheets had been taken.

A passerby on Monday evening noticed a strange car in front of the house and a light in one of the bedrooms, but was not sure enough of the circumstances to give an alarm.

Entrance to the home was gained through a transom-like window in the kitchen.

Girl Scouts to Begin Annual Encampment Next Monday

Final preparations are being made by the Captain of the Girl Scouts and the Troop Committee for the annual summer encampment which will begin next Monday morning and continue for two weeks.

Classes will be held in stars, signaling, nature, first aid, girl scout laws, outdoor cookery, handicraft and swimming, with Mrs. Samuel Cole assisting in first aid and Miss Adeline Sincell in handicrafts. The camp will be in charge of Mrs. George Hanst, assisted by Miss Jane Seabright, of Wheeling.

Activities will include archery, tether ball, hikes, etc., and there will be evening vesper and camp fire programs throughout the two weeks. Approximately 25 plan to attend the camp.

Mountain Road Surveyed

A survey of the mountain road from Bloomington to the Kitzmiller-Deer Park road has recently been made by the Maryland State Roads Commission and repairs to the road will be started within two or three weeks, G. Clinton Uhl, chairman of the commission has stated. Mr. Uhl and L. T. Downey, the district road engineer, recently went over the road, finding that it needs repairs and they plan to improve it considerably.

A survey has also been made of about three miles of the Savage River road west of Bloomington, but Mr. Uhl stated that he was not able to say at this time what the commission will be able to do about it.

The commission is getting some new equipment for road work in Garrett county, Mr. Uhl also said.

To Start Beginner's Class in Oakland Boys' Band

A beginner's class in the Gilbert-Brown Boys' Band will be started Tuesday evening, September 5, and will continue throughout the winter, it has been announced.

All boys 12 years of age or upward are eligible to join the class and as they progress they will become members of the band.

SIXTY-THREE PASS FIRST INSPECTION OF POTATOES

Seventy-Five Applied for Certification—Number Is About Same as Last Year

POTATO CROP IS AVERAGE

That 63 of the 75 potato producers of the county who had applied for the certification of seed from the University of Maryland Extension Service had passed the first inspection was announced by John H. Carter, county agent. Twelve were disqualified on account of numerous diseases.

An insect known to be the leaf hopper was found to be very severe according to Dr. R. A. Jehle, plant pathologist, in charge of the inspection, and he stated that unless the vines were thoroughly sprayed the fields would have to be disqualified on the next inspection. Dr. Jehle and his assistant, John W. Heuberger, will be in the county for their second inspection during the week of August 14.

Although the number applying for certification decreased, the acreage has increased. Last year 60 out of 91 passed all inspections and the acreage was 117 3-4, with 65 acres disqualified.

This year 75 applied for inspection. Twelve were disqualified on the first inspection. One hundred thirty acres passed inspection and approximately 33 acres have already disqualified.

Disease control is important and must be practiced closely by the seed growers if they expect to produce certified seed that will meet market requirements, Mr. Carter stated. Mr. Carter has written to all applicants advising them of the disease found in this year's first inspection. In general the potato crop looks promising, he concluded.

PUREBRED RAM SHOW AND SALE SCHEDULED AUG. 26

Sheepmen Said to be More Enthusiastic This Year Than Last

The third annual purebred Ram Show and Sale will be held in Oakland Saturday, August 26, John H. Carter, county agent, has announced. Sheepmen are more enthusiastic than they have been for years, Mr. Carter stated, due to improvement in lamb and wool prices. Those in charge are expecting it to come up to the mark of former years as an outstanding livestock event here.

During the two previous years about 50 purebred rams have been exhibited and disposed of at the Oakland Show and Sale. These have improved the quality of market lambs produced and the amount and quality of wool produced in this section, according to Mr. Carter.

It was also said that wool clipped in flocks where good purebred rams have been used over a period of years has increased from an average of about 5 pounds per head to about 8 pounds per head. At present market prices, each ewe is returning about $1.00 more per year than formerly from wool alone.

The Show and Sale are scheduled for 1:30 p. m. the same place as last year.

Union League Sunrise Service

The Union League of Oakland will hold its annual sunrise service at Table Rock Inn on Sunday, August 13, at 6:45 o'clock. Dr. Dean C. Dutton will address the group on the topic "The Supreme Friendship." The public is cordially invited to attend. Cars will leave the Methodist church at 6:00 o'clock.

Automobile Driver Kills Horse, Injures Rider

Charged with driving an automobile while intoxicated and reckless driving, Albert Becket, of Accident, was fined $160 and costs Saturday at a hearing before Judge W. A. Gonder, Oakland. He was arrested by Corporal H. H. Haines, of the State Police.

According to Corporal Haines, Becket was returning from a picnic and struck a horse ridden by its owner, Clarence Beachy, a farmer, of Accident, injuring the farmer and killing the animal. After striking the horse, Becket traveled a distance of 75 feet up a steep hill where he crashed into a guard rail, the officer reported.

He appealed the case and was released under bond on Sunday from the Oakland jail.

HOMEMAKERS OF COUNTY PLAN PICNIC ON AUG. 23

Entertainment Will be in Charge of Mrs. Margaret Casteel

The annual County Homemakers' picnic will be held this year at LeMar's Inn, on the Sand Flat-Deer Park highway, on Wednesday, August 23, Miss Margaret K. Burtis, home demonstration agent, announced. All members of homemakers elubs thruout the county, their families and friends are invited.

There will be community singing, horseshoe pitching, and other recreation. Mrs. C. C. Beachy is chairman of the committee on general arrangements, with Mrs. Lawrence Brenneman, Bittinger; Mrs. G. W. Pritts, Vindex; Mrs. W. M. Frazee, Oakland; and Mrs. Baity Ridder, Sunnyside, members. The entertainment committee consists of Mrs. Margaret Casteel, chairman; Mrs. Homer Beachy, Accident; Mrs. C. A. Shilke, Oakland; Mrs. Gladys Weeks, Loch Lynn; Mrs. L. C. Hutson, Kitzmiller.

Miss Venia M. Keller, State home demonstration agent, may be present.

WESTERNPORT MINER ACCIDENTALLY KILLED

Floyd W. Groves, 28, Dies From Wounds in Head When Gun Discharges

Floyd W. Groves, aged 28, son of Mr. and Mrs. James S. Groves, Poplar street, Westernport, was accidently killed Saturday shortly past noon, when shot in the head with a bullet from a .22 calibre rifle in the hands of Foster Daniels, also of Westernport.

The accident occurred while the young men were hunting for groundhogs about a mile west of Frankville, Md., in Garrett county, six miles above Bloomington.

Authorities, including Deputy Sheriff Samuel Cole, State's Attorney W. W. Dawson, and Charles F. White, acting coroner, investigated the shooting and exhonorated Daniels, ruling that the shooting was accidental.

According to authorities, they learned Daniels and Groves left home early Saturday morning to hunt for groundhogs, and had met Junior Warnick, another youth of near Bloomington. Warnick was also hunting and was carrying the .22 rifle About noon the three young men stopped along the B. & O. tracks to eat their lunch at the place where the accident later occurred. After completing their meal, Warnick asked Daniels to hold the rifle while he walked down the tracks to get a drink of water. Daniels, holding the rifle, started to rise, when the hammer of the gun caught in a strap around his waist to which he attached his dog.

The gun was discharged, the bullet entering Groves' head near the temple, as he was seated on the track. Groves made no outcry and, it is believed, was instantly killed. His companions took the body to the office of Dr. P. E. Berry on a railroad motor car that was passing, and the physician pronounced the young man dead.

Groves had been employed at Piedmont as a coal miner by Martin Wilcox Coal company. Besides his parents he is survived by four brothers, Harvey Groves, Luke; Frederick Groves, Brownsville, Pa.; and Scott and Luther Groves, Westernport; and one sister, Mrs. Lena Otto, Swanton.

To Continue Lectures

Dean C. Dutton will continue his lectures at the Lutheran church this evening at 7:45 o'clock, and tomorrow morning at the Presbyterian church at 6:45.

Dean Dutton has been speaking morning and evening since Monday on topics covering current events and character studies.

K. of P. Committees Working on Labor Day Picnic

Committees for the Labor Day Picnic, to be held in Helbig's grove, Oakland, on Monday, September 4, are meeting twice each week in preparing for the various activities and arrangements.

Committees appointed since last week include, reception, Grover C. Stemple, L. M. Fraley and W. W. Dawson; purchasing, D. W. Walter, Ed. Kahl, and A. R. Martin. H. P. Stuck has been named in charge of the awarding of the automobile.

The J. A. Glaze Amusement company will furnish the Ferris Wheel and merry-go-round. Grand Lodge and Supreme lodge officers have been invited to attend the celebration.

COUNTY WHEAT GROWERS ARE TO RECEIVE $5,421

Will Be Distributed Under Agricultural Adjustment Act, According to County Agent

PLAN TO BE EXPLAINED

A total of $5,421.00 will be distributed to Garrett county wheat growers, under Agricultural Adjustment Act, it has been announced by John H. Carter, county agent. Two thirds of this amount will be distributed in September and the remainder next spring.

Plans for distributing this fund are being perfected by Mr. Carter and announcement will be made next week of a schedule for meetings to be held in various communities of the county to explain the plan whereby the county wheat growers may obtain their payments.

Briefly this plan provides that each wheat grower, who takes advantage of this opportunity, will receive 28 to 30 cents per bushel on 54 percent of his average production for the three crop years, 1930-31-32. In addition he has his entire crop of wheat to dispose of in any way he chooses. The amount to be received by this county is based on the amount of 30 cents per bushel on 54 percent of the 5-year average production in the county. The 5-year average production was 33,500 bushels. It is estimated that 54 percent of the nation's wheat crop is milled for domestic consumption, exclusive of one's own use and that of the Red Cross.

Under the plan each farmer is given an allotment based on his average production for 1930-31-32. His allotment will be 54 percent. On the allotment the farmer will receive 28 to 30 cents per bushel this year. Next year and the following year he will receive additional payments, the amount of which has not been determined, but will depend on the relation between the price of wheat and the price of other commodities.

In return for these payments, each farmer must agree to reduce the acreage seeded to wheat this fall and next fall by not more than 20 percent of the average acreage seeded for the three years 1930-31-32.

In other words, the farmer receives benefit payments for three years in return for reducing acreage for two years and in addition he has his wheat crop to dispose of as he sees fit.

There is a two-fold purpose in this plan. The Government hopes first to adjust production of wheat to demand for wheat and second, to increase the purchasing power of the farmer.

Announcement will be made next week of the time and place for a meeting in each community. At that time full details of this plan will be discussed and every wheat grower will be given an opportunity to participate in this plan.

The wheat production in Garrett county at present is far below the five year average, and in all probability will not mean a reduction at all but farmers will be paid for the amount they now produce.

F. L. Otto Taken to Cumberland for Federal Arraignment

Fred L. Otto, 60, New Germany, who was held here for attempting to exhort $1,000 from Dr. N. R. Davis, Grantsville, by means of a threatening letter, was transferred Saturday to the Allegany county jail at Cumberland.

He will be arraigned under a Federal charge of misuse of mails before United States Commissioner Thomas J. Anderson.

Following his arrest Otto admitted writing the letter.

Pastor Shilke Dislocates Shoulder in Fall From Apple Tree

Rev. Charles A. Shilke, pastor of St. Mark's Lutheran church of Oakland, suffered the dislocation of his left shoulder and a fractured rib on Monday morning when he fell from an apple tree at the home of Miss Bertie Cleveland on Seventh street.

Mr. Shilke fell a distance of about fifteen feet and is quite a sufferer as a result of the accident, the dislocation having been a serious one. It was necessary to etherize the patient while the dislocation was being reduced by the attending physician, Dr. McComas.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Member of Faculty, Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)

©, 1933, Western Newspaper Union.

Lesson for August 13

HANNAH

LESSON TEXT—I Samuel 1:9-22, 24-28; 2:1, 2.

GOLDEN TEXT—Favour is deceitful, and beauty is vain; but a woman that feareth the Lord, she shall be praised. Prov. 31:30.

PRIMARY TOPIC—God's Gift of Mothers.

JUNIOR TOPIC—An Honored Mother.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What We Owe to Our Mothers.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Devout Motherhood.

As indicated by the lesson committee, the lesson text practically covers chapters one and two of I Samuel. In order to get a full view of this unusual woman the salient features of these chapters should be made to stand out.

I. Hannah's Sore Trial (1:1-8).

Elkanah had two wives, in violation of God's law. God's primal thought for man was one wife only. Therefore, for Adam he made Eve. Hannah's sore trial grew out of jealousy which naturally springs up between two women, wives of one man. The violation of this law of God concerning marriage has always been attended with trouble. Since Hannah's name is mentioned first, we may legitimately infer that she was his first and lawful wife.

II. Hannah Prays for a Son (1:9-18).

She had the good sense to take her trouble to the Lord. Believers should do this even though the troubles result from sin.

1. Her bitterness of soul (v. 10). Though Elkanah loved her and sought to lighten her burden, he was unable to bring to her heart the needed solace. Only in God can help be found sufficient to stay the soul in time of great trial.

2. Her vow (v. 11). Hannah asked God for a son. In connection with her asking this gift from God, she vowed to give the child back to God. Samuel was therefore a Nazarite all the days of his life. Much can be expected of children born into the world under such circumstances.

3. Hannah misjudged by Eli, the priest (vv. 12-16). The priest observing the motion of her lips and not hearing the sound of her voice concluded that she was intoxicated, demanded that she put away wine. She defended herself against this vicious inference, assuring Eli that in bitterness of soul she was pouring out her heart to God in prayer.

Even good people may be too ready to impute evil motives to others. The devout Hannah must have been shocked and grieved that Eli should so unjustly accuse her. The Golden Rule should be applied in judging others.

4. Hannah blessed by Eli (vv. 17, 18). Her explanation satisfied Eli, who in turn pronounced a blessing upon her, joining in prayer that God would grant her petition.

III. Hannah Consecrates Samuel to the Lord (1:19-28).

1. Her prayer answered (vv. 19, 20). So definitely did she realize that God had answered her prayer that she named the child Samuel, which means "asked of God."

2. Samuel taken to Shiloh (vv. 20-24). Hannah refrained from going to the place of yearly sacrifice till Samuel was weaned.

3. Samuel lent or returned to the Lord (vv. 25-28). According to her vow, she took Samuel at an early age to the sanctuary and gave him over to the charge of Eli, the priest, to minister therein. It is a beautiful sight to see Samuel in his tender years ministering before the Lord. Godly mothers will train their children for God's service. It was, no doubt, a trying experience for Hannah to part with her child. She dedicated him unto the Lord to the end of his life.

IV. Hannah's Thanksgiving to God (chap. 2).

1. She rejoiced in the Lord (vv. 1-10). So really God had answered her prayer and so definitely had she consecrated Samuel to the sacred service, that she whole-heartedly rejoiced in that she could give up her child in the service of the Lord. She declared that none was so holy as the Lord and that there was none other like unto the Lord. She realized that the Lord was almighty and that the blessings which had come to her were from him.

2. Her love for Samuel (vv. 18, 19). This was expressed in the making with her own hands a coat for him and taking it to him from year to year as she went to Shiloh with her husband to worship the Lord.

The priestly blessing upon Hannah and Elkanah (vv. 20,21). The old priest highly prized the ministry of Samuel and expressed his appreciation by pronouncing a blessing upon his father and mother.

Faithful Prayer

Faithful prayer always implies correlative exertion. No man can ask, honestly and hopefully, to be delivered from temptation unless he has honestly and firmly determined to do the best he can to keep out of it.—John Ruskin.

Must Be Patient

We have only to be patient, to pray, to do his will, according to our present light and strength, and the growth of the soul will go on.

SCOOP'S COLUMN

Alder Street Obituary

We shall miss you, dear one, you who upheld many tired people o'er the years of the upbuilding of this town. You who had a part in the expansion of this village, you who shouldered the weight of many wooing couples as they meandered under your veil of darkness.

'Twill be hard to de without you, especially the people who now live within your portals. The town is completely broken up—in fact divided, now that you're gone. Oh, why was it you who had to go?

For in last week's Mt. Democrat, in ye local colyum, second item, it stated, "Alder street returned to Baltimore Sunday."

Various organizations met this week in response to the NRA, (no Republicans allowed) or if you don't like that one, (never Roosevelt again) and formed various codes.

Members of the quartets around town met and adopted this slogan, "We do our part."

The Gilbert-Brown Boys' Band and Crellin Band met and each signed a pledge to "Do our part."

All barbers and hair combers met and adopted the slogan, "We'll do our part and see that everybody else does."

The society of old and worn trouser users met and adopted the following, "We're sure to do our part."

All home talent actors met and adopted the slogan, "We do our part."

* * *

What it's really coming to is this. "I'll take my own part before somebody else gets it."

How Many Have Been Done?

Twenty years ago the Civic club asked people for suggestions for doing things around Oakland, and offered a prize. The object was to see what people of the town felt was most needed.

The following things were turned in:

Stop expectorating on pavements; enforce laws we now have namely the 12-mile speed limit for automobiles, the curfew for boys and girls, the keeping of cows, horses and chickens.

Clean Yough river of refuse; establish a garbage system; a public park with a drinking fountain in it.

Clean up Railroad street; purchase lot and donate it to some mill; keep streets sprinkled during dry weather; place drinking fountain in the public square to counteract the influence of the ten saloons; elevated walk from railroad to street; wiping out of saloons.

Transferal of hotel site from B. and O. to Oakland for purpose of erecting summer hotel.

Have mayor and council not tear up streets during summer months; employ a trained nurse by subscription; have policeman get rid of fiendish curs and worthless dogs that make nights hideous with their yelping; getting rid of unnecessary noise from B. and O. engines while passing thru town. "These shrill, prolonged and continuous shrieks are simply intolerable and nerve racking."

You really wouldn't mind if I'd quit for this week would you? I'm all NRA (not responsible anyway.)

HOYES

Hay harvesting is about completed and the oats harvest and threshing of wheat are now keeping the farmers quite busy.

Mrs. Asa Friend and son Hulert and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Custer spent last Saturday and Sunday at Cumberland with relatives.

The condition of Mrs. Horace DeWitt is greatly improved. Her granddaughter, Miss Irene Bond, of Baltimore, who is a graduate nurse and who has been here nursing her, will return to Baltimore this week.

Miss Zaidee Browning, of Oakland, was a guest of Miss Icie Friend at her home in this community Monday afternoon.

Miss Gertrude Rexrode, Deer Park, spent last week with Mrs. Webb DeWitt.

Mrs. J. Arthur DeWitt visited her sister, Miss Sudie Friend, Mountain Lake Park, several days last week.

Mrs. Robert Friend and little daughter are visiting relatives in Aurora, W. Va.

Mrs. Lou Moon, North Glade, is here spending two weeks with her sister, Mrs. W. A. Smith.

Dr. Stanton Collins, Uniontown, is vacationing at the home of D. O. DeWitt, in this community.

The people of Hoyes are greatly enthused over the proposed homecaming to be held August 20, it being the first like occasion that has been planned for this section.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Moon and little son, of Cumberland, spent a short while here with their uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Smith, Monday morning.

Mrs. Ruby Sweeney and sister Floretta, of Uniontown, Pa., are visiting in this community.

BITTINGER

Mrs. Mollie Mitchell, of Oakland, who died at her residence there on Thursday of last week, was a native of this section, having been born on what is known as the Cunningham farm, about two miles south of Bittinger. Her remains were brought to this village and laid to rest in the community cemetery last Sunday afternoon with a brief burial service conducted by the Rev. C. A. Shilke, of Oakland.

The annual Sunday school picnic, which was held here last Saturday, was quite well attended by people from all parts of the county, and the weather being ideal all seemed to enjoy the day. Those having charge are well pleased with the financial returns from the event and wish to thank the public for its liberal patronage.

Henry M. Bittinger and son Elbert, of Akron, Ohio, spent last week with friends and relatives in this community.

Park, the ten-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Tressler, who resides on the road between Bittinger and Accident, was thrown from a horse one evening last week and so seriously injured that it was necessary to remove him to Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, for treatment.

Last Saturday evening, while riding a farm horse along the public road near Grantsville, Clarence Beachy, residing near Jennings, was run down by an automobile. The horse was killed as a result and Mr. Beachy was painfully injured.

Mrs. George Yommer and daughter, Mrs. Harry Hoover, of near Jennings, visited friends and relatives here one afternoon last week.

Charles Ralston, of Frostburg, was in Bittinger last Friday arranging for the burial of his aunt, Mrs. Mollie Mitchell, late of Oakland.

Frederick M. Bittinger and family visited friends near Jennings last Sunday afternoon.

John Swauger, of near Jennings, passed through this village last Sunday.

Elmer Beachy, Paul Krouse and Claude Yoder, of near Grantsville, were business visitors here one evening last week.

E. E. Davis, a representative of a Cumberland newspaper, was among the strangers in this community last week.

The Mount Nebo baseball team came to Bittinger last Saturday and played a game of ball with the local team which resulted in a victory for the Bittinger team, the score being 14 to 9. Pitchers for Bittinger, Buckle and Beal, with Setzer catching. Bowers, Wengard and Miller pitched for Mt. Nebo with White catching.

On Sunday afternoon the Bittinger team met and defeated the Springs (Pa.) team in a game with a score of 5 to 1.

A lawn fete will be held on the grounds of the Lutheran church in Jennings next Saturday evening, August 12. All are cordially invited. Proceeds will go for the benefit of the church fund.

CHEVROLET leads the field
by the widest margin
in its history

CHEVROLET, AMERICA'S NUMBER 1 CAR—47.99%* of all low-priced cars sold
NUMBER 2 CAR—26.74%*
NUMBER 3 CAR—19.21%*
ALL OTHERS 5.06%

*Based on the latest retail registration figures from R. L. Polk & Company (all states for five full months). Since January first Chevrolet has sold in excess of 370,000 passenger cars and trucks.

People have come to expect Chevrolet to lead the world in automobile sales. But this year Chevrolet has done even more than that. According to the latest available figures, Chevrolet alone has sold almost as many cars this year as all the rest of the low-price field combined!

When a car looms above its field like that, there can't be any argument about it. It must be an all-round better buy. And that's exactly what Chevrolet offers you. Fisher bodies, with the new ventilation system and the strongest and quietest body construction of the day—solid steel over a sturdy hardwood frame.* A valve-in-head six engine, unapproached for economy . . . Cushion-Balanced to blot out vibration . . . full of snap and vigor—altogether the most efficient engine in the low-price field.

Then there's Syncro-Mesh with Silent Second, the Starterator, Simplified Free Wheeling, the Octane Selector, long, parallel-mounted springs—more advancements than we have space to describe. And Chevrolet prices are as low as $445. Don't guess—buy from the leader. Get a car that has been proved sound and dependable by more owners than any other automobile you can buy.

SHE MAKES MONEY BY TELEPHONE!

We know a farm woman who sells many things by telephone. In one season it is strawberries. At other times it is eggs, cream, dressed poultry. People pay her a premium to get things fresh from the farm. She says these telephone sales bring many additional dollars into the family purse.

Your telephone can help make your farming profitable. Yet the cost is only a few cents a day.

THURSDAY, AUGUST 10, 1933.

DIED.

MRS. MARY C. MITCHELL

Funeral services for Mrs. Mary C. Mitchell, aged 75 years, 9 months, and 17 days, who died at her home about 11 o'clock last Thursday morning, were held from the home on Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock Rev. C. A. Shilke, pastor of St. Mark's Lutheran church, officiating. Interment was at Bittinger.

The deceased was a native of the Bittinger section, having been born at Cheviot Dale, near that village, October 16, 1857, the daughter of the late William Kemble Cunningham and Eleanora Boyer Cunningham. She spent 26 years in Arkansas, returning to her native section in 1916, settling in Oakland.

Pallbearers were Martin Ralston, William Ralston, Charles Ralston, Jefferson Ralston, Thomas Swann and Albert Kahl, and flower bearers were Elizabeth Thompson, Geraldine Kahl, Kathleen Ralston and Miss McCulley.

Relatives attending the funeral from out of town ineluded Miss Ruth McRobie, Washington, D. C., Mrs. Thomas Hendershot, Morgantown, W. Va.; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Swann, Bloomington; Mrs. Jefferson Thompson, Miss Elizabeth Thompson and Miss McCulley, near Homer City, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. Martin Ralston and Miss Kathleen Ralston, Frostburg.

MRS. SARAH A. MASON

Funeral services for Mrs. Sarah A. Mason, who died last Thursday morning at her home on Third street, were held from the home Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock, Rev. Archibald Moore and Rev. C. A. Shilke officiating. Interment was in Oakland cemetery.

Pallbearers were Jesse J. Ashby, Jr., H. W. Kahl, William King, George Little, Oscar Turney and A. G. Ross.

The deceased was aged 82 years, 10 months, and 7 days. Surviving are her husband, Alex. C. Mason; one son, Wade H. Mason, of Oakland; two brothers, Oscar Friend, Deer Park; and Dolliver Friend, Clarksburg, W. Va. She was born near Deer Park, the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Samuel W. Friend, and resided in Garrett county except for a few years in Florida. She had been a resident of Oakland for thirty-nine years.

MRS. GEORGIANNA C. DURST

Funeral services for Mrs. Georgianna Custer Durst, 78, who died Tuesday afternoon, August 1, after a short illness, were held Saturday afternoon from the New Germany Reformed church. Rev. Mr. Wright, pastor, officiated.

The deceased was the wife of William H. Durst and had spent many years in the Grantsville community. She was a daughter of the late Samuel and Lydia Custer. Her husband, a daughter, Mrs. Sydney Setzer, with whom she resided; two sons, Floyd and Lee, both of Grantsville; three sisters, Mrs. Joel Kinsinger, Casselman; Mrs. Lewis Durst, Jennings; and Mrs. Edmund Humberson, of St. Paul, Pa., and four grandchildren survive.

Burial was in the New Germany cemetery.

MT. LAKE PARK

At the base of the east slope of Carr's Knoll there is a dense patch of Joe-Pye weed and from a short distance the massed bloom against a background of green shrubbery, flanked by the brownish-purple flowers of the tall iron weed give an effect worthy of a formal garden. Many of the wild flowers and weeds of this region respond readily to cultivation when transplanted to favorable locations in soil similar to that to which they are accustomed. Frequently the results are very gratifying. For instance, there is nothing more showy than the common Culver's root, when properly cultivated, with its long, slender white or pale lavender spikes 7 or 8 inches long. The plant sometimes attains a heigth of 6 or 7 feet.

The heavy downpour of rain a few days ago played hob with the east tennis court located along the boardwalk. The ditch along the eastern edge overflowed, washing away the top coating of clay and depositing gravel and small sticks on the court. However, the town authorities have deepened the ditch to a depth that will in future carry the surplus water and the courts have again been put in first class condition by the tennis committee, ready for the annual tournament to be held from the 14th to 19th inst.

Meyersdale played Mountain Lake on the courts here last Monday afternoon and the former team walked away with the honors. When we say "walked away" we don't mean maybe either.

That good, snappy music is appreciated is attested by the capacity crowd at the Mountain Lake Hotel last Saturday evening when the Emerson Gill orchestra appeared. It was the largest turnout at any similar event. The orchestra stopped here again overnight Tuesday enroute to Cumberland.

The chicken supper tonight from 5:30 to 8:30 at the M. E. church is sure to be well attended.

A warning has been issued from Washington to people who gather their own mushrooms to look twice before they eat. The harmful type seems to be unusually abundant this year because of frequent showers. The lepiota morgani, the poisonous variety, is found this year over a large area from Canada south, and closely resembles the edible variety, lepiota procera. These names may not mean a thing to us, but we should be cautious, for it is said a good big feed of the morgani fellow makes for a dangerous experiment. Even if it does not kill it makes you right smart siek.

"It seems like a shame," a merchant remarked this morning that, "the season's activities here are about over, when in fact, they should be at their height."

True, isn't it? While conditions this year have not been such as to hold out much hope for a very successful season, yet the fact is that for several years there has not been a great deal going on at the Park.

The Presbyterian meeting a few years ago was fine, but take it as a whole, the season is all too short.

When we consider the accessibility of Mountain Lake Park to large centers of population, both by rail and motor, when we consider that we have good water, telegraph and telephone service, good hotel and boarding house facilities, good general stores, the best doctors, dentists and drug stores within easy reach, cottages for all practical purposes and buildings in which to hold conventions, plus a wonderful climate, we wonder if we are doing all in our power to corral the convention and tourist business? A few live wires can not turn the triek. It will take mass cooperative action.

William L. Branch, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. William L. Branch, Huntington, W. Va., who are summer residents of the Park, has received notice that on account of his excellent scholastic standing, he being one of three honor students, that he has been awarded a scholarship in the Law School of Duke University.

Mrs. George Sincell and son James, who have been here for some weeks, have returned to their home in Pittsburgh.

Miss Jane Hill, of Morgantown, who has been a guest of Miss Joanna Grimes, has returned to her home.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By FRANK P. LITSCHERT

The next international meeting to interest the American people, now that the London economic conference is out of the way, is the reconvening of the Geneva Disarmament Conference next October. At present, according to most political experts who have studied the question, there is not much more chance this conference will succeed than there was for the London Economic Conference. There is the same old story of conflictingng interests on the part of European nations.

Wayne Charles, of York, Pennsylvania, is a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Tower, on Oak street.

Card of Thanks

We wish to take this means of expressing our sincere thanks and appreciation to the neighbors and our friends for the kindness and assistance extended during the illness and after the death of our wife and mother. We also wish to thank those who sent floral tributes, those who offered cars for the funeral, to the ministers for their consoling messages and the church choir for the beautiful anthems.

ALWAYS
Sympathy
One of the questions most frequently asked us by our friends is this:
"How can you be constantly in the homes of bereaved families without becoming callous and 'case hardened'? How do you keep your sympathies alive?"
We always answer that in each individual case there is a new opportunity to be of real service in time of need. We consider our knowledge and experience as a charge given to us for the benefit of others.

UNTIL WE LEARNED BETTER

Until we learned better, we used to mix wood and steel in our car bodies and wheels.

It was the best way to make bodies—then. But the state of the art has advanced.

Of course, it is more expensive to make an all-steel body than to make a wooden frame and nail steel panels on to it. The better way involves an initial expenditure of several millions of dollars for new dies, which renders a change very costly. Cars, especially large expensive cars which are produced in small volume, cannot afford this, because the dies cost as much for one car as for a million. That alone explains why all-steel bodies are not used in all cars.

But our basic policy from the beginning is to make a good car better, regardless of cost.

For example, when we discarded wood-steel body construction, it was not because we lacked wood. We still have some thousands of acres of the best hard wood in America. Economy would urge us to use up the wood first, and then adopt the better all-steel body. But we decided that quality was more important than expense.

We weighed the reasons, for and against, before we made the change.

We could see only one reason for retaining a mixed wood-and-steel body—nailing the metal on, instead of welding an all-steel body into a strong one-piece whole. That reason was, it would be cheaper—for us.

Our reasons for adopting an all-steel body were these: A wood-steel body is not much stronger structurally than its wooden frame. In all American climates, wood construction weakens with age. Every used car lot gives evidence of this. Rain seeps in between joints and the wood decays. A car may have a metal surface, and yet not be of steel construction. Under extreme shock or stress the steel body remains intact—dented perhaps, but not crushed.

Steel does not need wood for strength or protection. Wood is fine for furniture, but not for the high speed vehicles of 1933.

In the Ford body there are no joints to squeak, no seams to crack or leak.

The all-steel body is more expensive—to us, but not to you.

By all odds, then, steel bodies seem preferable.

Wheels also have become all-steel. No one argues that an electrically welded one-piece steel wheel, such as the Ford wheel, needs to be "strengthened" by adding wood to it.

The one-piece all-steel body is the strongest, safest, quietest, most durable body made. That is our only reason for making them.

Miss Sincell was accompanied by Mrs. Lilie Lantz, of Aurora; Mrs. George Hanst, Mrs. B. H. Sincell and Miss Maroney, of Oakland. The Oakland ladies returned home Monday evening.

About forty-five persons enjoyed a picnic at Charles Reams' reservation on Deep Creek Lake Sunday afternoon. The affair was sponsored by the local Rotary Club, many members of which organization were unable to be present owing to other engagements, but those who were there and enjoyed the hospitality of Mr. Ream were well repaid by spending a most pleasant outing. The lunch or really dinner spread family style on the tables provided had been prepared by the members of the picnic party.

Thomas O. Preston, of Frostburg, in company with Walter W. Wittig, also of Frostburg, and who is the owner of one of the beauty spots on Deep Creek Lake, were in Oakland yesterday. Mr. Preston was engaged here near half a century ago as a stone mason, working with the late James Johnson at that business. He remembers all of the old residents and business men of the town who were active then and found several residents whom he knew. Mr. Preson is said to be the oldest volunteer fireman in Maryland, and although blind for several years he is interested in the activities of the firemen and those whom he remembers as such.

Card of Thanks

I desire in this manner to extend my sincere thanks to those who in any manner aided during the illness and after the death and at the funeral of the late Mrs. Mary C. Mitchell.

FARMERS ORGANIZING TO JOIN IN WHEAT CONTROL

Initial Steps Will Be Taken at Series of Community Meetings Throughout the County

TO CONTROL PRODUCTION

Farmers of Garrett county are organizing to take their part in the national program for controlled wheat production, and to qualify for their share of the adjustment payments which will be distributed to those who participate in the plan, according to John H. Carter, Garrett County agricultural agent.

Facts of the Government program to bring wheat production in line with effective demand are being placed before America's 1,200,000 wheat growers.. Preliminary campaign committees of farmers themselves are being appointed all over the country. These committees will help explain the details of the plan and will arrange for meetings at which the county wheat production control associations will be organized.

The extension service of the Federal government and the various States are working with wheat growers, aiding in the educational program and in the organization work. The local administration, however, is to be almost entirely up to growers' groups, similar to the Garrett County Wheat Production Control Association which will be organized here.

Controlled production, in line with the demand for wheat, is the basic aim of the whole program. Officials of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration expect the plan to reduce surpluses and restore and maintain a falr buying power standard for wheat.

First steps in the formal organization of the control association will be taken at a series of local community organizations meetings which will be called by the county organization committee, Mr. Carter stated.

Farmers who sign the application blanks for participating in the wheat production control program will vote for representatives on the board of directors of the county association, and will also complete organization of their permanent local community units.

Paul Nystrom, extension economist, University of Maryland, has been appointed district agent for Western Maryland, and conferred with Mr. Carter on Tuesday.

Garrett County Boy Is Winner In Contest

Harold W. Green, age 10, of Swanton, was one of the winners in the World's Fair contest sponsored by Montgomery Ward and Company. One hundred boys and girls of the United States and their parents will receive a week's outing in Chicago as a result of the contest.

Harold and his mother, Mrs. Arthur Green, left for Chicago Saturday evening on the Capitol Limited. They will stop over at Pittsburgh on their return to visit friends and relatives.

Fined For Drunken Driving

Lloyd McRobie, Oakland, who was arrested by Officer Thomas Griffin of the State Police and charged him with driving a motor vehicle while intoxicated, reckless driving, having no license and failing to stop after an accident, was given a hearing Wednesday before Magistrate W. A. Gonder.

McRobie was fined $10 and costs for having no license and $100 and costs for driving whlle intoxicated. The other charges were dismissed. Upon failure to pay the fines he was sent to jail for 60 days on the intoxication charge and 10 days on the charge of having no license, both sentencess to run concurrently.

The arrest of McRobie was made after he collided with a car operated by Lee Junkins, of Vindex, on the highway near Oakland.

Regular band practice will be held on Tuesday evening, August 15.

Bayard Still Undefeated in Baseball League

Bayard still retains the lead in the Mountain State Baseball League, having won nine games and lost none. Crellin is in second place. The C. C. C. camp nine came from the cellar to fourth place by taking a double header from Oakland Sunday and a game from Bloomington on Wednesday.

Games next Sunday include C. C. C. camp at Crellin; Sunnyside at Oakland; Bayard at Friendsville; Bloomington at Vindex.

Willison-Miller Marriage To Be Solemnized August 26th.

Invitations have been issued by Mr. and Mrs. James Willison, Second street, Oakland, to the marriage of their daughter, Miss Mary Virginia, and Mr. Robert Orville Miller, of Newark, N. J.

The wedding will take place August 26 at 4:30 o'clock and will be followed by a reception at the home of the bride's parents.

Miss Willlson's sister, Mrs. H. C. Keister, Jr., of New York City, will be matron of honor and the bride's only attendant. Mr. George Nidder, Greenwich, Conn., will be Mr. Miller's best man. The ushers will be John I. Turnbull, Baltimore; H. C. Keister, New York; Donald Martens, Mt. Vernon, N. Y., and James Willison, of St. Louis, brother of the bride-elect.

Suffers Cut of Artery in Leg

While assisting in gathering wood for the camp fire at the Oakland Boy Scout camp last evening, Howard "Boone" Smouse, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Smouse, of Oakland, cut an artery in his right leg, just above his ankle. He was given first aid by McClelland Dixon and brought to Oakland, where the wound was dressed by Dr. McComas. He returned to camp immediately afterward.

Complimentary Event

Bluefield (W. V.) Times: Members of the Ladies' Bible class Westminster Presbyterian church entertained with a charming party Friday afternoon, 4 to 5, at the home of Mrs. J. R. Laird, 2013 Washington street, in honor of the birthday of Mrs. Clara Creutzburg, affectionately known as "Aunt Dolly." Delightful refreshments were served during the afternoon, Mrs. Laird being ably assisted by Mrs. J. J. Fagg.

Held on Statutory Charge

Charles A. Hunt, William E. Paff, and Stanley Baker, members of the Potomac Manor conservation camps, are lodged in the county jail on charges of a statutory offense against a 13-year old girl, Lorraine Wilson, of Kitzmiller.

They are being held without bail and will be given a preliminary hearing within the next few days. Conviction in a case of this kind carries a death penalty.

Notes From Garrett County Camp Near Cambridge

The Civilian Conservation corps camp No. 1318 is located on the U. S. Game refuge at Blackwater, a small settlement about 10 miles southeast of Cambridge, Dorchester county. Many of the 200 boys hail from Oakland and nearby towns in Garrett county and is virtually a Garrett county camp.

Since arriving here we have discovered that Garrett county is a wonderful place in which to live. We have had a lot of fun in camp including chopping trees, digging ditches and playing baseball. We will play the camp at Elkridge on Friday, August 11.

An Oaklander once said he saw a mosquito as large as a humming bird. Down here they are so large that when two get in our tent at one time they fly off with the tent.

Those breaking into the limelight thus far seem to be Woodrow Sines, nicknamed Columbus because he can discover pretty girls; George Washington Reall for his fame as a "Reall" cook; Ralph Welch for his fame as a minstrel; Paul Moore as a carpenter; Russell Shanks for his personal contacts with yellow-jackets; Clarence Morley for his post-card writing, and Earl Norwood, Harper and Ralph Welch for their boxing ability.

Byard P. Frantz, of Red Star, W. Va., was a business caller at The Republican office Monday. Mr. Frantz is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Frantz, and other relatives, in Deer Park, this week.

The chicken and waffle supper which was to have been served by the women of St. Mark's Lutheran church on Tuesday evening of this week, has been postponed until Tuesday, August 29, when the patronage of the general public is solicited.

Mr. George Butt, of near Clarksburg, recently discharged from a hospital in that city after having been treated for serious injuries suffered in a mine accident, is spending this week with Mrs. Butt visiting relatives and friends in the county and town.

Misses Monica, Esther and Dartest Maroney, Now York, are visiting relatives here, having been accompanied by John Maroney from Washington, D. C., who has returned to that city. Gilmor Simms, who had been here for several weeks, returned with him.

The annual lawn fete given by the Ladies' Guild of St. Matthew's Episcopal church of Oakland, will be held this afternoon and evening at the Methodist Episcopal Parish House, corner Fourth and Oak streets, instead of on the lawn at the rectory, this change being made owing to the state of the weather.

A party honoring her birthday was given Miss Adaline Stuck at her home on Second street Tuesday evening. Those present included Misses Clara Bell Hamill, Sara King, Helen Giessman, Betty Broadwater, Messrs. Edward Hinebaugh, Waller Hoye, Donald Stemple, Elvin Iman, Robert Hoffman and the honor guest.

Miss Adeline Sincell went to Jackson's Mill, West Va., Monday morning where she will be engaged this week as an instructor in art at the Farm Women's Camp which gathered there this week for instruction in home decoration and home arts. Miss Sincell was accompanied by Mrs. Lilie Lantz, of Aurora; Mrs. George Hanst, Mrs. B. H. Sincell and Miss Maroney, of Oakland. The Oakland ladies returned home Monday evening.

About forty-five persons enjoyed a picnic at Charles Reams' reservation on Deep Creek Lake Sunday afternoon. The affair was sponsored by the local Rotary Club, many members of which organization were unable to be present owing to other engagements, but those who were there and enjoyed the hospitality of Mr. Ream were well repaid by spending a most pleasant outing. The lunch or really dinner spread family style on the tables provided had been prepared by the members of the picnic party.

Thomas O. Preston, of Frostburg, in company with Walter W. Wittig, also of Frostburg, and who is the owner of one of the beauty spots on Deep Creek Lake, were in Oakland yesterday. Mr. Preston was engaged here near half a century ago as a stone mason, working with the late James Johnson at that business. He remembers all of the old residents and business men of the town who were active then and found several residents whom he knew. Mr. Preson is said to be the oldest volunteer fireman in Maryland, and although blind for several years he is interested in the activities of the firemen and those whom he remembers as such.

Card of Thanks

I desire in this manner to extend my sincere thanks to those who in any manner aided during the illness and after the death and at the funeral of the late Mrs. Mary C. Mitchell.

(Miss) RUTH M'ROBIE.

FARMERS ORGANIZING TO JOIN IN WHEAT CONTROL

Initial Steps Will Be Taken at Series of Community Meetings Throughout the County

TO CONTROL PRODUCTION

Farmers of Garrett county are organizing to take their part in the national program for controlled wheat production, and to qualify for their share of the adjustment payments which will be distributed to those who participate in the plan, according to John H. Carter, Garrett County agricultural agent.

Facts of the Government program to bring wheat production in line with effective demand are being placed before America's 1,200,000 wheat growers.. Preliminary campaign committees of farmers themselves are being appointed all over the country. These committees will help explain the details of the plan and will arrange for meetings at which the county wheat production control associations will be organized.

The extension service of the Federal government and the various States are working with wheat growers, aiding in the educational program and in the organization work. The local administration, however, is to be almost entirely up to growers' groups, similar to the Garrett County Wheat Production Control Association which will be organized here.

Controlled production, in line with the demand for wheat, is the basic aim of the whole program. Officials of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration expect the plan to reduce surpluses and restore and maintain a fair buying power standard for wheat.

First steps in the formal organization of the control association will be taken at a series of local community organizations meetings which will be called by the county organization committee, Mr. Carter stated.

Farmers who sign the application blanks for participating in the wheat production control program will vote for representatives on the board of directors of the county association, and will also complete organization of their permanent local community units.

Paul Nystrom, extension economist, University of Maryland, has been appointed district agent for Western Maryland, and conferred with Mr. Carter on Tuesday.

Garrett County Boy Is Winner In Contest

Harold W. Green, age 10, of Swanton, was one of the winners in the World's Fair contest sponsored by Montgomery Ward and Company. One hundred boys and girls of the United States and their parents will receive a week's outing in Chicago as a result of the contest.

Harold and his mother, Mrs. Arthur Green, left for Chicago Saturday evening on the Capitol Limited. They will stop over at Pittsburgh on their return to visit friends and relatives.

Fined For Drunken Driving

Lloyd McRobie, Oakland, who was arrested by Officer Thomas Griffin of the State Police and charged him with driving a motor vehicle while intoxicated, reckless driving, having no license and failing to stop after an accident, was given a hearing Wednesday before Magistrate W. A. Gonder.

McRobie was fined $10 and costs for having no license and $100 and costs for driving while intoxicated. The other charges were dismissed. Upon failure to pay the fines he was sent to jail for 60 days on the intoxication charge and 10 days on the charge of having no license, both sentencess to run concurrently.

The arrest of McRobie was made after he collided with a car operated by Lee Junkins, of Vindex, on the highway near Oakland.

Regular band practice will he held on Tuesday evening, August 15.

Bayard Still Undefeated in Baseball League

Bayard still retains the lead in the Mountain State Baseball League, having won nine games and lost none. Crellin is in second place. The C. C. C. camp nine came from the cellar to fourth place by taking a double header from Oakland Sunday and a game from Bloomington on Wednesday.

Games next Sunday include C. C. C. camp at Crellin; Sunnyside at Oakland; Bayard at Friendsville; Bloomington at Vindex.

Standing of the League

Teams	W	L	Pct.
Bayard	9	0	1000
Crellin	7	2	777

Willison-Miller Marriage To Be Solemnized August 26th.

Invitations have been issued by Mr. and Mrs. James Willison, Second street, Oakland, to the marriage of their daughter, Miss Mary Virginia, and Mr. Robert Orville Miller, of Newark, N. J.

The wedding will take place August 26 at 4:30 o'clock and will be followed by a reception at the home of the bride's parents.

Miss Willison's sister, Mrs. H. C. Keister, Jr., of New York City, will be matron of honor and the bride's only attendant. Mr. George Nidder, Greenwich, Conn., will be Mr. Miller's best man. The ushers will be John I. Turnbull, Baltimore; H. C. Keister, New York; Donald Martens, Mt. Vernon, N. Y., and James Willison, of St. Louis, brother of the bride-elect.

Suffers Cut of Artery in Leg

While assisting in gathering wood for the camp fire at the Oakland Boy Scout camp last evening, Howard "Boone" Smouse, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Smouse, of Oakland, cut an artery in his right leg, just above his ankle. He was given first aid by McClelland Dixon and brought to Oakland, where the wound was dressed by Dr. McComas. He returned to camp immediately afterward.

Complimentary Event

Bluefield (W. V.) Times: Members of the Ladies' Bible class Westminster Presbyterian church entertained with a charming party Friday afternoon, 4 to 5, at the home of Mrs. J. R. Laird, 2013 Washington street, in honor of the birthday of Mrs. Clara Creutzburg, affectionately known as "Aunt Dolly." Delightful refreshments were served during the afternoon, Mrs. Laird being ably assisted by Mrs. J. J. Fagg.

Held on Statutory Charge

Charles A. Hunt, William E. Paff, and Stanley Baker, members of the Potomac Manor conservation camps, are lodged in the county jail on charges of a statutory offense against a 13-year old girl, Lorraine Wilson, of Kitzmiller.

They are being held without hail and will be given a preliminary hearing within the next few days. Conviction in a case of this kind carries a death penalty.

Notes From Garrett County Camp Near Cambridge

The Civilian Conservation corps camp No. 1318 is located on the U. S. Game refuge at Blackwater, a small settlement about 10 miles southeast of Cambridge, Dorchester county. Many of the 200 boys hail from Oakland and nearby towns in Garrett county and is virtually a Garrett county camp.

Since arriving here we have discovered that Garrett county is a wonderful place in which to live. We have had a lot of fun in camp including chopping trees, digging ditches and playing baseball. We will play the camp at Elkridge on Friday, August 11.

An Oaklander once said he saw a mosquito as large as a humming bird. Down here they are so large that when two get in our tent at one time they fly off with the tent.

Those breaking into the limelight thus far seem to be Woodrow Sines, nicknamed Columbus because he can discover pretty girls; George Washington Reall for his fame as a "Reall" cook; Ralph Welch for his fame as a minstrel; Paul Moore as a carpenter; Russell Shanks for his personal contacts with yellow-jackets; Clarence Morley for his post-eard writing, and Earl Norwood, Harper and Ralph Welch for their boxing ability.

GRANTSVILLE

COMMUNITY CLUB PICNIC

One of the most enjoyable picnics in the history of the Grantsville Community Club was that held at Meadow Mountain Inn, several miles east of Grantsville, last Wednesday. The Mars Hill Club joined in the outing and each member brought a friend, making a total of about fifty present. The weather was ideal and the lunch which was provided by the members was delicious. After dinner, all joined in songs, games and contests.

MRS. MILLER ENTERTAINS

Mrs. Henry P. Miller entertained the Missionary Society of the Lutheran Church at the regular meeting of the organization on last Tuesday evening. Mrs. Floyd C. Diehl led an interesting program. Refreshments were served and were greatly enjoyed by the members in attendance.

ALLIED ARTS CLUB

A meeting of the young ladies of Grantsville was held in the Holmes-Wallace studios Friday evening for the purpose of organizing an Allied Arts Club. Miss Iva Klotz was elected secretary of the organization to serve for the first three months. The group sang "La Marseillaise" in French as an appropriate introduction to a talk on Home Life in France by Miss Ruth Keller, who recently returned from Europe. This talk was very interesting and was also educational.

Meetings of the club will be held each Friday evening at the studio.

SHAKESPEARE CLUB

The Shakespeare Club held its first meeting of this season at the Holmes-Wallace studios on Monday evening, August 7, with an attendance of five members and three visitors. The entire comedy of "A Mid-Summer Night's Dream" was read and discussed with great enjoyment.

SCHOLARSHIP AWARDED

Miss Mary Margaret Blocher, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. V. L. Blocher, and a graduate of the Grantsville High School, class of 1933, has been awarded the scholarship in the Maryland Institute of Art and Design, Baltimore.

APPENDICITIS OPERATION PERFORMED

Pref. Harley Spoerlein, teacher in the local school, underwent an operation for appendicitis at the Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, Tuesday.

BENEFIT DANCE

The Grantsville Tennis Club will sponsor a benefit dance to be held in the National Hotal Wednesday evening, August 16, from 9 to 1 o'clock. Music will be furnished by Paul Diveley's orchestra, Meyersdale, Pa.

BIRTHDAY DINNER

Mrs. Fred. Livengood entertained at dinner in honor of her niece, Miss Mary Beavans' birthday, Sunday at noon. A delicious three-course dinner was served. Other guests were Mrs. Mary Ellinger, Misses Julia and Virginia Ellinger, Ruth Brenneman, Capt. Mulroy, Mr. A. R. Hyatt and Attorney Charles I. Bevans.

HORSE SHOE PITCHING CONTEST

On last Saturday an interesting horse shoe pitching contest took place on the grounds of Fred. Livengood between Mr. A. R. Hyatt, of Baltimore, who learned the fine points of the game back in the days when officials and business men tested their skill daily in the rear of the Baltimore Court House, and James Beachy, champion of the ten year class of Grantsville for the stakes of five bars of chocolate and two dozen bananas against one bag of Beauty Grown pears.

The youngster forced his more experienced opponent to play a steady and consistent game to win. Although Mr. Hyatt won the first two games by the close scores of 18 to 21 and 19 to 21, the junior player was by no means discouraged. Immediately after the completion of the games he challenged the winner to a return match, which was accepted by Mr. Hyatt.

Mr. Hyatt stated he will build a field at his home in Baltimore to improve his game, satisfied that Master Jimmie was not in his best form Saturday. Both players will go in training at once and promised to be in the pink of condition for the next set of games, as negotiations are progressing to have the stakes of a more material value and to be posted forty-eight hours prior to the games.

It is expected that a large delegation of the old-time fans of the game will accompany Mr. Hyatt from Baltimore to witness the contest.

Your reporter hopes Mr. Hyatt will enjoy the pears.

PERSONAL MENTION AND MINOR NEWS

Mrs. Ruth S. Smouse and son Billy, of Cumberland, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Fay Miller in Grantsville.

Misses Helen Folk and Viola Broadwater, who have been attending the Johns Hopkins University this summer, returned to their homes here on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Williams and daughter, of St. Leonards, Md., are visiting Mrs. Williams' parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Miller.

Miss Mary Bevans and Mr. Charles I. Bevans, of Washington, D. C., spent the past week with their mother, Mrs. Marshall Beachy, and family.

Rev. J. M. Rearick, a former pastor of the local Lutheran church, now residing in Mifflin county, Pa., visited friends here last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Noah Bittinger and Henry Bittinger, Akron, Ohio., have been visiting friends in this community in recent days.

Misses Cornelia Ross and Grace Augustine, Addison, Pa., were guests of Mrs. Olen Yoder, Wednesday.

Rev. A. C. Bell bas returned here after attending the School of Missions and Theological Institute recently held at Mountain Lake Park.

Mrs. Ward Compton, Salisbury, Pa., spent Saturday here with Mr. and Mrs. Fay Miller.

Messrs. G. W. Diefenbach and Charles Bevans spent Sunday afternoon and Monday on a Mark Twain hiking expedition. They visited the New Germany and Savage River C. C. C. camps, went to Deer Park via the 17-Mile Grade, visited the Oakland Boy Scout camp and came home by way of Accident.

Misses Helen Miller and Anna Durst, student nurses at the University of Maryland, Baltimore, are visiting their parents here.

The early Governors of Maryland—X

SHARPE'S VIRTUES NEGLECTED
BECAUSE OF A KING'S CARELESS PHRASE

by

BETA KAESSMAN

ONE of Maryland's ablest men has suffered greatly at the hands of historians—not by direct censure so much as by neglect and "damning with faint praise." In Horatio Sharpe, Governor of Maryland during the trying days of the French and Indian War, the colony had a man of wisdom, far-sightedness, force and (rare quality!) balance. These attributes are unconsciously betrayed in his voluminous correspondence and further emphasized by events. Yet historians, in giving measure to this man, are usually content to quote George II, who knew almost nothing of Sharpe's ability. This quotation carries us somewhat ahead in our story, but as it is familiar to many Marylanders and students of history, we should begin to revise our estimate of Horatio Sharpe by plucking out by its roots the old erroneous, worn-out mot. This is the story of its origin.

AT THE TIME of Sharpe's appointment as Governor of Maryland those in authority in England were coming to realize the necessity for a definite program of defense against the French and Indians in America. Although only 34 years of age, Sharpe already had a creditable military career behind him. By the end of the first year of his Governorship relations between the French and English had grown so tense that the King felt it necessary to appoint some one as commander-in-chief of all the military forces in America. Sharpe was chosen for this honor but it was only a temporary measure. Three months later, only a few days after Sharpe had received word of his commission, King George appointed General Braddock to succeed him. Braddock's appointment, therefore, could have been no reflection on Sharpe's activities as commander-in-chief. Yet, when some of Sharpe's friends urged King George to reappoint him, stressing his honesty, his majesty replied, "A little less honesty and a little more ability might, upon the present occasion, better serve our turn."

THIS IS the baneful tag which has labeled Horatio Sharpe in the annals of Colonial America. Yet, in reviewing the events that followed the appointment of Sharpe's successor, one wonders whether the tragedy now known as "Braddock's defeat" would have occurred had Maryland's Governor been directing the advance against the French at Fort Duquesne. His keen appraisal of the situation on the frontier at that time and his own program of operations lead us to think that he would have proceeded far differently and with evident chances of success.

A close study of Sharpe's governorship and his activities against the enemy prove him one of the strongest governors of Colonial times and a great contributory factor in the winning of the French and Indian War.

ON AUGUST 10, 1753, Annapolis was all excitement, festivity and eager curiosity, for Horatio Sharpe had arrived that day to take up his duties as Governor. The colony had been without a Governor since the death of Samuel Ogle in 1751. During the interim Ogle's father-in-law, Benjamin Tasker, president of the Council, had acted as Governor.

It was a crucial time for the American colonies. The French had extended their forts southward and were engaging in marauding expeditions, threatening the frontiers of Pennsylvania, Maryland and Virginia. Governor Dinwiddie, alarmed by the situation, had begun to take steps toward strengthening the Virginia frontier, and had advised the Lords of Trade of the apparent designs of the French. It was a fortunate choice on the part of George II to place a soldier at the head of a colony so exposed to the enemy as was Maryland. Governor Sharpe had received his commission as captain in Brigadier-General Powlett's regiment of marines in 1715 and had already seen colonial service as lieutenant-colonel of foot in the West Indies. He was born at Hull, Yorkshire, in 1718 and was one of a large and distingaished family.

Hardly had Sharpe entered upon his duties as Governor when he received a communication from Governor Dinwiddie bearing upon the serious problem of French encroachments. Also, the Lords of Trade, responding to Dinwiddie's appeal for help, had addressed letters to all the Colonial Governors urging them to provide a general plan of defense and to send representatives to a conference with the Indians of the Six Nations. The Secretary of State likewise advised them to work together and keep each other advised of any threatened invasions.

The worst fears of Dinwiddie were soon confirmed. Washington, who had been sent west was met by the French and forced to give up his hastily constructed defense so aptly named "Fort Necessity." The young officer hastened to Governor Dinwiddie at Williamsburg, sending couriers to the Governors of Maryland and Pennsylvania with his hastily penned message that all was far from well along the frontier. Sharpe had sensed this acute danger from his first days of office and now the time for action had come. Straightforward, he addressed the Assembly:

> In this Emergency the Hopes and Expectations of our Neighbors whom in Duty, Honour and Interest we are Engaged to Support and Defend are fixed upon us for assistance; and What must the World think of our Conduct or What Calamities may We not expect, If from an unseasonable parsimony We boldly look on while they are Cut to Pieces. The Boundless Ambition of the Common Enemy and Cruel Rage of their Savage allies now upon our Borders flushed with victory Indespensably require a Vigorous and immediate Exertion of all Powers to check their Progress.

THE LOWER HOUSE immediately responded by voting £6,000 for the defense of the frontier, but there was a "catch" to it! Among the funds to be used for this purpose were certain fees which Lord Baltimore had instructed Sharpe to hold unincumbered for him. Sharpe felt his responsibility to the Proprietor, but he also felt that in such an extreme emergency it would be highly expedient to let the bill go through in order that the frontier might be defended without delay. The Upper House (or Council) then passed the bill and Governor Sharpe signed it.

Although at this time Sharpe was giving much of his thought and energy to the problem of providing defense against the French and Indians, he was guiding the internal affairs of the Colony with a clear eye and great vigor.

The boundary controversy between Maryland and Pennsylvania was then at fever pitch. Immediately upon taking office, Sharpe had summoned a general conference on this matter and his first official letter as Governor, addressed to Cæcilius Calvert, Lord Baltimore's secretary, is almost wholly given over to the boundary question. Frederick Calvert had raised an objection to the boundary decree of 1750 and this led to an opening up of the old controversy. During Sharpe's entire administration of fifteen years the matter consumed a great part of his attention, and it was largely due to his diligence that Maryland fared as well as she did. The appointment of Mason and Dixon to make the final survey occurred during Sharpe's Governorship and he personally attended most of the conferences of the committee.

SHARPE was also concerned about the "wearing out" of the lands by continued planting of tobacco, and suggested restraining tenants to planting only a certain number of acres in tobacco the last three years before the expiration of their leases. Had this been followed out there would have been less abandoned acreage in Maryland and the Maryland tobacco market would have received some stabilizing influence. At that time the Maryland tobacco market was glutted with poor tobacco, and had it not been for fear of French and Indians to the west there would have been a great exodus of Maryland planters into the Ohio country.

HE WAS OFTEN THE SUBJECT OF ROMANTIC CONJECTURE

GOVERNOR SHARPE was likewise very much aware of Baltimore's possibilities as a port. Only nine months after his arrival in Maryland he wrote to Lord Baltimore:

> I have taken an Opportunity since my arrival of visiting Baltimore which indeed has the Appearance of the most increasing Town in the Province, tho it scarcely answered the Opinion I had conceived of It: hardly as yet rivaling Annapolis in number of Building or Inhabitants; its Situation as to Pleasantness Air and Prospect Is Inferior to that of Annapolis, but if one considers it with respect to Trade, the extensive Country beyond it leaves not room for Comparison; were a Few Gentlemen of fortune to settle there & encourage the Trade it might soon become a flourishing place but while few beside the Germans (who are in general Masters of small Fortunes) build and inhabit there I apprehend it cannot make any considerable Figure.

Sharpe, during his fifteen years of Governorship, saw Baltimore become one of the foremost ports of the Colonies, his prophecy more than fulfilled.

IN JULY, 1754, George II issued to Maryland's Governor the comaission to take "command of the Forces that shall he raised on this part of the Continent to protect his Majesty's Dominions from the Encroachments and Devastations of his presumptuous enemies." The vessel bearing news of this comaission was carried off her course by a storm, requiring twelve weeks for the passage and the commission was not received until October.

Sharpe at once communicated with the Governors of the various Colonies, made a tour of the defenses and estimated the strength of his actual and prospective forces. The only full-fledged frontier defense in the middle Colonies was the one in process of erection at Will's Creek, later to become Fort Cumberland. No better brief survey of the situation in the Colonies can be had than Sharpe's letter to Sir Thomas Robinson, then Secretary of State, acknowledging the receipt of his Majesty's commission.

ONLY ONE DAY before he wrote the letter Sir Thomas Robinson had written to Sharpe advising him that a large complement of English troops would soon be transported to America, to be preceded by a deputy quartermaster-general (with whom he was to cooperate) and shortly thereafter by a commander-in-chief.

Sharpe was, therefore, hardly aware of his commission before the appointment of a successor was contemplated. However, due to the slowness of the mails, Sharpe did not receive Sir Thomas' letter until the following January. It was what Sharpe accomplished in the interim, when preparations were being made for taking care of the English troops, that showed of what mettle this man was made.

SHARPE FOUND considerable disorder and lack of organization at all points, especially at Fort Cumberland. He had to combine his duties as commander-in-chief with that of quartermaster-general, for it seemed that little thought had been given to the provisioning of troops. Sharpe's ability in this kind of planning amounted almost to genius; no detail was overlooked, it appears. Writing to Lord Albemarle of the conditions he found at Fort Cumberland, he contrasted them with the preparations which the French had made at Fort Duquesne, where they had laid in provisions for the whole winter. At Fort Cumberland he found "no provisions as yet procured" and as the season was advanced, it was difficult to purchase and collect sufficient supplies, nor had Governor Dinwiddie appointed commissaries for this important duty. "Mortars, Field Pieces or Cannon we had none except four small ones of the Latter which I purchased out of a Ship."

THE FORCES which Sharpe had to plan with were pitifully meager and undisciplined. There were three independent companies so poor that when later reviewed by Braddock's quartermaster-general forty men were discharged from one company as unfit for duty. "The Remains of the Virginia forces," Sharpe wrote some time later, amounted to about 130 dissolute and ragged & for want of Pay mutinous: the Maryland Company was at

Killed In Automobile Accident

Christian Swartzentruber, a native of this community, and a son of Lewis J. Swartzentruber and the late Mrs. Swartzentruber, former residents of this community, was killed instantly when a truck which he was driving on the highway between Milford, Del., and Philadelphia, Pa., was in collision with another machine. A second man was killed in the same accident and the truck being driven by Mr. Swartzentruber was burned. He was aged 29 years and is survived by his wife, his father, who resides at Goshen, Ind.; his brothers, Milton, Ell and Ernest and a sister, Miss Sadie, all of Greenwood, and by a number of other relatives, among them being Daniel L. Swartzentruber and family, of the Gortner community, the funeral being attended on Monday by the following relatives from this section: Harvey and Jacob Swartzentruber, Roy Lichty and Daniel L. THEY WOULD NOT DEIGN TO RANK WITH THE COLONIALS that time incompleat & undisciplined, but I may at least say they were not inferiour to any of the Rest. The Officers who were honoured with his Majesty's Commissions would not deign to rank with those who served under those of his Majesty's Governors; Vain were my Attempts to persuade them to agree, tho I proposed the same Scheme which is now come with a Sanction from home." It was this quarrel over rank that caused Washington to retire angrily from military service.

WHEN, early in January, Sharpe received the letter advising him of the appointment of a successer he took a most praiseworthy attitude, utilizing all of his resources to prepare for the reception of the English troops. Hastening to Fort Cumberland, he began his preparations. One week later he was joined by Sir John St. Clair, deputy quartermaster-general, who had just arrived from England. Together Sharpe and St. Clair obtained all information available concerning the country through which the forces were to pass.

WHEN GENERAL BRADDOCK, the new commander-in-chief, arrived in Virginia, the Maryland Assembly was in session and Sharpe was thereby prevented from attending him in person for some days. Braddoek invited the Colonial Governors to an early council at which Sharpe was a prominent figure. In the meantime, Sharpe communicated with Braddock, reporting to him on the general situation in North America, repeating that he deemed it inadvisable to drive the French from their encroachments on English territory without first cutting off communication between Canada and the French forts on Lake Erie. This was sound strategy, as proved by subsequent events. At this time, however the English military authorities, for some reason, were consumed with eagerness to have Fort Duquesne captured.

SHARPE'S ROLE from now on, as he saw it, was to cooperate to the utmost with his successor. Writing to his brother he says, "No Punctilio shall prevent by obeying any Orders he shall be pleased to signify in the least consistent with the Station that I now bear." Far different was this attitude from George Washington's. That young soldier was still on his plantation, holding aloof from affairs military, unreconciled to the general order which reduced him from rank of colonel to that of captain.

It is reasonable to conjecture that Sharpe had a most direct influence upon Washington's career at this juncture. There is no doubt that he was much impressed with the latter's abilities, and at every opportunity he urged them to resume his military career. Just who was instrumental in bringing Washington back to the fold at this time is not disclosed by any records yet brought to light, but there is little doubt that it was one of four: Governor Dinwiddie, Major Carlyle (at whose home Braddock stayed immediately after his arrival), Governor Sharpe and Colonel Fitzhugh (a close friend of Washington). And of the four, Sharpe had both the best opportunity and the greatest desire to intercede with the future commander of the Continental armies.

BRADDOCK'S DEFEAT was a stunning blow to the English Colonies. After it, Sharpe hastened to Fort Cumberland. On arriving he learned that Colonel Dunbar, next in command to Braddock, was planning to quit Fort Cumberland and march to Philadelphia with the remains of the two regiments and the independent companies. "This last account," he wrote, "had more alarmed our back Inhabitants than the General's Defeat," for they felt that the enemy, learning of their defenseless position, would swoop in upon them. Many Colonists were planning to desert their plantations and move eastward, but Sharpe encouraged and persuaded them to remain by promising to maintain a garrison at Fort Cumberland and ordering the construction of several small forts in exposed parts of the frontier. These forts were garrisoned by Maryland volunteers. As to paying for this, Sharpe said, "The Expense of this I shall be enabled to defray by the subscription that has been made here for such purposes and out of the same Fund I shall support Captain Dagworthy's Company that was with the General (Braddock)." However, the Governor was often to reach into his own pocket to defray certain of the expenses.

WHEN SHARPE LEFT Fort Cumberland order prevailed and the people felt assured of protection in some measure at least. He returned to Annapolis to carry on the affairs of state.

Braddock was succeeded as commander-in-chief by William Shirley, Governor of Massachusetts. The new commander decided to call a council in New York similar to that held by Braddock at Alexandria, to decide on a program of operations. The Council met and agreed upon a plan of operation, approving early attacks on Fort Frontenac and Niagara. But before this could be carried out Shirley was succeeded by Loudon, who seemed bent on condemning all of Shirley's proposals.

WITH THE FALL of Louisburg and Frontenac, the final and successful advance against Fort Duquesne was made. General Forbes, mortally ill, led the southern forces against the fort. Sharpe meanwhile remained at Fort Frederick (near the present town of Hancock) with his troops of volunteer Marylanders. These men were receiving no pay and provisions were scarce. Writing to St. Clair, Sharpe said, "It is well Captain Dagworthy and the rest of our officers taught their men to live without victuals last summer, otherwise, they might not have found it so easy a matter to keep them together six months without pay in the winter."

Forbes, though dying, pushed through to success, and on November 23, 1758, the French departed from Fort Duquesne never to return.

WITH MILITARY ACTIVITIES now confined almost wholly in the north, Sharpe for the first time could attend to affairs of state with little interruption. His relations with Lord Baltimore and Secretary Calvert were always of the best. The latter, writing to Sharpe of an audience he had been granted with George III, reported that his Majesty bad asked his opinion of the Governor of Maryland and that he had replied, "Tbat of a person brave and resolute and of real honesty and in the due execution and administration of Government, very adroit and all Deserving."

Although Horatio Sharpe remained a bachelor, his life was far from lonely. He had much personal charm, he was a polished gentleman and a genial and gracious host, entertaining both at Government House, Annapolis, and at Whitehall, his own lovely country place north of the Severn, which, not so long ago, the Maryland chapter of the American Institute of Architects selected as most typical of the surviving Maryland Colonial homes. It is quite probable that this bachelor Governor was many times the central figure of romantic conjecture, but, according to legend, he fell in love once only, and that with Mary Ogle, daughter of his immediate predecessor in office.

AT THE TIME of Sharpe's arrival in Maryland Mary was still a child. At the close of the French and Indian war she had become an attractive young lady, and the Governor, then 37, had lost his heart. But it was his young secretary, John Ridout, who was the successful suitor. If it is true that Sharpe loved Mary Ogle, the situation resulted in no estrangement. All continued in the closest friendship, the Governor advancing Ridout on all occasions that arose. In 1760, at the time the engagement of Mary Ogle and John Ridout was announced, Sharpe wrote to Lord Baltimore recommending his secretary to a seat in the Council. Baltimore made the appointment, much to the gratification of the kindly Sharpe, who recognized John Ridout's outstanding ability.

Sharpe spent as much time as possihle at Whitehall, where he engaged actively in agricultural pursuits. He endeavored to keep abreast of the newest methods of planting. On the grounds of Whitehall were many flowers and shrubs which he had obtained from England and France; there were bulbs from Holland; and out in the fields browsed his flock of famous South Devon sheep.

ANOTHER OF HIS HOBBIES was horse breeding and racing. Governor Ogle, Sharpe's predecessor, had been a patron of the turf, encouraging the importation and breeding of fine horses in the province. Horatio Sharpe carried on the tradition with genuine zeal and devotion. Two of the earliest famous stallions in Maryland were Spark, imported by Governor Ogle, and Othello, brought in by Governor Sharpe.

In 1769 word came that Robert Eden was to be named Governor of Maryland. Eden had married Lord Baltimore's sister, and Lord Baltimore in his letter to Sharpe was frank enough to say that "nothing but Fraternal Affection could have made me wish to have altered" the situation.

On Eden's arrival, Sharpe retired to Whitehall where, it seems, he enjoyed relief from the duties of state. He was fond of entertaining, he had a large circle of friends who were genuinely fond of him, and the distant rumbling of discord between England and the American Colonies were not so disquieting to one no longer hampered with the problems of office.

HOWEVER, Sharpe was stanchly loyal to the Crown and he was grieved by the approaching break. But regardless of this, Maryland was his home and it is doubtful if he would have left his beloved Whitehall had not family affairs caused him to return to England in July, 1773. Sailing with him on the ship Richmond were Mrs. Ogle, mother of Mary Ogle Ridout, and young Samuel, the Ridouts' eldest son. This boy was to enter Harrow, and Sharpe in the years that followed gave his personal attention to the youth's scholastic career.

At first Sharpe planned to return to Maryland, but the long years of the war stretched out and he finally reconciled himself to remaining in England. However, there are many chance remarks in letters which show where his heart lay. He bad cuttings and seeds from his plants at Whitehall sent to him for transplanting in his English garden at Hampstead. His numerous letters to friends, his eagerness to have them visit him, his real joy when they did and his questions about things in Maryland, all indicate that he longed to return. He waited eagerly for John Ridout's long-promised visit to England. Letters there had been in plenty, but Sharpe, now past 70, longed to see his closest friend. In 1789 Ridout set sail but a leak developed in the vessel and it was forced to return to port where it was abandoned as unseaworthy. The following year Sharpe died, having reached the age of 72.

IN REVIEWING the life of Horatio Sharpe, one is left with the conviction that here is a man who mastered the art of living gracefully. He knew how to adapt himself, it seemed, to all circumstances. He pursued his duties with diligence and good sense; he was a charming companion and excellent host. Above all, he was modest; had he been less so, his name might have had a different place in American history. It is to be hoped that more will be brought to light about this remarkable man who, with the possible exception of Leonard Calvert, brought more intelligent interest and devotion to bear on the province than any other Colonial Governor of Maryland.

HERE'S ONE GOOD WAY TO END AGONY OF NEURITIS

Newark Man Knows How and Loses 10 Pounds

"Gentlemen: I used Kruschen Salts to try and get rid of Neuritis from which I had suffered for one year in my left shoulder and arm. . I took a little of the salts in the morning, sometimes in my coffee, other times in water. I would also occasionally take a dose in water at night before retiring. For 3 months I used the salts and while I lost 10 pounds in weight, the pain in my shoulder HAS ENTIRELY DISAPPEARED. During the time I was taking the salts I received no other medical treatment so I am fully convinced the Kruschen Salts did the trick."—C. K. Murray, Newark, N. J.

Take one-half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water every morning—a jar lasts 4 weeks—get it at Gonder's Pharmacy or any druggist in the world—costs but a trifle.—Advertisement aug. 10 oct. 19.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

Ruth Baird vs. Edward Baird. No. 3159 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to procure a divorce a vinculo matrimonii by the plaintiff from the defendant.

The Bill states:

That the plaintiff was married to the defendant on April 14th, 1919, at Cumberland, Maryland; that the plaintiff is and has been for more than two years last past a resident of Garrett County, Maryland; that the conduct of the plaintiff towards the said defendant has always been kind, affectionate and above reproach; that the said defendant abandoned and deserted the plaintiff without any just cause or reason and has declared his intention of no longer living with her; that said abandonment and desertion has continued uninterrupedly for more than three years and is deliberate and final, and the separation of the parties beyond any reasonable hope or expectation of reconciliation; that there were two children born of said marriage, viz.: John Edward Baird and Martha Jane Baird, both of whom are still alive and are infants and who have lived with your oratrix since the said abandonment and desertion; that the said defendant is not a resident of the State of Maryland, and does not reside therein, his last known address being Morgantown, West Virginia.

The bill prays for a divorce a vinculo matrimonii of the plaintiff from the defendant; custody and guardianship of the said infant children and for general relief and an Order of Publication against the defendant.

It is therefore, this 5th day of August, 1933, ordered by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland, in Equity, that the plaintiff, by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in Garrett County, Maryland, once in each of four successive weeks before the 8th day of September, 1933, giving notice to the said absent defendant of the object and suhstanee of this bill, warning him to appear in this Court, in person or by solicitor, on or before the 23rd day of September, 1933, to show cause, if any he has, why a decree should not be passed as prayed.

GARRETT AND ALLEGANY RELIEF WORKERS TO MEET

Joint Gathering Will Be Held Saturday When Common Difficulties Will Be Discussed

COMPARISON IS MADE

A joint meeting of the welfare workers of Allegany and Garrett counties is being planned for Saturday afternoon. Miss Charlotte Wilcox, Relief Administrator of the Garrett County Welfare Board, has invited Miss Mildred Hilberg, Administrator in the adjoining county to bring her field staff and address the group at the meeting which will assemble at "Gnome Woods," the home of Mrs. E. Z. Tower on Deep Creek Lake. An informal discussion will follow of the common problems in the two counties.

A comparison of Allegany and Garrett counties shows a population in 1930 of 78,294 in the former county, against 19,266 in the latter with an area, however, of 442 square miles in Allegany county and 662 in Garrett Garrett county ranks 23rd place in the state according to density of population, showing the smallest number of people to the square mile of any of the 23 counties. Such isolation of its people added to the mountainous make-up of the county produces social problems comparable to the adjoining county with its much larger population.

Following the registration of relief clients in the two counties when relief funds were first made available last April, a group of family visitors were appointed by the Relief Boards to go regularly into the homes of those on relief lists. Such contacts are known to be increasingly vital to effective and constructive administration of relief funds in an attempt to correct existing social problems. In many homes, the problem is found to be solely one of unemployment. If this condition, however, is allowed to exist over a long period of time, it is found that other deviations from the normal home life are the direct results of insufficient income; the breaking down of the workers' spidit and morale; undernourishment of children, and adults as well; unfavorable housing and living standards and other social evils. Physical and mental ills are detected early by regular visits in the homes of the clients of the social agencies and the need of clothing and shoes noted particularly at this season for school children; expectant mothers are referred to physicians and the visiting nurses and physicians' corrections of children such as tonsils and eyes undertaken. Family visitors often find that counsel and assistance in planning is needed among discouraged mothers who find their home problems greater than they can combat alone. Garrett county, at his ime, is carrying seven family visitors on its staff who cover the whole county from Finzel to Kempton and from Selbysport to Kitzmiller. State and county officials of relief agencies consider this part of any relief program one of its most important phases.

Following the informal discussion of the workers in the two counties, a bonfire will be built on the beach and a picnic supper spread. Other meetings will probably be planned in the future.

Arrange Clinic at Kitzmiller

A clinic at Kitzmiller for the purpose of giving toxoid for the prevention of diphtheria, has been arranged by Dr. A. K. Fidler, according to Dr. Eugene C. Peck, health officer.

Other clinics of this type are to be held throughout the county at later dates.

Mrs. M. M. Schrock and the ladies at the Schrock Cottage, Mountain Lake Park, have donated forty-three garments and some material to the County Health department for the use of new born babies among the less fortunate families of the county. These garments will be given only to the families where the nurses are giving advice to the mothers before the babies are born.

Council Holds Special Meeting

A special meeting of the Mayor and Town Council was held Tuesday evening when new water rates and a new ordinance fixing these rates were discussed. It was argued that the new rates make it more expensive for the large consumers, and that a hearing will have to be held before the Public Service Commission before the rates can be changed.

DEER PARK SCOUTS PLAN MINSTREL SHOW FRIDAY

Oakland Boys Band to Play Concert Preceding Entertainment

Deer Park will welcome the Gilbert-Brown Boys' Band of Oakland tomorrow evening which will play on th etown terrace preceding the minstrel show in the Woodmen's Hall, which the boys of the Deer Park Scout troop of the Episcopal church, under the direction of Mr. Samuel S. Johnston, are presenting.

The band is going to Deer Park at the invitation of the women's auxiliary of the church and the concert will start at 7:15 o'clock in the evening.

The minstrel show is being given for the benefit of the Boy Scouts in order that they may be able to take a summer camping trip. Admission will be 15 cents and there will be a social following the entertainment.

The program consists of a number hy the Broadwater Screnaders, a playlet entitled, "Peace and Pieces," by the boys; "I Love You Truly," a pantomime by the boys; "Banjo Eyes," by Nelson Thomasson; a song, "True Blue Bill," by "Whistle" Walters.

SHEEPMEN TO GATHER FOR RAM SHOW AND SALE HERE

Will Be Held August 26—Lamb and Wool Prices Improving

Sheepmen of Garrett county wishing to establish their flocks on a profitable basis by investing in a good purebred ram will have an opportunity to do so at the Oakland ram show and sale to be held in Oakland on August 26, John H. Carter, county agent, has announced. Twenty-five head of the best rams obtainable will be offered for sale.

The history of depressions has shown quite conclusively that the lamb and wool industry has always been one of the first to show improvement when things begin to pick up. During the present situation wool began to rise in price before almost any other farm product showed this tendency, Mr. Carter stated, and wool is now about three times as high in price as it was a year ago.

Lamb prices are also showing daily improvement and Maryland farm flock owners always have a good market for their product. Those who have been using good purebred breeding rams on high class ewes have been able to make some profit on their flocks even in the leanest years, Mr. Carter continued.

The sheep flock traditionally has been charged with the responsibility of paying the farmer's taxes and it will do it, with money left over when given the proper attention. Mr. Carter invites sheepmen to talk over flock improvement with him at his office in the Court House in Oakland.

Eighteen Applications for Loans Made by Garrett Countians

Eighteen applications for loans from Garrett county have been filed with the Home Loan Corporation in Cumberland, according to W. A. Gonder, appraiser. Three appraisals have been made, two at Oakland and one at Mountain Lake Park, and four other appraisals will be made shortly.

Mr. Gonder spent last Friday in Baltimore receiving instructions about his position. The applications are first sent to the Cumberland office. An appraisal is then made by Mr. Gonder, then the local appraisal is made and the local attorney makes an abstract of the title, following which the papers are sent to Cumberland. From Cumberland the material goes to Baltimore and thence to Washington, when it is considered a completed transaction.

Annual Music Festival Dates Are Still Unsettled

The annual music festival of the Allegheny Tableland Association will be held at Camp Dawson, near Kingwood, West Va., some time during September, either upon the 2nd and 3rd, or upon the 16th and 17th. I. S. Middaugh, secretary, was uncertain of the dates when called this morning as no decision of the Preston county officials had reached him.

This is the annual festival which has been at Somerset the past two years.

The Allegheny Tableland Fair will be held again in Gimbel's store, Pittsburgh, probably October 18, 19, 20 and 21. A printed list of classifications, events and rules is now being made up by those in charge.

SCOUTS SURPASS RECORD DURING TWO WEEKS CAMP

Pass Two Hundred Seventy-Seven Tests and Merit Badges; Two Qualify for Eagle

RETURN HOME ON MONDAY

Having passed more tests and qualified for more merit badges than at any previous camp, thirty-one members of Oakland Troop, No. 1, Boy Scouts of America, returned to Oakland Monday morning after an outing of two weeks at their permanent quarters at Deep Creek Lake.

Two scouts, Kenneth Lawton and John McIntire, qualified for the rank of Eagle; ten scouts reached the rank of Life Scout, while six reached the Star Scout rank. Six were passed to First Class rank.

Two hundred seventy-seven tests and merit badges were passed during the two weeks in camp, surpassing last year's record by thirty-five. Instructors were James Lee, McClelland Dixon, Robert Stemple and Bernard I. Gonder, Jr., all Eagle Scouts and charter members of the local troop which was formed in 1924 under Rev. A. J. Torrey.

During the encampment of the boys Joseph E. Harned conducted a class in bird study and C. Milton Sincell instructed in compass and mapmaking.

Guy Hinebaugh was named as the best all-round Scout in camp, while Kenneth Lawton was chosen the best patrol leader and his Crow patrol as the best organized. Irvin Feld won the most merits, and the Fox patrol was selected as having won the patrol contest. The Beaver patrol was best on table and bunk inspections and in work the Eagles were declared the best.

Those in camp and the rank they reached during the two weeks, subject to the approval of the Scout Court of Honor, were Irving Broadwater, Robert Browning, Jack Treacy, Robert Broadwater, Jack Lawton, Star; William Grant, second class; Howard Smouse, Life; John Darby, second; Kenneth Lawton, Eagle; Horace O'Donnell, Life; Laural Whipkey, second class; Maurice Treacy, Star; William Glotfelty, Star; Irvin Feld, Life; Robert Tibbetts, second class; John Sharps, second class; George Stuck, Life; Wilbur Altstetter, Life; Lawrence Dixon, Jr., Star; Walter Stevens, second class; Howard Naylor, Life; Robert Lawton, Life; Charles Mason, Life; Guy Hinebaugh, Life; Darwin DeWitt, second class; John McIntire, Eagle; Gene Nordeck, Life; Bernard Gonder, Jr., bronze and gold palms above Eagle Scout; Hopwood Wooddell, Life; Donald Helbig, Tenderfoot; Ervin Smith, Tenderfoot; Jack Hinebaugh, second class.

In order to be a Star Scout one must be a Scout of the first class and have five merit badges. A Life Scout requires ten merit badges, which includes first aid, physical development or atheltics, personal health, public health, life saving or pioneering or safety.

"Maryland in the World War"

"Maryland in the World War" is the title of two volumes of 2355 pages with accompanying maps of the battle fields over which they operated in France, and containing full and explicit military and naval service records of all Marylanders who served in the conflict from 1917 to 1919, has been received at the office of The Republican where it has been inspected by numerous veterans since its arrival Monday morning.

The publication gives individual records, a general review of the war, the U. S. Army in the War as well as the part played by the Navy; the U. S. Marines in the War; a general statement of Maryland's contribution to the U. S. Military and Naval forces; the Maryland National Guard, the 29th Division, the 79th Division and other units.

The record shows that a total of 704 men from Garrett county were in various branches of the service—664 in the army, 18 in the navy and 22 in the Marine Corps. Of this number there were 35 deaths from wounds or sickness—33 in the army, one in the navy and one in the Marine Corps. A list of decorations and citations are included in the record.

Fined on Drunk Charge

John Hinebaugh, Crellin, was arrested Saturday for being drunk and disorderly and was fined $1 and costs before Justice W. A. Gonder.

COUNTY'S CAMPAIGN TO REEMPLOY JOBLESS BEGUN

Charles W. Ream, Crellin, Is Named Chairman—No Definite Plan of Action Decided Upon

MAY START REGISTRATION

Garrett county's campaign to reemploy the jobless has been officially launched here with the appointment of committees by Douglas Gorman, State chairman of the President's Emergency Re-Employment Campaign. Charles W. Ream, Crellin, was named chairman, with Senator Henry W. McComas and Mayor Grover C. Stemple, Oakland, as honorary chairmen.

No definite plan has been worked out as yet for setting the machinery in motion. Other cities and towns are starting a re-employment bureau with registration of those out of work. In some cities a canvass of each employer is to be made.

Delbert Davis, Oakland; Harvey Gortner, Grantsville; Harry J. Black, Friendsville; William Miller, Accident, and Thomas A. Gonder, Oakland, were named as the technical staff by Mr. Gorman, who are to be under the direction of the chairman.

A steering committee includes Mayor Grover C. Stemple, representing civic groups; Joseph M. Gonder, post commander American Legion, on fair competition codes; A. T. Matthews, representing professional groups. A county women's chairman is to be named hy Mrs. Jonh L. Whitehurst, State woman's chairman. Walter Hardesty represents fraternal orders; Miss Charlotte Wilcox, public relief and welfare agencies; Prof. F. E. Rathbun, education and schools; Rev. C. A. Shilke, Rev. Fr. W. J. McVeigh, Rev. D. C Trimble Rev. W. B. Brock and Rev. W. S. Patterson, representing religious organizations.

The object of the committee is to procure the signing of the President's blanket code for all employers of the county who fall within the provisions of the N. I. R. A. before August 31st.

Mayor Stemple will arrange for talks at civic clubs and service groups to explain the President's objectives.

The duties of the field service men under Joseph M. Gonder are to contact all local employers to secure their acceptance of the President's code, make a survey of the unemployment situation and determine the needs of industry and at a later date observe the operation of N. R. A. and check on abuses.

Other department heads are to arrange for meetings for their particular groups to explain the program.

SEVENTEEN GIRL SCOUTS LEAVE FOR ANNUAL CAMP

Full Daily Schedule Being Carried Out by Camp Leaders

Seventeen members of the Oakland Girl Scout Troop, accompanied by Miss Jane Seabright, Wheeling, W. Va.; Mrs. George H. Hanst, captain, Miss Adeline Sincell and Mrs. Emma Specht, of Oakland, left on Monday for a two weeks' outing in camp on Deep Creek Lake.

A schedule of study, swimming, recreation and camp fire is being carried out daily. Mrs. Samuel Cole, health nurse, is instructing one hour each day in first aid, while the other classes in stars, signaling, nature, outdoor cookery, handicrafts, etc., are being conducted by the camp leaders.

Younger scouts who joined too late to be eligible for camp will be guests over the week-end and will be taken formally into the troop at camp fire on Saturday evening. Parents of those being inducted may be present. The troop committee will also be present for supper and camp fire on Saturday evening.

Visitors' day is Sunday and a water sports program has been arranged for three o'clock in the afternoon.

Those in camp include Martha Jane Baird, Lois Sincell, Mary Elizabeth Townshend, Elva Porter, Jane Fraley, Margaret Rudy, Laura Susan Butt, Norma Casteel, Mamie Treacy, Estelle Treacy, Mary Virginia Bolden, Kitty Rice, Elizabeth Browning, Mary Sue Bell, Edith Brock, Pauline Wolfe and Margaret Rowan.

More girls are expected for the second week of the camp period.

The Republican Commercial Printing Department is the best equipped printery you could care to inspect.

HELD FOR THE U. S. COURT ON EXTORTION CHARGE

Otto Admits Demanding $1,000 From Dr. Davis of Grantsville

Pleading guilty to attempting to extort $1,000 from Dr. N. R. Davis, of Grantsville, Fred. L. Otto, 60, of New Germany, Garrett county, Friday of last week was committed to the Baltimore City jail to await the action of the Federal grand jury when he was unable to post $5,000 bond set by Louis J. Burger, United States District Commissioner.

Otto was taken to Baltimore from the Allegany county jail whence he had been removed from the Garrett county jail following his arrest at his home in the New Germany section of this county.

The package was placed there after Dr. Davis received a letter instructing him to place $1,000 there under a threat of being "blowed up" or "burnt at the stake." The money was to be used, the extortion letter said, to keep farmers from losing their homes.

Mr. Moore will speak at 2:30 and Mr. Crabbe at 11:00 a. m. The Gilbert-Brown Boys' Band of Oakland will furnish the music.

MEETINGS SCHEDULED FOR WHEAT CONTROL PROGRAM

Plan Will Be Outlined and Farmers Will Have Opportunity of Learning Details

LIST SPECIAL COMMITTEE

A special advisory committee to assist in setting up an organization through which wheat growers of Garrett county can take part in the wheat production control program of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration has been appointed. The men appointed are James Fitzwater, Benj. Knepp, Albert Snyder, William F. Hone, William P. DeBerry and Earl Teets.

This committee, a temporary one, appointed to serve until the formal Garrett County Wheat Production Control Association is organized, will assist in carrying on the educational campaign to make it possible for all wheat growers of the county to learn the details of the wheat plan, and will also supervise the work of districting the county into individual communities. These community units, which will be based upon township or other natural lines, will later each elect a representative for the board of directors of the county control association, and also a local or community committee of three.

In accordance with the policy of the National wheat administration every effort will be made by the preliminary campaign committee and the county agent to see that every wheat grower in the county has the opportunity to learn all about the benefits and requirements of the wheat plan before applications are signed for participation in the program.

Local community meetings at which farmers of Garrett county will have opportunity to learn details of the wheat production control plan have been scheduled by the recently appointed campaign committee, according to County Agent John H. Carter.

The plan will be outlined at these meetings and wheat growers will be given an opportunity to ask questions regarding any or all points about which they are in doubt. Full explanation of just how the wheat program will affect the individual grower and the county as a whole will be given.

Following these preliminary "educational" meetings, organization meetings will be called with those farmers who sign application blanks for participation in the wheat plan eligible to vote for the formal Garrett County Wheat Production Control Association.

The local educational meetings have been scheduled to be held in school houses in the communities named unless otherwise specified, and upon the following dates:

Monday, August 21, Sang Run, 9:30 a. m.; Sand Run, 2:30 p. m.; Selbysport, 8:00 p. m.

Tuesday, August 22, Bloomington, 9:30 a. m.; Swanton, 2:30 p. m.; Meadow Mountain, 8:00 p. m.

Wednesday, August 23, Sunnyside Grange Hall, 9:30 a. m.; Hutton, 2:30 p. m.; Oakland, Court House, 8:00 p. m.

Thursday, August 24, McHenry 9:30 a. m.; Friendsville, 2:30 p. m.; Accident, 8:00 p. m.

Friday, August 25, Keyser Ridge Garage, 9:30 a. m.; Johnson's, 2:30 p. m.; Grantsville, 8:00 p. m.

Saturday, August 26, Jennings, 9:30 a m..; New Germany, 2:30 p. m.; Bittinger, 8:00 p. m.

To Complete Second Inspection of Potato Fields

Dr. R. A. Jehle and J. W. Heuberger, potato specialists, will complete their second field inspection of certified potato seed today or tomorrow, John H. Carter, County Agent Carter announced this morning.

This will be the final field inspection and there will be only one bin inspection this year, that one being at the time of selling, when the bags or barrels are sealed.

Dance Recital

The Misses Bolgiano's summer dancing classes will give their annual recital in the auditorium of the Oakland high school on Wednesday evening, August 23rd, at 8:15 o'clock. The recital is sponsored by the Civic Club of Oakland. The program will include Dennishawn, Russian, modern and toe dances. The Misses Bolgiano will dance some of their newest numbers. They will be accompanied by Miss Mary Virginia Willison.

Lesson for August 20

SAMUEL

LESSON TEXT—I Samuel 3:1-10; 12:1-4.

GOLDEN TEXT—And Samuel said unto the people, Fear not: ye have done all this wickedness: yet turn not aside from following the Lord, but serve the Lord with all your heart. I Samuel 12:20.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Samuel Talking to God.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Samuel Listening to God.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Training for Service.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Responding to God's Call.

I. Samuel's Birth (1:1-20).

He was given to Hannah in answer to her prayer. His name means "asked of God."

II. Samuel Lent to the Lord (1:24-28).

In connection with Hannah's prayer for a man child, she vowed to give him to God. He was to be a Nazarite all the days of his life. In fulfillment of her vow, she took him at an early age to the sanctuary and gave him over to the charge of Eli, the priest, to minister therein.

III. Samuel Called of God (3:1-10).

Dwelling within the sacred courts and ministering before the Lord with Eli, is the innocent Samuel who is to become the saviour of his people. In Samuel we have a striking pattern of child religion. The Lord gave him in answer to his mother's prayer, and from his birth he was dedicated to the Lord. In the Scriptures we have set forth two types of experience; the one experiencing the saving grace of God after having lived in sin; the other of one brought up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord from his infancy.

Two traits of Samuel's character stand out in his call—his cheerful obedience to the Lord's call, and his surrendered will.

IV. Samuel Established in the Prophetic Office (3:11-21).

Up to this time Samuel obeyed Eli. The time has now come when he must directly hear and obey the Lord. The first message entrusted to him was a most terrible one. It doubtless was a bitter experience to Eli to see Samuel recognized, and himself passed by, but he was submissive. This fearful visitation upon Eli's house was due to the sins of his sons. Eli was accountable because he had not restrained them. He was a good man, but lax in the discipline of his children. Samuel grew and the Lord was with him and did not let any of his words fall to the ground. So fully did the Lord bless his ministry that all Israel knew that he was established as the Lord's prophet.

V. Samuel, the Judge (7:1-17).

1. People called to forsake their idols (vv. 1-6). Because of their sins God permitted the nation to be bitterly oppressed by the Philistines. Samuel promised them deliverance on condition of repentance (v. 3).

2. Samuel prayed for the people (vv. 7-14). In response to his prayer God miraculously delivered them from the Philistines. This victory was memorialized by the setting up of the stone called Ebenezer (v. 12).

3. Samuel judging Israel (vv. 15-17). Bethel, Gilgal, Mizpeh, and Ramah were his circuit, to each of which he made annual visits. These centers were for the accommodation of the people.

4. Samuel's final address (12:1-25). When Saul, the new king, was crowned, Samuel graciously retired, turning over to him the nation's affairs.

a. Samuel's challenge to the people (vv. 1-5). He reminded them of the way the king had been given and showed their direct responsibility for the change in government. He reviewed his own administration, showing his walk from childhood, and his career as judge and ruler. To this the people responded by a vote of confidence. It was Samuel's right as he laid down the reins of government to have his records vindicated.

b. Samuel reviews God's dealings with the nation from the time of Moses (vv. 6-15). He showed them that national prosperity was conditioned upon obedience (v. 14). Though they had displeased God in choosing a king, if they would fear the Lord and render obedience, national prosperity would still be given them.

c. Samuel's personal vindication (vv. 16-25). The hour was so critical in the nation's history that Samuel sought to indelibly impress upon their hearts its meaning. This he did by praying for thunder and rain out of season. They saw this as an example of God's mighty power which, if directed against them, would destroy them instantly.

He Turned to Prayer

He lived in the atmosphere of prayer from first to last; and when any specially important work had to be done, any specially difficult crisis had to be faced, any specially trying experience had to be endured, he met it by special prayer.—G. H. Knight.

Thank God Daily

Thank God every morning when you get up that you have something to do that day that must be done, whether you like it or not.

DON'T WAIT TO VACCINATE THOSE ENTERING SCHOOL

Every Child Should be Protected Against Disease

"Don't wait until just before school opens to have Betty and Jack vaccinated against smallpox — if they have not already been protected against that disease. Have it done now," Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the State Department of Health, says to the parents of children who will reach school age this year and will start to school in the fall.

"Our State law," Dr. Riley's message continues, "requires all children to be vaccinated against smallpox before they can be enrolled in any public school in the State. The family doctor is expected to vaccinate every baby and all young children under his care, and the parents should see that it is done. The earlier it is done, the better it is for the child. Until the child enters school, responsibility for vaccination against smallpox rests with the parents; after that, it is shared with the teacher. In accordance with the Maryland vaccination law, any teacher who permits the enrollment of an unvaccinated child is liable to a fine of $10 for 'each and every offense.'

"'Not vaccinated against smallpox' has been marked against the name of one out of every two children who have been examined at the child health conferences in the counties in preparation for their admission to school. This means that several thousand children in the counties will have to be vaccinated within the next month.

"We hear so little of smallpox in Maryland, that unless their attention is directed to the requirement, parents are likely to forget that children who are not vaccinated will be excluded from school This reminder is sent on that account.

"Though there is very little smallpox here, there is a great deal of it in other parts of the country. During the last four years, Vermont, which has less than one-quarter of the population of Maryland, has had 900 cases of smallpox. During the six weeks which ended on July 15 of this year, over 650 cases were reported from various parts of the United States to the U. S. Public Health Service. During the three years ending in 1932, 86,802 cases of smallpox were reported in the United States; 45,390 in 1930; 28,628 in 1931; and 12,784 last year. The majority of these cases occurred in sections in which vaccination is required.

"During this same period, just one case of smallpox has been reported in Maryland. There was one case reported in 1931; no cases in 1930 or in 1932; and none up to the present in 1933.

"Unvaccinated people in Maryland are as likely to catch the disease, if exposed to it, as they are in any other State. Through our vaccination law and the cooperation of the people of Maryland in putting it into effect, Maryland has not been on the map in these outbreaks of smallpox. We want to stay off the map in this respect."

AN ERA OF THANKSGIVING USHERS IN OUR

GOLDEN HARVEST SEASON OF •SALES!•

Back of us stretch those long and dismal months when all of us shook in our boots and wondered if we'd see the sun again. When panic prices crept lower——and nobody dared or cared to buy. Ahead of us a brighter era unfolds, bringing new prosperity——and the higher prices that always mark its return.

To day all of us stand wanting and willing to buy all those things we have been needing so long .... shoes and hose, hats and ties and dresses and suits and all other new and fresh wearing apparel .... and now——during our Golden Harvest Season of Sales you are able to buy them at the prices (those same old "Depths of Depression" prices) that you could have bought them all for last spring——when you couldn't because of the lack of funds.

For in spite of the fact that prices have already climbed upward——you're going to have this one big chance to get everything you want and need at those old prices. Isn't that a real reason to BUY NOW! Remember, "We Buy for Cash and Sell for Less."

NOT WARRANTED

One notes in some of the statements sent out about the desire for cooperation for recovery the intimation tha tif it is not successful "national ruin will follow."

Such a declaration is without a shred of warrant, unless Americans are willing to admit that the entire business foundation here is far weaker than in any other land.

Look at the situation coldly. Recovery is under way in other lands, all without departure from accepted procedure. True, there is no extreme advance. Wise leaders doubt the value of sudden and tremendous gains. The evil of such in the exchanges has already been demonstrated.

If there is even a hint of weakness in all that is being attempted now, it is found in the fact that too much emphasis has been placed on what has already been accomplished, also in threats to those who may be disposed to deal with their business as in times past, because of the degree of uncertainty remaining as to the future.

No person with recollection of experiences in other times of reaction will talk of "universal disaster," or "national ruin." Only those of little faith will continue to be fearful. Only those who have some special individual purpose in mind will predict disaster if their proposals are not accepted.

These are things to remember. Also one may recall that just such "sure ruin" was predicted back in 1837, again in 1857, once more in 1875 and in the free silver experience of 1893. Only the World War saved the nation from similar predictions for 1914.

The real gain in these times over all other disastrous periods is the immensely increased disposition to cooperate and to work with others for the good of all. Evidence of such is found on all sides. And it is great gain, of itself alone.

BY THREATS AND SHUDDERS

Commissar Richberg threatened the nation with communism in his New York speech. Now Commissar Johnson threatens it with a "collapse." He said: "If we can't come along here with increased purchasing power to support that higher production, I shudder to think what will happen. This country can't stand a new collapse."

Both of these efforts reveal a jumpiness of nerves in administration circles which in a less substantial country might well produce the very panic which Commissar Johnson seeks to avoid Nevertheless the symptoms are to be rated as helpful rather than alarming. For they apparently represent the end of the innocent faith of the "brain trust" in inflation as a sort of automatic prosperity maker which any child can handle.

Rumor has credited the President with sharing this optimistic view. He is said to have been persuaded by his professors that inflation could be easily controlled and that there was nothing to worry about. Keep on smiling, get the country to singing "Happy days are here again," and inflation will take care of itself.

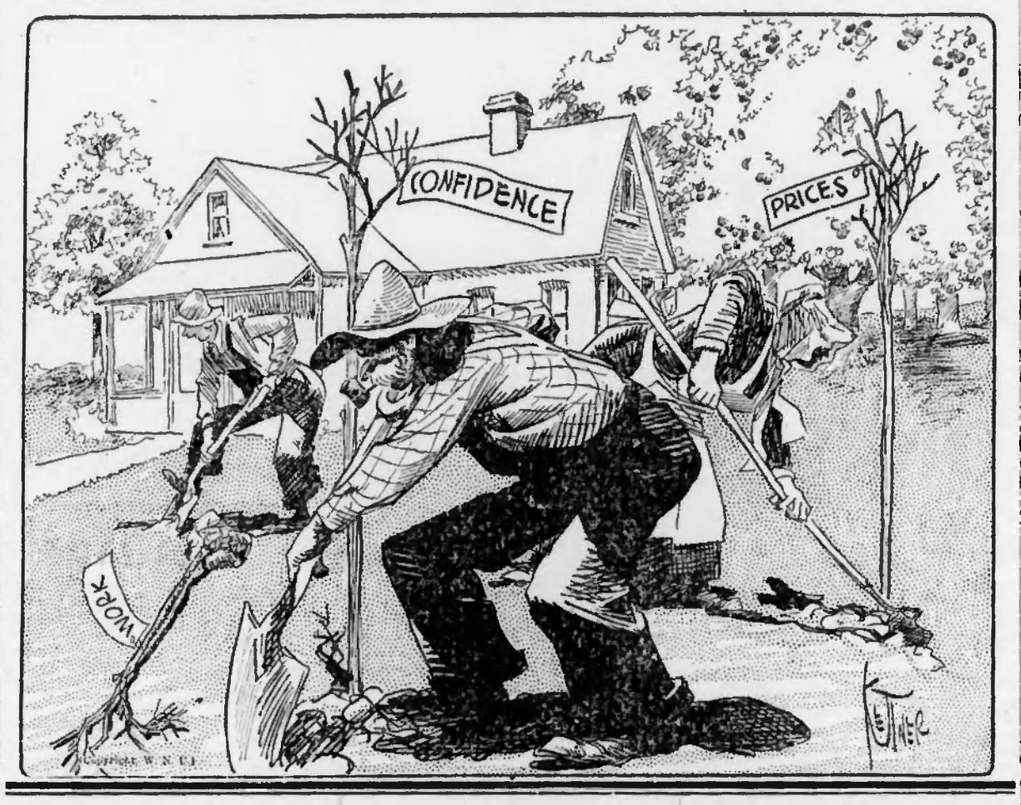
The fact is that there have been for months solid grounds for believing that the turn had come in the world depression and that this country, along with the others, was due to see demand, production and employment increase and prices rise. Unquestionably, therefore, part of the recent spectacular rise on the stock and grain markets has reflected a genuine and normal revival. But how large a part? To this normal progress has been added the artificial stimulus of an inflation threat, and as a result nobody knows just how much is sold and how much is not.

The worry that has suddenly seized the administration has apparently come from a sudden realization of this situation. Commissar Johnson plainly fears that unless wages are hoosted swiftly In line with the speculative rocketing of prices the bottom will drop out of his boom.

Fortunately the country's nerves are in an excellent state, and the revival has gone far enough to convince every one of its solidity. If the administration has at last realized the perils of its inflation policy it may learn how to avoid them in whole or in part. But we doubt if it will find threats and shudders helpful. As a matter of fact, a swift rise in wages, necessarily accompanied by a swift rise in wholesale and retail prices, might easily start a buyers' strike which would halt Commissar Johnson's train indefinitely. The more normal the course of the revival, in short, the better its chances of continuing. The sooner the administration can find a way to halt inflation and let nature take its course the better.

Russia, even Russia, has found threats an ineffective means of raising wheat, building ears and running trains. We doubt if either threats or shudders will work any better here.

Reforestation Around the Home



IN DAYS OF OLD

FORTY YEARS AGO

There were sixty-seven guests registered at the Glades Hotel in Oakland.

Anne Herndon, an actress of international fame, suffereing from nervous prostration, was in Oakland for the benefit of her health.

Fred. G. Fox, at work in J. G. Kolb's planing mill in Friendsville, had several fingers of his right hand severed by a planing machine he was operating. Dr. Ravenscroft, of Accident, dressed the injury.

A new vault for the Circuit Clerk's office at the Court House was completed.

The wives of three members of the President's cabinet, Mrs. Gresham, Mrs. Carlisle and Mrs. Bissell, were registered at the Deer Park Hotel for the season.

Britton Lee Kildow, Baltimore and Ohio brakeman, of Piedmont, fell from a box car during a hail and rain storm at a point east of Weber's and died in the office of Dr. McComas a few minutes after he had been brought to Oakland from the scene of the accident.

Nordeck's steam saw mill, near Crellin, was destroyed by fire.

Rev. Cramer, of Baltimore, was in the county distributing Bibles for the American Bible Society.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Dr. A. B. Riker was engaged to make the address at Grand Army Day at Mountain Lake Park.

A derailed freight car wrecked the Third street bridge at the Giessman hotel taking with it the gas main and Oakland was without gas for several hours until repairs could be made.

W. McCulloh Brown resurveyed the town of Oakland preparatory to extending the town limits. The survey began at Washington Springs bridge, ran north to include property of Louis Bush and real estate along the Second street extension to the Wallace home, thence to lands of Harry Helbig, E. A. Browning and others to a point on the Dennett road leading to Mountain Lake Park; thence south through the Thayer addition, striking the limits of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad near the site of the old planing mill which had previously burned.

Rev. Edmund Manges, after a pastorate of thirteen years, resigned as the minister in charge of St. Mark's Lutheran church in Oakland .

Electric signs were being placed on the rear of through trains on the B. & O. Railroad

The attendance at the Chautauqua in Mt. Lake Park was the smallest in history.

In two accidents in which automobiles, horses and buggies, men and women were concerned, the horses, men and women escaped uninjured. One horse reared and fell upon the hood of a machine, smashing the windshield and bending the fenders. E. L. Beckwith drove a car which collided with a mule drawing a buggy driven by a son of W. R. Beckman. A vehicle occupied by Dr. Davidson was run into by a touring car of Mrs. S. P. Menear, Greensburg, Pa.

Bird Feed Patch

The time has arrived when a great many of our farmers are working their corn crops for the last time this season. For some years we have advocated the "bird food patch," which has been adopted by thousands of farmers in our State who have benefited from the establishment of this patch by attracting birds to their properties and by the birds destroying obnoxious weed seeds and insects.

The last working of corn is the time to plant buckwheat. There are a great many farmers who follow their corn crop with wheat or barley. However, there are thousands who do not. We request those to seed a small area of buckwheat in the outer rows of their cornfield by working same in with their cultivator or harrow at the time the corn is being laid by. The bird feed patch need not be large as the best method is to seed strips either through fields or around the edges. It is still not too late to seed buckwheat, cowpeas, millet, sorghum, kaffir corn or black-eyed peas and leave the same standing to furnish cover and feed for our wildlife during the coming winter season.

Pratically every farmer or small landowner of our State has a small piece of land which could be used to great advantage for the bird feed patch. The expense is very small and as 90 per cent of the diet of all birds is obnoxious weed seeds and insect life, the attraction of the birds to your property greatly benefits you in deriving a profitable investment from their presence.

We recommend and request your cooperation in planting a small area or a number of small areas on your property in any of the above seeds or grains recommended, leaving it stand until the spring of 1934 to provide cover and feed for wildlife during the coming fall and winter and assure you that beneficial results will he obtained.

Maryland to Get $3,564.527 For Highway Building

Governor Alhert C. Ritchie does not favor proposals to spend any of the State's share of Federal relief road money on the construction of a superhighway across the State—for the time being, at least.

Maryland is to get $3,564,527 of the Federal road grants. The road commission, according to present plans, will spend 25 per cent of the money in Baltimore,25 per cent for secondary and feeder roads and 50 per cent for the improvement of the Philadelphia road, the Belair road and the Annapolis road, each project heginning at the Baltimore City line, and to the improvement of the Leonardtown-St. Mary's City highway.

Engagement Announced

The engagement of Miss Martha Herman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Herman, Swanton, to Mr. Dane Hamilton, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Hamilton, of Keyser, W. Va., has been announced.

Bayard Loses Two But Retains Lead In Baseball League

Bayard still retains the lead in the Mountain State Baseball League, although losing a game to Sunnyside and one to Friendsville during the past week's play. The Sunnyside-Bayard game was a 14-inning affair, the score being tied at the end of the ninth and tenth innings.

Oakland won two games this week, one from Sunnyside and one from Friendsville.

Swallow Falls divided honors in a double header with Vindex.

Bloomington moved up to sixth place by taking Crellin 6 to 2.

A brawl at the Sunnyside-Bayard game last Wednesday resulted in the suspension of two players.

Games Sunday include Friendsville at Oakland; Crellin at Bloomington; Sunnyside at Bayard; C. C. C. Camp at Vindex.

IMPRESSIVE SERVICE ALWAYS

Sympathy

One of the questions most frequently asked us by our friends is this:

"How can you be constantly in the homes of bereaved families without becoming callous and 'case hardened'? How do you keep your sympathies alive?"

We always answer that in each individual case there is a new opportunity to be of real service in time of need. We consider our knowledge and experience as a charge given to us for the benefit of others.

LOG CHURCH CORNERSTONE LAYING ATTENDED BY 300

Labor and Material for Construction Being Donated for Edifice

Three hundred people attended the ceremonies and picnic at the laying of the corner stone of the Wilson-Altamont Log Church on Tuesday, at the junction of the road to Wilson with the Deer Park-Kitzmiller State road Many attended from Kitzmiller, Swanton, Deer Park and Oakland, and the Backbone Mountain people turned out in full force.

The corner stone was laid by Mrs. George Stewart Brown, summer resident of Altamont, who with her husband, Judge George Stewart Brown, donated the property for the new church and much of the timber from which it will be constructed. The architect for the structure is Arvid Jundzin, of the Youghiogheny Forest Lodge, near Aurora, W. Va.

Talks were made by Rev. David C. Trimble, Mr. Samuel Johnston and by Judge Brown. Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt telegraphed her interest and sympathy in the movement.

The log church is being built by volunteer labor of the people of Wilson, Altamont and the Backbone Mountain out of chestnut logs. The site is cleared, the foundation almost completed and most of the logs cut and shaped for building. Mr. Johnston, who for two years has been ministering to the congregation, has been directing the construction.

Judge Brown praised Mr. Johnston for his work. Mr. Johnston read a history of the church, telling how the people had been meeting in the Wilson school house for two years. Rev. Trimble added a few remarks concerning the origin of the religious work in the section, including the fact that through the generosity of St. Paul's Episcopal church in Baltimore it was possible to send Mr. Johnston, who is a seminarian, to the field.

Supper and refreshments were served of supplies contributed by the women of the neighborhood, raising over $100 for the church.

Mrs. George Comp, Mrs. C. Jeffers, Mrs. Fred. Gates, Mrs. Jesse Woods, Mrs. Clyde Bernard and Mrs. Stella Feeley had charge of the supper. Miss Verna Comp and Miss Geraldine Junkins had the younger group of girls in charge. The chickens were cooked on an old-fashioned spit. Later in the evening the children sang around a log fire and roasted weiners. Everything was donated for the supper and many things were promised for the church building. Mr. W. McCulloh Brown is giving the front door; Mrs. J. W. Walters, the pulpit Bible; Mrs. George Comp, half the roofing; Peter Powell, a keg of nails; Cheston H. Browning, the sand. Rev. Trimble announced gifts from the Hannah Moore Academy, a diocesan church school, Reisterstown; and a donation of $10 from the Ladies' Guild of St. Matthew's Episcopal church, Oakland.

MARRIED

Seigworth—Tolsen—At Zion Congregational church, Frostburg, Md., on Friday morning at six o'clock the marriage of Mr. Kenneth Seigworth, son of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Seigworth, of Lickingville, Pa., and Miss Maud Ringgold Tolson, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John Tolson, of Salisbury, Md., was solemnized. Rev. H. C. Yaggi officiated. A nuptial breakfast was served at the home of Mrs. Thomas Lloyd, Frostburg, where Mr. and Mrs. Seigworth will make their home following a brief honeymoon.

The groom is a graduate of Penn State College, State College, Pa., and is district forester for the State of Maryland. He is now engaged superintending the work of the Civilian Conservation Corps at Swallow Falls, nine miles north of Oakland. The bride is a promient Eastern Shore girl.

HUNTING SEASON NEARS; SQUIRREL DATES CHANGED

Run on Applications for Licenses Expected During August

A heavy demand for applications for hunting licenses is expected during August 15 to September 1 by Clerk of the Circuit Court A. G. Ross. Quite a few applications have already been received in preparation for the opening of the hunting season.

The first open season will be for rail-birds, which inhabit the marsh areas of the State, September 1 to October 31, inclusive.

The turtle dove, one of the oldest inhabitants of the State and found in practically every county in Maryland, can be hunted September 1 to September 30, inclusive; then closed October 1 to November 14, inclusive; then open November 15 to December 31, inclusive. However, Federal regulations prohibit the hunting of dove after December 15.

The open season for squirrel in Garrett county is October 1 to October 31, inclusive, as a result of a recent Act of the Legislature, which changed the open season.

Instructions have been issued to the district deputy game wardens throughout the State to be on the alert and check up on hunters' licenses. This year the law provides for issuance of a non-resident hunter's license, valid for five consecutive days, at the cost of $5.50. This license must be returned to the State Game Department three days after date of expiration.

OPINION AND DECREE OF COURT SETS ASIDE SALE

Testimony Heard In Cumberland In Case Removed from Garrett

Judge Albert A. Doub in the Circuit Court, has signed an opinion in the equity suit of T. L. Richards, assignee, against Effie A. Liston and Harry Liston, Blaine Hetrick and others, in which a decree is entered declaring that part of the mortgage which attempts to convey to the Midland Building and Loan Association the residence property by way of mortgage, is null and void. The mortgagee is restrained from selling the property involved. The opinion is a lengthy document.

This was a Garrett county suit, removed from the local court to Cumberland for trial where the testimony was taken.

A decree is also signed sustaining the exceptions of Blaine Hetrick and Lawrence Hetrick to the assignee's second report of sale, which is set aside.

The first of the cases involved the ratification of a sale made by the assignee of the mortgage given by Effie A. Liston, to which exceptions had been filed by Blaine Hetrick and Lawrence Hetrick, infants, by their guardian.

The second case arose upon a bill in equity filed by the Hetricks against the mortgagee and his assignee to prevent the sale of property. The two cases were submitted upon the same testimony, and judgment rendered in the first, disposes of the second one.

In this case Effie A. Hetrick, widow, married Harry Liston. The widow conveyed property to her second husband, and later a public garage was built and Liston secured a loan on the garage and residence. The property was foreclosed and sold.

The court ruled that Mrs. Liston had no right under the will of her first husband to execute and deliver a mortgage on the property of herself and her children, by Hetrick, as security for her second husband's debt.

Horace P. Whitworth, W. Earle Cohey, Walter W. Dawson and Wm. A. Gunter were attorneys in the case.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By FRANK P. LITSCHERT

The next international meeting to interest the American people, now that the London economic conference is out of the way, is the reconvening of the Geneva Disarmament Conference next October. At present, according to most political experts who have studied the question, there is not much more chance this conference will succeed than there was for the London Economic Conference. There is the same old story of conflicting interests on the part of European nations.

* * *

It is announced from Washington that when the conference reconvenes, the American delegates will once more press President Roosevelt's proposal for the abolishing of all offensive weapons. Admirable as this proposal may be in intention, there is no indication that it will succeed. In the first place neither the experts or the delegates whom they are supposed to advise, have yet, after months of study, been able to agree on what constitutes a weapon of offensive warfare. When we think of offensive warfare we think immediately of grisly armored tanks and Big Berthas which will shoot for several miles. But how about the humble airplane? Is it not an offensive weapon too? A great many military experts believe that an army well equipped with bombing planes could blow up any capital in Europe on reasonably short notice. Now just how is this offensive weapon of the sky to be abolished? Surely no one will propose the elimination of the science of aviation. That would not be desirable even if it were possible. An agreement might be reached on bombing planes. But the question then arises as to how long it would take to equip a big commercial plane for offensive warfare, especially if it were designed with the view that it might sometime have to be converted suddenly into a bomber?

This brings up a point of disagreement between France and Germany. Suppose it were possible to eliminate bombing planes. When such a proposition were proposed to France she would immediately find an objection. Germany is a highly industrial nation. If war broke out between France and Germany and neither nation had offensive bombing planes, Germany could construct them much faster than France because she has more equipment with which to do it, and France would soon be at a disadvantage. The same reasoning applies to tanks, big guns and other instruments of war. So there you are.

There are plenty of disagreements in Europe over the question of disarmament. The reason is that most, if not all, of the nations over there, only want to agree to a disarmament which will give them the advantage over the other fellow. Further than that they are not willing to go. There are constant rumblings of trouble to come in Europe. Alignments are changing and nobody knows what alliances or understanding will come to the surface within the next few months.

* * *

Certainly under such circumstances there is little ground to believe that the coming disarmament conference will be any more successful than the recent London Economic Conference. Certainly it cannot succeed unless Uncle Sam agrees to make sacrifices which will be out of all proportion to the good that can come to us. Under the circumstances, since we are in the conference, it would seem the part of wisdom to present our proposition in a clear-cut way, devoid of diplomatic twistings and let them take it or leave

The destiny and future of the United States still lies pretty much in Western Hemisphere.

Low Cost Salads for Summer Days

Midsummer days call for salads. These can be made without cooking. and they can be made of almost any kind of food. Therefore they can be very cheap and of many different combinations. Almost every salad includes green leaves, usually lettuce, cabbage, watercress, romaine or endive. Even if it has no other ingredient, a salad provides in any one, or any combination, of these leaves a rich store of food value which will protect the health of the family against infections and diseases.

The salad of cooked vegetables is of course a most convenient method of using up left-overs. Beans, beets, peas, carrots, cauliflower and potato alone or in combination, with something raw for crispness, and lettuce or cress or celery leaves for greens, make an easy substitute for hot vegetables on hot days, and with no loss to the meal in food value. In other words, the salad, especially the vegetable salad or the salad made of citrus fruits, besides being a cool and appetizing dish for summertime, is probably the most attractive, convenient, effective, and the cheapest way to provide the family with most of the "protective foods" other than milk and butter. The vitamins and mineral salts, which are abundant in green vegetables, in carrots and in tomatoes, in grapefruit and oranges, are served with least loss in these foods eaten raw.

Suggested Combinations for Vegetable Salads

1. Diced cooked beets, cooked snap beans, chopped dill pickle.

2. Shredded cabbage, chopped green pepper, chopped onion, chopped peanuts.

3. Cooked or canned snap beans, diced cooked carrot, chopped onion or chopped celery.

4. Cooked green lima beans, diced tomato, diced cucumber, chopped onion.

5. Cooked or canned peas, grated raw carrots, shredded cabbage.

Liver and Cucumber Salad

One and one-half pound liver, broiled and chopped, 1 onion, diced; 1 medium sized cucumber, diced; mayonnaise. Use chilled, broiled liver, cutting it into fine pieces. Mix with the other ingredients and serve on crisp lettuce.

Mayonnaise Variations

1. Mayonnaise, chopped pickle, finely chopped celery.

2. One cup mayonnaise, ½ cup chili sauce, catsup or cooked tomato. If desired, add a little chopped celery or green pepper, or pickle if catsup is used.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

Ruth Baird vs. Edward Baird.
No. 3152 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to procure a divorce a vinculo matrimonii by the plaintiff from the defendant.

The Bill states:

That the plaintiff was married to the defendant on April 14th, 1919, at Cumberland, Maryland; that the plaintiff is and has been for more than two years last past a resident of Garrett County, Maryland; that the conduct of the plaintiff towards the said defendant has always been kind, affectionate and above reproach; that the said defendant abandoned and deserted the plaintiff without any just cause or reason and has declared his intention of no longer living with her; that said abandonment and desertion has continued uninterrupedly for more than three years and is deliberate and final, and the separation of the parties beyond any reasonable hope or expectation of reconciliation; that there were two children born of said marriage, viz.: John Edward Baird and Martha Jane Baird, both of whom are still alive and are infants and who have lived with your oratrix since the said abandonment and desertion; that the said defendant is not a resident of the State of Maryland, and does not reside therein, his last known address being Morgantown, West Virginia.

The bill prays for a divorce a vinculo matrimonii of the plaintiff from the defendant; custody and guardianship of the said infant children and for general relief and an Order of Publication against the defendant.

It is therefore, this 5th day of August, 1933, ordered by the Circut Court for Garrett County, Maryland, in Equity, that the plaintiff, by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in Garrett County, Maryland, once in each of four successive weeks before the 8th day of September, 1933, giving notice to the said absent defendant of the object and substance of this bill, warning him to appear in this Court, in person or by solicitor, on or before the 23rd day of September, 1933, to show cause, if any he has, why a decree should not be passed as prayed.

House guests of Mr. and Mrs. D. A. King Sunday and Monday were P. E. King, Mary and Karl King, Wheeling, W. Va.; Mrs. Carrie King, Dayton, O., and Mrs. Allie King Gnagey, also of Dayton. Mr. P. E. King is principal of the Triadelphia high school in Wheeling.

THE MARYLAND BIBLE SOCIETY'S CORNER

"The Word of Our God Shall Stand Forever"

HOSEA

Hosea's life was in many respects the saddest of all the prohets. He prophecied against his own north country in the reigns of Jeroboam, the son of Joash, King of Israel, and Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz and Hezekiah, the Kings of Judah. He was thoroughly familiar with the evil conditions existing in Israel, and for that reason his messages were the more weighty.

It is almost past belief that a prophet of the living God could be called upon to endure such suffering as fell to the lot of Hosea. It would appear from the narrative that he deliberately took a wife, knowing that she would prove unfaithful, so that this bitter experience might become the foundation of his appeals to Israel, who, like Gomar, had forsaken her vows to God.

Thus Hosea's home life became an allegory portraying Israel's apostasy from God—God the husband, Israel the unfaithful wife.

The discourses of Hosea are chiefly descriptions of the backsliding and idolatry of the people, mingled with threatenings and exhortations. Chapter 14 closes the prophecy with a formal call to repentance, and rich promises of future blessings. The divine love and mercy are very tenderly set forth by the prophet in these words: "I will heal their backsliding, I will love them freely: for mine anger is turned away. I will be as the dew upon Israel: he shall grow as the lily, and cast forth his roots as Lebanon. His branches shall spread and his beauty shall be as the olive tree."

This book abounds in highly figurative language used to express the evil conditions in Israel, as in Chapter 2:15, "The Valley of Achor for a door of hope." This valley was the place of Achan's execution for his sin against Israel, in appropriating for his own use a wedge of gold and a Babylonish garment, both of which had been set apart for sacrifice.

In Chapter 4:17, we find a statement which has become a proverb among English speaking people: "Ephraim is joined to idols; let him alone." The utter hopelessness of argument or of persuasion could not be more strikingly expressed.

Chapter 7:18 offers the prophet's explanation for many of the sorrows of his people. They are no longer a separated and holy nation, but have become mixed among the peoples, a nation of physical and spiritual half-breeds. In the figure, "Ephraim is cake not turned," we see a nation spiritually immature and undeveloped, half-baked as we might now say, a victim of partial thinking, the slaves of sensuality, unable to see far horizons. Chapter 12 shows how the loss of spiritual ideals leads as its natural consequence to the use of deceitful balances. When religious idealism takes flight, commercial trickery and crooked business dealings predominate.

The prophecy closes with this profound observation: "Who is wise and he shall understand these things? Prudent, and he shall know them? For the ways of the Lord are right, and the just shall walk in them: but the transgressors shall fall therein."

FRIENDSVILLE

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Guard were visiting friends in Braddock last week.

Mrs. J. W. BITTINGER

Rev. Harry Hall, of Cumberland, will conduct services in the Bittinger Lutheran church next Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, following the Sunday school session at 1:30 o'clock.

While doing some work at the residence of her son last Wednesday morning, Mrs. Joseph Buckle, aged seventy-six years, accidentally ran against a mowing scythe which was hanging in a building and the instrument becoming dislodged, fell. The blade struck Mrs. Buckle on the arm, inflicting a deep wound which necessitated the attendance of Dr. N. R. Davis, of Grantsville. At this time we are glad to state that the wound is healing nicely and no ill after-effects are anticipated.

A reunion of the Opel family was held in Broadwater's Grove, near this village, last Sunday, which was an enjoyable occasion for a large number of friends and relatives of the Opel family.

Dr. and Mrs. N. R. Davis, with their little son Robert, of Grantsville, were in Bittinger a few minutes last Sunday morning.

Merchant O. C. Buckle motored to Salisbury, Pa., on business last Saturday afternoon.

A group of friends from Pittsburgh, Pa., spent the week-end at the hospitable home of Mr. and Mrs. Silas C. Beachy.

Miss June Buckle recently secured a position in Cumberland and entered upon her new duties on Wednesday of last week.

William Winterberg, of Grantsville, was in Bittinger one day last week.

Last Sunday afternoon's game of ball, between the Jennings and Bittinger teams, resulted in a score of 8 to 0 in favor of the home team. Beal pitched for Bittinger and Hoover for Jennings.

Joe Ash, the veteran road builder of this section, who has charge of the relief group now working in the Bear Hill section, passed through this village last Friday afternoon.

Miss Nellie Beachy, of near Jennings, was the guest of Mrs. Herbert Buckle last Friday evening.

Winner of Chicago Trip Writes To Garrett Countians

Harold W. Green, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur H. Green, Swanton, who was awarded a trip to the World's Fair at Chicago in a voting contest by a national store, was written to The Republican about his trip. Harold is ten years of age, and he is being accompanied by his mother. The letter follows:

Dear Friends of Garrett County:

Here we are at the World's Fair and words can never express how lovely we are being entertained.

First I will tell you a little about the place where we are staying. We are all at the Medinah Michigan Avenue Club. This building is forty-four stories high and 500 feet above the street level. On the very top is an observatory from which I can see Chicago proper, Century of Progress Exposition, Indiana and Michigan shorelines. The interior of the building is beautiful. There are 250 in the party and we all eat at the main dining room and the food is what you call delicious, spelled with a capital D.

There is here a mother and haby 8 months old and her little girl from Alaska and people from all over the United States.

We went to the Enchanted Island yesterday morning for a little while and while there I saw the largest man in the world. He is 7 feet 6 inches tall. Also saw the largest wagon and a lot of things I never saw before. We are going back again today to see lots more.

We drove around Chicago yesterday afternoon in a sight-seeing bus; also went to the National Broadcasting station.

I can onl ytell you that I am going to be sorry to leave this place and my only wish will be to come back again for a much longer stay.

MT. LAKE PARK

The Tennis Tournament

The fourteenth annual Western Maryland Tennis Tournament opened Monday with fast courts and ideal weather conditions prevailing. A number of old players are back this year, including Don Snyder, John and Bill O'Loughlin, John Brown, Paul Sullivan, Ed. Aleom, Howard Moore and Jennings Randolph. Notwitstanding adverse conditions, between 45 and 50 players are entered for the play, which about equals former years.

The tournament has never had a more consistent supporter than Jennings Randolph, of West Virginia. This year is no exception. He and Mrs. Randolph are registered at the Allegheny House. Elected to Congress from the Elkins district at the last election, Mr. Randolph takes his duties seriously. That job, in addition to the great demand on his time as a public speaker, keeps him pretty busy.

Hotel Arrivals

Late arrivals at the Mountain Lake Hotel include Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Triplett, Baltimore; W. S. McClintock, Pittsburgh; Miss Gay Griffith, Washington, and Miss May Welch, Keyser.

Miss Bertha Bennett, who has been a guest at the hotel for some time, was called to her home in Baltimore a day or two ago by the sudden death of a sister.

Emerson Gill and his orchestra members spent a three-day vacation at the Park last week. To select the Park from among the many cities and resorts at which he is accustomed to play, speaks well for Mountain Lake. Just as a prophet is not without honor save in his own country, just so we believe the delights of a vacation at the Park is better appreciated by the visitor than by those who see it every day.

Reception and Dance

Those who attended the reception tendered the tennis players on Monday night and the tennis dance at the Mountain Lake Hotel Wednesday evevening, are loud in their praises. Both affairs were well attended.

Then there will be a frolic at the bowling alley Friday night and a dance, featuring a broadcasting orchestra at the hotel Saturday night.

Personal News

General and Mrs. Jarvis have arrived at the Park and are occupying their cottage. They have as their guests Mr. and Mrs. Haymond Rapp, of Clarksburg.

Mrs. Raymond McCutcheon, of New York, is the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Oswell.

Mrs. E. E. Friend is quite ill at her home here.

Mrs. Charles E. Manley, of Fairmont, who has heen a guest of her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. MacClellen Clayton, returned to her home Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Clayton also had as their guests Mr. and Mrs. Roy B. Naylor, of Wheeling.

Mr. Levi B. Harr is spending a few days at Fairmont.

Miss Janet Rohinson and brother, Jarvis, have returned to their home in Charleston after having spent some time at the Park.

Mrs. Hugh H. Carr and daughter Miss Kitty Carr, of Fairmont, are here as guests of Dr. and Mrs. Logan Carr.

Robert Hicks, who has been quite ill with an attack of tonsilitis, is somewhat improved.

Miss Mary Esther Martin, of Woodstock, Va., is the guest of Major and Mrs. Skiles.

Miss Bessie Mason, of Fairmont, and Mr. Richard Dawson, attorney of Uniontown, motored to the Park Monday and were guests of friends during the day.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred. C. Fleming and Mr. and Mrs. George A. Nelson, of Fairmont, motored to Franklin and other points of interest in Pendleton county, W. Va., recently.

Miss Eva Welling, of Cumberland, is the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wiley W. Welling.

Walter Combs spent part of the week in Cumberland.

Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Helmick, of Fairmont, were here on Sunday, the guests of Mrs. C. E. Hutchinson.

Master Weir Pollard entertained a number of his young friends at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Pollard, Jr., celebrating his birthday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Bittinger, Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Brown, Miss Mildred Ford, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Cuppett, all of Loch Lynn, and Mrs. Trenton, of Cumberland, spent Saturday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Johnson at Aurora, W. Va. The local male quartet met there and sang several selections.

Harry McCain and family, of California, Pa., were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Brown.

Salem Broadwater and son Robert spent Monday in Loch Lynn.

SCOOP'S COLUMN

By Scoop Himself

Here I've let another Thursday slip around with nothing to say and I promised myself months ago never to let this happen again.

What I've been doing is reading a lot about this wheat business and the NRA, and the re-employment committee, and they've got me dizzy.

I've looked in vain for an article that would tell me that I would get paid for plowing under my corn. My corn has cauliflower ears. Early this year it got into a fight with Jack Frost. I dressed the wounds as best I could but it seems that the first aid treatment was not as much of a success as it might have been.

And what's all this stuff you read about concerning the Blanket code? I'll tell you one thing. I'm in favor of a blanket code, especially during these cool nights. And the first regulation ought to be (1) you keep your half of the blanket and I'll keep mine.

* * *

It's funny about kids. When you think you've got them sized up, they pull something entirely out of reason and you're at sea again. Take one of the scouts—trained in a good home and all—but he was caught using the drinking water bucket for a finger bowl after one of the noon meals. That evening he ate by himself.

* * *

You've heard lately about hooking shrubs from homes, flowers from porches, apples from trees, and sleeping in other people's houses when the owners are away. The latest is the hooking of somebody's aerial wire at the Park. Maybe they thought the radio would be hooked on one end.

* * *

Everything comes to him who looks for its long enough. For instance the Bayard baseball man who has always been looking for trouble since he played in any kind of a game. Seems as though he ran into the wrong first baseman.

* * *

A good thing to remember where any group of people are swimming. Never holler for help or assistance unless you really need it. My heart remained in my aesophagus for at least two hours Sunday evening when a five or six-year old boy hollered for help at the scout camp. And there he was splashing in the water, seated on a raft, with a grin that stretched from ear to ear.

NEW GERMANY

Funeral services were held at the Reformed church here last Thursday afternoon for Mrs. William Durst. Rev. A. M. Wright officiated with interment in the church cemetery.

Miss Helen Kamp spent the week-end with Miss Eileen Otto.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Wampler and son and Mr. and Mrs. Jonas Wampler spent Sunday at the home of William Wampler, Longstretch.

Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Otto, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Broadwater and daughters Fried and Mabel, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Kamp and family, Mrs. Lewis Kamp, Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Otto and daughter Bernice, Grace and Betty Joe were Sunday dinner guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Layman at Longstretch.

Miss Mary Jankey who has been a student at the University of Maryland, College Park, spent Tuesday evening at the S. L. Otto home.

Miss Helen Miller, student at Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, is here for a vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Miller.

Miss Alberta Broadwater and Parker Warniek were Sunday evening callers at the home of Miss Elsie Custer, Merrill.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Alexander and week-end with Mrs. C. C. Swauger.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Warniek and Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Robeson visited relatives in Westernport on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Wampler and son called on Floyd Broadwater and family Sunday evening.

TENNIS TOURNEY FINALS SCHEDULED FOR SATURDAY

Favorites Come Through In Early Rounds of Annual Meet

The Western Maryland championships in men's and women's singles of the fourteenth annual tennis tournament will be decided on Saturday.

The tournament began at the Park on Monday and with few exceptions the favorites came through to win their matches. Twenty eight were entered in the men's singles and 14 in the women's singles. Dr. John O'Loughlin, last year's winner of the men's cup, has defeated his opponents easily thus far and is favored to win again. Miss Margaret Carspecken and Miss Frances Grimes, former cup winners of the women's singles, from Morgantown, W. Va., have defeated all opponents to remain in the running for first honors. Miss Grimes won a hard battle yesterday from Mary Ryan, Washington, 7-5, 7-5.
